Conquer Thyself.

BY JOHN ASKHAM.

'Tis a good thing sometimes to be alone,
Sit calmly down and look Self in the face,
Ransack the heart, search every secret place,
Prayerful uproot the baneful seeds there sown,
Pluck out the weeds ere the full crop is sown,
Gird up the loins afresh to run the race,
Foster all noble thoughts, cast out the base,
Thrust forth the bad and make the good thine own
Who has the courage thus to look within,
Keep faithful watch and ward with inner eyes;
The foe may harass, but can ne'er surprise
Or over him ignoble conquest win.
O! doubt it not, if thou would'st wear a crown,
Self, baser self, must first be trampled down.

The case of Mary Lynch vs the town of Peabody, an action of tort to recover damages for alleged personal injuries received by falling over the stump of a tree on Midway street in May 1884, which was being considered by the jury when we went to press last week, resulted in awarding the plaintiff $100. She sued for $2000. Henry Wardwell Esq. for the town and H. P. Moulton Esq., for the plaintiff.

The reports in the Boston dailies concerning the construction of a new naval boat called the Mohican, brings to mind the experience of a number of our citizens on the old boat of that name at the time of the rebellion. In the opinion of many the old Mohican never sunk as reported, but was rebuilt at the cost of a new vessel, and that it is one of those jobs that are put up on the government.

The corrected time table of the Eastern Division of the Boston & Maine R. R. will be found in another column. The changes of importance to Peabody people are that the afternoon train to Salem and Boston leaves here at 3.27 instead of 3.37, and the down train from Lawrence at night should arrive here at 6.42 instead of 6.48. There is a difference of one or two minutes on some of the other trains, but in each case later, so that no one need miss the trains.

Last Monday evening the St. John's C. T. A. Society held their first skating and dancing party at the rink and it was very successful. The skating lasted till about 9.30 and this was followed by a game of polo between the Danvers and St. John's teams and was won by the Danvers 3 to 1. The Danvers won the 1st, 2d and 4th in 30 s. 23 m., 30s. and 12 s. respectively. The St. John's won the third goal in 4 m. 15 s. W. J. Murray, referee. Dancing followed from 10.30 till 2 o'clock. It was one of the best parties this season.

Dr. J. F. Winchester, formerly of this town, but late of Lawrence, the well known veterinary surgeon, has been appointed by Governor Robinson a member of the new board of cattle commissioners. It is in every way an excellent appointment.

All members of the Peabody Woman Suffrage Club, and any who are interested in the subject which this organization seeks to promote, are requested to meet for important business at the W. C. T. U. headquarters on Monday evening, Oct. 19, at 7.30 o'clock.

MUSICAL NOTES.

It is a pleasure to note the fact that Peabody is to be favored with two first class concerts this month. It is certainly an event worthy of particular mention, and we hope both will be patronized by our people. In addition to the concert complimentary to Mr. Macgregor, of which notice was given last week by us, there is to be a concert by the Oxford Male Quartette assisted by Edward K. Hood and other talent, Thursday evening, Oct. 22. It is under the local management of a few of our young men who have united for the purpose, and deserve great praise for the undertaking. Our people should make an effort to patronize them that encouragement may be given for others to follow. The talent for the concert is first class. The Oxford Male Quartette is in our judgment the best in the field to-day. Mr. Saxon and Mr. McLaughlin were of the old Lotus Glee Club, when they sang in our Town Hall two years ago at the concert of War Songs. The other gentlemen are equal to them in every respect, and we know everybody will be pleased with their singing. Edward K. Hood needs no introduction to a Peabody audience. He read last year in the Institute Course, giving the best entertainment, for an entire evening, that has been in town for a long time. He also read for the Brooksbie Club. There will also appear Miss Nettie C. Coburn, a young cornetist who is very highly spoken of, and an accompanist. Checks for seats are being sold by the young gentlemen and can be exchanged for tickets with reserved seats next Monday, Oct. 19, at the store of Hazen A. Spaulding, at which time all the seats will be for sale. The concert will be given in the Peabody Institute.

Tickets for the benefit concert to Mr. Macgregor are on sale at the stores of H. A. Spaulding, D. P. Grosvenor and Nathaniel Symonds. Mr. Macgregor and the local talent assisting have many friends in this vicinity and the hall should be filled. Miss Sopha Hall is one of the finest contraltos in this vicinity and it is her first appearance in Peabody.

The Seventh Annual Musical Festival of the So. Eastern Mass. Association will be held at Taunton, Oct. 21, 22 and 23d. This association has had glorious success in past years, and the talent engaged for this year will compare favorably with the soloists of any previous occasion. We think the soprano list is ahead of the Worcester Festival. Emma Thursby has not been heard in this vicinity for a long time. Henrietta Beebe is probably the finest church soprano in this country. We remember her fine singing years ago, with the celebrated New York Glee Club, which gave in Boston Music Hall some of the choicest renderings of English Glees and Madrigals. Miss Medora Henson sang with great success at the Handel and Haydn last winter in Boston, and Miss E. Buffington Kehew sang very acceptably at Worcester and is doing some fine work this year. Such a list of soloists must ensure the success of any Festival. For contraltos the association have engaged Mrs. Belle Cole and Mrs. S. Baron Anderson; for tenors, Mr. Wilbur Gunn and Mr. William H. Lawton; for bassos, D. M. Babcock and Dr. Carl E. Martin. Of course Zerrahn will conduct, and there are to be five concerts and four rehearsals. The first concert will consist of Berlioz' Flight into Egypt and miscellaneous selections; the second concert will be the finale to "sorely," an unfinished opera by Mendelssohn, and selections; the third concert will be connected selections from "St. Paul;" the fourth concert will be "Spring," from Haydn's "Seasons," and miscellaneous selections, and the last will consist of Handel's Oratorio of "Judas Maccabuæs" in full, with Miss Henson, Mrs. Cole, Messrs. Gunn and Babcock as soloists. Season tickets are $3, and the Old Colony R. R., with its usual liberality, grant free return tickets to all points on their road.

The Musical Record (Boston, $1 a year) for October has the usual interesting reading matter, and the following music: "The Broken Pitcher," by Henry Pontet; "Daddy," words by Mary Mark Lemon, music by A. H. Behrend; and "Old Oaken Bucket Waltz," by Louis Meyer.

Thursday morning, of last week, at the Armory of the Salem Cadets, while in line, Jean Missud, the popular leader of the Cadet Band, was presented by Col. Dalton with a new roundabout and cross belts. It was a fitting testimonial presented at that time, to the services of Mr. Mussud, who has been leader of the band from its first organization. It is now one of the finest bands in the country.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Company have issued as a companion to their recently published plate entitled "American Pianist" a large artotype group entitled "American Organist," comprising the portraits of seventy leading organists in the principal cities of this country. The portraits are from photographs, and the grouping is skilfully done. Either or both of the plates can be obtained by mail by addressing the company at 154 Tremont street, Boston, the price of each plate being a dollar.

Adolph Neuendorff takes possession of the Bijou Theatre this week and opens with a performance of "Stradella" by Flotow. It has never been sung here in English, and not in Italian for a very long time, so that the opera, which is a standard favorite with European amusement-seekers, will have the charm of novelty for most people, as well as the prestige of high rank. Miss Rosalba Beecher, who gained so much favor during the McCaull season, appears with the popular tenor, Mr. Wm. H. Fessenden, Mr. Carl Pflueger (engaged for the run of "Stradella" only,) Mr. D. M. Babcock and Signor Brocolini in the leading roles. There is to be a large chorus, and a grand orchestra, under Mr. Neuendorff's own direction, will assuredly interpret to delightful effect Flotow's melodious measures.

The Chickering Musical Bureau of Boston are issuing some elegant announcement cards of the combinations under their control. The latest is the Schumann Female Quartette, with a fine electro heading which includes portraits of the four ladies.

To-morrow night, the second of E. K. Hood's course will be given in Odd Fellows' Hall, Lynn. It will be a ballad concert, with Emma Haydn Eames, Miss Mary How and others. Seats are not very plenty, we can assure our readers, so that an early application is necessary to secure good ones.

Miss S. P. Clemens, of Salem, has resumed her position as soprano of the Baptist Choir in this town, much to the pleasure of the Society.

The last of the black horses that was used to draw the car at the funeral of George Peabody was killed last Monday by Mr. A. L Ames. "Charlie" was the property of King Upton and was over 30 years of age.

Prof. Carpenter, the world renowned psychologist and mesmerizer, will be at the Peabody Institute, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening, under the management of Andrews, Moulton & Johnson, the Salem show managers.

Janitor Patterson has made some 45 frames for caution notices against spitting, etc., on the floor and given them conspicuous places about the town hall. An iron guard has been placed in front of the window near the ticket office.

The police raided Baldwin's Hotel Tuesday evening between seven and eight o'clock, and secured five jugs containing rum, whisky, wine, cherry rum. Also twenty-eight bottles containing brandy, champagne, wine, bottle ale and Gerry's cider.

Mr. Arthur C. Cogswell, the popular salesman at Edward C. Almy's, was united in marriage last Sunday evening to Mrs. Mary Wells of Salem. The ceremony was performed by Rev. De Witt S. Clark. The many friends of Mr. Cogswell are pleased to extend congratulations.

Yesterday afternoon a boy belonging in Peabody visited a shop on Washington street, Salem, and wanted a $5 bill changed. The suspicions of the shopkeeper being aroused, he detained the lad until the arrival of the police, when he admitted that he had stolen the money from his father. He was turned over to his parents.

Wellman Osborne, of Lynn, offers his Matchless Boot, a picture of which is on the 3d page of the PRESS, at $1.85. It seems to us that this is an unheard price for a fine quality ladies' boot. We advise our lady readers to take a look at them. Horse cars pass Osborne's Market street store.

Maggie Mitchell's engagement at the Park is for two weeks, and she will be followed, October 26, by Fanny Davenport in "Fedora.." On November 2, "The Parlor Match" will be given Nov. 9, Roland Reed will open a brief engagement; Nov. 16, Rose Coghlan, who has only played one engagement in this city, will appear as a star. On November 30, Aimee is announced; and Dec. 14, John T. Raymond will open a two weeks' engagement.

SOUTH PEABODY.

Last Monday the police were notified that a boy named Fred Babb, a fifteen year old son of Wallace Babb, who lives on Lynn street, had mysteriously disappeared. The family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Babb and the boy. Last Sunday the latter started out for a walk in the woods, but brought up at Mrs. Brown's, on the border of Brown's pond, where he borrowed a fishing line of Frank Smith who lives there. Since then no one has seen or heard from him, and fears were entertained that he had either lost his way in the woods or been drowned in the pond. A searching party visited the neighboring woods but could find no trace of him. Some are of the opinion that the boy has run away. At present writing the affair is shrouded in doubt.

THE NEWSPAPER AS A SCHOOL.—For a well written and substantial article on the province and tendency of the newspaper we quote the following, being impressed by its truthfulness:

The presence of the newspaper compels every man to read, and having learned to read he looks for facts and draws his own conclusions. The writer who can only bring style, no matter how soaring, has a small audience. He must add something to the fund of current information, all the better if dressed in well chosen words, but not to be considered if lost in words. His mere opinion we do not care much for, and his self consciousness bores us. The essay is now something for school commencements. Even the magazines are laying aside their own character. The successful ones are those which give us papers on events of real interest—battles of the late war, on living great people, on the inside spring which starts and carries on important movements. The newspaper feeds the mind with real happenings; it trains the faculties to be ready, acute, versatile. After the art of reading a printed page has been mastered, the average mind can achieve a very good education by means of one of the great journals.

The carpet department, in the establishment of Aimy, Bigelow & Washburn, is unusually full of bargains this fall. In addition to that, the assortment from which to select was never better. We advise our readers by all means to take a look at their stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Mary B. Wilson, the well known milliner, has her fall announcement in our columns. Miss Wilson's customers in town, and they are many, will take due notice of the fact.

The late car from Salem on the Naumkeag R. R. to Peabody, at midnight, is having good patronage as well as being a great accommodation to the public. It will have more as people become accustomed to it.

Kent's Remedy is still booming. It is the best thing for colds and coughs. Try a bottle of William T. Lee, the manufacturer, or you can get it of all the druggists.

FALL AND WINTER OPENING!

—OF—

FINE AND MEDIUM

CLOTHING.

On FRIDAY, Oct. 23rd, we shall inaugurate our 8th Annual Fall and Winter Sale of Men's, Boys' and Children's Fine and Medium Clothing.

We take this method of informing the citizens of Essex County that we now have ready for inspection all of our Clothing which we have manufactured for the Fall and Winter of 1885—6. We desire to call your special attention to the fact that we have selected our stock this season with the greatest care, not only for style, but also for durability.

You will readily see by a careful inspection of our garments that the designs are original with us and cannot be found elsewhere. It is conceded by all the Retail Dealers throughout New England that our garments are the nearest approach to first-class Custom Work of any dealer in Massachusetts. We are ready at any and all times to prove that we carry four times the stock of any other dealer in Salem, and ten times as many styles,—in fact there is not a day in the year that we are not receiving new styles direct from our manufactory. Being the only Clothiers in Essex County who manufacture their own Clothing it enables us often-times to procure styles far in advance of other dealers—consequently you may always rest assured that by purchasing your Clothing at the "Naumkeag" you will always receive the latest styles at the lowest market prices. We believe in giving every buyer full value for their money, and this is one of the many reasons of our wonderful success in Salem.

Our Watchword has always been and always will be, Never to be undersold and to keep our goods up to the original standard. The more competition we have the faster our trade increases. Below we give a copy of our guarantee introduced by us when we commenced doing business in Salem.

GUARANTEE.

1st. That the prices of our goods shall be as low as the same quality of material and manufacture are sold anywhere in the United States.
2d. That the prices are precisely the same to everybody for same quality, on same day of purchase.
3d. That the quality of goods is as represented by th salesman selling them.
4th. That the full amount of cash paid will be refunded, if the customers find the articles unsatisfactory, and return them unworn and uninjured within six days from date of purchase.

OUR GENT'S DEPARTMENT.

All the latest novelties of Foreign and Domestic Manufacture for young men's business suits. Plaids and checks are now the leading style, made up both single and double breasted sack coats, and also four button cutaway frocks. Black, brown, blue, port wine and seal brown whipcords, made up sack, four button cutaway frock or Prince Albert are the requisite styles for Young Men's Dress Suits. All of the above styles we have now in Stock as well as the latest patterns in Harris, Sawyer, Hockanum, Empire, Great Falls cassimeres and many others of equal fame.

OVERCOATS.

We will challenge any dealer in America to show so large a stock and such a fine variety of Winter Overcoats as we now have for inspection. Only think of it! Over two thousand (2000) Men's Overcoats, comprising all colors, of Foreign and American Beavers, Kerseys, Meltons, Cassimeres Chinchillas and Elysians—many of them made and trimmed so well, and so perfect in fit, that it is impossible to detect them from first-class Custom made garments, at prices from 30 to 50 per cent. less than you can buy the same garments made to order.

At the request of many of our patrons we have made up a line of Coachmen's Overcoats. Gent's Ulsters are becoming more popular every year, especially among those who are much exposed to the cold weather. We have a large and well selected stock of these valuable garments, cut extra long, with wide collars, made from extra heavy goods, at prices that will please everybody. We have an endless variety of Gent's Reefing Jackets, a garment that will be very stylish this season as a street garment for Young Men.

PANTALOONS.

We always keep an endless variety of Men's and Young Men's Pantaloons. There is not a day in the year but you can find all the latest patterns upon our retail counters, at prices to suit the times.

OUR BOY'S AND CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

Is acknowledged by all our competitors to be the largest and finest East of Boston, being entirely separate from our Gent's department. The salesroom for this department alone covers nearly three thousand (3000) square feet, every counter loaded with Fall and Winter goods for the Little Folks, and is larger than most of our competitors' whole establishments. Mothers who desire to dress their children in neat, stylish garments, should not fail to call and inspect our Fall and Winter Stock, which we consider the finest we have ever exhibited in Salem.

Children's Plaited, Belted and Norfolk Suits, made from choice plaids and checks, are the most popular styles this season—also Children's Plaid and Check Suits with Cape Overcoats to match are very fashionable. Our stock of Children's Overcoats includes all the novelties for the season, both in colors and style of cut—many of them are made with Capes and trimmed with Astrachan or Fur.

Boys' Suits and Overcoats, ages 12 to 18 years. This department is filled with all the choicest patterns. Knowing that the boys are always in pursuit of new patterns and designs of Clothing, they can rest assured that the Naumkeag has all the leading styles this season, at prices that will capture the Trade.

Boys' and Children's Reefers, in Blue and Brown Chinchillas and Fancy Cassimeres. These garments are becoming very popular with the boys. We also have an endless variety of Boys' and Children's Pants at low prices.

CHILDREN'S KILT SUITS.

We have manufactured this season a large lot of Children's Kilt Suits, which cannot fail to please our patrons, both as to quality and prices. Ages, 3 to 5 years.

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS DEPARTMENT.

In this department our stock has never been so large and varied as the present season, and we feel sure of suiting the tastes of all our customers. Buying our goods in immense quantities for our different stores direct from the producers, we can guarantee you a large saving on each and every article purchased of us. Our stock is so large and varied it is impossible to enumerate everything, but a call at our store will satisfy you that we have all that is needed to complete a gentleman's wardrobe.

In White Shirts our celebrated Naumkeag shirt deservedly takes the lead. For a good quality, serviceable, easy fitting shirt, at a moderate price, it has no superior. We also have a large assortment of other qualities, both white and colored.

Our Underwear, Hosiery and Cardigan Jackets were bought before the recent rise in wool, consequently we are enabled to sell them as low or lower than they can be bought at wholesale for to-day, while our variety is so great that everyone can be suited.

We are still the acknowledged leaders in Neckwear, and the patterns and designs were never so handsome as they are this season. The latest New York and Boston styles constantly on hand.

Collars and Cuffs, Jewelry, Street and Dress Gloves, Handkerchiefs(Linen and Silk), Umbrellas, Cotton and Woolen Shirts, Overalls, Jumpers and Small Wares it is impossible for us to mention separately, but to our former patrons it is sufficient to say that our stock is larger than ever before, and we invite an inspection from all.

The Leather Jackets introduced by us last season were so popular among teamsters and others exposed to the cold, that we have made up a large stock of these valuable garments for this season. The prices are a little lower than last year.

This fall we have added a stock of Men's and Boys' Rubber Coats to this department. They are made with the patent molded Button hole, are the best in the market, and will be sold at very low prices.

STRICTLY ONE PRICE.

Poet's Corner.

While We May.

The hands are such dear hands;
They are so full, they turn at our demands
So often; they reach out,
With trifles scarcely thought about,
So many times; they do
So very many things for me, for you—
If their fond wills mistake,
We may well bend, not break.

They are such fond, frail lips
That speak to us. Pray if love strips
Them of deception many times,
Or if they speak too slow, or quick, such crimes
We may pass by; for we may see
Days not far off when those small words may be Held not as slow, or quick, or out of place, but dear,
Because the lips are no more here.

They are such dear, familiar feet that go
Along the path with ours—feet fast or slow,
And trying to keep pace—if they mistake,
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or bruise some reed,
Or crush poor hope until it bleed,
We may be mute,
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault; for they and we Have such a little way to go—can be Together such a little while along the way,
We will be patient while we may.

So many little faults we find.
We see them; for not blind
Is love. We see them; but if you and I
Perhaps remember them some by and by,
They will not be
Faults then—grave faults—to you and me,
But just odd ways—mistakes, or even less—
Remembrances to bless.
Days change so many things—yes hours.
We see so differently in suns and showers.
Mistaken words to-night
May be so cherished by to-morrow's light,
We may be patient; for we know
There's such a little way to go.

The Monk Who Painted.

I read a legend of a monk who painted,
In an old convent cell in days gone by,
Pictures of martyrs and of virgins sainted,
And the sweet Christ-face with the crown of thorn.

Poor daubs! not fit to be a chapel's treasure!
Full many a taunting word upon them fell,
But the good abbot let him for his pleasure,
Adorn with them his solitary cell.

One night the poor monk mused: Could I but render Honor to Christ as other painters do,
Were but my skill as great as is the tender
Love that inspires me when his cross I view!

"But no—'tis vain I toil and strive in sorrow;
What man so scorns still less can He admire,
My life's work is all valueless—to-morrow
I'll cast my ill-wrought pictures on the fire."

He raised his eyes, within his ceil—oh, wonder!
There stood a visitor—thorn-crowned was He,
And a sweet voice the silence rent asunder—
"I scorn no work that's done for love of Me."

And round the walls the paintings shone resplendent
With lights and colors to this world unknown,
A perfect beauty, and a hue transcendent,
That never yet on mortal canvas shone.

There is a meaning in the strange old story—
Let none dare judge his brother's worth and meed;
The pure intent gives to the act its glory,
The noblest puposes makes the grandest deed.

An Ancient Toast.

"I drink to one," he said,
"Whose image never may depart,
Deep graven on a grateful heart,
Till memory is dead!

"To one whose love for me shall last
When lighter passions long have passed,
So holy 'tis and true;
To one whose love hath longer dwelt,
More deeply fixed, more keenly felt,
Than any pledged by you!"

Each guest upstarted at the word,
And laid a hand upon his sword,
With fiery flashing eye;
And Stanley said, "We curse the name,
Proud knight, of this most peerless dame
Whose love you count so high!"

St. Leon paused, as if he would
Not breathe her name in careless mood
Thus lightly to another;
Then bent his head, as though
To give that name the reverence due,
And gently said, "My mother!"

Selected Story.

A Quiet Home.

Dear me! sighed Mr. Turmoyle, as a burst of shrill, childish laughter sounded from the nursery down the hall stairs and into the sitting-room where he was making out some accounts. I wish those children would be quiet! Ain't it almost bed time, Tillie?

They are probably undressing, Mrs. Turmoyle replied quietly. I'll go and see if they are ready for bed.

Do keep them quiet until they are!

There was an interval of profound silence, and in about half an hour the mother returned.

They are all asleep now, she said Tom had dressed the kitten in Bessie's doll clothes.

The accounts finished, Mr. Turmoyle leaned back in his chair.

I wish you had some management with those children, Tillie, he said. I went over to Stone's on business, last evening, and you would not know there was a child in the house, and Stone has five while we have only three.

Perhaps they were abed.

They were all in the next room, was the triumphant reply. Stone is proud of them, and well he may be. There is Willie, just the age of our Tom, studying Latin, instead of dressing a kitten in doll's clothes; and Amy who will not be four years old for three months, reads well and knows the multiplication table through. Look at our savages!

They are getting along well at school, dear. I think Mark is too young yet to study; the others did not go to school till they were five.

And Tom just manages to write a letter at twelve, while Willie is at Latin grammar. And as for manners, why Tom will make more noise alone than all five of Stone's children together.

Mrs. Turmoyle, being a woman of sense, did not continue the argument, but mentally resolved to see Mrs. Stone the next day, and talk with her about the wonderful secret of having five children and a quiet house.

I am sure I cannot do it, the gentle loving mother thought, with a sigh.

Seated, the next morning, in close conversation, the ladies presented a contrast as marked as the atmosphere of their two homes. The tiny, blue eyed woman, who had no heart to suppress Tom's merry whistle or Bessie's laugh, had left a home where constant care only secured cleanliness, and where childish disorder was manifest everywhere except in the best parlor. She looked at the tall, dark-haired woman opposite her, noted the exquisite morning dress, faced with light silk, spotless and unrumpled, and thought regretfully of the marks of ten chubby fingers upon her own, printed there when her baby boy, her darling Mark, had just succeeded in forcing a piece of his sweetest candy into mamma's mouth. She noted the dainty order of the sitting room, where every chair stood primly in its appointed place and not even a thread rested upon the carpet, and rememembered Mark's stable for his 'spress cart' and horse under the lounge, and Bessie keeping house on the lower shelf of the book case.

Visions haunted her, also, of clippings of paper, bits of string, and odds and ends of doll's finery upon the table.

Drifting from one scrap of matronly talk to another, the ladies came naturally to the care and management of children and Mrs. Turmoyle complimented her neighbor on the appearance of her house and the proficiency of her little ones.

I cannot understand how you accomplish it, she said frankly.

By system, was the reply. The education of my children begins, I may say, in their cradles. As soon as they can walk they have their own proper place in their own room and are trained to perfect silence when older persons are present.

Mrs. Turmoyle thought of the noisy chorus of shouts, the eager recital of the day's pleasures and accidents, that greeted papa, aunties or uncles, in her own nursery, and wondered if Tom, Bessie and Mark could be trained to sit quietly in one place for hours at a time.

At two years of age I teach my children their letters, and after that are sent to school. All of them were entered in a private school at three years of age, and at a public school at five. In the intervals of school hours my boys have geographical puzzles, spelling games and problems, and the girls are taught to sew.

But when do they play?

Their games and puzzles are sufficient amusement for the boys; and I allow the girls to cut and fit clothing for a large wax doll.

But do they not have any hours for running, balls, kites, and other out-door play?

I disapprove entirely of out-door play; it ruins clothing, and makes children rude. They have out-door exercise in a long walk to and from the school.

As she spoke, the hall door opened quietly, and a fall of footsteps crossed the hall to the sitting-room. Five children, three girls and two boys came in with languid footsteps, and pale faces from which all childishness seemed stricken. Spotlessly clean, with shiny hair and polished boots, they followed in orderly fashion the lead of the eldest who stood before his mother, awaiting her permission to speak.

Well, my son? she said quietly.

There is no school this afternoon; the senior class is to be examined, he said, wearily.

No school! Very well, I will set you some sums after dinner, and find you some words to study in the dictionary.

Silently the five sat down and waited till the visitor departed, uncomfortably conscious of ten weary eyes, and five pallid, pinched faces.

Crossing her own doorway, Mrs. Turmoyle was greeted by a merry duet:

'No school! no school!'

Then the tenor:

Won't you make some bobs for my kite, mamma?. There's a splendid wind.

Followed by a sweet soprano:

And oh, mamma, you promised the first holiday you would trim my doll's bonnet.

I want a kite too, stuck in Mark.

Oh, do let me get my breath, cried the little woman. Where's your hat, Tom?

Oh, I forgot, said Tom, sweeping it off with a profound bow. Here, take this chair, and let me take your bonnet and sacque up stairs. You are very tired.

I will help make them, said Bessie; and I'll go and watch Tom, mamma, if you don't feel like trimming the bonnet.

We will see after dinner, said Mrs. Turmoyle, looking from one round, rosy face to the other, marking the sturdy limbs and dancing eyes. To be sure the hair of all three must be reduced from a state of rebellion before they were presentable at the table, and soap and water were pleasant suggestions in the maternal eyes. There was perfect health and happiness, if the voices were shrill and boots noisy.

I have been to see Mrs. Stone, she said, when washed and combed, the children gathered around her to wait for papa and dinner, and I wondered if could ever make my children as quiet and orderly as hers are.

Willie Stone is a milk-sop! said Tom, contemptuously. Always crying because his head aches! He can't play anything, and daren't move for fear of spoiling his clothes. Wouldn't play football for fear of getting dust on his shoes! There's a nice boy for you, he might as well be a girl.

And mother, the teacher had to write a note to Mrs. Stone the day John Gray spilled the ink on Maud's apron. She was so afraid to go home, it was awful! She said her mother would whip her, and keep her on bread and water for a whole day. Miss Lee told her to say it was not her fault, but she said her mother would not believe her.

Dinner—and here comes papa! cried Tom.

Mr. Turmoyle came in with a very grave face. He made no comment on the boisterous announcement of the holiday, but stopped to kiss the rosy faces with unwonted tenderness. After dinner he sent the children to the nursery, and he said to his wife, who had been anxiously watching his clouded face:

Tillie, I met Dr. Holmes on my way home, and he tells me that there have been three cases of scarlet fever from the school. It is raging fearfully, he says.

Mrs. Turmoyle turned pale.

In the school? she murmured.

Well, among the scholars.

There was a little more to say, but the heart of each parent sent up a petition to a kind Heavenly Father to keep the plague from their door.

Yet it came. A week later Mark sickened, and in three days more all three were down. Tender, loving care, and unexpected docility of patients, carried the little Turmoyles safely out upon the road to health again. The most nauseous medicines were swallowed if mamma coaxed, and the most stringent stillness was observed when papa was discovered to have tears in his eyes beside Bessie's crib.

The day the children assembled in the sitting room for the first time was a gala day, but papa was observed to have a sad face.

While we are thankful dear children, he said, for our blessings, let us not, forget to sympathize with the sorrows of others. Willie and Maud Stone were buried to day, and Amy will be deaf for life. The others are still very ill.

At bed-time when the children slept the sleep of convalescence, Mr. Turmoyle came to the nursery, where his blue-eyed wife was laying out morning clothing.

Tillie, he said, drawing the little woman close in his strong arms, I have had a long talk with Dr. Holmes, and I cannot rest until I thank you for our unbroken nursery. Next to God you have saved our children.

I am sure you never spared yourself in nursing, said Mrs. Turmoyle.

The nursing was the smallest part of it. Dr. Holmes says it was not the scarlet fever that killed Stone's children, but the mother's system. The fever found overtaxed brains, bodies weakened by want of exercise, tempers made sullen by a deprivation of all childish pleasures. They were nursed by system, no allowance being made for weakness or suffering, and the two that are gone but precede the two that are dangerously ill. If they recover from the fever they will never reach maturity unless their mother sees her error. You may thank your wife's management for your children, the doctor said to me; there was something to build upon in the sturdy frames of those young savages.

Mrs. Stone could see no fault in her system, though two little graves attested its weakness. Her children recovering from the fever, there was no relaxation of home rule, and listless, pale and dull-eyed, they went back to the routine.

Four years passed away, and Tom left home for boarding school, a gentlemanly boy of sixteen, well up in his studies, and in perfect health. Driving home from the station, after starting upon his journey, Mr. and Mrs. Turmoyle passed Mr. Stone's handsome house, prim and spotless the garden a miracle of order, and no sign of busy little feet on the walk or border.

Poor Stone! said Mr. Turmoyle. He frets sadly for Amy.

It was hard to lose her—the last of the five, said Mrs. Turmoyle; and she was such a patient child after she lost her hearing.

Too patient. There will be no need now of any system in training. Five children, all under the sod! Oh, Tillie, thank God we have not such a home as the one we just passed! Thank God for the merry voices, clear laughter and even the crying of Baby May! May he guard and bless our little ones, and give them good health, right principles and happiness, rather than give us the doubtful blessing of a quiet home.

Babyhood for October proves more conclusively than ever there is a field for a magazine devoted to the interests of the nursery. Every mother should have it near at hand for leisure moments.

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

Rhea will be star regnant this week at the Boston Theatre. Under Mr. James W. Morrissey's skillful management the lady is to present a most interesting repertory. She will play Giberte in Frou Frou, at the Saturday matinee. Sardou's comedy, "A Dangerous Game" (seen last season under the title of "Arcadia") is to be the offering Friday night. Another Sardou success, "The Power of Love," will introduce Rhea in the boy role Piccolino on Wednesday, as well as Saturday evenings—supplemented on the latter occasion by a little play of the actress' own, "Comedy and Tragedy," adapted from the French, which she is to present here for the first time in this country. "Lady Ashley," the new society drama by Messrs. Barron and Bates, whose play, "A Moral Crime," is a reigning New York success, is to be given on Thursday. This is certainly a fine list of attractions and the support will be first class in every respect.

"Old things are best" is a motto to which a great number of Maggie Mitchell's admirers hold allegiance. It is in deference, therefore, to a widely expressed wish that the star at the Park is to present this week "Fanchon" and "Jane Eyre." The latter play has not been seen here for several seasons. As for "Fanchon," the attracting power of this piece is likely to prove as strong as ever. This play is to be acted Wednesday evening and at the matinee on Saturday. For the rest of the week closing Miss Mitchell's engagement "Jane Eyre" will be given. Both plays are to be effectively cast.

The greatest success of the time in farcical comedy will be seen this week at the Boston Museum. Boston can have but three weeks to enjoy the novelty, as engagements long since made limit the term of office of "The Magistrate" to that brief period. The cast is capital. Mr. Barron is to play the colonel, and Mr. Mason, his friend, the swell captain, who doesn't object to standing an hour or two in the rain "to oblige a friend." In the role of the Magistrate Posket, Mr. Owen will have especial opportunities. His ambitious spouse, who is anxious to have the world think she is ten years younger than a parish register sets forth, will be personated by Miss Annie Clarke, and her lively son, Cis (alleged to be 14 years old only), is to find an apt portrayer in Mr. William Seymour. The play will be carefully staged.

Madame Anna Judic, the famous Gallic star, closes on Saturday evening her brilliant opening engagement in America at Wallack's Theatre, New York. Then she comes to the Hub for a fortnight's season at the Boston Theatre. Seats for single performances may be obtained to-morrow, (Thursday) and thereafter. A change has been made in Judic's repertory. She will open on the 26th inst in "La Femme a Papa," her great success in New York. On Tuesday and Friday "Nitouche," with "Niniche" on Wednesday, "La Femme a Papa" again on Thursday night and Saturday afternoon, while on Saturday evening "Le Grand Casimir" will round out the week. "Lili" is to be given November 2, "La Mascotte" 3rd (first time in America by Judic). "Divorcons" 4th, "Niniche" 5th, and "La Rousotte" 6th with especial attractions for Judic's last two appearances in Boston. Manager Grau's company may be expected to do admirable ensemble work.

It is getting to be quite a common thing now-a-days for a certain class of goody-goody critics to "pitch into" the country weeklies for printing "trivial" matters of local news. As a rule, these criticisms come from men who are great—in their own conceit. It is therefore encouraging to read in the great city dailies that the other day, in Washington, the President refused to kiss a little girl at one of his receptions. This shocking and momentous news is telegraphed all over the country; but of course it is not "trivial."—Milford Journal.

LACE DEPARTMENT.

The arrangement of our store is such that it presents a series of alcoves that not only add to the beauty of the place, but are a great convenience, to locate the principal departments.

The Lace and Ladies' Wash Furnishing Goods are on the right of the circular counter, opposite the eastern entrance; and this dep't ends with the alcove at Button and Sewing Silk Dep't.

We desire to call attention to the Laces, etc., but find it very difficult because of the great variety in kind and quality.

LACES. LACES. LACES. LACES.

Spanish, Fedora, Egyptian, Oriental, Newport Point, German, Torchon and Medici Laces; a line extending from the heaviest to the finest grades in Edges and Allovers, as the custom is. Ladies will find by comparison that our prices are satisfactory. We have also special bargains.

Worsted Laces, Flouncings and Allovers, to match the new Dress Goods.

Black Spanish Lace Fichus, Scarfs, and Ties, both Handrun and Escurial. Also, a full line of Ladies' Lace Neck wear.

In the same department a fine stock of Lace Toilet Sets and Tidies, in all the popular qualities.

Veilings in superb variety; Invisible, Sewing Silk, Parisienne, Bareges, etc. We keep everything that is used for veilings.

Also in this department, a great variety of Silk Ties for boys.

Crepe Lisse Ruchings are always desirable.

"Folds" in one, two, and three rows of Canvas or Silk Mull, are very stylish and much worn at present.

Tourist Ruching is now generally worn.

Linen Bandeau in white and colors, with Plain Hemstitch and Feather Stitch finish.

Notice a bargain in Children's Lace Collars—5, 10, 12 1-2, 15, 17, 20, 25, 30, 33, 38, 42, 50c.

We carry a very fine stock of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Collars and Cuffs, of many shapes. We make a special point of the finish of these goods—there are no bungling seams—we also claim excellence in the Laundry Finish.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

NOTES
Nutcaty

There was considerable excitement on one of our principal streets last Friday night. Residents in a two tenement house were terribly frightened by a series of unearthly groans, that startled the usually quiet neighborhood. The man who occupied the lower tenement hastily lit a lantern and with its flickering rays tried to solve the mystery, and cautiously crept around the buildings, while the ladies with fear and trembling beseeched their husbands not to risk their lives. In the meantime the gentleman who occupied the upper tenement hastily slipped out the side door and started for the police. Still that ghostly sound continued and even the arrival of the fearless guardians of the peace, had no effect upon it, and the foundation for a haunted house yarn was laid that night. The good people retired toward morning but lights were left burning in their rooms, and no sleep came to them as they tossed their weary heads on their pillows and visions of ghosts and hobgoblins passed before them; and ever and anon they would hear that dreadful groan, and the bed clothes would be hastily pulled over their faces as they lay in fear and trembling. But the darkest night will have a morning and so daylight came, and the residents were up long before the sun, but are unable to solve even yet the mystery of those groans.

I told a pretty good joke on one of our grocers a few weeks ago, who insisted on a shoe dealers taking his pay out of the store and about that pay being taken in sugar, and I heard another this week equally as good. An undertaker who had a bill against the grocer was obliged to take it out of the store, and after a while the undertaker was indebted to the gro[illegible] when the latter came around and wa[illegible]d a settlement. The undertaker quiet[illegible] replied that it was a poor rule that w[illegible]ldn't work both ways, and if he wanted [illegible]ttlement he could take it out in coff[illegible]. I haven't learned that the account has been settled.

On a recent evening a finely dressed young lady entered one of our numerous horse cars carrying in her hand a neat little bundle done up in brown paper, which she laid in her lap as she searched for her ticket. This did not draw the attention of the rest of the passengers to her, but a second later that innocent looking bundle had rolled from her lap and with its contents lay on the floor of the car, opened to public inspection. A gentleman with aggravating coolness reached over and restored the bundle to the young lady whose face was suffused with blushes and a smile was on the face of the other passenger. The bundle contained simply the last issue of the Police Gazette.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for November comes with a most attractive collection of reading and illustration. "The Trotting horse of America" is well handled by J. B. Townsend, who shows how steadily and wonderfully the improvement in trotters has gone on, till the present marvelous exhibitions of speed have been attained. "The Postmen of the world," by Gordon Cumming, is another record of modern improvement, the quaint illustrations taking us back to other times and other places, where tortoises seem to have been the symbol of mail carriers. An article which will be read with interest is that of W. E. McCann on "Old Baltimore Inns," full of chatty and pleasant reminiscences of the past, before the old style inn had been superseded by the grand hotel. In addition there are stories, poems and short articles in abundance. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $3.00 a year, postpaid.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

The contributors to the Civil War Series in the Magazine of American History for November will be General Wm. Farrar ("Baldy") Smith, A. D. Rockwell, M. D., who was a surgeon in the army, and Colonel Charles C. Jones, Jr., LL. D., C. S. A.

POWER OF THE UNITED STATES.—Hon. James N. Kerns, United States Marshal of Pennsylvania, writes that during the severe winter weather his family used Red Star Cough Cure and were much benefitted by it. He states that he knows nothing better in relieving colds or sore throats.

WM. G. WEBBER & CO.

In 1867, in the building next to the drug store of C. H. & J. Price, appeared the sign W. G. Webber & Co., and this firm did a successful business in dry goods for seven years. This was Mr. Webber's first introduction, in a business way, to the ladies of Essex County. At the end of the seven years in this store he became connected with other parties, till the beginning of this year, and the erection of the new and elegant stores begun for him and his business in May, by S. Endicott Peabody, Esq.

A preliminary opening, which was made a few weeks since, was referred to in these columns. But last Thursday came the regular opening of goods in all the departments of this store, attracting large crowds of people, not only throughout the entire day and evening of Thursday, but continued through the week. The store was the theme of hearty praise; its clean, white paint, high studs and abundant light, making it agreeable to the ladies, especially. The time for darkening a store, to deceive customers in their purchases, has gone by. The dry goods merchant now seeks the best light; feeling sure that his goods will bear the test of all the light which can be thrown upon them. Such is the store of W. G. Webber & Co.

The entrance to this store is particularly attractive, the two large show windows being made the center of many an admiring gaze. The dressing of these windows is done by the establishment itself and those connected with it, and the display was creditable to any first class dry goods house. After entering the store the first department, on the right, is devoted to linens and towelings of all kinds. Here is a fine display, from a 22x46 knotted fringe towel at 25 cts., to some elegant dinner sets, (a dozen napkins and cloth) at $2.75 and upwards. Further along the same counter are the woolens, flannels and crash. A specialty of this department is an opera flannel in all colors at 25 cents per yard. This is remarkably cheap, for the goods are in every way equal to what we have seen sold many times for 50 cents per yard.

The center counter in the store, extending as it does well to the front, is of course the first to attract the eye, and the young lady in charge of the kid glove department is no stranger to the patrons of Mr. Webber's establishment. This department is one of the most important in the store. They will keep the Perinot, the Trefousse and Jouvin,—all well known makes, and every glove sold from their counters at $1.25 and upwards will be fitted to the hand and warranted. We were shown some 5 button embroidered back gloves at $1.50: some Swede embroidered at the same price. There is also a full line of long button gloves at all prices. There is a line of misses kids, and of ladies and misses woolen and [illegible]ashmere gloves in all qualities and s[illegible]des. Not only in the higher priced goods, but in the cheaper grades of gloves there is a good assortment. A five button kid glove for 50 cts.—all shades and a full line—is not a bargain to be passed lightly by.

Passing again on the right of the store, on the center counter next to the kid gloves is the handkerchief and lace department. A specialty here is an all linen hemstitched handkerchief, in new patterns of colored borders, at 12 1-2 cents. These are both for ladies and gentlemen. There are here also laces of all kinds—ruching and fichus. A wool lace in all the colors to match the dress goods, at prices ranging from 12 1-2 cents upwards, is in much demand. Black Spanish fichus are much worn, and this firm have a full line in all grades at very low prices. The laces complete the first center counter. At the second counter on the right of the store is to be found the department for embroidered flannels and white goods. Here are embroidered flannels from 75 cents up—white P. K. and nainsooks, a fleece lined P. K. at 37 1-2 cents, being especially desirable. Aprons all made at 5 cents each—we don't see how they can do it, but there they are, and an elegant assortment of hamburg edgings. Next to this are to be seen toilet articles, sponges, chamois skins and a variety of notions, such as needles, thread, hair pins, etc. etc.

This extends to the lower end of the store, and we now turn and follow the center counters back to the front of the store on the other side. First is the button department where it seemed as if there was everything to be conceived—then the dress trimmings, including feather and moss trimmings in all colors, cheneille fringes—a large and elegant variety—silk and jet passementaries, and trimming braids and ornaments. In this department is also to be kept a line of furs.

At the next center counter is the hosiery department. Here is to be found a large line of French, English, German and American makes of hose; silk hose for ladies, misses' fancy lisle, infants' hose in wool and cashmere—but we can't begin to enumerate them all. There are bargains to be found here—for instance Schopper's 24 super for 15 cents and others at equally low prices.

At the front of the store on the left is the Gent's Furnishing Department, where a line of these goods in all the finer grades, as well as low priced, is to be found. Neckwear, hosiery, underwear in camel's hair and other qualities, can always be obtained. Next to this is the ladies' underwear department, where is to be seen in camel's hair, scarlet and white, everything the market affords.

Then comes the dress goods and linings, extending the remaining length of counters on the left of the entrance. We have not space to describe all these goods. All the novelties in all the markets of the world are to be seen here; the firm have made a uniform price on all their silks, and warrant them in every respect as represented. The portion of the store revealed by the Washington street entrance, is devoted to counter millinery.

Taking the elevator, we find ourselves on the second floor, where a vision of loveliness meets our eyes. We are first attracted by the millinery goods under the charge of Miss Oliver, who is well known to Salem trade. On this floor is to be taken the fine orders. An elegant display of novelties in shapes, and the richest of goods was made at the first days opening. A large number of them were sold at once, which is a hearty commendation of Miss Oliver's taste; but the elegant materials yet remaining assure her customers that there is no lack of novelties yet remaining. Miss Oliver will be found on the second floor, and she has also the charge of the sale millinery on the lower floor, where the young ladies will be pleased to see their friends and show all the latest styles in this department.

Undoubtedly the greatest surprise to the throngs of admirers of this store was the art department, or art parlor. There is suspended an enormous Japanese umbrella, and over the mantel and Continental fire place, instead of the usual mirror, is an elegant piece of Kensington painting with lettering in bronze "Art Department." There are also shown fire screens, of lustra and tinsel, of hand embroidery, and Japanese, besides other made up goods such as table and mantel covers, handkerchief cases, etc.,—made from the goods which are kept in stock and for sale at the worsted department. This department is in charge of Miss Nellie Nowland, and orders will be taken to make up anything in art needlework, and lessons will be given in Kensington and lustra painting and Kensington embroidery. A specialty will be made of teaching children. Classes will probably be formed in the forenoon, and will be under the charge of Miss Nowland personally. All this is surely a new departure in Salem, but a large number of the most elegant pieces on sale are ready to be taken as soon as they can be replaced, and Miss Nowland has orders for many more of new designs. All these made up goods, including the screens and mantel ornamentations, even to the lettering, which is surely the work of an artist, was done by Miss Nowland especially for this opening, assisted in the lustra painting by Miss Merritt, who is in this same department. Miss Nowland will not be found behind the counters. She will have exclusive charge of the art needlework, will visit New York every few weeks for novelties and designs, and the firm intend to make this department the finest in Eastern Massachusetts.

In the front of the store on this same floor, are the cloaks and suits in charge of Mrs. Robson, who is well known in Peabody. Here anyone can be suited in a garment—whether the purse be light or heavy. There are all grades and all prices—and no one can fail to be suited. Here are also to be found a line of shawls, and in the rear is an assortment of infants wear, worsted goods, corsets, and ladies lingerie.

On the third floor is the dressmaking department, which is to be in charge of Miss A. D. Crain, well known in this vicinity as one of the best. Her old friends—and they are many—as well as new ones, will be glad to see her in this establishment. The elevator which can be taken here, runs to the basement, where is to be found the blankets and domestics and a line of rugs. Here are also two toilet rooms for the employes and a gas engine to run the cash railway which is put in.

The firm consists of William G. Webber, Stephen Berger and William B. Mansfield. Mr. Berger has had seven years experience and Mr. Mansfield eleven in the dry goods trade—both with Mr. Webber, and knowing as they do, the wants of the people of Essex County, they cannot fail to make the new store a success.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for November begins with the second installment of Miss Matthew's "Dilettante Days," in which she takes the reader through Warwickshire and Oxford, and lands him in London. The twentieth of the series of Christ's Parables is, "The Friend at Midnight," and the twenty-first, "The Unjust Judge," both illustrated. Four more short biographies of the Sacred Musicians appear—Ferdinand Ries, the two brothers Schneider, and F. E. Fesca. "The Jews in Exile" are treated in the series of Bible History with five illustrations. A specially noteworthy contribution is "The Ministers on Wheels," by the Rev. S. G. Barnes, Ph D., of Iowa College, with several beautiful illustrations. This describes the recent tour of the clerical wheelmen in Canada, and is written by one of them. Some of the illustrations are from photographs taken on the route. The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon is "The Abolition of Sunday." It is one of his best. There are several fine poems, together with a large and varied assortment of long and short articles suited to almost every taste. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

Considerable interest centered in the case of Wm. H. Baldwin, proprietor of Baldwin's Hotel, which was called before Judge Merrill last Friday morning. The warrant charged him with keeping liquor with intent to sell. Officer Goodwin was the first witness and he testified that the bar room door was opened for the officers when they told Mr. B. that they had a warrant to search his place. Goodwin went behind the bar and saw jugs and bottles and a half dozen tumblers on the zinc drain beneath the bar. The room was about 14 feet square, at the end of the bar was an ice chest containing lager, champagne, cider, etc. The officers brought away with them two gallons of mixed liquors in one jug, one gallon of rum in one jug, two gallons of whiskey in one demijohn, one jug and one bottle, one-half gallon of lager in four bottles, one and seven-eighths gallons of wine in one demijohn, one jug and six bottles, one-half gallon of lager in four bottles, seven-eighths gallon of pale ale in six bottles, five-eighths gallon of cider in five bottles and one-half gallon of brandy in five bottles. In the rear of the bar was a ,tobacco license and an internal revenue liquor license. On cross examination by W. D. Northend, Esq., counsel for Mr. Baldwin, he said that he and officer Peasley swore out the warrant and being pressed for his grounds for so doing, he said he had seen men who did not board there, going in and out frequently. That J. B. Newhall said he could get liquor there when he wanted to, and besides, he had seen a certain business man on Foster street, go there three times one day between certain hours; while boarding there himself, he had seen a guest supplied with what he thought was porter, Mr. Baldwin bringing it in on a tray. Had boarded there fourteen days, but never saw the bar room door open and didn't know whether it was locked or not. Officer Crowley said he went behind the bar; there was a zinc drain and tank with water in it, a cork screw, several tumblers with the smell of liquor about them, about twenty lager beer bottles under the bar with drainings in them, back of the bar was about $5 in change in little piles. Spoke to Mr. Baldwin and said he was surprised; Baldwin said he knew he hadn't ought to, but he had to keep some for his guests and asked the officers to take it out the back door. The other officers were not called upon to testify, as Daniel N. Crowley, Esq., representing the L. & O. League, said the government would rest its case there. The case was then argued by the counsel. Judge Merrill in summing up said that everything indicated that it was a public and open bar and that the defendant had been selling in full knowledge of what the law was and of the effort being made to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors, and as there was no question of Mr. Baldwin's guilt he would fine him $100 and costs and three months in the house of correction. The case was appealed and bonds were furnished.

One who saw the clumsy looking model of an elevated railroad that was patented and exhibited by Mr. John A. Enos, in the rear of the PRESS office, would never recognize the neat and almost noiseless working model now in successful operation at headquarters, No. 1 Pemberton Square, Boston, which is the direct outgrowth of the old one. The motive power is electricity and the car is suspended from a one rail track overhead. The track, as well as the wheels, are charged with it, and it can be stopped almost instantly. The car is so constructed that the heavier part is at the top making it very strong. It is arranged so that the same electricity can be utilized in lighting the car. The machine is nearly perfected, and shortly a stock company of capitalists will be formed and the stock placed on the market. We learn that they have secured a four mile section where the invention will be made to do practical work early in the spring. Quite a number of our business men have a financial interest in the machine.

Delegates from the Courts of the Ancient Order of Foresters throughout the country, of which Emerald Court of this town is a branch, will meet at Springfield, Thursday and Friday in convention. The order is a Catholic one and was founded in 1745 in England, and has been running in this country twenty-two years. It numbers about 25,000 in the United States. The object of this association is mutual releif. The family receives $100 at the death of a member, and during his sickness gets $5 a week. A curious rule of this order is that each man gets $50 at the death of his wife.

Mr. Chas. A. Williams had the good luck to draw an order for a silver cake basket in a package of baking powder at Hallowell & Smiley's.

The harvest concert at the Methodist church last Sunday evening was so well attended as to more than fill every seat in the church. The room was very tastefully decorated. Across the front of the pulpit was an arch of autumn leaves and suspended from it were bunches of luscious grapes, besides apples and other fruits, making a pleasing contrast. On either side were miniature stacks of corn, while in the centre were pyramids of potatoes, turnips and beets. Beautiful bouquets of flowers were arranged along the railing in the rear of the pulpit, and on side tables were dishes of apples and pears. The whole of the decorations were neatly and attractively arranged. The exercises were of a suitable nature and of the usual Sunday school concert order. The singing by the school was good as was also the selections by ten or twelve voices. The little ones also sang their song and the pastor, Rev. C. N. Smith, made appropriate remarks. The answers of the little ones to the questions "where are you gleaning to-day" was much enjoyed.

The Republican County Convention was held in Salem last Friday and the following officers were nominated:—Clerk of Courts, Dean Peabody of Lynn; Register of Deeds, Charles S. Osgood of Salem and John R. Poor of Lawrence; County Commissioner, Edward B. Bishop of Haverhill; County Treasurer, E. Kendall Jenkins of Andover. Amos Merrill was elected to represent this town on the county committee. At the Councillor Convention, held immediately after, Frank D. Allen, of Lynn, was nominated for Councillor. The Senatorial Convention will be held this afternoon.

While making the flying switch at Carltonville on to the up track, to go upon the North River dump, on Thursday noon, fifteen cars of the Boston & Lowell gravel train were thrown off the track and telescoped. The engine had passed, but in some way the switchman failed to throw the switch over far enough, and the heavy train struck the rails with terrible force cutting some of them in two as clean as with a knife. All trains were unable to pass for several hours, and many Peabody and Danvers people patronized the horse cars.

A young man was given a room at Baldwin's Hotel, last Thursday night, and on retiring blew out the gas. He was found by the clerk the next morning in an unconscious condition and through the efforts of a physician his life was saved. He proved to be one Douglass Baird who belonged in Nova Scotia, and had been employed as a farm hand at C. H. Norton's on Mt. Pleasant. He left as soon as he was able the next morning. He seemed to be a rolling stone, as an uncle was in town looking for him only a few days before.

The mesmeric exhibitions of Prof. Carpenter, at the Institute, last week, gave pleasure and enjoyment to many people. While many of the features were intended only to amuse and provoke laughter, the placing of the subject in the cataleptic state was a wonderful performance. While in this state the body is perfectly rigid, and when the Professor and an assistant picked him up and laid him on a small table, it had not the slightest effect on the subject who lay placid in a horizontal position.

The Republicans held a cancus at town hall last Wednesday evening and elected delegates as follows: Amos Merrill acting as chairman and Arthur Elliott as Secretary. County and Councillor—Wm. F. Wiley, Leverett Poor, John E. Herrick, Edward W. Abbott, Cyrus T. Batchelder, N. M. Quint and E. Pope Barrett. Senatorial—George H. Poor, Albert Vittum, Arthur Elliott, Albert H. Merrill, Cleaves K. Hutchinson, William F. Walker and Henry Wardwell.

A party of boys went nutting last Sunday in Rodgers woods in the rear of Buxton's hill. One of their number named Martin who lives on Fulton street, climbed up in one of the highest trees, and stepping on an insecure branch fell to the ground. He sprained his ankle quite badly and was assisted home by his companions. If the ground had not been soft and grassy he would have been more seriously injured.

A boy about 14 years of age registered at the police station last Friday night as Harry Ferguson, claiming that he was an orphan and had come from Boston. Upon being questioned by Chief Peasley he confessed that his name was Charles A. Draper and that he had run away from his home in Revere. Word was sent his folks, and his mother came for him last Saturday only too glad to recover her boy who had not left his home till Friday afternoon. He could give no reason for leaving home except that his mother scolded him that morning.

In alighting from the train recently at the station Eben Monarch broke the ligament in one foot. He did not notice it for a day or so but it has since been growing worse.

A town meeting was called for yesterday afternoon to see what action the town would take on the Order of Notice from the County Commissioners, on the petition of Francis H. Appleton and others for the laying out of a highway in West Peabody:

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Poor; and Frank E. Farnham was chosen Moderator. Mr. Appleton had a plan of the proposed road which he presented to the meeting and explained. The road starts from Lake street and is to go in a direct line to where West street joins Pine, very near the railroad station. It is a fair grade; very little hill; the worst grade is 5 feet in a hundred. The proposed road would go across a bridge but across no railroad track. The length of the existing road is half as much again as the proposed road, which is to be about 4760 feet. The land damages would be slight—there might be a small claim from the Twiss estate, and the Moulton estate, but it was woodland, and available for little else. Mr. Appleton moved that the matter be referred to a committee with instructions to appear before the County Commissioners in favor of the road. On motion of Amos Merrill the Selectmen were made that Committee, and the meeting dissolved.

Insurance Commissioner Tarbox has completed his examination of the affairs of the New England Relief Association of Boston. This shows that the business has been conducted in a manner generally proper and satisfactory. Some changes in the style of keeping accounts have been recommended by the commissioner, and will be adopted, and the annual statement of December 31, 1884, is verified as a correct exhibit of the transactions for the year and the condition of the company at that date. From the time of organization (July, 1881) the company has paid on death claims $236,346, for all of which there are vouchers; and an emergency fund of $11,426 has been collected and deposited with the state treasurer.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen in New England is passing through a year of marked prosperity, both as to numerical increase and losses by death. Since the year opened but seven assessments have been necessary. For the rest of the year the nnmber will not exceed three, making ten in all. The order has made a remarkable growth since its introduction into New England, considering the fact that the ground has been so well covered. Its members in this town are looking forward with pleasure to October 27, the natal day of the order, when the seventeenth anniversary will be celebrated at Fanueil Hall, Boston. The supreme master workman, Rev. John A. Brooks, will be present, and brethren from other States are expected.

Last Sabbath, at the Methodis church, before the sermon, the treasurer of the church, Mr. N. W. Saunder's said that when he presented the semi-annual report two Sundays previous, there was a deficit of $170. A subscription paper was passed around that day and $116 pledged. During the week others were seen and $36.50 more raised, making a total of $155.30. This left a deficiency of but $14.70 to clean up the expenses of the first half of the year, and it was hoped that the collection that day would square it up. The boxes were then passed and the desired amount was raised. The church now start on their second half of the year with all expenses paid.

Dr. W. O. Gray, the dentist, is building up a very large practice among our people. Starting in business for himself in a small way at his mother's residence on Washington street, he soon outgrew this and took the large and pleasant rooms now occupied by him in the Warren Bank Building. Ever on the alert to please his patients, he was the first in town to introduce Mayo's Vegetable Compound, a harmless anæsthetic which is now generally used as a substitute for ether. Those who contemplate securing the services of a dentist are invited to consult Dr. Gray first, as we are sure he will give perfect satisfaction.

The starched linen collar is under the ban of dress reformers, one of whom says: "In connection with coughs and weak throats few people consider to what an extent these are due to chills caused by the impervious, starched linen collar." An unstarched woolen collar is recommended. But this is an attack on a great Peabody industry which will be resisted with heroic energy. The Peabody laundry will continue to turn out the excellent work for which they have gained a reputation.

Last week, Mr. H. F. Lawrence shipped to Orange, N. J., for Mr. Francis Upton, an ancient relic of the olden time, a claw foot sofa of solid mahogany. It was handsomely upholstered in maroon leather, finely set off with brass nails and reflects much credit upon Mr. Lawrence's skill as a workman. It was done at his shop, 18 Main street.

OUR

A Glorious Success!

The abundant light in every part of it inspires a feeling of welcome at once, besides affording customers an opportunity to see what they are buying, such as no other store in Salem can begin to do. That our sales since we have got ready for business are double our most sanguine expectations, show that the people appreciate our efforts. This gratifying opening is but a beginning; we propose to make ours the most popular Dry Goods House east of Boston. "Popular Goods at Popular Prices" is our motto. All are welcome; come and see us.

We are Determined to Lead not Follow.

NEW STORES AND NEW GOODS.

BONNETS AND HATS.

We invite attention to the lines of Trimmed Bonnets and Hats, imported and of our own manufacture, under the supervision of Miss E. T. Oliver, who has heretofore catered to the tastes of our customers so successfully, which will be found specially well worth looking at.

EMBROIDERIES.

ART EMBROIDERIES.—In our new stores, on second floor, we have that of which we, for long, have felt the need—Greatly increased space. Not alone will our stock far surpass any ever shown in this city, but quotations will be even lower. Reality will exceed the expectations hereby raised.

OUR COUNTERS.

All the choicest manufactures of Paris, Vienna, London, and other European centres will be represented on our counters, while every novelty of Domestic origin is assigned its fitting place. To catalogue the entire array, would be simply impossible, but the quotations subjoined will convey some faint idea of the remarkably low prices at which goods are marked throughout our entire establishment.

SILKS AND VELVETS.

One of the most desirable offerings will be 50 pieces fine Gros Grain Silk, full width and all desirable shades, at 75c per yard—the identical quality that cost last season $1.02 1-2 to import. Also a lot of Evening Shades, 24 inches wide, $1.15; worth $1.50. 30 pcs. Colored Velvets, in all desirable shades, at 79 cents per yd.; quality usually sold at $1.25.

In American Black Silks we have made prices fully 25 per cent. less than the goods were ever before offered.

DRESS GOOD

In Wool Dress Goods, owing delay in completion of our store, several superb lots will be offered at prices which will surely move them without delay.

FANCY FLANNELS

We offer an immense combination lot of Fancy Flannels, especially adapted for breakfast wrappers and sacques. There is not a piece in the lot worth less than 50c. We mark them all at the uniform price of twenty-five cents per yd.

GINGHAMS, ETC.

In our Basement we offer 500 pcs. Fine Ginghams and 4-4 Printed Wash Dress Fabrics, at 6 cents per yd.; 3 cases Fruit of the Loom, yard wide, Bleached Cotton, in short lengths, at 7 cents per yard.

GENTS' UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY

In our Gents' Underwear and Hosiery Department, we offer 100 doz. Gents' Lisle Thread 1-2 Hose, at 25 cents a pair. This is owing to the delay in the completion of our store. These goods should have been marketed earlier, and cost from $3.50 to $7 per doz. to import. It will pay the consumer to purchase for future needs, and will advertise our department.

KID GLOVES

In our Kid Glove department we have everything desirable in Gloves, and for our opening week offer the following superb values:—

50 dozen Ladies' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves, at 58 cts. a pair, worth $1.50. 25 dozen Gents' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves at 58 cts., value $1.50. 50 dozen Ladies' 5 button Paris Kid Gloves at 50c. a pair, this being the exact amount of the duties paid upon these goods to say nothing of the cost of manufacture. All Gloves sold by us above one dollar will be fitted to the hand if desired.

BLANKETS

We offer 50 pairs only, all wool Scarlet Blankets, at $5.00 a pair, large size.

All Blankets in the least soiled during our sale last week will be offered in our well lighted airy basement this week at a considerable reduction.

OUTSIDE GARMENTS

On our second floor may be found Ladies, Misses and Children's Outside Garments; Shawls, Suits, Corsets, Skirts, Ladies' Cotton Underwear, Infants' wear, Worsted Goods, etc.

A special lot of Infants' Knitted Wool Shirts, slightly soiled, will be sold at the uniform price of twenty-five cents each; worth 50c to $1 each. All new First Class Goods, and made for this season's trade.

There will be no restrictions as to quantity, of any of the above goods.

To quote the many additional inducements to be found in Hosiery, Lace, and our many other departments, seems unnecestary, since we give our candid assurance that prices throughout the House are low, and that a visit to our Establishment will not disappoint the shrewdest buyer, and will make even a long journey profitable.

CATARRH.

BY A. P. LIGHTHILL, M. D.

The earliest symptoms of Catarrh is a discharge from the head, consisting sometimes of a clear acid fluid, but oftener of a thick, fœtid, purulent yellow or greenish matter which is usually secreted in excessive abundance, and discharged through the nostrils for throat, and frequently by both channel.

The nature of this discharge varies in different cases, and even in the same individual at different times. In some it is copious, and of a loose or fluid character, while in others it is very viscid or gummy, adhering to the diseased membrane with glue-like tenacity; often this offensive matter concretes in dry, hard masses of crusts, which obstruct breathing and are very difficult to detach, their dislodgment requiring most violent efforts. Sometimes these incrustations come away in lumps of a deep green tint, but occasionally in broad and flat casts of a notable size, on which traces of blood may at times be observed. This condition is very liable to run to serious ulceration, involving a loss of the bony structure of the nose and a subsequent flattening of that organ, and is invariably accompanied by a breath of exceedingly fœtid and sickening odor. In some cases it becomes so revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself as well as to others.

The nasal membrane is thickened and congested, causing the nose to be stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other, and often on both, giving rise to a disagreeable, stuffy sensation in the head, and occasionally to violent paroxysms of sneezing.

A feeling of fullness, heat, irritation, soreness or pain is generally experienced in the nostrils, near the root of the nose, as well as in the upper part of the throat, above and below the soft palate. A distressing sensation of heavy weight or compression is usually complained of over the forehead, especially in the region immediately above and between the eyes. Sometimes the pain is obstinately fixed in one particular part, as in the temples, on top of the head, at the back of the neck, or behind the orbits; and occasionally it manifests itself in the face, of so severe a character that it is frequently mistaken for neuralgia.

The voice is generally affected, and becomes hoarse, weak and uneven, assuming a nasal character, or an unpleasant sniffling quality. Cough of variable severity is not unfrequently one of the symptoms and results of Catarrh.

The sense of smell is generally blunted or entirely lost, and a similar effect on taste may be occasionally observed. The eyes are apt to become irritable, and disposed to water excessively on exposure to the cold or wind, and a sense of weariness of sight is usually experienced after slight exertious. Hearing becomes frequently more or less impaired, and noises in the head very often add materially to the existing distress.

The stomach generally suffers more or less, and becomes weak and irritable; the appetite is capricious, and nearly always bad in the morning.

The patient often complains of lassitude and fatigue, an incapacity for either physical for mental exertions, and a constant disposition to drowsiness and sleep. The mental faculties are also sometimes slightly affected, loss of memory being not unfrequently experienced.

Catarrh may prove fatal, either by debilitating the system and wearing out the patient, or by travelling downward and producing consumption. This fact has been so repeatedly noticed that all experienced practitioners now look upon Catarrh as one of the earliest manifestations of this dreaded complaint. Among educated physicians in this or any other country, Dr. Lighthill was the first to devote his study and investigation to the cure of Catarrh and kindred diseases, and the happy results which attended his labor have been attested to by many of the most prominent citizens of Boston and vicinity. Cases abandoned as hopeless by other physicians have promptly yielded to his painless and effective treatment.

ASTHMA

For years Dr. Lighthill has made this distressing disease his special study, investigating carefully the causes that produce it; his labor was fully rewarded, for he not only established its true pathological condition, but also discovered a new and correct system of treatment for its cure. Hundreds of cases who have been under his care have found permanent relief from this wonderful discovery, from the beginning of this treatment prompt benefit is experienced which is ultimately followed by a complete and radical cure.

An experience of 30 years of constant practice enables Dr. Lighthill to decide on the first examination as to the cureability of any disease within specialty, and no case will be accepted for treatment unless the chances are for favorable results. His specialty comprises the cure of and affections of the Nervous system from whatever cause.

"Out of every one hundred and nine female school teachers," says an exchange, "seven marry every year." How many times do the remaining 102 marry? Give us all the facts.

A magazine writer says the Indians are increasing in number. This must be an error. Not nearly so many Indians are standing in front of cigar stores to-day as there were twenty-five years ago.

The composer of "Put me in my little bed" announces that he got ten dollars for writing that interesting lyric and hints that it was not enough. It was not; he ought to have got ten years.

Coddlepate used to rave over Miss Gurligurl's hyacinthine curls. Since he has discovered that they are fastened on with hairpins he has chosen a new floral emblem and now calls them "lie-locks."

Priest: "Tell me, Murphy, how came you by that black eye? Were you fighting, eh?" Murphy: "Well, indade, I won't decaive yer riverence: but sure, if yer riverence only seen Mick's eye, now, troth you'd say there was nothing wrong with mine at all, at all."

A Patterson, N. J., school boy persisted in throwing his hat upon the floor, until finally the teacher chastised him severely. "Now," said the breathless teacher, "do you know where your hat ought to have been?" "Yes, sir; inside my clothing, sir," replied the boy.

An absent-minded professor was sitting at his desk writing one evening, when one of his children entered. "What do you want? I can't be disturbed now." "I only want to say good-night." "Never mind now, to-morrow morning will do as well."

One of them was just coming out of the post-office. The other was going in. They stopped, shook hands, smiled and the first one observed: "Quite a swell affair, that of Smith's." "Indeed! What was it?" "A boil." And then they separated without shaking hands.

A Massachusetts ship captain recently died, and his chief claim to glory was that he had "rounded the Horn" thirty-three times. We know men in Kentucky who have rounded the horn thirty-three millions of times, and their chief claim to glory is that someboy else set 'em up.

"We encourage the interchange of visits with patrons of other resorts," said the proprietor of a leading Summer hotel; "when our people are away for the day they pay for the dinners they don't have, and when their friends return the call they pay for the dinners they do have; so we gain both ways."

"I wish you wouldn't go over to Yeast's," said Crimson to his wife, the other morning. "Why not?" inquired the wife. "Well, you know, they've got the fever over there, and if you catch it, you'll be sure to spread it." "Nonsense!" replied the lady. "Well, you will; I never knew a woman yet to keep anything to herself," was the husband's parting shot, as he went out of the door.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the quickest cure for all blood diseases. Its effects are felt immediately.

Be Warned

in time. Kidney diseases may be prevented by purifying, renewing, and invigorating the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When, through debility, the action of the kidneys is perverted, these organs rob the blood of its needed constituent, albumen, which is passed off in the urine, while worn out matter, which they should carry off from the blood, is allowed to remain. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the kidneys are restored to proper action, and Albuminuria, or is prevented. Ayer's Sarsaparilla also prevents inflammation of the kidneys, and other disorders of these organs. Mrs. Jas. W. Weld, Forest Hill st., Jamaica Plain, Mass., writes: "I have had a complication of diseases, but my greatest trouble has been with my kidneys. Four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla made me feel like a new person; as well and strong as ever." W. M. McDonald, 46 Summer st., Boston, Mass., had been troubled for years with Kidney Complaint. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, he not only the disease from assuming a fatal form, but was restored to perfect health. John McLellan, cor. Bridge and Third sts., Lowell, Mass., writes: "For several years I suffered from Dyspepsia and Kidney Complaint, the latter being so severe at times that I could scarcely attend to my work. My appetite was poor, and I was much emaciated; but by using my appetite and digestion improved, and my health has been perfectly restored."

AYER'S

MAYO'S

Compound Vegetable Anæsthetic.

A safe and pleasant substitute for gas and ether.

Discovered by Dr. N. K. Mayo of Boston, April 1883, subsequently administered by him in nearly two thousand cases, producing perfect slumber, being applicable to the child, the delicate sentitive woman as well as the hardy man. No ill effects have followed its use in any case, it acting rather as a vegetable tonic.

It controls the patient one-fourth longer than gas giving us time to remove from three to twenty teeth. It is with great confidence we have introduced it into our practice, giving very successful results.

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

Items of Interest.

The lance has disappeared from the list of weapons used in the Austrian army. The lancers will be converted into light cavalrymen.

A New York editor recently advertised that he had a vacancy, and a pork-and-bean restaurant sent him up a bill of fare.

The redwood post of a fence erected in Napa, Cal., thirty-two years ago were recently removed and found in as good condition as when first put into the ground.

The Chicago Public Library, now eleven years old, contains 111,621 volumes, and has the largest number of readers of any library in the country except that of Boston.

"Tommy Atkins" is generally accepted now as the typical name for an English soldier, just as John Bull is for an Englishman, and, curiously too, the first guardsman wounded in the Soudan was Sergeant Atkins.

A patent has been secured for making imitation maple syrup. Hickory bark is soaked in water and an extract is thus obtained which, added to cane or glucose syrup, gives it the maple taste and smell.

A Frenchman named Combeville, who lived near Saint-Denis, recently inherited 50,000 francs. The money worried him. How to take care of it, how to invest it, and how to guard against thieves and sharpers puzzled him during the day and kept him awake in the night. At last he couldn't stand the annoyance of riches any longer. So he hanged himself.

The celebrated Alderbach echo is at length surpassed by a seventeen-tongued one discovered in Silesia. If a horn is sounded at a point called Garvos Rub, near Charlottenbrun, there will be heard after the lapse of a few seconds, a succession of sweet, clear notes coming back at intervals, until seventeen in all have answered.

Among the "curiosities of commerce" none perhaps is more curious than that the major portion of the produce exported from South Africa is simply used for the adornment of ladies. Out of a yearly total value exported of seven million five hundred thousand pounds, ostrich feathers and diamonds account for the large sum of five million pounds.

Queen Victoria detests smokers, and keeps up in her palaces the standing order, "Positively no smoking here," much to the annoyance of the Prince of Wales, who, as the first dandy of the land, not only smokes, but sets all the fashions, though his reputation as a rake is exaggerated. The Queen is noted also for three other things, ridiculous dressing, stinginess, and fondness for Germans and Scotchmen.

It is said that young ladies in Vienna wear their initials worked in silver and gold on the breasts of their jackets in which they appear in the streets. It is curious to consider from what beginnings fashions some times spring. Initials originally were restricted to handkerchiefs and such other small articles of clothing as it was feared might get mixed up and lost in the wash.

Coal is said to be an almost unknown luxury to the Chinese of San Francisco. Their mode of cooking is to have an empty oil can serve as a stove, upon which they place their tea kettle or a cooking pan. They start a fire with two or three small sticks of wood, which they add to as they burn, and in this way manage to establish a good degree of heat with but a small expenditure of fuel.

"Why Not Eat Insects?" is the title of a recent English book. The writer thinks that such a diet would have certain advantages for poor people, and he insists that an "appetizing relish" is to be found in "boiled caterpillars, fried grasshoppers, and grilled cock-chafers." His argument rests mainly on the descriptions of half-starved travellers concerning their personal enjoyment of cooked insects, and the fact that certain savages thrive on such diet.

The ordinary dwellings of the Japanese are not firmly attached by foundations to the earth but rest loosely on square stones or boulders buried in the ground, the result of which is to partially prevent the transmission of momentum from earthquakes. An Englishman has made an improvement on this plan and rests the house at each of its piers upon a handful of cast iron shot. These shot, of the size of a buckshot, so increase the frictional resistance to rolling that the house is practically astatic, and the motion is in most earthquakes only about one-tenth of what it is outside.

We are indebted to Pompeii for our great industry of canned fruits. Years ago when the excavations were beginning a party of Americans found in what had been the pantry of a house, many jars of preserved figs. One was opened, and they were found to be fresh and good. Investigation showed that the figs had been put into jars in a heated state, an aperture being left for the steam to escape, and then sealed with wax. The hint was taken, and soon after fruit canning was introduced here, the process being identical with that in vogue at Pampeii twenty centuries ago. There are many ladies among us who can tomatoes and peaches for domestic use, and do not realize that they are indebted for this art to the people of Pompeii.

"Josh Billings," Henry W. Shaw, has passed into the Great Unknown.

THE CONTENTS OF HER BUSTLE.

Clara Belle relates the following in a letter to the Cincinnati Enquirer: "I went to church last Sunday with just the most sensitively devout girl that breathes the air of this sphere, whence she will arise to the azures and delights of Heaven. She is truly fashoinable, too, and her summer costume was a dream of beauty. She ought to have been spiritually composed and religiously happy, but I plainly saw, as I watched her through the services, that she was ill at ease."

"'What's the matter, dear?' I whispered.

"'I can't imagine,' she said sadly; 'but somehow or other I am getting no consolation from the exercises. The rector is as enchanting as ever, the weather is perfect, my own religious experience was comforting, up to the time I sat down in this pew. I am positively miserable in my mind. Some occult influence is at work, I'm sure.'

"After we got home and were disrobing to dress anew for dinner, a sudden exclamation from my friend arrested my attention.

"'Clara, Oh, Clara!' she cried, 'I've solved the mystery. Look here,' and she whipped out a copy of the Police Gazette from her bustle. 'Thats some of Brother Jack's horrid literature. How blind I must have been! I am so careful always, pretty nearly, to select the Christian Union to put into my bustle when I am going to church. Then I seem, somehow, to get an ease of soul from the services that is due, in some degree, to what I am sitting on. But to rest on a Police Gazette! No wonder the religious exercises went for worse than nothing!'"

ONE OF THE RARE INSTANCES.

"What's the price of this coat?" he asked, holding up a garment.

"Vat ish your name, frent?" sniffled Helfenstein, taking him by the arm.

"Wiggins, sir, Mr. Wiggins, of Kentucky."

"Ah, my tear Mr. Viggins, I am ferry glad to see you, inteet. My poor brudder sphoke oaf you ven he was tying," and Helfenstein wiped his eyes.

"Indeed," replied Mr. Wiggins in astonishment.

"Yes, Mr. Viggins, ven Moses vas trawing his lasht breat, he calt me to his site, und vhispering ferry low, he sait, 'My brudder, I am koing avay from der cloding pizziness forefer, unt I have bud one rekwvest to make of you;' den Moses kasped once or twice, unt I pud my ear kwite close to his het unt caught dese vorts, 'dot rekwest, my brudder, is dot ven Meester Viggins oaf Kentugky, comes to der sthore, you will sell him goots at the ferry sheepest brices.' Dose vere his lasht vords, Mr. Viggins, unt ven I dells you you can haf dot goat at ten tollar unt sixty-fife cents, you vill know I am selling eet for affection, and not for money falue, Mr. Viggins."

Wiggins had to take the coat.

"THAT'S SARAH EVERY TIME."

An old man would not believe that he could hear his wife talk a distance of five miles by telephone. His better half was in a country store several miles away, where there was a telephone, and the skeptic was also in a place where there was a similar instrument, and on being told how to operate it, he walked boldly up and shouted:

"Hello, Sarah!"

At that instant lightning struck the telephone wire and knocked the man down, and as he scrambled to his feet, he excitedly cried:

"That's Sarah, every time!"

SOMETHING BESIDES TAFFY.

"Jenny, you are my Sunday!" suddenly exclaimed Farme Furrow to his wife. The old granger had just read that "woman is the Sunday of man," so he thought he would surprise his faithful helpmeet with a chunk of consolidated taffy.

"See here, John," she retorted, "I don't mind your calling me any day of the week, but what I do want is a bonnet that's fit to wear to church or Sunday."

As John now keeps his quotations to himself taffy is quoted low in the market.

HE HAD NOTICED THE WEATHER

The minister was making an evening call and the oppressive heat was being discussed.

"By the way," he said to the head of the family, "did you notice just how hot it was this afternoon, Mr. Hendricks?"

"No," Hendricks replied, "I did not."

"Yes, you did, pa," interposed Bobby.

"You're mistaken, my boy."

"No, I'm not," insisted Bobby. "I heard you say it was damned hot."

HOW IT IS SPELLED.

An illiterate notary making out some papers for the plaintiff in a divorce suit was stuck on the spelling.

"I say," he inquired, looking up from his paper, "is there an s in divorce?"

"No, but there's an l in matrimony,' was the prompt and vigorous response, and the notary tried for half an hour to spell the word by the new orthography.

BILIOUSNESS.

Bilious symptoms invariably arise from indigestion, such as furred tongue, vomiting of bile, giddiness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a filter or sieve, to cleanse impurities of the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspensions of its functions, the bile is liable to overflow into the blood, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, bilious diarrhœa, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. It acts upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the culverts and sluiceways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

Rev. C. N. Smith's Sermon.

Last Sabbath at the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Smith preached from I Corinthians 15:22, 51-53. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. Behold, I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

The preacher remarked in opening that death was universal. All die in Adam; all are raised in Christ, at a given time, at the last trump, which is at the coming of Christ. We shall not all die. There will be those living when Christ comes. Paul says in the text, we shall not all die, but we all shall be changed. In the sermon of last Sabbath the preacher had made clear that at the coming of Christ the resurrection would occur. His second coming was introductory to the scene of the resurrection. Very few now called this resurrection in question, but that old question often occurs, but how are the dead raised up? There is not perfect agreement on this point. It is taught by some who are teaching Spiritualism and the doctrines of Swedenborg and some portion of the Unitarians, represented by James Freeman Clarke, that the dead are not raised at the season of the coming of Christ. That the body goes back to dust, and at death a spiritualized matter passes off; that is the resurrection. It occurs at his or her death. It is past; there is no future resurrection with such. The preacher would not pause to show the fallacy of such doctrine, but would simply say that it was the precise idea referred to in 2d Timothy as profane and vain babblings, saying that the resurrection is past, and overthrow the faith of some.

There are others who say that in the resurrection gross particles are not brought up again; that as the seed decays and a germ develops into wheat, so there is a germ principle which never dies, but at the time appointed springs up and becomes the future resurrected body. The difficulty with this is that it defeats the whole tenor of the teachings of Scripture. The text says that all die. In Christ that which is dead is raised. The germ theory involves the fact that we do not all die. It is the body which dies that is raised.

There are also those who contend that the body will come up, the same body—the same in every identical particle of matter. They forget the fact that in life we are the same body. We are the same as forty years ago. Yet science teaches that there is not a particle of matter in your or my body that existed there seven years ago. The sameness, then, is not in particles of matter; it must be in something else.

Then the dead bodies of men who are buried in the earth become oftentimes enriching manure, becoming parts of matter which pass into other bodies. At the battle of Waterloo it is said that 50,000 bodies were trampled in the earth, and from them grew the most luxuriant wheat fields. But it is said that God is All-mighty. Let the bodies go where they will. He will bring them back. There are certain impossible things for God to perform. He cannot make a single particle of matter the component part of my body and yours at the same time. To adjust this doctrine has caused doubt in the mind of many who have become infidel. This identity is not needful. It is the same as far as the person is concerned. The identity is something else. It is in the relation of the raised body to the soul.

There are certain changes in the body which are essential to the understanding of the resurrection. The dead are raised incorruptible. This means that the chemical changes in the body have ceased. Now chemical changes are going on. There is decay and dissolution of the particles—others are assimilated and take their place. That is corruption. Incorruption stops all this. The body is changed so that the digestive organs disappear. The Apostle gives the key to this when he says: "Here it is meats for the belly; the resurrection destroys both it and them."

There is another change. Here we are so constituted that we live in harmony with the conditions around us. There it is not so. It was this to which the Pharisees referred when they brought up to Christ the woman having seven husbands, asking him: "In the resurrection whose wife shall she be?" The Saviour says: "Ye do err. For there is no marrying or giving in marriage." There is no sex there. Here all this is needful. There will be no children born there. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and we must be changed so that we can become incorruptible.

What is to be the difference between the righteous and wicked? Both will be incorruptible and immortal. This is the difference. We are sown in dishonor; we are raised in glory. We are sown in weakness; we are raised in power. There is not a word or passage in the Bible that speaks of the wicked as ever being glorified. We shall be like unto the glorified body of Jesus Christ. What a body that is! In that day the wicked shall be living and incorruptible, but there shall be no glory.

We shall be raised in power. The preacher had often thought of this with delight. With that glorified body—to be raised in power. There must be some meaning to it. We shall have such exercise of the faculties as never before. Here we know but little. Oftentimes a name which is familiar we do not recall. The mind is uncertain regarding occurrences in the past. In that day every thought will be revealed,—all problems will be clear. We do not know the limit of this power.

It might be remarked, Mr. Smith said, that he was preaching a re-creation. This he admitted. How are bodies to be raised which have been cremated, which have been left on the battle field, unless they are re-created. This is another wonderful power of God. If we live till Christ comes we may not die, but pass through this mighty change, and be made incorruptible. What a day that will be! when the sleepers in the dust,—their weary limbs at rest,—from the grave yards in Peabody, the sleepers in the sea—all come forth at God's call to meet him. The preacher expected to be there. There would be a sweetness and a beauty in meeting loved ones. But his whole body would be changed—the whole condition of his affections would be changed. Holiness would be the power of attraction. It may be asked are we not to know our friends? The preacher had a friend there whom he expected to meet, but not as she was on earth. The power of that attraction would be relatively with the holiness of her heart. There would be no him, no her there.

The preacher in closing asked where would be the home of the righteous? He had an idea regarding that home, and he would tell where it was next Sabbath.

A notice in another column announces the eighth annual fall and winter opening by the Naumkeag Clothing Company. The Salem Cadet Band has been engaged and will be stationed on the balcony of the Essex House, and Prof. Thompson of Boston has been engaged and a series of stereoptican views, never before shown in this country, will be thrown on a large canvas. Should the weather be unpleasant the opening will be postponed to the following Monday. It will pay all our readers to bear this opening in mind, and they will see some of the best bargains ever offered in Salem. Their price is very low, and as a sample we will speak of an elegant French Kersey overcoat, which they are offering at $30 which could not be made by a tailor for $50. The trimmings and workmanship were elegant. We will not attempt to describe their stock but urge all to attend their opening.

Last Monday an incipient strike took place at King Upton's glue works. Some twenty boys and young men struck for an increase of pay. The class of work is such that no skill is required, and anyone after two days work is as valuable as one who has worked a year. The boys were asked by Mr. Upton to sign an agreement to work for the season and he would pay them 50 cents a week more, payable at the end of the season, the same to be forfeited if they left. This led to a strike for the amount offered. In justice to the Knights of Labor we will say they have nothing to do with it.

MUSICAL NOTES.

Tickets for the Oxford male quartette and Edward K. Hood are selling rapidly. About three hundred advance checks were sold, so that the success of the concert is assured. Of this we are extremely glad, and we hope there will not be a vacant seat in the Institute. It will be a concert worthy the attention of our people. The quartette are meeting with great success, sing finely together, and cannot fail to give satisfaction. Mr. Hood is always good. It will be a concert such as has not been in Peabody for a long time. The young gentlemen having the matter in charge are to be congratulated, and we are pleased to know that our people are patronizing them sufficiently to ensure success. Every such concert adds to the cultivation of the musical taste of our community, and now that music is taught in our schools an opportunity should be given our young people to become more interested. This can only be done by first class concerts.

Following this concert, is to be given one by mostly local talent. Mr. Macgregor, the tenor of the Unitarian choir here, is to have a benefit concert Thursday evening, Oct. 29. Miss Dalton, who is at her best in a concert of this kind, is to appear, and Miss Sopha C. Hall, who recently appeared in the Worcester Convention with great success, will assist. This, with Mr. Record on the violin, Mr. Aborn, reader, of Lynn, and the beneficiary, will make up a fine entertainment. We hope our people will encourage Mr. Macgregor. He is giving them a good concert, and it should be patronized. Tickets are for sale at Spaulding's, Grosvenor's and Nathaniel Symonds'.

Miss Emma Rice, who has many friends in town, and who has been studying vocal music in London with Shakespeare, arrived in Boston Saturday on the Cunard steamer, Pavonia, and is stopping with her sister, Mrs. Geo. M. Osborne. Miss Bessie Hamlin, who has been with her, will remain another year in England, where she has a number of engagements the coming season.

Mr. Sawyer, the tenor and director of the choir of the South Church, will be married this evening, at Nantucket, to a young lady of that place. The couple will reside in Malden.

The many friends of Mrs. Clara (Emilio) Gilbert will be pleased to learn that she will reside in Salem this winter and we trust she will renew her membership with our singing societies for the season.—Salem Observer.

The rehearsals for the Salem Schubert Club will begin Wednesday evening, Nov. 4th, at Plummer Hall, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Foote. The first works to be taken up will be the "May Queen," a cantata by Sterndale Bennett, never performed in this country.

Previous to any concerts to be given by this club, they are to have one of their novel entertainments called a "Matsuri," or Japanese Festival. Further particulars will be later announced, as they are developed in the hands of those having the matter in charge.

The attendance at the Bijou Theatre in Boston to see Stradella has thus far been very large. It is, in other words, a genuine "boom" for the reigning attraction of the Neuendorff season. The witchery of its delightful music has called to the theatre lovers of harmony again and again, and the high social character of the crowded assemblage nightly carries its own assurance that Boston's opera populaire is a great and increasing success. The public demand to see and hear the opera is evidenced by the very large advance sale at the Bijou box office; and Miss Beecher, Mr. Fessenden, Mr. Babcock, Mr. Pflueger, Signor Brocolini and the others of the Neuendorff company are sure to find numerous as well as appreciative auditors. "Stradella," beautifully staged, artistically costumed, thoroughly well interpreted, will remain the Bijou attraction until further notice.

A break in the water pipe on Washington street and another on Main street have been repaired.

Mrs. Annie Ferrin, wife of Mr. Jesse Ferrin, met with a serious accident last Saturday afternoon while visiting her father's residence, Mr. W. J. Adams on Kosciosko street. She was standing on a step ladder picking grapes across a picket fence, when the ladder slipped and she was thrown on the fence with such force as to inflict a serious wound in her abdomen. Dr. Worcester was called and took eleven stiches in the wound.

Mr. Clarence A. Hammond, of Everett, and Miss Minnie G. Peirce of of this town were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. George Pierce, on Foster street, last Thursday evening. Rev. F. W. Sprague of the Universalist church officiated. The newly wedded couple were made the recipient of numerous costly and elegant presents. They will reside in Everett, where Mr. H has recently built a honse.

SPARKS.

An old member of the old Volunteer hand engine No. 4, met with a gentleman from Derry, N. H. last Saturday, and in the course of conversation, the Derry man spoke of the Volunteer engine, which is located at Derry Depot. He said that at the fire of the 25th of September, when the skating rink was burned in that town, the engine did fine service, and more than paid for herself in the amount of property saved, and the citizens of the town are very proud of the machine. It has been painted but still retains its old name and number, Volunteer No. 4, and its motto, "Able and Willing."

The reasons for the sudden departure of the Poughkeepsie firemen from Salem last Tuesday still remains a mystery.

The Engineers are putting the hydrants in order for the cold weather.

Clerk Reith of Steamer 2, has adopted the plug hat, or at least he was around the streets Saturday evening "sporting one." It fitted him "too soon."

Assistant Foreman C. A. Littlefield and Frank A. Warner of Steamer 1, are rusticating in Springvale, Maine.

The Boston & Maine railroad has adopted a system of whistles for giving an alarm of fire, which it would be well for all to remember. It is one long and three short whistles. (——— — — —)

The firemen at the Central station are trying to purchase the fire dog owned by George W. Pepper, to keep at the engine house. Subscriptions received with pleasure. Z

Our friend Goulding has an announcement in this issue of interest to our readers, and it will pay them to look in at his store before purchasing elsewhere. He guarantees to make his prices as low as any one, and his assortment of all kinds of furniture and other goods in his line is unusually complete.

We have been asked to bring the subject of a High School Reunion before the public. There are a number of willing hands who would be glad to take hold and do their part to make it a success. Perhaps it would be a good idea for the committee who were appointed several years ago to come together and talk it over. Our columns are open to suggestions from any quarter.

The annual meeting of the Unity club was held at the Unitarian chapel last Monday evening, and the following officers elected: President, Dr. C. G. Weston; Vice Presidents, C. A. Weare, Miss Nellie Merrill; Secretary, Miss S. F. Kittredge; Treasurer, Miss Mary Forness; Literary Committee, H. F. Walker, Mrs. Arthur W. Littlefield, Geo. M. Foster; Executive Committee, E. B. Balcomb, William W. Hill, Mrs. F. S. Worcester; Dramatic Committee, Willie Upton, Mrs. Maria F. Harris, Charles Bancroft, Dr. C. G. Weston, Miss Nellie Merrill; Collectors, Miss Bessie Osborne, Miss Lizzie Hall.

FALL AND WINTER OPENING!

—OF—

FINE AND MEDIUM CLOTHING.

On FRIDAY, Oct. 23rd, we shall inaugurate our 8th Annual Fall and Winter Sale of Men's, Boys' and Children's Fine and Medium Clothing.

We take this method of informing the citizens of Essex County that we now have ready for inspection all of our Clothing which we have manufactured for the Fall and Winter of 1885—6. We desire to call your special attention to the fact that we have selected our stock this season with the greatest care, not only for style, but also for durability.

You will readily see by a careful inspection of our garments that the designs are original with us and cannot be found elsewhere. It is conceded by all the Retail Dealers throughout New England that our garments are the nearest approach to first-class Custom Work of any dealer in Massachusetts. We are ready at any and all times to prove that we carry four times the stock of any other dealer in Salem, and ten times as many styles,—in fact there is not a day in the year that we are not receiving new styles direct from our manufactory. Being the only Clothiers in Essex County who manufacture their own Clothing it enables us often-times to procure styles far in advance of other dealers—consequently you may always rest assured that by purchasing your Clothing at the "Naumkeag" you will always receive the latest styles at the lowest market prices. We believe in giving every buyer full value for their money, and this is one of the many reasons of our wonderful success in Salem.

Our Watchword has always been and always will be, Never to be undersold and to keep our goods up to the original standard. The more competition we have the faster our trade increases. Below we give a copy of our guarantee introduced by us when we commenced doing business in Salem.

GUARANTEE.

1st. That the prices of our goods shall be as low as the same quality of material and manufacture are sold anywhere in the United States.
2d. That the prices are precisely the same to everybody for same quality, on same day of purchase.
3d. That the quality of goods is as represented by th salesman selling them.
4th. That the full amount of cash paid will be refunded, if the customers find the articles unsatisfactory, and return them unworn and uninjured within six days from date of purchase.

OUR GENT'S DEPARTMENT.

All the latest novelties of Foreign and Domestic Manufacture for young men's business suits. Plaids and checks are now the leading style, made up both single and double breasted sack coats, and also four button cutaway frocks. Black, brown, blue, port wine and seal brown whipcords, made up sack, four button cutaway frock or Prince Albert are the requisite styles for Young Men's Dress Suits. All of the above styles we have now in Stock as well as the latest patterns in Harris, Sawyer, Hockanum, Empire, Great Falls cassimeres and many others of equal fame.

OVERCOATS.

We will challenge any dealer in America to show so large a stock and such a fine variety of Winter Overcoats as we now have for inspection. Only think of it! Over two thousand (2000) Men's Overcoats, comprising all colors, of Foreign and American Beavers, Kerseys, Meltons, Cassimeres Chinchillas and Elysians—many of them made and trimmed so well, and so perfect in fit, that it is impossible to detect them from first-class Custom made garments, at prices from 30 to 50 per cent. less than you can buy the same garments made to order.

At the request of many of our patrons we have made up a line of Coachmen's Overcoats. Gent's Ulsters are becoming more popular every year, especially among those who are much exposed to the cold weather. We have a large and well selected stock of these valuable garments, cut extra long, with wide collars, made from extra heavy goods, at prices that will please everybody. We have an endless variety of Gent's Reefing Jackets, a garment that will be very stylish this season as a street garment for Young Men.

PANTALOONS.

We always keep an endless variety of Men's and Young Men's Pantaloons. There is not a day in the year but you can find all the latest patterns upon our retail counters, at prices to suit the times.

OUR BOY'S AND CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

Is acknowledged by all our competitors to be the largest and finest East of Boston, being entirely separate from our Gent's department. The salesroom for this department alone covers nearly three thousand (3000) square feet, every counter loaded with Fall and Winter goods for the Little Folks, and is larger than most of our competitors' whole establishments. Mothers who desire to dress their children in neat, stylish garments, should not fail to call and inspect our Fall and Winter Stock, which we consider the finest we have ever exhibited in Salem.

Children's Plaited, Belted and Norfolk Suits, made from choice plaids and checks, are the most popular styles this season—also Children's Plaid and Check Suits with Cape Overcoats to match are very fashionable. Our stock of Children's Overcoats includes all the novelties for the season, both in colors and style of cut—many of them are made with Capes and trimmed with Astrachan or Fur.

Boys' Suits and Overcoats, ages 12 to 18 years. This department is filled with all the choicest patterns. Knowing that the boys are always in pursuit of new patterns and designs of Clothing, they can rest assured that the Naumkeag has all the leading styles this season, at prices that will capture the Trade.

Boys' and Children's Reefers, in Blue and Brown Chinchillas and Fancy Cassimeres. These garments are becoming very popular with the boys. We also have an endless variety of Boys' and Children's Pants at low prices.

CHILDREN'S KILT SUITS.

We have manufactured this season a large lot of Children's Kilt Suits, which cannot fail to please our patrons, both as to quality and prices. Ages, 3 to 5 years.

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS DEPARTMENT.

In this department our stock has never been so large and varied as the present season, and we feel sure of suiting the tastes of all our customers. Buying our goods in immense quantities for our different stores direct from the producers, we can guarantee you a large saving on each and every article purchased of us. Our stock is so large and varied it is impossible to enumerate everything, but a call at our store will satisfy you that we have all that is needed to complete a gentleman's wardrobe.

In White Shirts our celebrated Naumkeag shirt deservedly takes the lead. For a good quality, serviceable, easy fitting shirt, at a moderate price, it has no superior. We also have a large assortment of other qualities, both white and colored.

Our Underwear, Hosiery and Cardigan Jackets were bought before the recent rise in wool, consequently we are enabled to sell them a low or lower than they can be bought at wholesale for to-day, while our variety is so great that everyone can be suited.

We are still the acknowledged leaders in Neckwear, and the patterns and designs were never so handsome as they are this season. The latest New York and Boston styles constantly on hand.

Collars and Cuffs, Jewelry, Street and Dress Gloves, Handkerchiefs(Linen and Silk), Umbrellas, Cotton and Woolen Shirts. Overalls, Jumpers and Small Wares it is impossible for us to mention separately, but to our former patrons it is sufficient to say that our stock is larger than ever before, and we invite an inspection from all.

The Leather Jackets introduced by us last season were so popular among teamsters and others exposed to the cold, that we have made up a large stock of these valuable garments for this season. The prices are a little lower than last year.

This fall we have added a stock of Men's and Boys' Rubber Coats to this department. They are made with the patent molded Button hole, are the best in the market, and will be sold at very low prices.

STRICTLY ONE PRICE.

In October.

BY LYDIA DAVIS THOMSON.

Long since a tender, sweet good by
I heard the modest violet say,
And adding with its latest sigh,
Spring and I are away, away.

And then I saw the roses bloom,
And drop their petals one by one,
While breathing with their last perfume,
Summer and I have done, have done.

And lilies of the woodland dells,
Where now the waxwork brightly burns
Long since have hid their scented bells
Behind the tufts of faded ferns.

The ivy vine that richly spread
Its shining sheen o'er tumbling walls,
Now dons its scarlet robe instead
That o'er the gray stones graceful falls.

And o'er the fields, grown brown and sere,
That erst were rife with fragrant flowers,
Arrayed in all their summer gear,
The leaflets fall in crimson showers.

And where the wilding pansies grew,
I see above the fading sod,
The aster and the gentian blue
Look up to greet the golden-rod.

And where "the rose in all its pride,"
So late on us did joyful beam,
I see a lurking shadow hide
That tells King Autumn reigns supreme.

And lo! he stands majestically!
O'er hilltop, forest, grove and wold,
And trailing there right royally,
His scarlet mantle fringed with gold.

And as He walks abroad the land,
He wafts a low song on the air,
Whose cadence falls so deep and grand,
It leaves a sweet peace everywhere.

And I to sober mood inclined,
Like ferns beneath the forest walls,
List dreamily to the autumn wind,
And on my soul a stillness falls.

And in the hush I breathe this prayer,
That when shall fall life's faded leaves,
Among them shall be found, somewhere,
Some rich and rare and golden sheaves.

WHO BIDES HIS TIME.

Who bides his time and day by day
Faces defeat full patiently,
And lifts a mirthful roundelay,
However poor his fortune be—
He will not fail in any qualm
Of poverty—the paltry dime
It will grow golden in his palm,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time—he tastes the sweet
Of honey in the saltest tear;
And though he fares with slowest feet,
Joy runs to meet him, drawing near;
The birds are heralds of his cause,
And like a never-ending rhyme,
The roadsides bloom in his applause,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time, and fevers not
In the hot race that none achieves,
Shall wear cool wreathen laurel, wrough
With crimson berries in the leaves,
And he shall reign a goodly king,
And sway his hand o'er every clime,
With peace writ on his signet ring,
Who bides his time.

The Old Chart.

"With all your fine courage you wouldn't dare to spend an hour in the old Grange alone after dark."

"I would!" cried Rilla, with a flushing glance at her fair, pale cousin.

Oh, Rilla, but they say it is haunted!" faltered Bessie Sage, with a little shudder.

"By rats and owls," said Rilla, laughing.

Miss Justine Penrynn, the heiress and beauty and also the cousin of fearless, daring Rilla Brooks, rapidly concocted a little plot, which should test the girl's courage, and also appease the spirit of malice and spite harbored in her own heart.

She had no cause to hate Rilla, but hate her she did, and with venom. She had all heart could desire—or at least it seemed so—youth, beauty, fortune and friends by the score, while her young cousin lived in penniless obscurity. It came about in this way.

Old Capt. Penrynn had a son and daughter. The son married to please his father, but the daughter married to please herself, and suffered disinheritance in consequence. She died in a few years, leaving a baby daughter, and a pleading, pitiful letter to her father, who read it with tears in his eyes, and who forwith took charge of the little girl—a brown-eyed, dainty sprite, who made the old Grange merry with her childish laughter and pattering, childish feet.

It seemed that Capt. Penrynn was doomed to out-live all his family, for his son also died, leaving one daughter, so he had only two grandchildren to inherit his wealth, and he made a new will, dividing the property equally between them.

Two years before our story opens, he died very suddenly; but when Lawyer Sage searched for the latter will, lo! it had vanished.

He was astounded; he went through his old friend's private papers again and again, but no will appeared, except the one leaving all to his son and his heirs, forever.

"Perhaps he hid it," mused the puzzled lawyer. "I remember, just before he died, he pointed toward that chart and tried to speak. I will examine it."

He took down the heavy chart, and shook it, and looked behind it, but only the blank wall met his view. So he read the old will, after an elaborate explanation to the assembled friends and relatives, and Justine listened with secret exultation, and Rilla with some pain and bewilderment.

Miss Penrynn returned to town without offering even a small portion of the estate to her cousin.

"A mean, heartless, stingy thing!" cried Bessie, indignanly.

Her father secretly agreed with her. He could not see pretty, impulsive Rilla turned adrift on the world, and took her home with him, to finish her education with Bessie and to help teach the younger children.

She had lived a quiet, busy, happy life there until Paul came out to the village to spend the summer hunting and fishing.

It was by the doctor's orders he sought the healthy quiet of country life, and after making acquaintance with Lawyer Sage's family, he ceased to groan over the dullness of his existence.

He had not been in Hartwell more than a month, when Miss Penrynn came down for a few days. She wished to consult dear Mr. Sage about some investments, and she coolly announced that she would stop with them, and her Paris finery and finished worldly graces quite overshadowed Rilla and Bessie.

The few days had lengthened into three weeks, and they had been weeks of torture to poor Rilla, for she had only to endure half-veiled taunts, and cutting malicious stabs, from the velvet-tongued heiress, but her poor passionate heart suffered an agony of jealousy. Justine stepped in between her and Paul Daverant. She claimed his attention almost as a right, and, with a fine assumption of careless indifference, he allowed her to do it.

Perhaps it amused him, perhaps it pleased him; Rilla thought the latter, and blushed scarlet with shame and indignation to think that she had given her heart to a man who cared nothing for it.

She grew cold in her manner toward him, and avoided his society so persistently that he must have noticed it, though he made no sign. But she was miserable and half-reckless, and rather fancied the idea of spending a night at the lonely old Grange, which had not been inhabited since the captain's death.

Perhaps it was haunted, as some of the ignorant country people said, and perhaps something would happen to her, and then she would never have the heartache any more.

"Suppose you go to-night," said Justine, after a few minutes' thought. "We can leave you as we go on to the party, and call as we return."

"But Mrs. Williams said she wanted Rilla to be sure and come; and then, I want her to enjoy the party."

"Nonsense! It is sure to be a dull affair; and then, Mr. Daverant has gone to the city to-day. Our dear Rilla would not enjoy it unless—"

"I am sure you are altogether mistaken; but I care nothing for the party, and—yes, I will stay at the Grange to-night."

"Oh, Rilla, don't—mamma will be so angry!" pleaded distressed Bessie.

"She must not know it until afterward, and then it will only be a joke," said Justine. "After all, Rilla's heart will fail her when the time comes."

"Not so; it is made of tougher material than that," said the girl coldly.

"Is it? I thought it was rather soft and weak."

"Did you? That proves that even you can make mistakes sometimes." And Rilla met her cousin's mocking eyes steadily.

That evening, Miss Penrynn held quite a conversation with her maid—a conversation made up of terrified protests on one side, and threats on the other.

"Oh, I dare not!" sighed the woman, clasping her hands.

"Then consider yourself dismissed from my service," said the mistress coldly. And then, to save her situation, she submitted.

Rilla put on her white party dress, fastened some superb crimson roses on her breast and in her hair, and with her deep, dark eyes, her fresh, delicate color, and piquant face, I am not sure that she did not look lovelier than her cousin with all her laces and glittering jewels.

The Grange was a mile from Hartwell, and Bessie almost wept when Rilla sprang out of the carriage before the lonely gate; and Bertie Wilford, their escort and Bessie's lover, used all his powers of persuasion to change her mind.

But the amused glitter of Justine's eyes, she remained firm, and waving the hall-door key at them in farewell, she flitted up the leaf-strewn walk to the dark, desolate old house.

A light shiver crept over her as the hall-door swung open with a noisy creak of its rusty hinges, and a gust of damp, ill-smelling air rushed out; but lighting a bit of candle she had brought with her, she mounted the stairs to her grandfather's room.

Most of the furniture had been removed, but the old man's armchair still stood by the window, and the chart hung on the wall opposite.

Rilla did not feel afraid, but rather sorrowful.

"Poor grandpa! you intended to provide for me," she said, and patted the chair.

Then she opened the window, and sat down by it to keep her long vigil.

The hours passed, and for all her heartache she grew drowsy, and sleep was steeling upon her, when a soft, stealthy footfall echoed from the stairs. She was sitting erect and wide awake in an instant. She listened breathlessly. Yes, the steps were coming upstairs, and along the hall. She could hear the rustle of drapery, and then the door swung open, and bracing herself, she looked to see who or what it was.

The sight was enough to try stouter nerves than a young girl's. Rilla felt an icy thrill rush over her, and she caught hold of the chair-back for support, when she saw the tall, sheeted form standing motionless in the doorway, but she was at bay, and after the first few moments of terror, she found her voice.

"Who are you? and what do you want?"

Miss Justine had not provided for that question, not crediting her cousin with courage enough to ask it, but an answer was not needed.

A great owl had taken up his abode in the hall, and disturbed by the unusual sounds, and the flicker of candlelight, he gave one awful hoot, and flapping his wings, swooped down over the head of the ghost into the room.

It was more than the waiting-maid could bear.

"Oh, Lord, Miss Rilla, what is it?" she shrieked; and tearing her ghostly raiment off, fled to the girl for protection.

It was a case of "run, black devil, white devil catch you," and after recovering from her astonishment, Rilla laughed aloud.

"Sarah, what does this mean?"

"Miss Justine made me do it. Don't—don't let the thing touch me? I didn't want to do it!"

But after knocking down the chart, which fell with a crash, and upsetting the candle, the owl flew out at the window and vanished.

Rilla soothed her terrified companion, relit the candle, and then essayed to pick up the broken chart. But the frame fell to pieces, and out from the back of it rolled a bundle of papers.

But timid Bessie suffered a cruel anxiety, and she drew a breath of relief when late in the evening Paul Daverant entered the room.

He glanced slowly around, and a shade of disappointment crossed his handsome face.

"Where is Rilla, Miss Sage?" he inquired as soon as he reached Bessie.

That question loosened Bessie's tongue, and she poured out the whole story to the gentleman, who listened with a quietness the gathering fire in his eyes belied.

He glanced at his watch.

"It is time the joke ended. If you are ready, we will go on together. If not—"

"Oh, yes, I am glad to go! Call Bertie, and I will speak to Miss Penrynn."

Justine smiled disagreeably, but thinking that it would not do to go too far, she made no objection to an early departure, but gave her version of the little joke, and all called Rilla a silly child for taking any one so literally.

The others listened in silence, and Bessie clasped her hands and strained her eyes through the gloom to catch the first sight of the Grange, but there was a keener pair of eyes watching, also, and the horses had hardly been pulled up before the gate when Daverant dashed open the carriage-door and sprang out.

All his careless indifference, his languid nonchalance, fell from him under the pressure of fear and anxiety.

He entered the empty, echoing house. He mounted the stairs two at a time, softly yet clearly calling,—

"Rilla, Rilla!"

She met him at the doorway of her grandfather's bedroom, flushed but radient and unharmed.

"Rilla, love!" he cried, and snatched her to his breast with hurried, passionate words of love.

"Is it true? Do you really care for me?" she said, in a sort of glad wonder.

"So well that if you had come to harm this night my peace and joy would have been forever destroyed," he said, bending his lips to hers.

In her happiness she could afford to be charitable, and she explained the presence of the waiting-maid with as little blame to her cousin as possible, and then came a brief account of the fall of the chart, and leading him near the candle, she held a folded paper out to him to examine.

"What is it?" he inquired, struck by some subtle change in her.

"Grandpa's last will, hidden in the back of that frame. Oh, Paul! you loved me without the money, but I am glad your wife will not come to you penniless."

"Let her come as she may, she will always be my best beloved, my dearest," he said, with tenderness. "After all, malice can overreach itself," he continued, as they went down stairs hand in hand, the frightened maid closely following. "If your cousin had left you in peace the will might never have been found."

And so she thought, railing bitterly against herself and all the world, when made to comprehend what had occured. As for Lawyer Sage, he rubbed his hands and said,—

"I knew he could not have destroyed the will, and I always felt that the old chart had something to do with it."

October has only two more days!

Book Notices.

The New York Evening Post offers its semi-weekly edition to new readers for the last three months of this year for 25 cents. Its make-up includes, besides the news of the half week, the leading editorials of the daily edition, foreign and domestic correspondence, personal, political and religious notes, book reviews, musical and dramatic criticism, farm, household, and fashion hints, selections from the best current foreign literature, etc. Owing to its thoroughly independent attitude upon all political questions, the views of the Evening Post are eagerly sought and more widely copied than those of almost any other newspaper in the country. This was the case in the last presidential campaign, when, for reasons which it gave in advance of the nomination, it found itself unable to support the Republican candidate. This has been the case also since the election, for the paper has again demonstrated its independence by promptly denouncing all departures of the new Administration from the reform pledges upon which it was intrusted with power.

The October Art Amateur is an unusually attractive number. The artistic and dramatic news is varied and interesting, and there is a pleasing description of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. One article "A modest Little Nest," gives full directions for turning a cheap flat into a beautiful home, while "The Use of Color in Dress" suggests artistic combinations for costumes. The supplements contain patterns for wood carving, outline drawing and Kensington embroidery, a plaque and a double panel, besides a great variety of monograms. Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

The December Number of the North American Review will be issued on Thursday, the 25th of November. On and after the first of January, 1886, the North American Review will appear on the first of the month of which it bears date, instead of on the 15th of the preceding month as hitherto. Arrangements have been completed with General G. T. Beau regard for a series of four articles on the war between the States. The first article is a history of the Shiloh campaign. It will appear in the January number. The other articles are on the "Defence of Charleston," "The Drury's Bluff Campaign," and "The Defence of Petersburg."

The New York Fashion Bazar for November contains a very fine fashion supplement, in colors. Twenty-four pages of fashion plates, including bonnets and hats, garments for home and street wear and suits for children. Six pages of new embroidery designs and a large amount of descriptive reading matter, which together with stories, poems, fashion items, personal gossip and home information makes up a magazine that would be prized in any family. $2.50 per annum. Published by Geo. Monro, New York.

In the Bay State Monthly for October, is the first of the papers on the Civil War, written by Samuel Rhoads, Jr., of Marblehead. It will be read with interest by all in this vicinity. "A Model Industrial City," in which Fanny M. Johnson sketches the features of Holyoke, is a valuable historical and descriptive article, finely illustrated. The Hon. William W. Crapo, New Bedford's popular congressman, is the subject of a biographical sketch written by Edward P. Guild. There is a superb steel plate portrait of Mr. Crapo. A portrait of Daniel Webster is given in this number, reproduced from a daguerrotype, for which the great statesman sat in Franklin, N. H., three months before his death and the last ever taken of him from life. It was presented to and is now owned by Hon. Stephen M. Allen of Boston. Published by the Bay State Monthly Co., 43 Milk street, Boston.

We have received from the enterprising publishers, A. H. Andrews & Co., a most useful little volume, suggestively called "Look within For Five Thousand Facts That Everybody Wants To Know." It contains 75 pages of condensed information on Mechanics, Statistics, History, Medicine, Astronomy, Finance, Mythology, Education, Mathematics, The Bible, Politics, Agriculture, Religion, Science, Temperance, Trade, etc., etc., in fact there seems to be something for everybody and nothing that some one will not be glad to know. It is embellished with a number of colored diagrams, and is by far the most valuable and complete Pocket Cyclopædia we have yet seen. It is offered for sale at the exceedingly low price of 15 cents, for which sum in stamps it will be sent postpaid by the publishers, A. H. Andrews & Co., Chicago.

There is a "silver symposium" in the November number of The North American Review. The contributors are ex-Senator Hill, of Colorado; Hon. Alexander Delmar, of California, and Hon. William A. Phillips, of Kansas. They all oppose the demonetization of silver. The December number is to contain a symposium in favor of the demonetization of silver, by the most eminent advocates of an exclusively gold standard.

James Parton, who for years held the rank of the most popular magazine writer in America, reappears in the November number of The North American Review with a characteristic letter to the people of the United States on their character as employers. It is the most trenchant envoy in favor of Civil Service Reform that has appeared for years. Mr. Parton's re-entry into the field of magazine literature will be hailed with delight by the millions.

Ballou's Magazine for November is a charming number, and one the publishers should be proud of. First, there is an illustrated article on the Republic of Columbia, one of the South American States. Then follows a thrilling chapter of "Lewey and I; or, Sailor Boys' Wanderings," by Wm. H. Thomes. In this portion of the story the young adventurers leave Monterey when the American flag is hoistered over the town, and journey to Santa Barbara, where stirring scenes are witnessed and a terrible tragedy is enacted, which ends all hope of a wedding. Following the leading story are tales, sketches, poems, wit and humor, the housekeeper's department, etc. The price of Ballou's is only $1.50 per annum, postpaid, or 15 cents single copies. Examine Ballou's, and see what an excellent family magazine it is. You will like it. Published at 23 Hawley St., Boston, Mass.

The October Outing comes to us fresh and sparkling as ever. It contains many interesting articles, among them. A Summer in an Artist's Haunt descriptive of artist life in Brittany; A Paper Canoe on French Rivers; Around the World on a Bicycle, an amusing paper by Thos. Stevens, the hero of that novel journey. Then there are, A Camp Hunt in Mississippi, Trout and Venison, and a host of short poems and sketches making up a charming number of a delightful magazine. The Wheelman Co., 175 Tremont street, Boston.

Ten of the articles in the November number of Harper's Magazine are illustrated with seventy spirited and handsomely executed pictures—an unusually large number even for this enterprising and standard monthly. There is also a very fine frontispiece, The Otter Hunt, from the painting by Sir Edwin Landseer. The literary contents of the number are contributed by well known and popular authors and are of more than ordinary interest. The publishers announce that the December issue will be a brilliant and attractive Christmas one. For sale by A. F. Goldsmith & Co., newsdealer near the Eastern depot.

Johnston's Journal for October 17 has the following illustrated articles: The Harmony Community of Economy, Pa.; The First New York Directory; William Cramp, the shipbuilder; Lake Como; Coon and 'Possum Hunting in Virginia; and Electrical Engineering as a Profession. There is also an illustrated poem and an illustrated love story. The miscellaneous articles are good and timely. Each of the departments of literature gossip, anecdote, current events and humor, is well represented. The paper is published at 9 Murray street, New York, every other week. It is sixteen pages, size of Puck and Life, and costs only 5 cents a number, or $1 a year.

A Specific for Chicken Cholera.—Having discovered what I believe to be an infallible cure for chicken cholera, I deem it a duty I owe my brother fanciers to make it public. My own experiments induce me to believe it is a specific; and I have in my possession testimonials from gentlemen of the highest intelligence and worth that must fully justify this conclusion.

Knowing the vastness of the poultry interest, and the loss inflicted by the terrible scourge, the discovery of a specific will be fully appreciated by everyone who owns a fowl. As it will cost but little to try the experiment, I hope that those who have employed all other remedies in vain will give this new remedy a trial. The discovery was entirely the result of accident. A splendid cock was almost dead with cholera, and a dose of St. Jacobs Oil was given him, with a result so marvellous as almost to exceed belief. In ten minutes after taking it a very decided improvement was apparent, and soon he was entirely cured, having been given but a single dose. Since then the remedy has been thoroughly tested, and always with the same result—a complete restoration to health of every fowl on which it has been used.

I have no interest whatever either in the manufacture or sale of St. Jacobs Oil. I do not know of what it is composed, but I believe it to be the only remedy in the world for chicken cholera that will not fail. A small quantity may be mixed with dough and given such fowls as are able to eat; a pill saturated with the oil can be forced down the throat of those that cannot. I believe that St. Jacobs Oil will cure the cholera in hogs, but my experiments are not as yet conclusive.

I will be obliged to those making use of this remedy if they will report results to me.

HOOD'S
SARSAPARILLA
To Purify Your Blood
100 Doses One Dollar.

It is prepared from Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Cherry Bark, Pipsissewa, Mandrake, Dandelion, and other well-known vegetable remedies. The combination, proportion, and preparation are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and effect the most remarkable cures where other medicines fail.

It cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, Humors, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints, dispels that tired feeling, creates an appetite, and builds up the whole system. The won by Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled in the history of medicines. Such is its popularity in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time. This success is extending all over the country.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 Doses One Dollar," which is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy. Other preparations will average to last not over a week, while a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month. Hence, for economy as well as for health and strength, buy Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for a book containing statements of many remarkable cures.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six for $5.

NOTES

The story is told of a certain store keeper that a short time ago he had a customer come in and look at a bonnet. She tried on several shapes in light straw and decided on what shape she would have, but it must be in dark straw. The store keeper promised to furnish her with what she wanted and a good round price was put on the article. The store keeper, finding he could not readily supply the bonnet, conceived the idea of changing the color of the one that the lady had tried on. He took a box of French dressing, such as ladies use on their boots, and with the little sponge painted that bonnet a beautiful brown, and the lady was delighted as it just suited her. I wonder what the lady would think if she should happen to get that "duck" of a bonnet wet.

I suppose that everything is fair on a horse trade, at any rate I never knew a horse trader who was a second George Washington, neither did I ever see one that would not make a profit at both ends if he could. A gentleman related his experience to me the other day and it shows the "gall" of these fellows. He had a horse which he wished to dispose of, and he told the horse trader that he could have all he got over $150 but if he sold him at that figure he would get nothing. This was agreed and the horse dealer drove the horse for a week or two looking for a customer. One day he came in and said he had sold the animal for just $150; he hated to let him go for that price but he was in good hands as the man wanted him for a family horse. Having turned over the money, he received the thanks of the owner for his trouble, which didn't seem to suit, and he told such a good yarn about what he tried to do that he prevailed upon the gentleman to give him $10 for making the trade, although it was agreed that he was to have nothing. A few weeks later the original owner saw a stranger with the horse and made himself known to him, and in course of conversation he said he bought the horse (naming the trader) for $200. This opened the eyes of my friend and he says he has no faith in that class of gentry now.

A hairpin is an innocent little article, and nine times out of ten a gentleman passing on the street and seeing one will stop, pick it up, and deposit it in his vest pocket. Afterwards when his wife is mending that vest and comes, across that hairpin he finds it hard to explain how it came there, and then he has hard work to remove that suspicious look from his wife's eyes. But then, I didn't set out to picture the disadvantages of hairpins, but to relate a little incident which took place in one of our churches a few Sundays ago. A young lady and a gentleman friend from out of town were attending church, and directly behind them was a bright eyed three year old little tot with its mother. During the service one of the hairpins, which had confined the ladies hair, fell out and into the pew behind. The young hopeful soon picked it up, and in a voice, easily heard all over the house, remarked, "She have dropped her hairpin, Ma." While all eyes were turned to see who had dropped it the mother was passing the hairpin to the confused young lady, on whom all eyes were bent.

In all departments of human activity there are designing men who resort to meretricious devices to advance their personal interests. Often these are for the moment successful in their purposes, and yield the gains and advantages expected from them. The popular eye is caught by the passing glamour, and failing to penetrate the underlying and impelling motive, credit is given for honesty and disinterestedness when the object is wholly sinister and selfish. But the judicious are not deceived, and the success that comes of such means is not lasting. In the long run, the victory is to those who reject all trickery and scheming, and rely upon a just and straightforward policy in all relations.

BELIEF IN MIRACLES—Mr. S. W. Benerman, of Philadelphia, Pa., for many years identified with the wholesale hardware business, had rheumatism in his arm, and could not dress or undress, but with the most excruciating pain. He used St. Jacobs Oil, and the result, he says, was wonderful if not miraculous.

It is reported that the Boston & Maine R. R. corporation are making surveys for a line of railroad through Woburn.

Rev. Mr. Smith's Sermon.

As announced last week, Rev. C. N. Smith, of the Methodist Church, preached another sermon on the hereafter last Sunday, taking for a text II Peter 3:11-14. "Seeing, then, that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, etc."

The revelator, said the preacher, with thrilling interest refers here to the second coming of Jesus Christ—to the resurrection of the dead, and the passing away of this mundane sphere. The Apostle would fasten these things on the memory of the Church, that they might be inspired to a better life. He looks down the ages, and sees that there will be scoffers, who will say where is the promise of his coming? The preacher said there were some who found the fulfillment of this prophecy in the destruction of Jerusalem. He regarded this as improbable, as it could not imply an event that occurred so soon after. This Epistle was written in 64; the destruction of Jerusalem took place in 70. He could not think it applied to the simple overthrow of a single city—it must have a deeper significance. There were two points answered in this epistle, which Peter foresaw would be the argument of skeptics in all coming time. The first was the stability of nature—that the laws of God are the same in the beginning and ending. The apostle says they are willingly ignorant of one thing—they do not desire to believe it—that the earth by the word of God, in and out of the water, was by the everflowing of water destroyed, referring to the deluge, which marked a catastrophe—the abbreviation of human life—which the laws were not stable enough to prevent. Of this the skeptics are ignorant.

The second objection is the lapse of time. Would not the prophecy be fulfilled? It should be replied, God is not slack concerning his promise; he is long suffering, not willing that any should perish. The divine mercy has been extended. One day is as a thousand years. But the day of the Lord will come; the heavens in fire will be dissolved. Then comes the text, repeating with emphasis, "Seeing, therefore, that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be, etc." There is no other application of the chapter than to the closing of time.

The preacher would meet an objection often pressed—where in the Universe are there powers to accomplish this? There is abundant material in the earth and around it. It can be modified and changed if God pleases. Thunder is an example, which is only the air being decomposed by electricity. A writer says that God can, if he pleases, command a constant electric current which shall dissolve and shake the universe. Place a red hot iron on a drop of water and it will decompose it into its original elements with an explosion. If there is such a shock with one drop of water, with all the earth the shock will shake the universe itself—and the heavens will pass away with a great noise.

There is a fearful meaning in the text, referring to the second coming of Christ—to the resurrection and the breaking up of nature. Who can conceive of the scene? of the voice of God—of the clangor of the Archangel, starting the dead to life, from the grave, from the battle fields, from the sea, the whole universe comes starting up to life. At that moment, the earth takes fire—the flames burn to heaven,—afla me of terror and awfulness—in the midst of which the eye fixes on the central figure of the Lord Jesus Christ, who comes not as the babe of Bethlehem, but as the Judge. Who will be ready for that scene? Every eye shall see him. What a meeting with those who love him? It will be the morning of Glory with them. But the persons who have offended him, who have followed their own ways, the murderer, the thief, will be calling upon the hills to hide them from the Saviour.

There is to be another scene following this. The revelator saw a great white throne there, and the dead small and great stand before God. And the books were opened, and the dead were judged according to their works. At that scene the preacher said he would be more concerned about himself than anyone. Is my name there? If not, what then? If there, all is well, we are saved. This is the work of life. What a day it will be if my name is not written there? There will be partings there—wives and husbands—parents and children—whole families will be separated on that day.

The revelator saw this other point. He saw a new heaven and a new earth. God's curse is on the earth. We have no conception of the loveliness of this earth before God's course was upon it. It was cursed for man's sake—for the necessity of work that kept him from wandering from God. But there is a time coming when this curse will be removed by fire and the power of God. There will be a new heaven and a new earth, full of beauty, as the home of his people.

When is it to occur? The apostle says that we who are changed shall join those who come in the clouds of heaven and be taken up in the air. He does not say on the earth, but his people will be forever with him. But after the judgment has been passed there is a new vision. There is the new heavens and earth of the text in which dwelleth righteousness. Old things have passed away. He saw the holy city—which is the church of the living God—glorified, coming down from God upon the earth. There will be the home of the righteous—on this re-created earth. This explains what is otherwise unexplainable—God's saints shall inherit the earth, this reconstructed earth. God dwells here then—he will reside on the earth with his people. The earth is to be Capitol of the Universe, and we are to be princes reigning with him. Will the earth be more beautiful than heaven? If God transfers his home here, it will be more beautiful than where God lives now. The preacher closed with an exhortation to his hearers to make God their friend, and this glorified heaven their home, and be found ready when He comes.

The sermon next Sunday will be on the home of the wicked, and the distinction in punishment between the wicked.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

However much the lovers of mirthful comedy may regret it, the fact remains that "The Magistrate" can be enjoyed only this week and next at the Boston Museum. A star engagement, for which the arrangements were made many months ago, will cut short the term of office of that worthy justice. It is hardly necessary to commend at length the performance of "The Magistrate" by Mr. Owen, Mr. Barron, Mr. Seymour, Miss Clarke and their associates in the stock at this house. The coming fortnight will, it should be noted, give the public the last opportunities for a long time of witnessing this famous company of actors, who are booked to play with Edwin Booth a round of engagements in the large cities of the country.

The presentation of "Fedora" this week at the Park Theatre is one of the interesting events of the season. The play is staged in fine style and costumed magnificently. Miss Davenport's support, is especially strong, including Robert Mantell, who created the role of Loris in this country, E. O. Jepson, Frank McDonald, Melbourne McDowell, W. J. Hurley, Sheldon Kinnecom, Edgar L. Davenport, Frank Millard, A. P. Parsons, G. A. Pembroke, W. A. Foster, Marie Sheldon, Nell Irving, Anna Sample, Maggie Cline, etc., this week only. Next week Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match."

Judic appears this week and next at the Boston Theatre. She opened Monday evening in "La Femme a papa." The repertory for the rest of the two weeks will embrace Niniche, La Mascotte, La Grand Cosimer, La Roussatte and others. Quite a number of Peabody lovers of the drama will attend Judic's performances. It promises to be a swell society affair.

The American Architect says that it has examined a great many of the hand grenades now sold in large numbers and supposed to be useful in putting out fires when in an incipient stage, and that it has yet to find one which is any better than a bottle of salt and water or a solution of common alum, while the disadvantages of their use are very considerable. It attributes their sale simply to the mystery connected with their contents, and pronounces the gases which they are expected to generate mainly humbug. This is interesting reading to a large number in this vicinity who have put in a large supply.

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He is the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

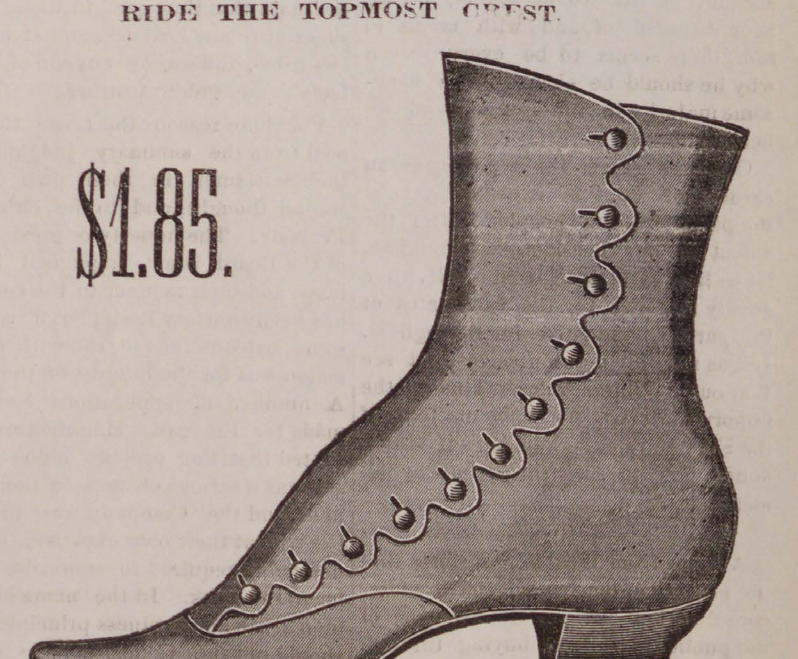
OSBORNE'S MATCHLESS BOOTS.

RIDE THE TOPMOST CREST.



The extremely gratifying result of the mark down sale of these now famous boots are induced us to continue their sale at $1.85 for 30 Days More. The remarkable Beauty of Style, Perfection of Fit, and Lowness of Price of these inimitable boots, admirably adapts them to meet the popular demand for a Fine Dress Boot at a price within the means of every one. They have made A Hit! A Palpable Hit! and their extraordinary merits have been appreciated by hundreds of customers, who have nothing but praise for their many excellent points. Equal in all the qualities that catch the eye to any $3 boot in the market. They are Models of Grace and Beauty, and are irresistibly forcing to the rear the inferior styles of our would-be competitors.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to compete with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims.

WE HOPE the general apathy which seems to prevail on all sides regarding the election this fall will deter no republican from depositing his vote. Essex County needs every republican voter and the local issues on particular candidates will bring out, in some cases, the full strength of the opposition. And while there is little doubt in the minds of any one, of the result of the general election, it will be a close call for some of the candidates in this county.

Particularly so is this the case regarding the Senatorial vote in this district. General William Cogswell was last week nominated by the republicans, and we hope he will be re-elected. He will, if the republicans do their duty. He has been a liberal member of the Legislature, and has been on very important committees. Let every one who is friendly to him be sure that Gen. Cogswell's name is on the ticket he votes. This Senatorial district never sent an abler man to represent her, and he should be re-elected.

For Councillor, we trust Mr. Frank D. Allen will receive every vote from this town, that would have been given to Col. Haskell, and this means his election. Mr. Allen is a good and true republican. He is in sympathy with the more liberal resolutions of the platform, as are nearly all the Lynn republicans.

For County Commissioner, Mr. Bishop should be re-elected. The opposition to him, in some quarters, on account of the truant school, having been disposed of, and with credit to him, there seems to be every reason why he should be elected by a handsome majority in the County, and we believe he will.

Ohio has given the republicans an earnest of what is expected yet of the party by the people. After the defeat of our Presidential candidate, let us here in Massachusetts roll up a goodly majority for the candidates of the party, nominated in Springfield. Let us not only vote ourselves, but see that our neighbor votes. This is the important duty. We have no fear of the election of our candidates if this is done. Try to vote early, but by all means VOTE.

A letter from Washington states that the post office department have under consideration the re-establishment of the public privilege of buying through the third assistant postmaster-general United States postage stamps of any issue since the first were printed, as a convenience for stamp collectors and a means of education for the growing generation in the history of the department, and the advancement of the engraver's art in the last 40 years. Juvenile stamp collectors will rejoice, for the government sells at face value only genuine, unused specimens, quite preferable to the dirty, torn labels which the dealers sometimes sell at a premium. This privilege was cut off by Postmaster-General Gresham in July, 1884.

A traveling optician, who has been doing quite a business in town of late, says that as a result of examining a large number of school children between the ages of 7 and 16, he finds not less than three-fifths of them afflicted with myopy from too close application to their books. If your child ranks last in his class you will know that it is a dread of myopy that has kept him there.

WATER GAS.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—As there has been considerable enquiry and some misunderstanding in regard to the movement for the introduction of Water Gas into the town, lately made by the Lowe Heating and Lighting Co., it is perhaps due the Company and the public that some explanation of the somewhat peculiar circumstances of the case should be publicly made. Will you therefore allow a small portion of your well and widely known journal for the purpose?

Early in June last, the Lowe Co. petitioned the Board of Selectmen for the privilege of introducing the new gas into the town, and for the opening of the streets for the purpose. At the public hearing which the Board ordered on the petition, the Company claimed to be able to furnish light, heat and power, those three most important factors in any business community, at prices far below those that were being paid. A short history of the gas was given and some facts adduced in support of its claims. There was not the slightest attempt at denial or refutation of these claims at that hearing, and the Company naturally supposed that a request for permission to bring into the town taxable property to the amount of fifty thousand dollars would surely be granted, unless good and sufficient reasons were then and there publicly shown for a contrary action. The expected permit did not come and with a view of dissipating any lingering doubt in the minds of the board, an invitation was given to them to visit Lynn, and witness the gas in practical operation. At their visit which followed, as well as at a second, soon after, the Board collectively and individually expressed themselves as highly pleased with the working of the system. Every question asked seemed to be answered satisfactorily, and there was no hint of objection or dissatisfaction. A few days after the second visit, and while the Company was in daily expectation of a favorable answer to their petition, they were surprised to learn that it had been unqualifiedly refused. If the Board had continued the question for further evidence or, what was certainly due the Company, for an opportunity to have any objections to the gas heard and replied to by them, no issue could have been taken to such action. But to dismiss the question so suddenly and so utterly, seemed so singular under all the circumstances of the case, that the Company were led to make enquiries as to the cause of an action, to them unaccountable. It was found, that the information upon which the Selectmen had acted had come, largely, from parties interested in the Coal Gas business. Persons who would not, and as the Company say, could not meet them in open public hearing, had had private audience of the Selectmen, and made hostile and damaging statements which cannot be maintained, as the Lowe Co. stand ready to demonstrate at any proper time and place. And this is what the Company feel they have a right to complain of, a condemnation by an "ex parte" hearing. They yet maintain that they can furnish a gas superior to any coal gas, and at a much less price, and satisfy anyone of these facts in any public hearing.

For these reasons the Lowe Co. appeal from the summary judgment of the Selectmen to their own careful second thought, and to the citizens of Peabody. The honesty or good intent of the Board is not impugned in the least, and their manner to the company has been courtesy itself; but it requires some explanations to show that their action was for the interest of the town. A number of applications had been made for the gas. Manufacturers admitted that the present high cost of gas was a serious obstacle to their business, and the Company was to make the trial at their own expense, citizens not being required to subscribe a dollar to the stock. In the name of common sense and business principles, why should not the Company have an opportunity of benefiting the citizens of the town without risk to them? If the Company can at the same time benefit themselves, no one will complain except some one interested in the coal gas monopoly, and in closing it is hoped and believed by the Company, that opportunity will yet be afforded by the town of Peabody to test the power and value of the new gas.

The Democrats in Convention at Salem last Wednesday, made the following nominations: John H. Cheever, of Manchester, for County Commissioner; Chas. S. Osgood, of Salem, for Register of Deeds; David B. Kimball, of Salem, for Clerk of Courts; Benj. A. Ward, of Lynn, for County Treasurer. The Councillor convention nominated Alfred A. Mower, of Lynn, for that office.

W. J. Bates and wife from Ithaca, N. Y., are in town visiting friends.

To-day is the forty-ninth anniversary of the marriage of Stephen Fernald and wife.

MUSICAL NOTES.

An entertainment in the programme of which Edward K. Hood is allotthd four selections—one third of the entire number—can hardly be called a concert in the best sense of the word. Yet such was the state of the case last Thursday evening at the advertised concert by the Oxford Male Quartette. It would be superfluous in us to say that Mr. Hood was good—that his selections were pleasing and capitally rendered. It is always so. Every piece that he read was enthusiastically received—as much so as a Peabody audience is capable of. He was obliged to give three selections more than was on the programme. Against such a reader—and such selections—it is hard to place any quartette of musicians, or in fact any soloists in the same entertainment unless their repertoire is of such a character as to divide the enthusiasm of the audience. This was not the case Thursday night. Much had been anticipated from the Oxford Quartette, on account of the previous connection of two of its members with the old Lotus Glee Club, and while they sung carefully and tunefully, their selections were not happy, especially by contrast with Mr. Hood, as we have previously spoken. Their first selection "Hark the Trumpet" was one of their best. Yet it did not receive an encore, possibly on account of the interruptions occasioned by the seating of the audience, which did not arrive until after the completion of the first two numbers. It has also been given by every male quartette that we have heard in town of late years. The second selection received an encore, partly we think in anticipation of what the encore might bring, and this was disappointing. The pieces were well rendered—all of them—but we must feel that the Quartette did not do themselves justice—and it is entirely their own fault. Mr. Saxon gave a fine rendering of "Dreaming" by Wellings, and was justly recalled. His voice is a baritone under good control, and his manner and method are pleasing. Mr. Ricketson gave a finished rendering of Tosti's "Good Bye" and received a cordial welcome. Two cornet solos were given by Miss Nettie C. Coburn, a young lady who showed herself quite proficient with the instrument, and gave much pleasure to the audience. A change was made in the accompanist advertised, for some reason. She played the accompaniments for the cornet solos well, but was not so fortunate in the others. It is a pleasure to note that the patronage was good—and the entertainment gave good satisfaction. The quartette were much pleased with the Institute Hall—and remarked favorably on the ease with which they could sing. This has always been appreciated by both artists and audiences there—a particularly pleasing contrast to the Town Hall.

To-morrow evening the benefit concert of Mr. Macgregor takes place in the Peabody Institute, and we are glad to say that the tickets are selling well. Thirty-five cents is the price of admission and there are no reserved seats. The concert will be a first class one, and some excellent selections are promised. Miss Dalton and Miss Hall will sing a duett—Miss Hall will sing an Ave Maria with violin obligato by Mr. Record, and Miss Hall and Mr. Macgregor will have numbers. Mr. Record needs no introduction—he stands far ahead of any violinist in this region. As director of the orchestra at Old Orchard—as director of the Salem Symphony Orchestra he is winning golden laurels, and as a solo violinist is always received with enthusiasm by a Peabody audience. Mr. A. W. Newcomb of Salem, as pianist, is well known in this vicinity. Mr. Aborn, the reader, comes well recommended, and we trust the hall will be well filled to-morrow evening.

The musical festival at Taunton last week was a success financially as well as musically. This is gratifying, as it is the first year, we believe, that it has been so financially. Only those of experience know how difficult it is in a convention of this kind to make both ends meet. The expenses are large—and the response from the public is not always satisfactory. To the efficient Secretary, Mr. L. Soule, much of the success this year, as in every year, is due. Miss Kehew, well known in Salem, met with another success, which will be received with pleasure by her many friends. Miss Henrietta Beebe and Miss Emma Thursby were of course good, and not a little of the success of the Festival is due Miss Medora Henson, who was the soloist last year in Boston of the Handel & Haydn society in the Messiah. Blaisdell's orchestra of Concord N. H., was present, and Carl Zerrahn was the Conductor.

The Fair of the Salem Oratorio society will open in Hamilton Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 4th, at 11 o'clock A. M. and will continue until Friday evening when it will close with a dancing party. The ladies interested in the society have been making preparations for months back, and we doubt not there will be a good attendance.

A gentleman well versed in musical matters in Salem, told us last week, that a course of first class concerts might be supported in that city if there was any place to hold them. The class of people in Salem who would patronize them will not go to Mechanic Hall—and there is no other place large enough to hold a paying audience.

On account of the Fair to be held by the Salem Oratorio Society, the Schubert Club will not begin rehearsals until Nov. 11.

Prof. C. R. Bill, music teacher in the schools of this town, is shortly to give a popular concert in Gloucester.

We dropped into the piano warerooms of W. J. Lefavour, of Salem, the other day and were surprised at the elegant stock of organs and pianos to be seen there. He has also added another room to his establishment, where are kept all his nice instruments, and it is truly a delight to enter. There are several of the best Ivers and Pond uprights in rosewood and mahogony finish—beautiful instruments not only to the eye, but in their quality of tone. Then there is a Mason & Hamlin upright piano—a new thing comparatively for this well known organ firm. If the one we saw is a fair sample, we should say they bid fair to achieve a reputations in pianos equal to that of their organs. Mr. Lefavour has all kinds of instruments for sale or to let, and he will be glad to see any of our people in his warerooms whether desiring to purchase or not.

The Congregational singing at the Methodist Church, led by George A. Goldthwait has greatly improved. The congregation all sing and sing with spirit. We wonder that Mr. Goldthwait is not secured for tenor in some of our choirs—with the scarcity of good tenors everywhere.

The death of Lowell Mason, son of the late Dr. Lowell Mason, occurred at Orange, N. J. last Sunday. Mr. Mason was president of the Mason & Hamlin organ company of Boston.

William J. Winch has made a number of engagements to sing in oratario in London and vicinity the coming winter.

Miss Bessie Fairbairn of the Bennett & Moulton Opera Co., is receiving some flattering testimonials for her performance of Yum-Yum in the "Mikado."

When "The Mikado" is seen at the Hollis, the new theatre in Boston, the cast will probablly include Laura Clement, an English favorite, as Yum-Yum; George Olmi, Pish-Tush; Harry Allen, Pooh-Bah, and Rosa Cooke, Katisha Hattie Delaro, who did such good work in "Iolanthe," and "Princess Ida," will be the Pitti Sing.

Miss Lizzie Webb Cary with the Arlington Quartette will sing in Boston Monday, Nov. 2; at Smith College, Northampton Tuesday, Nov. 3, and at Worcester early in December.

Miss Hattie J. Clapper, of New York, who sang the contralto music in the "Messiah" at Salem last year, will sing it for the Handel & Haydn Society in Boston, at Christmas time.

Miss Medora Henson, who achieved such success at Taunton last week, is now Mrs. Walter Emerson.

Miss Hubon, of the Universalist Choir, sang last Sunday for Mrs. Bartlett at the Baptist, who was detained at home on account of the illness of her daughter. Miss Hnbon will probably sing next Sunday.

Daniel Woodbnry, Clarence J. Messer, Howard Bott and Benjamin F. Upton of the old Marks & Upton's band, will be members of the newly organized Peabody Orchestra. It will meet over the PRESS office.

J. G. Osborne, manager of the Hawthorne Male Quartette was in town yesterday. The quartette has been for two seasons under the direction (musically) of Mr. Johnson of the Ruggles Street quartette. They sing many of his pieces and are recommended very highly by him.

Gather up the leaves, they are valuable for fertilizing purposes. Left to decay in the streets they make mud, and decaying about your yards they become a source of ill health.

Look out for the ten-dollar counterfeit bills now in circulation. We are not troubled with any, either good or bad, but perhaps that is not the case with our readers.

Miss Carrie Upton, one of the teachers in the Centre school, who has been quite sick for a couple of weeks, is we are pleased to learn more comfortable. Miss Harris takes her place.

Mr. Samuel Watts and Miss Julia Bagley, both of this town, were united in marriage, last Monday evening, by Rev. E. C. Bolles, of Salem. They started on a trip to Philadelphia.

David Holloran, charged with assault and intimidation on John H. Miller, an employe at King Upton's, came up by continuance this morning and was again continued till Friday afternoon.

Two of Munroe & Arnold's men are around on crutches, Allie Moore and Marcena Fairbrother.

Rev. Mr. Packard of Salem, a deaf mute, preached at the Baptist Church, last Sunday by pantomine.

A CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS.

One day last week a butcher named Charles Verry in the employ of James E. Trask of South Peabody, caught one of his arms on a hook in the slaughter house, tearing it badly. He will be laid up several weeks.

Mr. William Brown a splitter for T. E. Proctor, while sharpening his knife recently cut two of his fingers. He has since taken a forced vacation.

Albert Perkins in the employ of P. D. Perkins & Son had his hand badly bruised by a horse on one of the delivery wagons taking it in his mouth and biting it. It did not break the skin.

A horse belonging to Jonathan King fell on Lowell street last Thursday, breaking one of the shafts.

Mr. John Daley was tripped by a loose brick in the sidewalk, last Sunday, and fell scraping the skin off one hand and the side of his face.

A man named Freeman, employed at the cork sole factory of George C. Peirce, had his hand badly mangled in a dinking machine last Wednesday.

Last Saturday afternoon a horse and wagon containing a ladder were coming down Andover street, and driven by the owner, Mr. Mitchell, a junk dealer. When just above the railroad bridge Mitchell's horse became frightened, and tried to run away, and in so doing, the ladder struck a top buggy belonging to Mr. Reynolds, of Topsfield, badly smashing the top, but not injuring the occupant.

The charger driven in Estes' Salem express team fell down last Monday, and did no more serious damage than to break the harness.

Last Friday afternoon Martin Brophy, employed at L. & G. H. Poor's currying shop, got his head caught in a number of cogwheels and in return received a number of scalp wounds which fortunately were not serious, and Martin will be at the polls as usual next Tuesday.

A horse belonging to N. W. Edson & Co., became frightened by a bicycle last Thursday morning and ran away. The transom bolt broke and the horse started with the forward wheels up Lowell street, but was soon stopped. Slight damage.

A boy named Kakas while pulling off his coat in the post office last Saturday lost his balance, fell against the doorjamb and fractured his arm near the shoulder.

Mr. John Jeffrey, of this town, while working on a building at Beverly Farms, last Friday, fell a distance of 35 feet, and was seriously injured, although no bones were broken. He was removed to his boarding house in this town.

A boy named Halloran, living on Hancock street, fell from the door of his house, last Wednesday, and broke his wrist.

Two young men who have been in the milk business, took a ride to Lynn last night, and while one of them was in a store, the other attempted to turn the buggy around, when the horse became frightened and ran away, wrecking the buggy, which was brought to Dole & Osgood's for repairs.

One of John Linehan's teams ran away on Railroad avenue this morning, the horses being frightened by the cars. The driver was thrown out and was considerably bruised about the face. No damage to the team.

Mr. Daniel Brown, the West Peabody grocer, was kicked in the face by a horse yesterday. The horse was balky and in urging him along the accident occurred. He was considerably bruised but no bones were broken.

A man named Fred Wilson employed at Proctor's shop had a load of lumber fall upon him last night. He was badly bruised about the head, but is at work to-day.

Mr. Charles Tibbetts, formerly of this town, in the employ of a Mr. Howe of Boxford, yesterday went into the woods for a load of wood and not returning at noon, a search was made for him and he was found unconscious. He was removed to his home and lived till about 5 o'clock. It is supposed he fell from the load which passed over him.

William Newhall and Charles Hadley of Lynn had been shooting at a mark near Spring Pond last Friday, and when on their way home Newhall pointed the revolver at Hadley, and it was accidently discharged, the ball entering the latter's side. He was removed to the Lynn Hostipal. The wound is not serious.

A young man on a bicycle, belonging in Salem, was run into by a team on Main street Saturday night, and his hand was badly bruised and his machine broken.

A stable team belonging to Mr. Charles Simonds was run into on Beverly bridge last Sunday night by a Beverly party. One shaft was broken and the carriage otherwise injured. The occupants were not hurt.

Some one broke a glass panel in the door of N. W. Edson & Co.'s store last Thursday. Probably boys.

Dear Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to be able to endorse the Ivers & Pond piano on sale at your rooms. In resonance, volubility, firmness, and purity of tone it will compare favorably with any piano made in the country. I heartily recommend it to the public and my friends who are intending to purchase.

Truly yours,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The annual meeting of the Essex County Sunday School Teachers was held at North Andover last Wednesday under the charge of Rev. F. B. Makepeace, pastor of the Congregational Church. A large number of delegates from different parts of the county were present and the exercises were very interesting and instructive. Mr. J. K. Cole of this town, the secretary and treasurer, showed in his report that there were 184 Sunday Schools in the organization but he had received reports from only 63. About 30 schools were represented by delegates at the meeting. This is he said the tenth anniversary of the organization of the institution and the twenty-fifth meeting. The receipts during the year were $58.22 and the expenditure $54.72 leaving a balance of $5.50 in the treasury. During the day officers were elected and Mr. J. K. Cole was made a Vice President and Nicholas Bartlett of Marblehead was made Secretary.

Miss Carrie R. Worthen, of Salisbury, but formerly a teacher in this town, has withdrawn her suit for $10,000 damages for breach of promise from the courts of Elizabeth, N. J., on condition it is said that Dorsey W. Hyde, the defendant, pays her a certain sum of money. Hyde is a well known musician and society man of Plainfield, N. J., and the affair has caused much talk there. He became engaged to Miss Worthen in 1879 and renewed his promises to her the next year. But in 1884 he married Miss Catherine Clark of Norwood. Hyde acknowledged his engagement but claimed that Miss Worthen released him from his promises later.

Last Wednesday evening Jordan Lodge F. & A. M., entertained District Deputy Grand Master Charles H. Norris and suite, the occasion being the annual visitation. The different Masonic Lodges in this vicinity were represented, and after the "work" was over they repaired to the town hall and sat down to a first class supper, consisting of escalloped oysters, cold meats, cake, fruit, etc., prepared by Janitor Patterson, and although it was his first, they all pronounced it one of the best they ever sat down to. After the supper speeches were made by invited guests.

The 13th annual convention of the New England Foresters at Springfield last week was called to order by District Chief Ranger John Lynch. The district delegate to the subsiduary high court made the following report: Number of members in the order in the United States, 250,000. He further stated that a motion to strike out the word "white" in regard to members was lost after a warm debate. The half benefits and death claims to member's wives will remain as at present.

Both the Danvers and the Naumkeag R. R. delayed their 10.15 P. M. trip Sunday night from Salem until the arrival of the train from Boston, and both cars carried a good number of passengers. Monday night the late car did not run from Salem, although enquiry at the office elicited the fact that there was as much travel that night as other nights. It is not a matter of accommodation to the public at all. The management of the road has decided that they will not run a car Monday night—that is all.

The Lowe fuel water gas generating plant, now a prominent feature of the novelties exhibited at Philadelphia, has been bought by the Troy N. Y. fuel gas company. The apparatus will be placed in position after December 1st, and the company will furnish a limited amount of fuel gas this winter and extend their pipes all over the city in the Spring. The capacity of the plant is 10,000 feet an hour. This is the same gas that the Selectmen refused to introduce here.

An amateur gunner is feeling pretty good over a prize he captured last Wednesday while gunning on Waters river. It was nothing less than a brown eagle and measured nearly six feet in the spread of wings. P. S. Since the above was in type it has been found that the eagle "killed" was a wounded one and that his dog "Don" caught it for him. We thought it strange that "Dave" could kill a real live eagle and even now fear it was a hawk.

The special delivery does not " work like a charm" here and the business is limited. The postoffice has not been kept open till 12 o'clock as required by the law, and probably there would be no business if it was. Neither is the messenger kept there all the time as required, but only puts in an appearance at mail time. Some one should be there at all times to take immediate charge of drop letters with the special stamp on them.

Best line of Five Cent Cigars in town —Nothing like it, Principee. Clark's Best Five, and a dozen others at Geo. Stevens'. *

A polished book agent called upon us the other day, and tried to convince us that to use a slang expression, he had a " soft snap" and that our people were taking hold beautifully. He was going to make a thorough canvass and wanted our name to the already long list. The work may be worth what is charged, but we remember Fentress and again say beware!

Foster Beggs, the little fellow who carries the messages for the Western Union Telegraph Co. and also delivers the special delivery letters, has been presented with a bicycle by a number of business men, and may now be seen riding his wheel around town. Mr. Grosvenor, his employer, takes a decided interest in the boy, and is helping him in many ways.

Mr. Oliver Roberts, of Danvers, entertained the members of the West Peabody Farmers' Club at their meeting, last Friday night, with practical remarks upon farming. He was followed by J. G. Walcott, J. S. Needham and Rev. Willard Spaulding. Next Friday evening they will discuss the merits of the proposed new road in their section of the town.

Last Friday evening the clerks employed at Currier's New England Clothing store in Lynn, created a sensation as they appeared in town en route to the Naumkeag's opening in Salem. They had a special horse car decorated with chinese lanterns and flags, while the occupants were well supplied with fireworks. They returned by way of Marblehead.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Theodore Holman, of Salem, a brother of George Holman, Esq., was united in marriage to Miss Florence K. Peabody, daughter of Mr. Stephen Peabody on Central street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Colwell, of the Second Congregational Church. They will reside on Central street.

The W. C. T. U. will sell refreshments to the voters in the new dining room of the town hall, next Tuesday. This is a good opportunity to show interest in the Women's Christian Temperance Union, by contributions for the table. All such will be sent for on the morning of that day, if Miss Floyd is previously notified.

A piece of mail matter was received at the post office yesterday addressed as follows: Geo. Stevens' fruit store. John F. Morland, Peabody, Essex Co., Mass. Peabody Correspondent Lynn Daily Item and "Sparks" reporter of the Peabody Press, Treasurer of Relief Association, Pastor of the Firemen's Bethel, Mayor, etc.

Remember the Morocco Dressers of the Knights of Labor will hold a skating and dancing party at the Rink next Friday evening. There will be fancy and burlesque skating by the Coogan Brothers, a three mile race for a handsome medal with music by the Salem Brass Band. Horse cars in all directions at the close.

Among the visitors in town recently was Rev. Ambros Fields of Dubuque, Ohio, who half a century ago was a Methodist circuit rider. He was 73 years old and probably would endorse the words of Rev. J. O. Knowles, who said that "to see the country you must either be a Methodist preacher or a tramp."

Fred Waitt, of Melrose, was arrested and brought to Peabody, yesterday morning, charged with stealing a harness from Joseph Poor, on Chestnut street, valued at $35. He was discharged as the witnesses who saw some one with a harness failed to identify him as the one.

Mr. Eben N. Moulton, an industrious citizen of West Peabody, died very suddenly at his home in West Peabody last Wednesday of heart disease. He had just finished a meal and leaned back in his chair dead. He was 57 years of age and a shoe maker by trade.

Mr. John Nugent, of the firm of Nugent Brothers, dealers in shoes, etc., has gone on a business and pleasure trip to New York City, leaving this evening by the Fall River Line. He will be gone a week or more.

Said an Iowa judge the other day: "But for the housewives of the United States there could be no tramps and any woman who feeds one ought to be sent to jail for thirty days." That would fetch them.

Mr. Emory Myers, the accomplished and fascinating book keeper at J. B. Thomas', has been spending a week at Boonton, N. J., where he first saw the light o'day, and was tucked in his little trundle bed.

At the annual re-union of the survivors of Rebel prisons at Boston, last Wednesday, Benj. Beckett was elected on the Executive committee. James P. King, Esq., made an after dinner speech.

Mr. C. C. Hills and S. S. Littlefield, after several weeks journey through the west, in which time they visited all the large cities and were dined and wined by governors, mayors and dignitaries, generally, returned home last Monday. Both are in excellent health, and Steve is as fat as a—toothpick.

The Massachusetts women suffrage club have sent us a note marked " private" and " personal" on which is a list of the members of the last legislature and the way they voted on the question of woman suffrage. Representative Brown is down as not voting on the question.

The silver medal of the West Peabody Farmers' Club has been presented to J. H. J. Colcord, he having broken 19 out of 20 balls at the annual shoot. He holds the prize one year or until the next shoot. In 1883 it was won by Herbert Kennedy, and in 1884 by Edward E. White.

Rev. V. M. Simons, now of the Methodist Church at Springfield, is giving his people a thirty-five minutes' talk on the Sunday school lesson in connection with the regular Thursday evening prayer meeting. Ten minutes additional is allowed for queries on the lesson.

We were given the other day a nut with an outside shell which resembles a withered pear, but was quite fragrant. It was grown on a black walnut tree on the farm of Selectman J. E. Herrick at West Peabody. This tree grew from a seed planted some 20 years ago.

Frank A. Masterson, on Webster street, was given a pleasant surprise by a party of his young friends last Wednesday evening. During the evening they presented him with a comfortable easy chair. Refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed.

The question as to whether alewives will live and thrive in fresh water, when they cannot get out so as to reach the sea, is being tested at Austin's dime museum on Foster street. A number of them are kept in a dish in the window.

The dance at Town hall last Friday evening for the benefit of Daniel J. Galvin, who is sick with rheumatism, was well attended and a neat sum was netted. A large share of its success was due to Mr. William J. McCarthy.

James Egan got full of Salem's cheap whiskey last Sunday and returning home thought to imitate Boston's favorite slugger, Sullivan, struck his wife on the head inflicting a painful scalp wound. No complaint and no arrest.

The Manchester, N. H., Weekly Budget published last week a sketch of Rev. Mr. Sperry and gave an outline cut of him. If any of our readers desire a copy they can obtain one by enclosing five cents to the Budget.

A special meeting of the Warren Five Cents Savings Bank will be held Wednesday evening, Nov. 14th, to take action in regard ratifying the amendment to the by-laws, voted by the Trustees, at their meeting Aug. 5th.

At the Republican Senatorial Convention in Salem last Wednesday afternoon, Gen. William Cogswell was nominated to represent this district and Hubbard Breed was elected a member of the State Central Committee.

The fog on several mornings recently was so thick it could not be cut with a knife, and nothing less than a hatchet would do. But when the pervasion obscurity vanished it left one of the most beautiful of October days.

The Woman Suffrage Club will hold a regular monthly meeting at the W. C. T. U. headquarters on next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all interested in the cause to be present.

OUR GREAT SILK SALE

Is being well attended

Never before in the History of this Country were Silk Goods, Velvets, etc., offered at such low prices.

It will pay any one to travel a long distance to secure a Dress pattern of us this week. The Haskell Silks are warranted to wear well.

The abundant light in every part of it inspires a feeling of welcome at once, besides affording customers an opportunity to see what they are buying, such as no other store in Salem can begin to do. That our sales since we have got ready for business are double our most sanguine expectations, show that the people appreciate our efforts. This gratifying opening is but a beginning; we propose to make ours the most popular Dry Goods House east of Boston. "Popular Goods at Popular Prices" is our motto. All are welcome; come and see us.

We are Determined to Lead not Follow.

NEW STORES AND NEW GOODS.

BONNETS AND HATS.

We invite attention to the lines of Trimmed Bonnets and Hats, imported and of our own manufacture, under the supervision of Miss E. T. Oliver, who has heretofore catered to the tastes of our customers so successfully, which will be found specially well worth looking at.

EMBROIDERIES.

ART EMBROIDERIES.—In our new stores, on second floor, we have that of which we, for long, have felt the need—Greatly increased space. Not alone will our stock far surpass any ever shown in this city, but quotations will be even lower. Reality will exceed the expectations hereby raised.

OUR COUNTERS.

All the choicest manufactures of Paris, Vienna, London, and other European centres will be represented on our counters, while every novelty of Domestic origin is assigned its fitting place. To catalogue the entire array, would be simply impossible, but the quotations subjoined will convey some faint idea of the remarkably low prices at which goods are marked throughout our entire establishment.

SILKS AND VELVETS.

One of the most desirable offerings will be 50 pieces fine Gros Grain Silk, full width and all desirable shades, at 75c per yard—the identical quality that cost last season $1.02 1-2 to import. Also a lot of Evening Shades, 24 inches wide, $1.15; worth $1.50. 30 pcs. Colored Velvets, in all desirable shades, at 79 cents per yd.; quality usually sold at $1.25.

In American Black Silks we have made prices fully 25 per cent. less than the goods were ever before offered.

DRESS GOODS

In Wool Dress Goods, owing to delay in completion of our store, several superb lots will be offered at prices which will surely move them without delay.

FANCY FLANNELS

We offer an immense combination lot of Fancy Flannels, especially adapted for breakfast wrappers and sacques. There is not a piece in the lot worth less than 50c. We mark them all at the uniform price of twenty-five cents per yd.

GINGHAMS, ETC.

In our Basement we offer 500 pcs. Fine Ginghams and 4-4 Printed Wash Dress Fabrics, at 6 cents per yd.; 3 cases Fruit of the Loom, yard wide, Bleached Cotton, in short lengths, at 7 cents per yard.

GENTS' UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY

In our Gents' Underwear and Hosiery Department, we offer 100 doz. Gents' Lisle Thread 1-2 Hose, at 25 cents a pair. This is owing to the delay in the completion of our store. These goods should have been marketed earlier, and cost from $3.50 to $7 per doz. to import. It will pay the consumer to purchase for future needs, and will advertise our department.

KID GLOVES

In our Kid Glove department we have everything desirable in Gloves, and for our opening week offer the following superb values:—

50 dozen Ladies' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves, at 58 cts. a pair, worth $1.50. 25 dozen Gents' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves at 58 cts., value $1.50. 50 dozen Ladies' 5 button Paris Kid Gloves at 50c. a pair, this being the exact amount of the duties paid upon these goods to say nothing of the cost of manufacture. All Gloves sold by us above one dollar will be fitted to the hand if desired.

BLANKETS

We offer 50 pairs only, all wool Scarlet Blankets, at $5.00 a pair, large size.

All Blankets in the least soiled during our sale last week will be offered in our well lighted airy basement this week at a considerable reduction.

OUTSIDE GARMENTS

On our second floor may be found Ladies, Misses and Children's Outside Garments; Shawls, Suits, Corsets, Skirts, Ladies' Cotton Underwear, Infants' wear, Worsted Goods, etc.

A special lot of Infants' Knitted Wool Shirts, slightly soiled, will be sold at the uniform price of twenty-five cents each; worth 50c to $1 each. All new First Class Goods, and made for this season's trade.

There will be no restrictions as to quantity, of any of the above goods.

To quote the many additional inducements to be found in Hosiery, Lace, and our many other departments, seems unnecestary, since we give our candid assurance that prices throughout the House are low, and that a visit to our Establishment will not disappoint the shrewdest buyer, and will make even a long journey profitable.

CATARRH.

BY A. P. LIGHTHILL, M. D.

The earliest symptoms of Catarrh is a discharge from the head, consisting sometimes of a clear acid fluid, but oftener of a thick, fœtid, purulent yellow or greenish matter which is usually secreted in excessive abundance, and discharged through the nostrils for throat, and frequently by both channel.

The nature of this discharge varies in different cases, and even in the same individual at different times. In some it is copious, and of a loose or fluid character, while in others it is very viscid or gummy, adhering to the diseased membrane with glue-like tenacity; often this offensive matter concretes in dry, hard masses of crusts, which obstruct breathing and are very difficult to detach, their dislodgment requiring most violent efforts. Sometimes these incrustations come away in lumps of a deep green tint, but occasionally in broad and flat casts of a notable size, on which traces of blood may at times be observed. This condition is very liable to run to serious ulceration, involving a loss of the bony structure of the nose and a subsequent flattening of that organ, and is invariably accompanied by a breath of exceedingly fœtid and sickening odor. In some cases it becomes so revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself as well as to others.

The nasal membrane is thickened and congested, causing the nose to be stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other, and often on both, giving rise to a disagreeable, stuffy sensation in the head, and occasionally to violent paroxysms of sneezing.

A feeling of fullness, heat, irritation, soreness or pain is generally experienced in the nostrils, near the root of the nose, as well as in the upper part of the throat, above and below the soft palate. A distressing sensation of heavy weight or compression is usually complained of over the forehead, especially in the region immediately above and between the eyes. Sometimes the pain is obstinately fixed in one particular part, as in the temples, on top of the head, at the back of the neck, or behind the orbits; and occasionally it manifests itself in the face, of so severe a character that it is frequently mistaken for neuralgia.

The voice is generally affected, and becomes hoarse, weak and uneven, assuming a nasal character, or an unpleasant snuffling quality. Cough of variable severity is not unfrequently one of the symptoms and results of Catarrh.

The sense of smell is generally blunted or entirely lost, and a similar effect on taste may be occasionally observed. The eyes are apt to become irritable, and disposed to water excessively on exposure to the cold or wind, and a sense of weariness of sight is usually experienced after slight exertions. Hearing becomes frequently more or less impaired, and noises in the head very often add materially to the existing distress.

The stomach generally suffers more or less, and becomes weak and irritable; the appetite is capricious, and nearly always bad in the morning.

The patient often complains of lassitude and fatigue, an incapacity for either physical for mental exertions, and a constant disposion to drowsiness and sleep. The mental faculties are also sometimes slightly affected toss of memory being not unfrequently experienced.

Catarrh may prove fatal, either by debilitating the system and wearing out the patient or by travelling downward and producing consumption. This fact has been so repeatedly noticed that all experienced practitioners now look upon Catarrh as one of the earliest manifestations of this dreaded complaint. Among educated physicians in this or any other country, Dr. Lighthill was the first to devote his study and investigation to the cure of Catarrh and kindred diseases, and the happy results which attended his labor have been attested to by many of the most prominent citizens of Boston and vicinity. Cases abandoned as hopeless by other physicians have promptly yielded to his painless and effective treatment.

ASTHMA

For years Dr. Lighthill has made this distressing disease his special study, investigating carefully the causes that produce it; his labor was fully rewarded, for he not only established its true pathological condition, but also discovered a new and correct system of treatment for its cure. Hundreds of cases who have been under his care have found permanent relief from this wonderful discovery, from the beginning of this treatment prompt benefit is experienced which is ultimately followed by a complete and radical cure.

An experience of 30 years of constant practice enables Dr. Lighthill to decide on the first examination as to the cureability of any disease within specialty, and no case will be accepted for treatment unless the chances are for favorable results. His specialty comprises the cure of and affections of the Nervous system from whatever cause.

Continuing his observation of protoplasm, Mr. T. Hick finds that it prevails throughout the frond of a seaweed belonging to a group different from those groups in which it had previously been noticed.

The railroad system of Japan has attained a length of 225 miles, and is increasing steadily. It has been mainly built by the Japanese Government with native capital. The business results up to the present time have given no cause for dissatisfaction.

The Geographical Society of Paris has awarded a gold medal (La Rouquette's prize) to the Danish Government publication on Greenland, "Meddelelser om Gronland,' in which are from time to time recorded the results of the Danish scientific expedition exploring Greenland.

Dupre has succeeded in suppressing the nitrous vapors of the Bunsen battery by using a depolarizing liquid consisting of nitric acid, in which 75 grams potassium dichromate have been dissolved per litre. In contact with zinc he employs either acidulated water or potassium disulphate.

Mr. F. W. Clark has exhibited in London a new system of gas lighting for private houses by means of recuperative lamps. By a ventilating arrangement the lamps consume their own smoke, and the burners are so formed that the requisite air is heated to a high temperature and admitted into the lamps at the point of ignition.

Herr Fleitmann, of Iserlohn, has shown that pure nickel and its alloys with copper, cobalt, and iron can have other metals added without losing the property of being welded, and, therefore, can still be used for making plate. The metals which can be added in this way are zinc, tin, lead, cadmium, iron, and maganese up to as much as 10 per cent.

The Norwegian Government have decided to despatch an expedition to Finmarken for the purpose of effecting hydrographic researches and soundings along the coast. Among the various grants by the Swedish Government for scientific work is a sum of $200 toward the expenses of Mr. O. Norstedt's algological labors in England and Scotland this year.

Mr. Wolff's treatment of writer's cramp seems to be making steady progress in popular estimation. It consists, as formerly described, of a combined application of massage, gymnastics, and caligraphic exercises. Any sufferer from that annoying and distressing species of cramp can devise a special system of relief by noting the object aimed at by the method adopted by Mr. Wolff.

Prof. Heiden recommends superphosphate gypsum as a new material for absorbing ammonia in stables. It is a residue from the manufacture of phosphoric acid, and contains 4 to 5 per cent. soluable and 1 to 2 per cent insoluable phosphoric acid. It retains ammonia much better, than kyanite, a double sulphate of potassium and magnesium, which is sometimes employed for the same pupose in stables.

A special committee on railroad axles have by a majority reported that iron axles are safer than steel axles, that all cranks should have the webs hooped, that as iron cranks appear to fail after running about 200,000 miles and steel after 170,000 miles, it is highly desirable that they should be taken off and never again used in passenger engines, and that crank axles properly constructed are as strong as straight axles.

Improved thermo-electric piles of the Clamond and the Charpentier type were recently exhibited before the Academy of Sciences, Paris. The couples were of iron or nickel and an alloy of antimony-zinc. One pile consisting of 12 sets of 10 elements gave an electromotive force of 8 volts and a resistance of 3.2 ohms, while another half that size as regards the number of elements gave 3.6 volts with a resistance of 0.65 ohm.

Sir Spencer Wells in a recent paper on cremation contends that the modern system of burial contaminates both air and soil to the great injury of public health; that legal opinion is in favor of the practice of cremation as not contrary to law, while the Episcopal Church burial service seems distinctly framed to provide for the process, and that proper precautions can easily be taken to prevent any abuse of disposing of the bodies of the dead by fire instead of by the slower plan of decomposition in the ground.

Work of construction on the railroads of the Argentine Republic is being energetically pushed forward. A new section of the Andean line from Mendoza to San Juan, a distance of 95 miles, was completed at the end of March. The entire distance from Rosario to San Juan is now done in three days; a few years ago the journey took from twenty to twenty-five days. The railroad from Mercedes to Quinto, 360 miles, is ready for traffic. The Great Northern Railway is rapidly advancing to Salta, a rich agricultural province distant from Rosario about 775 miles.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

MAYO'S

Compound Vegetable Anæsthetic.

A safe and pleasant substitute for gas and ether.

Discovered by Dr. N. K. Mayo of Boston, April 1883, subsequently administered by him in nearly two thousand cases, producing perfect slumber, being applicable to the child, the delicate sentitive woman as well as the hardy man. No ill effects have followed its use in any case, it acting rather as a vegetable tonic.

It controls the patient one-fourth longer than gas giving us time to remove from three to twenty teeth. It is with great confidence we have introduced it into our practice, giving very successful results.

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. USELESS WEAPONS.

It was at El Teb that I was first struck with the inferior quality of the English bayonet and sword bayonet. At Tamai, in the rush and scurry, it was put to a severer test than anywhere else in the Soudan. In that battle the Haddendowas, as they rushed out of their grass cover with their short spears, fairly pitched themselves upon the weapons of our Black Watch and Sixty-fifth. The triangular bayonet ofttimes bent and twisted. On the whole, however, it stood the test better than the sword bayonet. Like the sword bayonet, it often bent like hoop iron when a thrust was made, if a bone interposed, and became cork-screwed in the struggle.

It has two serious drawbacks, not so observable in the sword bayonet. The wound it makes is slight, so that a fanatical savage or infuriated man requires several thrusts before he is placed hors de combat, giving him a chance to run amuck among civilized troops. In the second place, the triangular bayonet, when thrust violently goes too far, and there is great difficulty in freeing it. At Tamai a stalwart soldier hooked his opponent in such a manner that he had to draw the body twenty yards, as we were retreating, before liberating his weapon. This was the most conspicuous instance of the kind I saw, but it was by no means the only one.

The sword bayonet has weight without breadth, and, with the cutlass, frequently lacks temper. I have seen a blue jacket's cutlass sword bayonet at Tamai, as well as some in the battles up the Nile, bend into a semicircle and remain in that shape, unfitting it for a second "point." The use it was put to did not justify the giving way of the weapon. The fact that it did not regain its form further proved that the quality of the blade was of the poorest. It would have gone the same way had it been driven awkwardly into a sack of flour.

There can be no real difficulty with our mechanics and workshops in procuring bayonets that will bear the brunt of rough usage in a campaign. What I have said of the bad quality of the cutlass applies equally to the sword bayonet. Many a soldier at Abu Klea saw with dismay his bayonet rendered useless at the moment when there was no chance to load his rifle, and when he most stood in need of its services. There also I saw sword bayonets bend and twist with the facility of soft iron rather than steel. After that fight you might have noticed brawny foot guardsmen, herculean life guardsmen, and the deft fighters of the mounted infantry, all of whom had stood shoulder to shoulder in the square, straightening their bayonets across their knees or under foot. Others there were who discarded their distorted weapons and picked up some dead comrade's from the field.

SOME FAMOUS OLD MAIDS.

Elizabeth of England was one of the most illustrious of modern sovereigns. Her rule over Great Britain certainly comprises the most brilliant literary age of the English-speaking people. Her political acumen was certainly put to as severe tests as that of any other ruler the world ever saw. Maria Edgeworth was an old maid. It was this woman's writings that first suggested the thought of writing similiarly to Sir Walter Scott. Her brain might well be called the mother of the Waverly novels. Jane Porter lived and died an old maid. The children of her busy brain were "Thaddeus of Warsaw" and "The Scottish Chiefs," which have moved the hearts of millions with excitement and tears. Joanna Baillie, poet and play-writer was "one of 'em." Florence Nightingale, most gracious lady, heroine of Inkermann and Balaklava hospitals, has to the present written "Miss" before her name. The man who should marry her might well crave to take the name of Nightingale. Sister Dora, the brave spirit of English pest-houses, whose story is as a helpful evangel, was the bride of the world's sorrow only. And then what names could the writer and reader add of those whom the great world may not know but we know, and the little world of the village, the church, the family know and prize beyond all worlds!

A CHINESE OATH.

Says the San Francisco Chronicle: In a Mongol murder case in San Francisco the following oath was administered to each of the Chinese witnesses: "This is to inform the spirits of the gods, also the evil spirits and the demons, all to descend here to hear, oversee and examine into the case of Wong Ah Foo, charged with murderimg Loi Ah Gow. If I come here to swear profanely and tell the untruth, or not according to the facts of the case, I humbly beg the Celestial and terrestrial spirits to redress Loi Ah Gow's grievance and to punish the false witness immediately and to arrest his soul. May he die under a sword, or die on the half-way of the sea and have no life to return to China. This is the true and solemn declaration of oath sworn by my own mouth and signed by my name by my own hand. Dated this——day, second month, in the eleventh year of Quong Soi." It is believed that all who take this oath will testify truthfully, as the Celestials believe that if they should perjure themselves, after passing through the ceremony, they will die an everlasting death and that the gates of the Flowery Kingdom will be closed upon them.

No exaggerated or fictitious certificates, but solid facts, testify the marvellous cures of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

THE OASIS OF PENJDEH.

Penjdeh is in the shape of a triangle, formed by the Murghab, which waters the Merv oasis, and by its affluent, the Kushk. To the south and southwest the frontier of Penjdeh—a district traversed by the nomad tribe of the Sarik Turcomans—is easily confounded with the hills of the once flourishing territory of Budghis. According to the investigations of European travelers, we should understand by this name the region bounded on the north by the sand of Merv, on the west by the Heri Rud, on the east by the Murghab, and on the south by the chain of the Paropamisus. The most fertile portion of Badghis at the present time is the eastern part, between the Murghab and the Kushk. The sands of Merv extend into this region to the east Penjdeh, while on the south they touch the well-cultivated region once belonging to the Usbegs, but now to Afghanistan, and in which the towns Maimena, Aripul, Shibergan, Andkhol, and Akcha.

The oasis of Penjdeh, fully capable of careful cultivation on the one condition that a good system of irrigation shall be introduced, forms, as it were, a sort of turning point between the deserts of the north and the fertile regions of the south, which await colonization. History proves the flourishing state of the ancient Badghis, which is still testified to by immense ruins. With regard to the aosis itself. Penjdeh is still peopled by about 8,000 Sariks, who occupy themselve chiefly in raising flocks. Their encampments skirt the banks of the Murghab from the site marked by the ruins of old Penjdeh. The greatest breadth of the oasis from west to east is about twenty miles; the greatest length from northwest to southwest—that is, from Ak Tapa to Meruchak—is about twenty-seven miles. The area is rather more than 300 square miles.

The Penjdeh Sariks are rich. They live in kibitkas or felt tents. Some among them possess as many as from 1,500 to 2,000 sheep and between seventy and eighty camels. They raise there, but in small quantities, crops of rice, wheat, sorghum, etc. They weave carpets which rival those of Persia, and fine cloths of camel hair for khilats and women's veils, famous throughout the whole of the East, but which are exceedingly dear. The Sariks of Penjdeh have commercial relations with Bokhara, Merv, and Herat above all other places. The irrigation of this region is quite insufficient. Its agricultural future depend upon the improvement of this essential. The culminating point of the oasis is Ak Tapa. Ruins are to be found there of a town and a citadel. There is a road from this place to Herat by following the left bank of the Kushk, which is crossed by the half-ruined bridge of Pul-i-Khisti or Dash Kepri. At the southeast extremity of the oasis are the ruins of Meruchak, and a little to the north of them begins the canal which issues from the Murghab and irrigates the fields of the Sariks.

PRONUNCIATION AND CHARACTER.

The pronunciation of English is often regarded as a touchstone which reveals whether a person is well or ill bred, and to a certain extent the observation is undoubtedly true. Pronunciation is one of the outward and visible signs which most quickly betrays the lack of culture, and which, although the speaker may wear good clothes, betrays also the presence of vulgarity. But there are two classes of persons who can not be set down as either vulgar or uncultured, yet who, at the same time, entertain radically different views concerning the pronunciation of numerous English words. One of these persons occupies what he is pleased to call a common-sense position, which may be explained as follows: A word in common use is popularly pronounced contrary to the method given by a majority of the lexicographers, yet such pronunciation has the sanction of one or two good authorities, as allowable, although perhaps not preferable. One common-sense man says "there is authority for the popular pronunciation, and I propose to adopt it rather than make myself conspicuous by speaking differently from ninety-nine out of a hundred of my countrymen." The person who represents the other class is a strict purist. The one person accommodates himself to popular usage whenever he can find reasonably good authority for doing so; the other is unbending, and claims that common use has no right to acknowledgment, but that what he considers the best must always rule.

PAPER SLIPPERS.

Paper slippers are the latest form in which paper is introduced in new inventions. An Englishman has patented a system of manufacturing slippers, sandals, and other coverings for the feet out of paper. Paper pulp, or paper mache, is employed for the upper, which is molded to the desired form and size, and a sole is provided made of paper or pasteboard, leather board, or other suitable paper material, which is united to the upper by means of cement, glue, or other adhesive material. The upper is creased, embossed, or perforated at the instep and sides, which render them somewhat pliable and prevents their cracking while in use.

What there is in a Bottle.

SMARTING — Sufficient to stop in five minutes the smarting, stinging pain of 100 burns or scalds. It will stop the pain as soon as applied.

COUGHING — Abundance to cure a score of colds and the coughing that often leads the way to Consumption. IT WILL POSITIVELY ease a Cough in 15 minutes.

CHOKING — More than enough to save a dozen children Choking with CROUP. One minute after the first dose the hardest attack of Croup will be relieved.

WHEEZING — Plenty to relieve the oppression and wheezing of the most severe case of Asthma. The direct cures of Asthma by this medicine are proofs that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has no equal as an Asthma cure.

In the above cases Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil can be relied upon. It has given relief to thousands. Keep it in your house. There is hardly a week of the year it will not be useful.

A party of Peabody firemen visited Somerville and Cambridge Sunday and were shown around the different quarters in those cities.

Hose 5 begin their series of dances at the hose house Friday evening.

O. B. Chadwick & Co. held insurance on the barn of Eugene Hussey, burned in Topsfield last Wednesday evening, in the Dover and Merrimac Mutual Companies, amounting to $600.

Monday morning about 12.40 o'clock the barn of P. Hefferrnan, at Danversport was destroyed by fire, the work of an incendiary, without doubt. The hay, wagons, and a valuable horse belonging to Mr. Heffernan were burned. O. B. Chadwick & Co. had an insurance of $500 on the place, in the Royal company, of which $200 was on the horse, and $150 each on building and wagons. Mr. Chadwick visited Danversport Monday and promptly adjusted the loss by the payment of the full insurance $500.

The new trusses have been put on the H. & L. truck by Dole & Osgood, and that piece of apparatus is greatly strengthened and improved by it.

Hose Company No. 1 was the recipient of a very handsome oil painting, last week, the donor being the artist, Mrs. George Plummer, of this town. The company have had an elegant frame put around the picture and have hung it in their room.

A druggist interested in fire matters in Woburn has presented to the Gilchrist hook and ladder of that place a small case made to be stored in the tool box. The case contains absorbent cotton, bandages, tweezers, lancet and small instruments, a mixture for burns, coat plaster, arnica, tubes for resuscitating a person suffocated by smoke and other useful articles. A similar case would be a pretty good present for some Peabody druggist, or all of them combined, to present with instructions for use, to the Abel Proctor H. & L. of this place.

The members of the fire department draw their pay next Monday.

Now that the Boston & Maine railroad have adopted a signal whistle for fire alarms, would it not be a good idea for the other whistles in this town to be blown for fires with some stated system, something that would distinguish an alarm from the ordinary blowing? Why not adopt the same signal that the railroad uses, one long and three short whistles?

Chief Tibbetts has received circulars from New Orleans calling his attention to the National Firemen's Tournament and Exhibition, to bé held in that city, March 4th, 5th, and 6th, 1886, under the auspices of the North, Central and South American Exposition, assisted and directed by the committee appointed by the National Association of Fire Engineers, at its last annual session at Long Branch, N. J., Chief Engineer Thomas O'Connor of New Orleans being the chairman of the committee. The exercises will consist of a grand street parade on the first day of the New Orleans department and all visiting firemen. The second day will be given to the Hand Engine contests, tank and horizontal, for prizes from $25 up to $100. Hose carriage and hose cart contests, by horse and hand, for prizes from $5 up to $300. The third day will be for H. & L. truck companies, distance running, raising ladders and general efficiency for prizes from $50 to $100. Steam fire engine trials, tank and horizontal playing prizes $25 to $100. Other attractions will be offered. Reduced fares on all lines of railroad. Here is a chance for some of our companies.

The fire district of North Attleboro, is probably one of the finest equipped, for a place of its size in the state. The apparatus consists of one steamer, one hook and ladder truck and one hose wagon carrying 1350 feet of hose. There are six men attached to the house two of whom are drivers. The house is equipped with sliding pole, swing harnesses, electric indicators and gas arrangements and heating apparatus for the steamer. The district has the fire alarm Gamewell system, with 3 1-2 miles of wire, 7 alarm boxes horse gongs and bell strikers all put up for the sum of $1800. Besides the engine house is connected with the chief's residence by telephone. The firemen all wear the regulation uniform. The force of the district is about 40 men, and it isvery plain to be seen that the citizens are proud of their department, from the fact that all the latest improvements are in use. This town could have the fire alarm put in to cover the whole town for from $2500 to $3000, giving about a dozen boxes, bell strikers, gongs, indicators and etc. The firemen would willingly put "jokers," or smaller gongs into their own houses and the result would be that one half the fires in the night would be only known to the firemen themselves; there would be no need of every whistle and bell in town ringing fit to "wake the dead" for every alarm. Manager Gallup, of the Naumkeag Clothing store, must have felt a just pride in the success of the business he has assisted in establishing in Salem, as he stood upon the balcony of the Essex House, last Friday evening, and saw the immense crowd of people completely filling Essex street from Central to St. Peter street, who had turned out to the grand opening, for which the Naumkeag had arranged. It was a fine evening, warm and comfortable, and the immense crowd were in the best of humor. The Salem Cadet Band was in attendance and played excellent selections which were heartily encored. Prof. Thompson, of Boston, gave a fine exhibition of stereopticon pictures which more than pleased the spectators. We are informed that owing to the injury to the machine in transportation the Professor was unable to give a large number of rich views which he had brought with him. The windows of the store presented a fine appearance as they always do. Cards had been placed on the different styles of suits and overcoats, similar to the fringed Christmas cards, making a neat and tasteful display. Mr. Gallup has inside the largest assortment of goods ever shown in the store. Their line of overcoats is especially choice and contains over 150 different patterns. The firm bought their goods early this year, selected the choicest and nobbiest patterns, and their draughtsman has got the business nearly to perfection. Customers of this store are remarking on the fine fit and style of the ready made goods. There is a large demand for fine goods this season, larger than ever before, and this store can surely meet the demand. These goods are all made by journeymen tailors, some of the overcoats are lined throughout with silk, and are finished in every respect equal to custom clothing. We were shown a finely made overcoat of English Kersey, lined with the best lasting, got up in the latest style, for only $20, and for $22 and $23 there are coats that would cost $40 in a tailor shop. In boys and children's goods there are all the novelties selected from the nobby plaids and checks so popular with the boys. There are over 2000 square feet of room devoted to this department in the Naumkeag. They have children's overcoats down to $1, and from that up to the higher grades. This firm have also this year a good assortment of leather vests and coats for the use of teamsters and others who are exposed to inclement weather. Last year they did some business in these goods, proving so satisfactory that they have made arrangements to keep a larger and better assortment. The front of the store is devoted to gents' furnishings, and an elegant display is made in this department. Their trade has increased in furnishings so much this fall that it has been found necessary to put on extra help. The store is one of the finest in Essex Co. and is worthy the attention of our readers.

SOUTH PEABODY.

On Friday evening at the Rockville Congregational church, the Do-What-We-Can Mission Circle gave a delightful entertainment, in place of the usual annual sale and festival. This was a success in every way and was well attended by an appreciative audience. As a result of the careful training and superintendance of Miss Fanny Brown the children acquitted themselves with great credit. The recitations were very choice and were well rendered. The doll drill, which was the feature of the evening, was so much liked that it had to be repeated. Thirteen little girls, in age running from 4 to 7 years and led by one of 12 years, were dressed in the character of nurses and went through the acts of tending their children and putting them to bed. This was done to the accompaniment of an organ, which played a march while the children filed in and took their little rocking chairs., and "Yankee Doodle," while the little mothers trotted their babies on their knees. They then rocked and sang them to sleep with "Bye Lo Baby" to the tune of "Greenville." The exercises were brought to a close by the breaking of the little stone jugs into which the children had been putting missionary pennies during the past year, and from these was realized the sum of $8.35 for the benefit of foreign missions. Among the recitations especially noticeable were "The Doll's Tragedy," given by a little miss of about 14 in the character of a grandmother, and a very humorous piece entitled "The New Bonnet" recited by a wee little tot who entered into its spirit with remarkable enthusiasm. Pretty selections of music enlivened the occasion, one serio-comic piece "Jack and Jill" being sung during the breaking of the jugs. The pastor, Rev. John W. Colwell, presided during the evening.

A case of scarlet fever is reported in the Galeucia family at the corner of County street, and it is said that the child was taken with the fever during the entertainment in the church last Friday evening, and that many of the children were exposed to it.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Williams are receiving congratulations. It is a girl.

Mr. Joseph Moody removed into his new house on Lynn street last Saturday.

Mr. Edward Taylor is suffering from a carbuncle on the back of his neck.

Mrs. Martha Basford is very sick at her residence on Washington street, and small hopes are entertained for her recovery.

The L. & B. road carried about 1000 passengers last Sunday on this end of the road.

A neighborhood prayer meeting was held last evening with Mr. Luther French by members of the Baptist Society.

There are several cases of scarlet fever reported in this part of the town.

Rev. J. W. Colwell delivered a very excellent sermon last Sunday afternoon to a fair sized audience. In the evening a Sabbath School concert was held in the vestry. Subject, "Mountains of the Bible," and was very interesting.

Mr. Edward E. Taylor has purchased several acres of the Richardson farm of J. B. Thomas at private sale. The land adjoins Mr. Taylor's on County street.

A. W. Tyler, who has been with us for several weeks, and been very active in assisting Rev. Mr. Colwell and others about the church, left for New York to-day.

There will be a fair by the Ladies' Aid Society at the church this evening and to-morrow evening. Mr. G. N. Winslow will read this evening, and to-morrow evening there will be recitations and singing. The "doll drill" will be repeated by request.

The democrats have filed, according to law, a copy of the certificates which it is proposed, by them to attach to the ballots to be used next Tuesday by their party.

A break in the 8-inch water main on Warren street was discovered last Monday near the old dump. It is a bad place and will require considerable labor to repair it.

PEABODY.

Mr. Michael F. Kelley, of this town, one of the ushers at the new town hall, will be united in marriage this afternoon to Miss Jennie F. O'Brien, an estimable young lady in Salem. The ceremony will take place at the residence of Rev. Father Tobin, after which a reception will be given at the home of the bride, 12 English street, Salem. They will reside on Midway street in this town.

Mr. P. J. Lyons, the barber, ever on the look out to please his customers, has engaged the services as assistant of Mr. Fred Titcomb of the celebrated Lucier Family, and a gentleman who plays on a dozen different instruments at the same time. One evening last week he also had a whole string band playing in his shop, and he kept time with the music in lathering his customers.

A lady patron of Nugent's popular establishment, and who has travelled considerably lately, had this to say about Nugent's store. She said: "They sell goods as cheap as they are sold in Boston at retail, and many of them are sold at retail for less than the usual wholesale rates." She knew what she was talking about, and a more complete compliment can't well be imagined. *

The local paper has no intention of noticing one church or secret society above another, but the members of that church or secret society that are the most active in sending in notes or items of the events that transpire within their circle in season for publication, will always be way ahead of those who show by their indifference that they take but little pride in the organization with which they are connected.

The Globe invited its lady readers to send in their most popular recipes, and received many nice ones for all kinds of dishes. They will be printed altogether in the next Sunday Globe, November 1, and will have a large sale. It will be an invaluable collection for any lady.

A Peabody man got taken in by the horse swindlers of Boston to the extent of two hundred dollars. After paying five week's board for the horse at five dollars a week he sold him for fifty dollars, and still Peabody boasts of her brilliant men.—Wakefield Bulletin.

The soprano soloists for the "Messiah," this Christmas at the Handel & Haydn Society in Boston, are to be Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen and Miss Sara C. Fisher. The soprano music will probably thus be divided as at the Worcester Festival, and it is probable that the other changes in the performance of the Oratorio will be made in Boston as at Worcester.

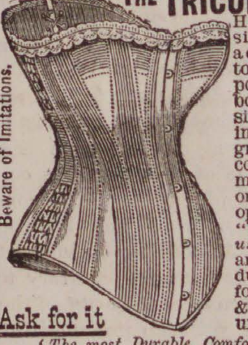
The Peabody Roller Skating Rink will open next Tuesday for the season, under the management of Mr. Charles A. Thomas, assisted by Mr. Lewis Nevers and "Billy" Felton. On the opening night the attraction will be the champion double skaters, Prof. C. C. Martin and Miss Allie Lowry, who are well known to the skating fraternity as artists. Skating before and after the exhibition. The rink will be open on Monday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, but will be let for private parties at any time.

Owners of horse flesh will be glad to learn that they will not have to go out of town to get their horse clipped this season. Mr. William Wallace, who has had a large experience, will be found at Pepper's stable on Jacobs street. Orders left with Jesse Smith and Sheehan & Tobin will receive prompt attention.

The proposed freight railway to Proctor's tannery has been staked out and work begun.

THE NEW CORSET.

THE TRICORA RELIEF



Beware of Imitations.

Having elastic side sections, adapts itself to the various positions of the body in stooping, sitting & reclining. It affords great relief and comfort to the many who find ordinary Corsets oppressive. FALL AND WINTER OPENING!

—OF—

FINE AND MEDIUM

CLOTHING.

NAUMKEAG

On FRIDAY, Oct. 23rd, we shall inaugurate our 8th Annual Fall and Winter Sale of Men's, Boys' and Children's Fine and Medium Clothing.

We take this method of informing the citizens of Essex County that we now have ready for inspection all of our Clothing which we have manufactured for the Fall and Winter of 1885—6. We desire to call your special attention to the fact that we have selected our stock this season with the greatest care, not only for style, but also for durability.

You will readily see by a careful inspection of our garments that the designs are original with us and cannot be found elsewhere. It is conceded by all the Retail Dealers throughout New England that our garments are the nearest approach to first-class Custom Work of any dealer in Massachusetts. We are ready at any and all times to prove that we carry four times the stock of any other dealer in Salem, and ten times as many styles,—in fact there is not a day in the year that we are not receiving new styles direct from our manufactory. Being the only Clothiers in Essex County who manufacture their own Clothing it enables us often-times to procure styles far in advance of other dealers—consequently you may always rest assured that by purchasing your Clothing at the "Naumkeag" you will always receive the latest styles at the lowest market prices. We believe in giving every buyer full value for their money, and this is one of the many reasons of our wonderful success in Salem.

Our Watchword has always been and always will be, Never to be undersold and to keep our goods up to the original standard. The more competition we have the faster our trade increases. Below we give a copy of our guarantee introduced by us when we commenced doing business in Salem.

GUARANTEE.

1st. That the prices of our goods shall be as low as the same quality of material and manufacture are sold anywhere in the United States.
2d. That the prices are precisely the same to everybody for same quality, on same day of purchase.
3d. That the quality of goods is as represented by th salesman selling them.
4th. That the full amount of cash paid will be refunded, if the customers find the articles unsatisfactory, and return them unworn and uninjured within six days from date of purchase.

OUR GENT'S DEPARTMENT.

All the latest novelties of Foreign and Domestic Manufacture for young men's business suits. Plaids and checks are now the leading style, made up both single and double breasted sack coats, and also four button cutaway frocks. Black, brown, blue, port wine and seal brown whipcords, made up sack, four button cutaway frock or Prince Albert are the requisite styles for Young Men's Dress Suits. All of the above styles we have now in Stock as well as the latest patterns in Harris, Sawyer, Hockanum, Empire, Great Falls cassimeres and many others of equal fame.

OVERCOATS.

We will challenge any dealer in America to show so large a stock and such a fine variety of Winter Overcoats as we now have for inspection. Only think of it! Over two thousand (2000) Men's Overcoats, comprising all colors, of Foreign and American Beavers, Kerseys, Meltons, Cassimeres Chinchillas and Elysians—many of them made and trimmed so well, and so perfect in fit, that it is impossible to detect them from first-class Custom made garments, at prices from 30 to 50 per cent. less than you can buy the same garments made to order.

At the request of many of our patrons we have made up a line of Coachmen's Overcoats. Gent's Ulsters are becoming more popular every year, especially among those who are much exposed to the cold weather. We have a large and well selected stock of these valuable garments, cut extra long, with wide collars, made from extra heavy goods, at prices that will please everybody. We have an endless variety of Gent's Reefing Jackets, a garment that will be very stylish this season as a street garment for Young Men.

PANTALOONS.

We always keep an endless variety of Men's and Young Men's Pantaloons. There is not a day in the year but you can find all the latest patterns upon our retail counters, at prices to suit the times.

OUR BOY'S AND CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

Is acknowledged by all our competitors to be the largest and finest East of Boston, being entirely separate from our Gent's department. The salesroom for this department alone covers nearly three thousand (3000) square feet, every counter loaded with Fall and Winter goods for the Little Folks, and is larger than most of our competitors' whole establishments. Mothers who desire to dress their children in neat, stylish garments, should not fail to call and inspect our Fall and Winter Stock, which we consider the finest we have ever exhibited in Salem.

Children's Plaited, Belted and Norfolk Suits, made from choice plaids and checks, are the most popular styles this season—also Children's Plaid and Check Suits with Cape Overcoats to match are very fashionable. Our stock of Children's Overcoats includes all the novelties for the season, both in colors and style of cut—many of them are made with Capes and trimmed with Astrachan or Fur.

Boys' Suits and Overcoats, ages 12 to 18 years. This department is filled with all the choicest patterns. Knowing that the boys are wlways in pursuit of new patterns and designs of Clothing, they can rest assured that the Naumkeag has all the leading styles this season, at prices that will capture the Trade.

Boys' and Children's Reefers, in Blue and Brown Chinchillas and Fancy Cassimeres. These garments are becoming very popular with the boys. We also have an endless variety of Boys' and Children's Pants at low prices.

CHILDREN'S KILT SUITS.

We have manufactured this season a large lot of Children's Kilt Suits, which cannot fail to please our patrons, both as to quality and prices. Ages, 3 to 5 years.

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS DEPARTMENT.

In this department our stock has never been so large and varied as the present season, and we feel sure of suiting the tastes of all our customers. Buying our goods in immense quantities for our different stores direct from the producers, we can guarantee you a large saving on each and every article purchased of us. Our stock is so large and varied it is impossible to enumerate everything, but a call at our store will satisfy you that we have all that is needed to complete a gentleman's wardrobe.

In White Shirts our celebrated Naumkeag shirt deservedly takes the lead. For a good quality, serviceable, easy fitting shirt, at a moderate price, it has no superior. We also have a large assortment of other qualities, both white and colored.

Our Underwear, Hosiery and Cardigan Jackets were bought before the recent rise in wool, consequently we are enabled to sell them a low or lower than they can be bought at wholesale for to-day, while our variety is so great that everyone can be suited.

We are still the acknowledged leaders in Neckwear, and the patterns and designs were never so handsome as they are this season. The latest New York and Boston styles constantly on hand.

Collars and Cuffs, Jewelry, Street and Dress Gloves, Handkerchiefs(Linen and Silk), Umbrellas, Cotton and Woolen Shirts. Overalls, Jumpers and Small Wares it is impossible for us to mention separately, but to our former patrons it is sufficient to say that our stock is larger than ever before, and we invite an inspection from all.

The Leather Jackets introduced by us last season were so popular among teamsters and others exposed to the cold, that we have made up a large stock of these valuable garments for this season. The prices are a little lower than last year.

This fall we have added a stock of Men's and Boys' Rubber Coats to this department. They are made with the patent molded Button hole, are the best in the market, and will be sold at very low prices.

STRICTLY ONE PRICE.

Passion Flowers.

She takes them from the warm south side
Of her fair home at eventide;
Her fragile fingers blend
The flowers for graveyard wreath and cross,
Symbolic of a love and loss
Whereof she knows no end.

Far, far behind her in the haze
Of years and tears, those early days
Of love and sorrow lie.
She was a wife; on one true breast
Her troubled girlhood found a rest
In glad security.

Together in youth's morning time,
Their hearts rang true to true love's chime,
Through never weary hours;
Together, standing in the sun,
They pulled with gladness, one by one,
Love's purple passion flowers.

But death stole grimly to their side,
And reft the bridegroom from the bride.
Her marriage coronet
Was scarcely laid with blushes down,
Ere on her curls of chestnut brown,
The widow's cap was set.

She was a wife, true wife to one
Whose noble race was swiftly run;
And, faithful to love's creed,
She, made a widow in her youth,
Hath kept her first, her fairest truth,
And widowed is indeed.

He left her lonely, when the springs
Of life were fullest, when love clings
With passion to its mate.
She dropped the purple flowers of love
Among the grass that waved above
His grave—and learned to wait.

She gave him all she had in life,
Her fair, fond self, a perfect wife,
With dower of hope and youth;
She gives him all she has in death,
Her chaste, white life, untouched by breath
Or hint against her truth.

She waits. No longest year shall bring
To her a second spousal ring,
No other marriage hours;
She waits, until by Eden's tide,
The bridegroom gathers for his bride
The fadeless passion flowers!

—All the Year Round.

TIRED.

Would I were lying in a field of clover—
Of clover cool and soft, and scented sweet,
With dusky clouds in deep skies hanging over,
And scented silence at my head and feet—
Just for one hour to slip the leash of worry
In eager haste from Thought's impatient rush,
And watch it rushing in its heedless hurry,
Disdaining wisdom's call or duty's hush.

Ah! it were sweet, where clover clumps are meeting,
And daisies hiding, so to bide and rest;
No sound except my own heart's sturdy beating,
Rocking itself to sleep within my breast—
Just to lie there, filled with the deeper breathing
That comes of listening to a wild bird's song;
Our souls require at time this free unsheathing—
All swords will rust if scabbard-kept too long.

And I am tired—so tired of rigid duty,
So tired of all my tired hands find to do—
I yearn, I faint for some of life's free beauty,
Its looser beads with no straight string run through.
Ay, laugh, if laugh you will, at my crude speech;
But women sometimes die of such a greed—
Die for the small joys held beyond their reach,
And the assurance they have all they need.

Won by Mistake.

"I do wish you'd sit down and keep quiet, Bessie! You distract me so, fluttering round the room like a bird."

Now Miss Minerva Eilliott was a tall masculine female, hard on the "thirties," with stiff little curls, and gold-rimmed spectacles, and a stand-up collar and cravat, like a man's, and she was very busy among a pile of books and papers, preparing hard questions intended for the annihilation of her Sunday school class on the morrow, while little sixteen-year-old Bessie, with her pink and white skin, brown curls, and innocent blue eyes, picked up her white kitten and beat a retreat, inexpressibly mortified at having "distracted" her staid sister.

"I suppose I shall learn better some time," thought Bessie; "but, oh, dear! I am such a silly little goose."

She went on tiptoe past the door where Mr. Leroy, the young minister, was engaged in the revision of his sermon, for Mr. Leroy lodged at Widow Elliott's, and Bessie felt her youth and folly more painfully than ever in his dignified presence.

She stood a moment in the doorway, where the cheerful July sunbeams made a golden checker work on the floor, quivering through the morning-glory vines, and a sweet odor crept subtly in, of newly-mown clover field, and roses just blossoming along the garden wall.

"I know what I'll do," thought Bessie, as her pet, the kitten, darted away through the bushes. "I'll have some of those ripe cherries."

Bessie bounded down the garden walk, and, deftly climbing the old stone wall, swung herself into the branches of the huge cherry tree, like a white-plumed little bird.

"Mother would be horrified, and Minerva would have a fit," quietly thought Bessie; "but it is so nice and shady up here, and the robins are stealing all the cherries. I almost wish I was a robin, it is such a pleasant life up among the green leaves with the blue sky peeping through. Dear me, I hope that isn't mamma."

Bessie crept a branch or two higher up, as footsteps came down the garden path.

Alas! her premonitions were but too correct. Mrs. Eilliott's cap strings were fluttering below, and Mrs. Elliott's self had come out with a bowl to pick currants, accompanied by Aunt Sophia, her sister.

"Now I'm caught," soliloquized our little heroine. "I hope they won't be long. I wonder what they are talking about. Mr. Leroy, as I live."

And Bessie held her breath, and secretly laughed to see how utterly unconscious the two old dames were of her near vicinage.

"Yes," said Mrs. Elliot, solemnly, "he's a good young man, a very good young man."

"There ain't no minister all the country round gives such satisfaction!" said Aunt Sophia. "Them cabbages is comin' on fine, Julia!"

"Oh, bother the cabbages!" said Mrs. Elliott, tartly; "its about Mr. Leroy I'm talking, Sophia. But he ought to marry and settle down. A single minister can't do all the good he could if he was married!"

"That's true," assented Aunt Sophia; "and Minerva would make a capital minister's wife!"

"She's the very wife he needs!—and if some one would just put the idea into his head."

"Perhaps he doesn't mean to marry."

"Then he is doing very wrong, encouraging Minerva the way he does—walkin' to Sunday school with her, and talkin' about the poor-money, and pickin' out the psalms and hymns, with his head so close to hers. Of all creatures," went on Mrs. Elliott, energetically, "I do dislike a male coquette!"

"Dear me, Julia," said Aunt Sophia, with mild remonstrance, "I don't s'pose he ever thinks of such a thing!"

"Then he ought to think of it. Some one ought to speak to him."

Meek Aunt Sophia picked currants in perplexed silence.

"I don't really think he ought to trifle with my poor Minerva's feelings—and she is sensitive, too," resumed the widow.

"I never did pretend to understand young folks, when love and courtship were in the business," said Aunt Sophia. "But it would be a fine thing for Minerva."

"I'd be proud to be the minister's mother-in-law," said Mrs. Elliott, exultant at the remote possibility. "And Minerva is a smart girl. You ought to hear her talk about Scripture and theology! Why, Mr. Leroy himself was astonished!"

"I should think very likely," said Aunt Sophia, dryly.

Minerva had never been her favorite niece—she had lectured Aunt Sophia too often for sleeping in church, eating fennel seed, singing out of time, and other venial sins.

"I don't know what to do about it," said Mrs. Elliott. "I wish somebody would speak to Mr. Leroy, and tell him plainly what his duty is."

"Haven't we picked most currants enough?" hazarded Aunt Sophia.

"I s'pose so," said Mrs. Elliott, sharply. "You never had the trials of a family, Sophia, and they come hard, though my girls are pretty good girls, after all. Minerva's quite a model, and Bessie's well enough, if she would sober down a little."

"Don't be everlastin'ly finding fault with Bessie," pleaded her Aunt Sophia. "She is a nice, sweet-tempered little girl, and if you want her to put on spectacles and take to the doctrine of lost souls, I don't. I like her better just as she is."

And the two elderly ladies went in, with their bowl of sparkling red currants, leaving their unseen auditor still sitting among the cherry boughs, with her bright brown curls all blown about, and the scarlet velvet of her lips deeper and ruddier than ever.

"Dear me!" thought Bessie, "here's a revelation—our Minerva in love! I didn't know women who wore spectacles ever did fall in love. And Mr. Leroy a male coquette! Well, I never should have thought that of Mr. Leroy. I really think, as mamma says, some one ougnt to speak to him. I'm a great mind to speak to him myself!" and, fired with the arder of her new plan, Bessie slid nimbly down from her perch in the cherry tree, to the great astonishment of her friends, the robins, and ran into the house.

"I won't stop to consult mother or aunty," thought eager Bessie, "for I know they'd think I ought not to speak, just because I'm only sixteen years old."

So Miss Bessie stole like a white mouse along the hall, and tapped softly at Mr. Leroy's study door.

"Come in," called out the clear, sonorous voice of the young clergyman.

Not until our Bessie was fairly in the room did she fully realize the awkwardness of her position. Then, with the roses mantling on her cheek, and her head hung down, she stood a pretty picture of maiden confusion.

"M—Miss Bessie," said Mr. Leroy, abstractedly, glancing up from his paper, and brightening visibly when he saw who it was, "I am happy to see such a little sunbeam in my gloomy old study. Sit down."

"No, sir, I can't stay," said Bessie, taking courage. "I only came to speak to you, sir, about—about being married."

"About being married!" echoed Mr. Leroy, in genuine astonishment.

"Yes, sir," went on Bessie, twisting her fingers together: "the people in the parish think you could do so much more good if you were married."

"So I might," assented the minister, musingly. "I have thought of that myself."

"Oh! then you have thought of it, sir," cried Bessie delightedly. "I am so glad."

"Bessie, I have been here a long time."

"Yes, sir; I know you have."

"Should you be sorry to have me go away?"

Bessie lifted her eyes with a rougish sparkle beneath their curling brown lashes.

"You need not go away, sir; that is, if——"

"If what, Bessie?"

"Mother said this morning she would be very proud to be the minister's mother-in-law."

Mr. Leroy looked a little surprised, but not at all displeased, as Bessie stood demurely before him with her roseate cheeks and disheveled curls, like a school-girl on her bad behavior.

"Did she really say so, Bessie?"

"I heard her say so."

"To you?"

"No, not to me, sir."

"Bessie, would you like it?"

"Oh, sir, I should be delighted!" cried Bessie, clapping her hands gleefully.

"A minister's wife has many trials to deal with, Bessie."

"Oh, yes, sir; but if she loves her husband——"

"Do you think my little wife would love her husband?"

How strange it was to think of Minerva as a "little wife!" Bessie thought love must have cast a glamour on the young minister's eyes; but she answered nevertheless.

"I am sure of it, sir. Minerva is so sensible and learned."

"Yes, I know," answered Mr. Leroy, with something of a puzzled expression in his face. "Miss Minerva is a very worthy person, indeed, and I shall be very happy to be connected, however distantly with her."

Bessie stared until her blue eyes were like newly-opened bluebells. What on earth did the minister mean?

Mr. Leroy, however, appeared to be very clear on the subject of his "intentions." He took Bessie's hand in his and drew her toward him with a caressing gentleness that the young girl felt to be very pleasant.

"But you, Bessie, my dear little wild flower, when you are my wife ——"

"I!" echoed Bessie, suddenly becoming as rosy as her own pink neck-ribbon. "I your wife, Mr. Leroy?"

"Who else?" demanded the young minister, with a puzzled countenance. "I have been in love with you for the last three months, my Bessie. Nay, do not try so tremblingly to escape from me! Surely—surely I am not so disagreeable to you as that!"

"N—no," hesitated Bessie, "it isn't that—but I thought it was Minerva."

Mr. Leroy laughed.

"I respect Miss Minerva very sincerely; but I should just as soon think of marrying my Greek dictionary."

"But I am such a silly little goose, and I am only sixteen, and mamma and Minerva are always scolding me!"

"But," mimicked Mr. Leroy, with playful fondness, "they will not scold the minister's wife! And I shall never let the winds of Heaven blow too roughly on my little flower."

"I can't believe it," said Bessie, energetically.

"But you love me, Bessie, do you not?"

"I have never thought about it before," said Bessie, meditatively twisting one of her curls around her finger; "but I think I do."

* * * * * *

"Bessie! Bessie, child!"

Half-an-hour had elapsed, and Mrs. Elliott was calling loudly for the little stray to come and set the table for dinner.

"I never saw such a child!" sighed the widow. "Always out of the way when she's want. Oh! here you are! Where on earth have you been?"

"In Mr. Leroy's study, mamma."

"What were you doing there?"

"Talking to him, mamma, about his marriage," answered Bessie mischievously.

"Is Mr. Leroy going to be married?" eagerly demanded the widow.

"Yes, mamma.'

Mrs. Elliott elevated her eyes and hands in unison.

"Bless my soul alive! Minerva, do you hear that? And to whom.'

"To me, mamma."

"Nonsense!"

"But it isn't nonsense, mamma," cried Bessie, triumphantly, showing a little gold ring with a blue stone that Mr. Leroy had placed on the forefinger of her left hand. "And we are to be married in September next! Mamma, you will be the minister's mother-in-law, after all!"

"Bessie, are you in earnest?" demanded Minerva.

"Never more so in my life!"

"Do you love him?"

Bessie sobered down in a minute, and held her face on her sister's shoulder.

"I love him dearly, Minerva!"

It was a disappointment to Minerva; but she congratulated Bessie in true sisterly style after all. If she couldn't be the minister's wife, it was next best to be his sister-in-law.

And thus it was that Bessie was (at least on her part) WON BY MISTAKE.

Rev. Mr. Smith's Sermon.

The closing sermon on the "Hereafter," was preached in the Methodist church last Sabbath by Rev. C. N. Smith, who took for his text Romans 2:6, "Who will render to every man according to his deeds." The preacher remarked in opening, that there were truths which he delighted to discourse on — while there were others not as pleasant in their reflections, and terrible in their results. It was not pleasant to press them on the hearts of his hearers, but it was the duty of the preacher to declare the whole counsel of God. He had been requested to preach these sermons, and he should not shun any part of what he believed, but should preach it in all honesty and sincerity. The words of the Apostle pointed to the day of judgment, which is inferred from the context. It clearly points to the end of the world which the Lord Jesus Christ revealed, to the judgment, and the destruction of the world.

The time has been when there has been considerable discussion on future punishment. But this is by general consent conceded even by the Universalists. The discussion has now centered on another point—is that punishment endless? On the one hand the Evangelical churches have so declared, while on the other hand it has been claimed that such punishment is only temporary, not endless, but that after the judgment there is an opportunity for repentance, so that ultimately all will be saved. This is the controversy now. Our first application in the matter is to the Scriptures,—not to human reason. We know nothing in regard to the judgment except as revealed to us. What God's justice and mercy requires we do not know except from the Bible.

In reading the Bible the preacher would have the same common sense meaning given to it as to any other book. All words have different meanings—a literal and a figurative meaning, which we have no difficulty in other books to understand from the context. So we should read the Bible. That noted scripture text, about which there is so much discussion, is in Matthew, 25th chapter: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment." It has been assumed by some that this refers to the destruction of Jerusalem, which the preacher considered impossible. He admitted that the 24th chapter had such reference, but in the 25th chapter the opening verse fixes the meaning. THEN, with great emphasis on the word THEN, shall the kingdom of heaven be likened, etc. The kingdom of heaven never referred to the Jewish dispensation but to the Gospel age. The Saviour goes on with those wonderful illustrations, of the seven virgins, of the king who journeyed to a far country, who returns again and calls his servants to account, when suddenly he closes with the thrilling utterance of the text. It is a terrible chapter. It is impossible to find any just application of this except to the closing of the world.

There is also an objection raised to the word everlasting—that it may not mean endless, that it applies sometimes to temporary, limited things. The preacher admitted that the word everlasting had a figurative meaning. But the Greek word aion meant living ever. Why suppose it was figurative? Its meaning was fixed. There was no controversy with regard to the word eternal. It means endless. Both words were from the same root. In the new translation both are given eternal. If it means endless with the righteous, it has the same meaning with regard to the wicked. There is no escape from the conclusion.

The objection is also made that this life of sin here is so brief; are we to be punished forever for so brief a life? The preacher asked if punishment for crime, even in this life, corresponded with the time it took to commit it. A man may in a moment commit a crime for which he may spend his whole life within prison walls. For a single act he may swing on the gallows. Where is there a crime like that committed against God,—refusing his commands to love and serve him? He asks our love and we give ourselves over to sin. Where is there a greater crime? Other crimes we commit against our neighbor—this against God.

The conception of some men in their idea of heaven is that of a place where there is freedom from punishment. Heaven may be splendid in its adornments, but it is not that which makes the heart of the christian happy. It is Christ — not the place — that makes heaven. In order to enjoy this bliss we must have a mind and heart in harmony with it. Otherwise we would not enjoy it if placed there. The Saviour struck the philosophy of our nature in the words to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." There must be an incoming of God into the soul, before we can come into harmony with heaven. The conceptions of men with reference to heaven depend in character upon what we are. The Indian conception of heaven is that of a vast hunting ground, where there will be a continual chase. The idea of the gambler is of a heaven where gambling is constantly going on. The heaven of the man of pleasure is not where there is not a theatre or a ball room. Here are different conceptions. In order to be happy we must be in harmony with the surroundings. The heaven of the christian is where Jesus is, where there will be constant communion with God. He cares nothing for these other things. There must be a change of heart to be in sympathy with these things.

Heaven is not in the surroundings, but its conditions are within us. So in regard to hell, it is the conditions and not the place. Hell is not a place of torment coming from without. It is the conditions in our soul. The man confined within prison suffers no punishment from the walls within which he is confined. The place harmonizes with the character. We are driven away into darkness. It is an eternal separation from God. Memory is complete, everything in our life presses before us, conscience is awakened—that is hell enough. There is a man in Concord who is insane because he deserted from the Army. An attempt has been made to obtain from the President his regular dismissal from the army, in the hopes that it may avail to restore him. When the soul is opened and we see ourselves—resisting all God's offers of mercy, it is enough to crush the soul. God has sought to save us from this. He has given us His greatest gift in Christ.

What are we going to do with the lake of fire? There is nothing in the Scriptures that lead us to suppose that this is to be taken literally. We do not know what heaven is until we get there. We can only paint it figuratively. So with reference to hell. It is only figuratively that it is painted. But the figure is terrible. God save us all from knowing the reality.

The question is asked how it is that the moral man equally with the murderer—all are sent to the world of woe. Every man is judged according to the deeds done in the body. Conscience will be awakened in proportion to the crimes committed. We shall be punished according to the deeds done in the body—not from without but from within. The last one that can be saved will be. The preacher closed with an exhortation to all to accept God and keep close to him.

We cannot too strongly urge upon our readers the necessity of subscribing for a family, weekly newspaper of the first class—such, for instance, as The Independent, of New York. Were we obliged to select one publication for habitual and careful reading to the exclusion of all others, we should choose unhesitatingly The Independent. It is a newspaper, magazine, and review, all in one. It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial, and a political paper combined. It has 32 folio pages and 22 departments. No matter what a person's religion, politics or profession may be, no matter what the age, sex, employment or condition may be, The Independent will prove a help, an instructor, an educator. Our readers can do no less than to send a postal for a free specimen copy, or for thirty cents the paper will be sent a month, enabling one to judge of its merits more critically, Its yearly subscription is $3.00, or two years for $5.00. Address, The Independent, 251 Broadway, New York City.

We have received the November number of the Young Ladies' Journal from the International News Co., of New York. It is a charming number and is full of all the latest styles in dress, cloak and suit patterns. If you are in doubt about the style for your fall dress, or if you want something your neighbor has not got, you will get an idea by consulting the pages of the Young Ladies' Journal. Besides all this you will find designs in embroidery and fancy work, besides good reading matter, more than enough to re-pay you the price. Get it at Mrs. Gilson's.

PHYSICIANS WERE IN VAIN.—Mr. David Netter, 795 Mission street, San Francisco, Cal., writes that for several months he suffered from a severe cold and cough, which finally resulted in total hoarseness. He consulted several physicians, but obtained no relief, and then tried Red Star Cough Cure. After taking a few doses he felt better, and before he had finished a bottle he was completely cured.

Law and justice are two entirely different things, remarked a gentleman in our presence the other day. If you want to know what I mean look at the convictions in the Superior Court at Lawrence last week. This sat me to thinking, and as a result I have taken the trouble to look up the people who were convicted from this town for selling liquor. Patrick McCloskey—five months in the house of correction. Mr. McCloskey is a man given to the use of liquor, and who at one time had a license. He has no means of support and is unable to do any labor on account of rheumatism, which has drawn his fingers all out of shape on one hand and on the other a finger was drawn over into the center of his hand, so that a short time ago he had it cut off. He had no visible means of support.

Jas. Blanchard, three months in the house of correction. He is a man who until a few years ago was an industrious carpenter and at one time a member of our police force. A few years ago he had a shock and was removed to the Alms House. Since then he has been able to do only light work and for a while was a cook at that institution. But associating himself with another he started an eating room on Foster street, and while his partner was drunk the officers secured a small bottle of liquor, and it did not appear in the court to which it belonged. His partner died and he stands the penalty alone. The man is broken from sickness and dissipation, and should have been returned to the institution which has afforded him a home.

Mary Dixon—three months in the house of correction. Her case is even more sad than the others. She is a poor widow woman with three small children depending on her for support. She was convicted in the lower court a few months ago of keeping liquor with the intent to sell. Since that time she has given up the business and been out washing every day to keep herself and children from starving or going to the poorhouse. It was no doubt a great temptation to her to sell liquor, but she has tried to live an honest life since she was arrested, and what agonies she must suffer to be torn from her children who will have to depend on charity or go to the alms house during their mother's imprisonment.

So much for that picture. Here is another. Edward Draper, living on Hancock street, was also convicted in the lower court of the same offence as those above. He is an able bodied man, and has been working for years for Mr. William H. Brown, a glue manufacturer and our representative in the Legislature. He has accumulated property and is a man of considerable influence and one that can secure influence for himself, and he, too, appealed to this court, but he was not convicted and his case was put on file. Now in the name of honesty and fair dealing why was that?

won by Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled in the history of medicines. Such is its popularity in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time. This success is extending all over the country.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 Doses One Dollar," which is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy. Other preparations will average to last not over a week, while a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month. Hence, for economy as well as for health and strength, buy Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for a book containing statements of many remarkable cures.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six for $5.

THE CAUCUSES.

The Democrats held their caucus at Town Hall last Wednesday evening and S. S. Littlefield was chairman and John J. Cahill secretary. John J. Bartlett moved the nomination of Wm. H. Brown, but before the question was put Mr. Bartlett wanted Mr. Brown to explain his position on the labor questions. Mr. Brown then walked to the platform and said: I understand there has been considerable talk about my not voting on the weekly payment bill. My only explanation is that nearly every Republican in the house spoke against it, and I thought it would be overwhelmingly defeated. When the bill came up I had an engagement to escort two ladies to the opening of the Soldiers' Home Fair. I left the house at five minutes past four and did not think a vote on the bill would have been reached so quickly. The vote was so close that public attention was drawn to how each one voted. But if I am returned I will rectify the mistake, and will vote as you want me to, if that will meet your approbation. Mr. Brown was here questioned by a gentleman in regard to whether a large furniture manufacturer told him that if he voted for the bill he would buy no more glue of him. Mr. Brown denied it. Mr. Brown then took a conspicuous seat on the platform. T. H. McGrath moved as an amendment that the meeting proceed to an informal ballot, and it was carried. At this point the opponents of Mr. Brown produced some printed ballots in favor of Eugene T. McCarthy. John Linehan then spoke in favor of Brown for a second term. He was followed by Thomas F. Lyons who said that only one side was prepared with ballots, and he thought it unjust, and that all might have a fair show he moved to adjourn till Thursday evening, which was carried 73 to 46.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Thursday evening brought out a full house and business was taken up where it left off the evening before, and Jas. Rodie, Thomas F. Lyons, John J. Bartlett and Thomas Clothey were appointed tellers. R. H. Brown was not aware there was any division in the party or opposition to Mr. Brown. He could not conceive why there should be any opposition to the re-election of Mr. Brown, as he was a good sturdy democrat and faithful worker in the party. He had learned he didn't vote for the weekly payment bill. He could hardly see how any democrat could oppose him as he had explained the matter satisfactorily. He was very efficient in aiding the committee against the division of the town and thought the party would make a mistake in not nominating him. Mr. McCarthy was a young man and could afford to wait, and in the near future he hoped to see him nominated and elected, but this year he was in doubt if they could elect him. A vote was then taken resulting as follows:—Whole number, 152; Eugene T. McCarthy 73; William H. Brown 79. Mr. R. H. Brown then moved that W. H. Brown be declared the nominee of the caucus, and it was moved to amend, by W. J. McCarthy, that they proceed to a formal ballot. This was lost 56 to 68. On Mr. Brown's motion the vote stood 59 yes to 47 no, and Mr. Brown was declared the nominee without even an attempt at applause. Mr. T. F. Lyons made a few remarks in which he said they had compelled Mr. Brown to come forward and put himself on record on the labor question, and that the only legislation in the state in the interest of labor had been accomplished by the democrats. He moved to make the nomination unanimous. He was followed by John Linehan who asked for harmony in the party and a vote was taken and was declared unanimous although only a few voted.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republican Representative caucus was held at Town Hall last Friday evening. Edward W. Abbott called the meeting to order and Hon. B. C. Perkins was elected chairman and Frank C. Merrill secretary. Franklin Osborne moved the nomination of Col. Cyrus T. Batchelder as representative in a brief speech in which he spoke of his sterling qualities as a man and a Republican. The nomination was seconded and carried without a dissenting vote. A rallying committee, to consist of the town committee and such assistants as they might appoint, was elected. The whole time in which the meeting was in session was not over five minutes.

GREENBACK CAUCUS.

The National Greenback Labor party held a caucus at Ashland hall last Saturday evening. R. Kimball was chairman, and E. E. Boswell, Secretary. Mr. Martin Quinlan was nominated for Representative.

YOU CAN HAVE IT—"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly envying the girls. The Balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

This is the last week of Judic at the Boston Theatre. She will appear in a round of her celebrated impersonations, which have been greeted with enthusiasm. The French star is a remarkable actress. She has been cordially greeted by the most cultured audiences of Boston and vicinity. Several of our people have attended and more will go the present week. Friday evening Mme. Judic will have a benefit.

Mr. Posket's term of office as magistrate will expire next Saturday evening. The last representation at the Boston Museum is to be given on that occasion. One must regret that "The Magistrate" so soon retires. But there is no help for it. People who wish to see the comedy, played so admirably by Mr. Field's company, should take care to secure their seats days in advance. The play has been crowding the house at matinees as well as every evening. It deserves all its success. William Redmund and Mrs. Thomas Barry are to appear next week in the Midnight Marriage, to be followed by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence, their first appearance at the Boston Museum. Meantime the stock company of the Museum will support Edwin Booth elsewhere.

Evans and Hoey bring, once again, the successful, the irresistibly funny "Parlor Match" to Boston. Old Hoss and L. McCorker, those indescribably odd creations, are to be seen at the Park. Miss Minnie French now plays that angel child, "Innocent Kid," while Dan Hart is to portray Kidd senior, and Frank Campbell the redoubtable Bellomont. Nellie Page, Emelie Edwards, Louise Carpenter, Harry Nelson and Otis Shattuck are included in the company. "A Parlor Match" is enlivened by much pretty music.

McNish, Johnson & Slavin continue their successful minstrel campaign, and are everywhere received with universal favor. The organization is the best in the country, and in a short time our amusement patrons will have a series of refined minstrel entertainments at the Boston Theatre, surpassing any given here for a generation.

Edwin Booth's engagement at the Boston Museum, opening at Christmastide, will continue five weeks. These performances will afford the only opportunities for seeing the tragedian in Boston the present season.

Roland Reed, who has been more than usually successful this season, comes to the Park on Monday, November 9, and will appear in "Humbug." Since last season this play has undergone many changes. Mr. Reed, who was the original American Ko-Ko in the "Mikado," has prepared a very bright melange of the airs of that opera which he calls his "Pocket Edition," which he introduces into "Humbug."

The Hollis Street Theatre radidly approaches completion. Its facade is already pretty familiar to the public, many of whom have strolled around through Hollis street for a look at it. The theatre will have a seating capacity for 1650, being the fourth in size in the city. There will be 750 seats on the floor, which is cut by four wedge-shaped aisles, an arrangement that will facilitate egress. There are two galleries. The decorations are very rich, crimson and gold being the prevailing colors. The dome shows arabesques on a gold ground, forming a frame to eight groups of cupids. Jewels of varied colors set in the walls below the cornice aid in producing brilliancy. The effect of the whole is heightened by the use of ivory and gold on the gallery fronts, the designs for which are made up of cupids, flowers and fruits. There are six private boxes, three on each side of the proscenium arch. In every part of the house, behind as well as in front of the footlights, the utmost care has been used as regards safety and comfort, as well as good looks. The architect, John R. Hall, and the owner, R. B. Brigham, deserve to be congratulated on their judgment and success. Isaac B. Rich is to be the manager, and the theatre will open next week with the Mikado.

Miss Dora Wiley and Robert Golden, after a successful tour in Europe, will appear in Mechanic Hall, Salem, Saturday evening, in "Chestnuts," which is said to be the funniest of musical comedies.

To-morrow evening Andrews, Moulton & Johnson will present M'lle Aimee and her company in the three act Comedy of Mam'zelle. This will be given in English, and some curiosity will be manifested to see Aimee in English. There ought not to be a vacant seat in Mechanic Hall, and we don't believe there will. Seats are on sale at Luscomb's Drug Store, under Mechanic Hall.

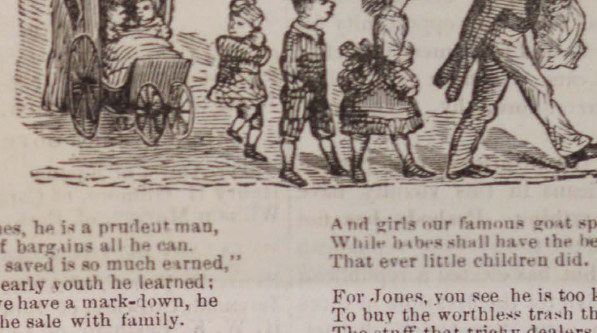
A HIT! A HIT!



Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

They have made A Hit! A Palpable Hit! and their extraordinary merits have been appreciated by hundreds of customers, who have nothing but praise for their many excellent points. Equal in all the qualities that catch the eye to any $3 boot in the market. They are Models of Grace and Beauty, and are irresistibly forcing to the rear the inferior styles of our would-be competitors.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to compete with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims

THE RESULT of the election yesterday in Massachusetts is on the whole very gratifying to the republicans, and is particularly so to the republicans of this district and in this vicinity.

It was a year when there was a light vote. Light votes in the state of Massachusetts usually mean loss to the Republicans. And with the known small registration, in Essex County, there was all the better opportunity for the democrats and labor men to defeat the republicans who have gained their election, heretofore, by very small majorities.

But, to the surprise of both parties, the republicans in this vicinity have carried everything. Peabody has not only carried the town for the republican candidate, but has elected a republican representative for the first time in three years. In our Senatorial district, which has been considered close for many years, even to the time when our Salem cotemporary, Mr. Horton, was elected,—in this close district, Gen. Cogswell has been elected by a very handsome majority, and this, too, without running very materially ahead of his ticket. The city of Salem has given large majorities for the entire list of candidates on the republican ticket.

Despite the small vote, the republicans evidently were the ones who did not stay away from the polls. Yet this does not entirely explain it. Many of the Butler men are coming back to the republican party. There was a kinder feeling between the labor men and the republicans yesterday than before—and many of them seemed disposed to discard the objectionable nominations of the democrats.

It is a significant fact, and one that should carry its own lesson to the republican party, that in many large cities and towns where the labor element is strong, the republican ticket has been successful this year. Lowell has gone republican; Lynn and Salem have followed; Fall River and Brockton give a handsome majorities; Haverhill, Peabody and Danvers have also been placed in the republican ranks. If this means anything it means that the advanced position taken by the party at Springfield on the labor question has not been without its results. It shows that the labor party have believed that the republican party would fulfill its promises made at Springfield. There the party took a liberal and manly position; the fruit, thereof, is already seen at yesterday's election, and it will continue to be seen, if the party carry out the principles there enunciated.

The position of our representative on the labor question is very pronounced. He is a staunch republican; believes that the party has done much for the laboring man in the past, and will continue to further advance his interests. He is in favor of the weekly payment of wages by corporations, of the establishment of a board of arbitration—in short of the entire labor plank of the Springfield platform. That he will serve the town well no one doubts.

The election of Gen. Cogswell is also especially gratifying—the more so on account of the surprising majority. The most that his friends dared to hope was his election by a very close vote. But such a triumphant endorsement leaves nothing more to be desired.

Essex County has done nobly. The entire list of county officers is elected, easily and handsomely, and in a year when the opposition usually casts a large vote.

THE ELECTION.

LARGE MAJORITIES GIVEN THE REPUBLICAN TICKET IN THIS TOWN. MOST OF THE DEMOCRATS IN THE COUNTY SNOWED UNDER. WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY AND GAINED A COMPLETE VICTORY.

There was no excuse, on account of the weather, for any absence from the polls yesterday. No more beautiful day for the election could have been desired. It was a quiet day. The interest mostly turned on the representative election. Friends of both Brown and Batchelder were early in the field, and considerable solid work was put in on both sides. There were in the field the regular republican, democratic and labor tickets, besides a republican ticket with the name of Collins substituted for Gen. Cogswell, and a democratic ticket with Gen. Cogswell substituted for Collins. Stickers were abundant, quite a number of republicans voting for Cross for treasurer instead of Beard. Very soon after the polls were closed the announcement of the vote for representative, was made. The friends of Mr. Brown were in the hall in goodly numbers, but their enthusiasm cooled rapidly as the vote was declared. It was decided y chilly. Friends began to gather at Col. Batchelder's office and he was the recipient of many hearty congratulations. Early in the evening as the returns in the vicinity seemed surprisingly favorable, the republicans adjourned to Temperance Hall, to talk over the news. Capt. W. F. Wiley introduced Col. Batchelder amid wild enthusiasm, who in a few words thanked the citizens for his election—considering the success more gratifying on account of the success of the party than for any personal gratification it afforded him. Informal remarks were made by Henry Wardwell, J. Fred Ingraham and others, when a collation of hot coffee, crackers and cheese was served. A number of the labor party was present on the invitation of the republican committee. The following is the vote of the town:

NOTES.

Was it a surprise?

It was a light vote anyway!

The crop of mugwumps was small!

To the man who bet on the election: Can we do as good work next spring?

There was no prohibition ticket in the field.

There was no drunkenness in town yesterday.

The country has been saved by the Republicans.

County treasurer was left off the Greenback ticket.

The straight greenback vote was cast for Batchelder this year.

It was a “prolonged push” for Batchelder that did it.

The Democrats say it is funny enough but not very laughable.

The defeated candidate now looks at his emaciated pocket book.

It was the most quiet place in town around the polls yesterday.

Good solid work was done for Dean Peabody for Clerk of Courts.

The Vote on the Constitutional Amendment is as follows:

Yes, 218. No. 275.

The Greenback ballot was the only one that had all K. of L. men upon it.

Don't forget that there always comes a time when the tidal wave flows back.

D. N. Crowley, Esq., got badly left as candidate for representative yesterday.

It needs a campaign with Butler's Tewksbury picture book, to make things lively.

The vote in this representative district was not as close as some imagined it would be.

The Republicans paid all their campaign bills before twelve o'clock last night.

Benjamin Osborne, 87 years of age, voted the straight Republican ticket yesterday.

A barge was sent to West Peabody at noon time for democratic voters, but returned empty.

The new law prevented much imposition on voters yesterday and few split tickets was the result.

Brown tried three times before he was elected and Batchelder was elected the third time he run.

A number of local democrats were pursuing a vigorous “ still hunt” last Sunday. That was wicked.

Cross stickers were used freely over the name of the candidate who gave the “ prolonged push.”

There were too many politicians and not enough statesmen on the democratic ticket in this county.

It is many years since Peabody went through a campaign without a single public meeting by either party.

At the close of Registration Wednesday night there were 1420 names on the voting list against 1715 last year.

“What, is it for license,” asked a voter yesterday, as a yes ballot on the constitutional amendment was offered him.

All the liquor shops in this town were closed on election day according to law. They were not notified by the police.

Ex-Representative Brown has the consolation of knowing there are several other yearlings besides himself.

Thomas F. Lyons' name took the full strength of the straight democratic vote. He certified to every ballot.

The Republican town committee did excellent work at the polls, and teams were kept moving pretty lively all day.

Candidate Geo. A. Collins for Senator visited the town hall yesterday, and encouraged the boys with his presence.

Many democrats would not show their tickets to the leaders yesterday, and it is presumed they had stickers on them.

“Now on the street you'll see
With ardor much abated
The luckless man who hoped to be,
But was not nominated.”

No bogus Democratic tickets were circulated. The promulgator of such a one would have subjected himself to arrest for forgery.

Mr. D. P. Grosvenor was elected a member of the district committee at the Democratic Senatorial Convention last Wednesday night.

Mr. George F. Barnes who received the Greenback nomination for Register of Deeds was not elected, yet he stood up and was counted.

The crow of the other bird sounds strange this morning, doesn't it? It was a little hoarse from long disuse of its vocal organs.

The Greenbackers in this town voted for George A. Collins for Senator, and in Salem and Marblehead they voted for Gen. Wm. Cogswell.

County Commissioner Bishop, of Haverhill, was in town this morning, and received the congratulations of his friends on his re-electi n.

Albert Wilkinson, Nathan Lakeman, John J. Cahill and Patrick Mahoney acted as assistant checkers yesterday. The latter threw his first vote.

The only prohibition ballot that was thrown was one by Rev. Willard Spaulding. He wrote it on the back of a democratic ballot with a pen.

“Twas Ohio struck the note
Massachusetts a later date
Both ring the chorus in their ears
Step out in '88

“ Billy” McCarthy, who supported the No on the amendment question yesterday, will celebrate the democratic victory—sometime. We will be there.

The checkers for the republicans knew after the polls were closed yesterday that they had polled 528 votes, which would elect Batchelder, who received 578.

Although the Democrats had instructions from head-quarters to do all they could for the constitutional amendment, in this town, they strongly opposed it.

About half past 9 last Saturday night the Republican town committee went into the town house and wanted to put some names on the check list. Registration closed Wednesday night.

Everyone was reminded yesterday at the polls that:

“The rich is level with the poor,
The weak is strong to-day,
And sleekest broadcloth counts no more,
Than homespun frocks of gray.”

There was considerable trouble with the constitutional amendment slips. Half the voters didn't know what it was for and refused to vote. A few lines on the ballot would have explained it.

It was amusing to watch the faces of Messrs. Preston and Relihan, as they counted the vote yesterday. They did not smile much and the Republicans knew they had carried the day long before the result was announced.

It is understood that the town clerk did not favor the constitutional amendment. That may account for there being only the “no” vote distributed in the early morning.

The W. C. T. U. furnished a good meal at fair prices, and the customers were served by pretty waiters, while George Rand and Janitor Patterson worked the dumb waiter.

Mr. J. Fred Ingraham said at Republican headquarters that he knew from pretty good authority that Candidate Brown had spent $450 in the campaign, while Colonel Batchelder hadn't spent a cent.

It was said that the Republican town committee had been working on a check list furnished by the chairman, and it was not discovered that it was an old one of a year or two back till last Saturday night.

If we don't divide the town into precincts, we would suggest that a town official take the patent hand-organ-official-registering-ballot-box on wheels and go from house to house and gather in the voters.

Shoot the light hat you wore all summer,
Change for darker heavier gear
Throw away that mushroom-colored derby,
For election time is here.

The box for the proposed amendment was placed so far from the regular ballot box that many who would have voted did not find it. They should have been placed close together.

There was one man deposited a ballot yesterday whose name was not on the check list. Henry C. Torr deposited it and the discovery that his name was left off was made just in season to prevent it from going into the box.

So perfect a day as Election day is seldom enjoyed. The mantle of frost with which the earth was covered in the early morning, slowly passed off under the clear rays of the autumn sun, which warmed the crisp air and encouraged all to come to the polls.

The Republican candidate for Councillor from this district sent over word to the town committee to engage a man to look out for his interest at the polls yesterday. But as it was not accompanied by the “dosh” not much attention was paid to it.

Among those who were very much gratified at the election of Col. Batchelder was Capt. W. F. Wiley. As soon as the vote was declared, he jumped into his team and notified Batchelder of his election, and then carried the good news to his wife and was back again to the town house in, some say, three minutes.

It looks as if the Democrats deserted Brown in the hour of his need. A man can stand defeat when the opposition are in the ascendency, but when his defeat comes from the lukewarmness of his friends it is not pleasant. Mr. Brown knows who his friends are. It was not those who advised him to run.

The following is the Senatorial vote in 2d Essex District:

	Cogswell	Collins
Salem,	1766	1280
Marblehead,	552	719
Peabody,	558	484

Lynnfield adds 26 to Cogswell's majority, making it 419.

Those who were checking the voters yesterday were badly mixed up and delayed by the condition in which the check lists were printed. Columns were transposed and there were numerous typographical errors. Horace Hart, who had registered, appeared as Herbert Hart, and other confusing things were noticed. The check list was this year given to the other office by the town clerk, because he wanted to punish the PRESS for freeing its mind on local affairs, a thing we shall continue to do without fear or favor.

The latest wrinkle for raising money at church fairs is to have an auction sale of veiled beauties. Each lady will be wrapped in a gossamer water-proof, and veiled, and will carry a lunch basket filled. They will be sold at auction to the highest bidder, and the purchaser will secure the lady's company as a partner for the evening and share in the contents of the basket.

CRIMES AND ACCIDENTS.

The Lawrence American says: A carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Amos Merrill, of Peabody, Mrs. B. P. Saunders and Miss Lizzie Saunders, was overturned in Andover, last Tuesday afternoon, owing to the horse becoming frightened, and the occupants were thrown out. Mrs. Saunders sustained a broken collar bone. Drs. Morrill and Abbott attended her. The vehicle was wrecked.

At the Superior Court held in Lawrence last Wednesday, Patrick McCloskey's appealed liquor case came up and he was sentenced to the house of correction for five months. James Blanchard and Mary Dixon charged with a similar offence, were sentenced to three months each.

Last Wednesday while Mr. C. O. Stone was driving the bay gelding Rex at the Lawrence Riding Park, the horse ran into the fence throwing the driver, but not seriously injuring him. The horse then settled into a trot and won the race, but it was not awarded to him on account of some technicality.

The case of Christopher Campbell for selling liquor, came up in the Superior Court at Lawrence last Friday and was not finished when the court adjourned till to-day.

David Holloran, who was accused of assault on and intimidation of John H. Miller employed at Upton's Glue Works was up before Justice Merrill Friday afternoon. Miller, it appeared, came from Lynn and the day he began work was approached by Holloran at noon, and threatened if he continued work. Saturday night he was assaulted by three men, one of whom he identified as Holloran. He was considered guilty of assault by the Judge, and fined $5 and costs; in the intimidation case he was bound over to the Superior Court giving bonds to the amount of $300. Henry Wardwell for the prosecution; Eugene T. McCarthy for the defence.

Martin Coolay reported to the police last Thursday that he was passing through Mill street on Wednesday evening, when he was assaulted and robbed of $4, all he had about him, by two men named Edward H. McLaughlin and James Lane. About three o'clock in the morning the officers arrested the accused and they were bound over to the Superior Court in the sum of $500 each.

Owen Tibney a few weeks ago gave his wife a whipping and then cleared out, he was arrested by Salem officers, and in the police court last Saturday morning he was fined $15 and costs.

A horse belonging to John Callahan, grocer, and hitched to a delivery wagon ran away on Tremont street last Friday, and was stopped on Andover street without damage to horse, harness or delivery wagon.

Mrs. H. A. Locke, living on Aborn street, fell down a flight of stairs last Sunday, and was badly bruised about her lower limbs and spine.

Among those who have been recently arrested at Gloucester for frequenting, houses of ill fame, was a young daughter of Bob Fields of this town. She was about 20 years of age, and was sent to the women's prison for three months. It is a little singular that about at the same time she was sentenced Patrick McCloskey of this town, with whom she lived for ten or twelve years was also sent to a reformatory for five months.

A man giving his name as Richard Carroll had an unpleasant experience while drunk last Friday night. He partially disrobed on the banks of Crowninshield pond near Endicott street, leaving his coat and vest on the side of the pond, and in the pocket was over thirty dollars. He then laid down in the gutter beside the Lowell railroad track, where he was found by a good Democrat returning home from the Republican Caucus.

Mr. Oliver W. Boynton, teamster for John Perkins, while loading stones at a ledge last week, jammed his fingers between two stones, and has since been unable to work.

During the high wind Monday a horse belonging to Bushby & Co. became frightened by the top of the covered wagon blowing off and attempted to run away, but was stopped before serious damage was done.

A man named Paul Menard, employed in clearing up J. B. Thomas' swamp at South Peabody, yesterday, cut the instep of his left foot with an ax. Dr. Frost attended him.

The Selectmen have given John H. Tibbetts a common victualers license.

Mrs. Richards, president of the Womens' Christian Prohibitory League, was in town to-day, the guest of Mrs. M. O. Stevens.

William Mitchell was arraigned in the Salem District Court Monday, and fined $100 and costs for keeping liquor with intent to sell, and $50 and costs for maintaining a liquor nuisance.

Nugent Bros., can save the people of Peabody many dollars in boots, shoes and other matters of understanding. *

In another column will be found the course of free lectures. They will commend themselves to our readers as being a good one, as many familiar names are on the list. This year they will be given in the Peabody Institute instead of the town hall.

It is your home paper that prints your home news; that says a word of sympathy when you are sorrowful; that advertises your town; that builds up your town and county and that helps you in a thousand ways.

Mr. H. F. Lawrence was engaged last week in putting a new woolen carpet on the floor of the Chestnut street Congregational Church at Lynn. The pews were all removed, the carpet put down and the pews replaced.

Mr. Henry C. Hills left town yesterday, in company with others for a trip to California, where he proposes to remain permanently. His friends in Allen's Block presented him before his departure, with a dressing case and traveling bag, and his friends at the post office gave him a revolver.

Past Grand William F. Sawyer was presented last evening by members of Holten Lodge I. O. O. F., with a beautiful musical instrument. The presentation speech was neatly made by Past Grand S. S. Littlefield. Bro. Sawyer was greatly surprised, but feelingly accepted the gift.

Next Tuesday evening West Lynn Lodge, No. 64, I. O. O. F., will visit Holten Lodge of this town. An entertainment will be given and a supper enjoyed at town hall. There will be about 75 of the visiting brothers and every member of Holten Lodge is invited to be present.

A first class minstrel company is being formed in this town and will take the road about the 18th of November. Among the artists engaged, Delmore & Wilson, Geo. Coes, Morton & Coleman, Wade & Gray, Hubbard & Hubon, Prince C. Perl, Carl Putnam, Billy Earle, Valley City Quartette, E. Welch, Orchestra of six pieces. Mr. Geo. A. Logan is proprietor.

The school committee held a meeting Monday evening and voted to allow the primary schools to hold a single session on stormy days, also to substitute the High School Music Reader for the one in use, and also voted to ask the selectmen to appoint the different janitors special constables. They call the attention of parents to the law in relation to vaccination.

Dear Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to be able to endorse the Ivers & Pond piano on sale at your rooms. In resonance, volubility, firmness, and purity of tone it will compare favorably with any piano made in the country. I heartily recommend it to the public and my friends who are intending to purchase.

Truly yours,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The board of overseers of the poor received blanks from the state board, some five or six weeks ago, on which they were required to furnish the information given below in accordance with section 36, chapter 84 of the public statutes, viz:

In the year 1885 and every tenth year thereafter, the returns of the overseers of the poor shall contain correct answers to the following inquiries:

Our board having attended to the matter, we are enabled to give the questions and answers as prepared by them. How many acres of land attached to the Alms House, and the estimated value of the establishment? Ans., 200 acres of land; Real Estate, $18,300; Personal Estate, $6,000. How many persons have been fully supported at the Alms House during the year ending Sept. 20, 1885, and how many at present time? Ans., 46, present time 36. How many insane persons supported in state lunatic hospitals? Ans., 13, and state primary school 1. Total supported 60. How many persons have been relieved or partially supported during the year ending Sept. 30, 1885? Ans., 362. Number receiving aid Sept. 30, 1885. Ans., 123. How many state paupers were sent to the State Alms House within the year? Ans., 5 foreigners; total 6.

How many paupers of all classes supported or relieved within the last year? Ans., 422. How many are foreign born? Ans., 128. Native of England, 1; Native of Ireland, 127. What is the number of insane? Ans., 18. What number are idiots? Ans., 2. What number are made dependent by insanity or idiocy? Ans., 20. What number supported by the town became dependent by intemperance? Ans., 178. What number by intemperance in themselves? Ans., 58. What number by the intemperance of their natural supporters? Ans., 120. What is the total net cost of support and relief of the poor in your town during the year including interest? Ans., interest, $972; total, $4416.80. What is the estimated value of the labor of the poor at the Alms House? Ans., (28 are unable to perform labor) $1100.

Many of our older readers will remember Mrs. Sarah Woodward who lived in this town some fifteen years ago and removed to White Creek, N. Y. The local paper there tells the story of how she was married twice in two days as follows: "Recently, Samuel Parker, of Shaftsbury Hollow, Vt., called at the residence of Rev. Alfred Eaton, of White Creek, and asked him to go to his house and marry Mrs. Woodward and himself. The request was granted. The bridegroom was to call next day. In the meantime, it was learned that the wedding ceremony was performed just over the line, in Vermont state, and was, therefore, not according to statute. The couple called next day, and, learning of their predicament, would not wait fifteen minutes for the clergyman to return from a neighbor's, but went to the office of Esquire Niles and had the ceremony repeated in New York state. It is said both the contracting parties are over sixty years old. The Rev. Mr. Eaton thinks he is entitled to half the fee, as he gave the man his supper and drove four miles to perform the ceremony, besides making a prayer, while Niles only read the ceremony.

Just now as there are so many publishers in this vicinity that are trying to increase their circulation by giving their paper away, sending it through the mail, it would be well for the public to know that a person who takes a paper from the mails, whether he subscribes or not, can be sued for the amount of the subscription. A Main street man seemed to realize this fact and made quite a scene at the post office recently, while ordering the officials not to put a certain local paper in his box again.

The young people of the Methodist society called on Mr. and Mrs. David P. Proctor, living on the extension of Pierpont street, last Thursday evening, and gave them a surprise, and during the evening presented them with a beautiful silver water pitcher and salver, the presentation speech being made by Mrs. Isaac Knowlton, organist at the church. Everything was done by the host and hostess to make the occasion a pleasant one and the evening was spent in a social manner.

The Baptist Parsonage Fair, for which the Baptist ladies have been at work all summer embroidering, chrocheting and sewing, will be held at the Baptist Vestry, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon and evening, November 10 and 11. On Tuesday evening there will be a Barbecue Supper and on Wednesday an entertainment, consisting of readings and banjo and violin solos by the Misses Messer. The usual articles will be affered for sale.

The Fair to be holden to-day, to-morrow and Friday by the Salem Oratorio Society should receive a liberal patronage. Among the attractions for the children will be a Punch and Judy show in the afternoon and the Fair will close with a social party Friday evening. The sale will be closed and the tables removed at 3 P. M. on that day. Season tickets will be 50 cents; single admision 20 cents; children 10 cents.

There is a small gourd raised in the flower garden which much resembles an egg. At a boarding house on Central street the other day, a couple of these eggs were dropped in hot water and placed beside a boarder's plate. One was taken up very innocently and as the amazed boarder tried to open it, an audible smile was heard from the rest of the boarders. The victim paid for the cigars.

Mr. Abraham C. Osborne has again put us under obligation to him for a generous supply of golden Pocklinton grapes. This fine grape is being cultivated very extensively by our gardeners, and this year Mr. Osborne raised about a bushel on one vine, and they have been offered for sale at George Stevens' store. This is the first time the grape has ever been offered in the local market.

Mr. Arthur H. Brown, employed at Brown & Stanley's currying shop, will leave for Florida, where he has an orange grove, to-morrow. Last Saturday, Henry Griffin, in behalf of his shopmates, presented him with an elegant gold watch chain and charm. It was a complete surprise to Arthur and he thanked them heartily for their good wishes for his success.

A brother of William Murphy, of this town, living at Naseawa, N. Y., while at work in a piano factory, recently, met with a painful accident. While he was running a stick of wood through a planer, the stick flew back striking and entering the fleshy part of his thigh, causing a wound five inches long and two inches deep.

Mr. Willard Winslow, formerly of this town, who has been in the employ of Spitz Brothers & Mork, of Boston, of late, has left their employ and will go on the road selling safes for an old established firm. His fellow employes, learning of his intention, gave him a first class banquet and reception one evening last week.

Rev. Dr. Thayer, Presiding Elder of this district of the Methodist Conference, preached at the Washington street Methodist church last Sunday evening in the Vestry, giving an interesting talk on the book of Ruth. The Quarterly Conference of the church was held immediately after the service.

Michael Burns, a butcher, was thrown from his wagon on Walnut street last Saturday. His horse became frightened by some boys and attempted to run away but Burns held on pluckily until the horse was stopped. He was dragged some distance and severely scratched about the face and hands.

Our benevolent people will remember Rev. John Parker, the colored man, who solicited aid about a year ago for a school among the negroes in Maryland. He raised about $600, and thinking that "charity begins at home" appropriated it to his own use.

A high school girl explained to her particular friend yesterday that "He kicked the bucket" was slang, and that the polite expression was, "He propelled his pedal extremities with violence against a familiar utensil used for the transportation of water and other fluids."

Last Wednesday night a travelling artist stood up his cheese box in front of the railroad station and offered for sale a tool for cutting glass and numerous other things. He claimed to be a physician and would vaccinate all who would bare their arm for the purpose. Several were treated.

Sunday gunning has got to be an expensive sport since our law makers have said that the fine for such an offence shall not be less than $50; $25 of which will be given for information leading to conviction of each person guilty of the offence.

One day recently a tramp called at a house on Central street and not gaining admission attempted to steal a chair from the piazza. The lady of the house raised a window and gave the alarm, and he dropped his plunder and escaped.

The shipments of leather from Peabody and Salem for the week ending Oct. 31 were 6080 rolls, 1032 sides, 189 bundles, 108 bags, 30 barrels of leather, 29 bales, 23 rolls, 20 bundles and 2 barrels of skins.

SOUTH PEABODY.

The very interesting exercises of the sixth annual meeting of the Do What We Can Mission Circle were listened to in the church, on Sunday evening, by a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. John Brown presided at the organ, and the missionary hymns never sounded sweeter and more inspiring. Mr. A. W. Tyler, detained from his intended departure for New York, was present and led in a very appropriate opening prayer. Through the full, clear tones of the youthful secretary of the Mission Circle, the audience enjoyed a report of the very excellent work accomplished through the year under the efficient leadership of the president, Miss Fanny Brown. A poem—"The Legend of the Cathedral Window," in illustration of the grand results of humble faithful service, was impressively recited by the treasurer of the Mission Circle. The greetings of the Essex South Branch were extended by one of its secretaries, who also introduced Miss M. E. Price, from Lindley Zulu Mission, South Africa. Miss Price told in a very interesting manner of her eight years' service in the Girls School at Lindley. She traced the work in that mission from the time—fifty years ago—when the missionaries found this people devoid of a single written character, and the first editions of whose books these missionary teachers wrote for them, literally, in "Afric's golden sand."

This school at Lindley has the honor of having received as its principal the first missionary sent out by the Woman's Board of Missions, Mrs. Edwards, of Ohio. The appreciation of this school was shown by the native Zulu brethren in the graphic words of one of their number: "It makes my heart white to see such a school." The harshness of the English, which is the language of the school, is unfavorably criticised by the girls in contrast to the soft, musical sounds of their own native Zulu. They persist in retaining their own idiom even with English words, and they often approach their teachers for assistance with the pathetic question: "Please tell me if I shall do how?" And when reproved for the free use of their vigorous lungs, they offer the idiomatic apology: "We was think we talk little; our will is big, it is not little like yours." But who of us is not willing to forgive this "breaking" of our own revered mother tongue, when we learn that these dear girls planned among themselves to eat samp which necessitated the labor of daily crushing, instead of their own favorite rice, and then sent the money thus saved to the Woman's Board in Boston. Miss Price was listened to with close attention throughout, and all felt that it was a privilege to look into the face of one of the divinely commissioned ones in the work of the world's evangelization. The pastor, Rev. John W. Colwell, presided in his usual happy manner, announcing as the closing hymn, "The morning light is breaking."

Mr. I. H. Beede has charge of the building of the new ice houses of Stephen Blaney, at Crowninshield's pond.

The new house on Lynn street of Mr. Johnson, of Lynn, is nearly finished on the outside.

Mr. A. W. Tyler started for Philadelphia last Monday morning, where he is stationed this winter.

Mrs. Martha A. Basford, widow of the late P. R. Basford, well known in this town by the older residents, died last Friday of Bright's disease of the Kidneys, after an illness of several weeks, at her late residence in South Peabody. She was a daughter of the late Samuel Simonds. Mrs. Basford was loved and respected by all that knew her. The funeral took place last Monday, a large circle of relatives being present. The remains were placed in the family lot in Cedar Grove Cemetery. Her age was sixty years.

During the heavy wind last Monday, part of the large willow tree at the end of Mrs. Robert Murray's house on Lynn street was blown down across the railroad track, but no serious damage was done except the breaking of a few fences.

Mrs. J. W. Colwell was presented with the beautiful album quilt at the fair at the Rockville church last Wednesday. $40 had been realized on it for the society.

The conductors and drivers of the Lynn & Boston Horse Railroad Company have during the past week, held private meetings to consider the matter of organizing a labor assembly of the Knights of Labor. They are now receiving $1.75 per day and will soon make a formal demand for $2.00. Tho road is paying the same as other roads in this vicinity.

Conductor Williams of the Lynn road, while coming through So. Peabody last Monday noon, saw a musk rat in the road ahead of the car, and taking his switch stick started for the rat. The animal finding he was pursued, turned on Williams and showed fight, but was quickly dispatched, and given a free ride on the car to the square.

OUR GREAT SILK SALE

Is being well attended

Never before in the History of this Country were Silk Goods, Velvets, etc., offered at such low prices.

It will pay any one to travel a long distance to secure a Dress pattern of us this week. The Haskell Silks are warranted to wear well.

The abundant light in every part of it inspires a feeling of welcome at once, besides affording customers an opportunity to see what they are buying, such as no other store in Salem can begin to do. That our sales since we have got ready for business are double our most sanguine expectations, show that the people appreciate our efforts. This gratifying opening is but a beginning; we propose to make ours the most popular Dry Goods House east of Boston. "Popular Goods at Popular Prices" is our motto, All are welcome; come and see us.

We are Determined to Lead not Follow.

NEW STORES AND NEW GOODS.

BONNETS AND HATS.

We invite attention to the lines of Trimmed Bonnets and Hats, imported and of our own manufacture, under the supervision of Miss E. T. Oliver, who has heretofore catered to the tastes of our customers so successfully, which will be found specially well worth looking at.

EMBROIDERIES.

ART EMBROIDERIES.—In our new stores, on second floor, we have that of which we, for long, have felt the need—Greatly increased space. Not alone will our stock far surpass any ever shown in this city, but quotations will be even lower. Reality will exceed the expectations hereby raised.

OUR COUNTERS.

All the choicest manufactures of Paris, Vienna, London, and other European centres will be represented on our counters, while every novelty of Domestic origin is assigned its fitting place. To catalogue the entire array, would be simply impossible, but the quotations subjoined will convey some faint idea of the remarkably low prices at which goods are marked throughout our entire establishment.

SILKS AND VELVETS.

One of the most desirable offerings will be 50 pieces fine Gros Grain Silk, full width and all desirable shades, at 75c per yard—the identical quality that cost last season $1.02 1-2 to import. Also a lot of Evening Shades, 24 inches wide, $1.15; worth $1.50. 30 pcs. Colored Velvets, in all desirable shades, at 79 cents per yd.; quality usually sold at $1.25.

In American Black Silks we have made prices fully 25 per cent. less than the goods were ever before offered.

DRESS GOODS

In Wool Dress Goods, owing to delay in completion of our store, several superb lots will be offered at prices which will surely move them without delay.

FANCY FLANNELS

We offer an immense combination lot of Fancy Flannels, especially adapted for breakfast wrappers and sacques. There is not a piece in the lot worth less than 50c. We mark them all at the uniform price of twenty-five cents per yd.

GINGHAMS, ETC.

In our Basement we offer 500 pcs. Fine Ginghams and 4-4 Printed Wash Dress Fabrics, at 6 cents per yd.; 3 cases Fruit of the Loom, yard wide, Bleached Cotton, in short lengths, at 7 cents per yard.

GENTS' UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY

In our Gents' Underwear and Hosiery Department, we offer 100 doz. Gents' Lisle Thread 1-2 Hose, at 25 cents a pair. This is owing to the delay in the completion of our store. These goods should have been marketed earlier, and cost from $3.50 to $7 per doz. to import. It will pay the consumer to purchase for future needs, and will advertise our department.

KID GLOVES

In our Kid Glove department we have everything desirable in Gloves, and for our opening week offer the following superb values:—

50 dozen Ladies' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves, at 58 cts. a pair, worth $1.50. 25 dozen Gents' French Dogskin Embroidered back P. K. Stitched Gloves at 58 cts., value $1.50. 50 dozen Ladies' 5 button Paris Kid Gloves at 50c. a pair, this being the exact amount of the duties paid upon these goods to say nothing of the cost of manufacture. All Gloves sold by us above one dollar will be fitted to the hand if desired.

BLANKETS

We offer 50 pairs only, all wool Scarlet Blankets, at $5.00 a pair, large size.

All Blankets in the least soiled during our sale last week will be offered in our well lighted airy basement this week at a considerable reduction.

OUTSIDE GARMENTS

On our second floor may be found Ladies, Misses and Children's Outside Garments; Shawls, Suits, Corsets, Skirts, Ladies' Cotton Underwear, Infants' wear, Worsted Goods, etc.

A special lot of Infants' Knitted Wool Shirts, slightly soiled, will be sold at the uniform price of twenty-five cents each; worth 50c to $1 each. All new First Class Goods, and made for this season's trade.

There will be no restrictions as to quantity, of any of the above goods.

To quote the many additional inducements to be found in Hosiery, Lace, and our many other departments, seems unnecestary, since we give our candid assurance that prices throughout the House are low, and that a visit to our Establishment will not disappoint the shrewdest buyer, and will make even a long journey profitable.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."

EDMUND BURKE, late Com. of Patents.

BOSTON, Oct. 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: you procured for me, in 1870, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, re-issues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

THE INDEPENDENT.

The Largest, The Ablest, The Best.

Religious and Literary Weekly

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

THE INDEPENDENT is one of the best papers in the world. Its good points are many and striking. They have only to be stated to be appreciated, and for proof of our claims appeal may be taken to any of the fifty-two issues of the year. Any number of The Independent will show that its contents are marked by—

ABILITY, VARIETY AND INTEREST.—The great thinkers, the great story-writers, the great poets, men of the highest reputation in all departments of human knowledge, make up its list of contributors. Religion, philosophy, science, literature, art, travels, discoveries, stories, and all conceivable topics are embraced in the contents, and every one—old or young, learned and unlearned, without regard to sex, employment, or condition, will find something of special interest in every issue.

COMPREHENSIVENESS.—It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial and a political paper combined.

BREADTH, CANDOR, EARNESTNESS.—The Independent is tied to no denomination; it is the organ of no clique or party in state or Church. It is free, therefore, to discuss all questions, and to speak its mind candidly. It is not swerved by fear or favor. It is a vigorous defender of the Evangelical faith, it preaches practical righteousness, and earnestly supports all moral reform. All its columns—the advertising as well as the reading—are free from everything of doubtful or objectionable character. No matter what a person's religion, politics, or profession may be, if he desires to keep up with the times and know what the brightest minds are thinking of, the ablest pens are writing about, and what the world at large is doing—he should read The Independent.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

AN EPISCOPAL minister who arrived in this city a few days ago from Nevada, where he has been doing missionary work for several years, tells some curious stories and things in that country. He spent a portion of his time in Virginia City, and had to look to the people for his support. Once a week he went among the business men for contributions. He took in the saloons and gambling shops, as well as the banks and stores. Contributions were generally on a liberal scale, as the people, though not particularly religious, thought well of the cause, and vowed, one and all, that they would not let the preacher suffer. On almost every round he received a number of "poker chips" worth from $1 to $5. These he would take to the bank, where they were readily cashed.

Among the saloon keepers was a perfect Hercules in stature and strength. He was a man of violent temper and savage disposition, and had killed his man. He was therefore generally feared. This man was practically boss of the town. He sent the preacher word that he wanted to see him at his saloon. The preacher went, and was informed that he could get from $5 to $10 a week by calling at the saloon for it, and that it would be taken as an insult if he refused. The proposition was promptly accepted, and thereafter as long as the preacher remained in town he had no better friend or more liberal contributor than the burly saloon keeper. On one occasion, while in the saloon to receive his weekly stipend, another minister entered and presented his claims for assistance. The saloon man refused to give him anything, saying: "What are you doing in town, anyhow? I suppose you want to start an opposition church or something, and get up a row among us Christians. I'll tell you why I won't give any money. You see this man here? He's a preacher, too. I've just given him $10. We know something about him. He has a bishop behind him. If he don't walk the chalk I'll just write to the bishop and have the preacher bounced. I have enough influence to do it. You have no bishop and can do as you please."

The informant says it was his custom while in Virginia City to hold religious services in the saloons and gambling dens. He would go in Sunday morning and say: "Well, boys, it's about time to close up. I want to hold meeting here. Have you any objections?" They never objected, and as a general thing conducted themselves with the utmost propriety during divine service. If one of them ventured to break over the line of decorum the others would compel him to behave himself or put him out. On funeral occasions, which were frequent, the undertaker, who always managed the job, would require the preacher to ride on the hearse, he being considered the "next in importance to the corpse."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Harper's Weekly has an article on the manufacture of beer, and speaking of Milwaukee, says the manufacture of beer is a principal industry in Milwaukee. The writer must be poorly posted. While Milwaukee has the largest breweries in the world, and makes more beer than any other city in the country, and better beer, the beer interest is not the "principal industry" by any means. What's the matter with pork industry, the machinery, the wheat, the leather, and everything that is made in Boston, except canned baked beans and prize fighters?—Peck's Sun.

GIFT ENTERPRISES seem to be all the rage in the Soap Business, owing to the idea of some manufacturers of getting something out of nothing, if possible. Grocers get 6 boxes for 5 for some kinds, and are offered all sorts of Nick Nacks with others, as an inducement to recommend such soaps to their trade. It is a well known fact, however, that a genuine article in this day of competition pays no fancy profits. Welcome Soap represents this class of goods, and demonstrates the value of quality in manufacture, which is the only guarantee of a pure and legitimate washing quality.

The Boston Sunday Globe last Sabbath had a full page illustration of the new building they propose to occupy when completed. It will be a mammoth affair. The Globe has had a rapid increase in its circulation within the last few years. It is a live paper in every sense of the word. While we don't agree with it politically, we recognize its sterling ability, its enterprise which is liberal at every point and wish it still further success. Its latest accession to the editorial staff is another of its masterly strokes of policy and will tell in the end.

DON'T GIVE UP YET. It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never to late too try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., was cured of Rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr. R. W. Mosier, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

results from that true contentment which indicates perfect health of body and mind. You may possess it, if you will purify and invigorate your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. E. M. Howard, Newport, N. H., writes: "I suffered for years with Scrofulous humors. After using two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I great relief. It has entirely restored me to health." James French, Atchison, Kans., writes: "To all persons suffering from Liver Complaint, I would strongly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with a disease of the liver for nearly two years, when a friend advised me to take this medicine. It gave prompt relief, and has cured me." Mrs. H. M. Kidder, 41 Dwight st., Boston, Mass., writes: "For several years I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family. I never feel safe even without it. As a liver medicine and general purifier of the blood, it has no equal." Mrs. A. B. Allen, Winterpock, Va., writes: "My youngest child, two years of age, was taken with Bowel Complaint, which we could not cure. We tried many remedies, but he continued to grow worse, and finally became so reduced in flesh that we could only move him upon a pillow. It was suggested by one of the doctors that Scrofula might be the cause of the trouble. We procured a bottle of and commenced giving it to him. It surely worked wonders, for, in a short time, he was completely cured."

Sold by all Druggists.

MAYO'S

Compound Vegetable Anæsthetic.

A safe and pleasant substitute for gas and ether.

Discovered by Dr. N. K. Mayo of Boston, April 1883, subsequently administered by him in nearly two thousand cases, producing perfect slumber, being applicable to the child the delicate sentitive woman as well as the hardy man. No ill effects have followed its use in any case, it acting rather as a vegetable tonic.

It controls the patient one-fourth longer than gas giving us time to remove from three to twenty teeth. It is with great confidence we have introduced it into our practice, giving very successful results.

AYER'S SUGAR COATED CATHARTIC PILLS

CURE

Headache, Nausea, Dizziness, and Drowsiness. They stimulate the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels, to healthy action, assist digestion, and increase the appetite. They combine cathartic, diuretic, and tonic properties of the greatest value, are a purely vegetable compound, and may be taken with perfect safety, either by children or adults. E. L. Thomas, Framingham, Mass., writes: "For a number of years I was subject to violent Headaches, arising from a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. About a year ago I commenced the use of Ayer's Pills, and have not had a headache since." W. P. Hannah, Gormley P. O., York Co., Ont., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the last thirty years, and can safely say that I have never found their equal as a cathartic medicine. I am never without them in my house." C. D. Moore, Elgin, Ill., writes: "Indigestion, Headache, and Loss of Appetite, had so weakened and debilitated my system, that I was obliged to give up work. After being under the doctor's care for two weeks, without getting any relief, I began taking Ayer's Pills. My appetite and strength returned, and I was soon enabled to resume my work, in perfect health."

Book Notices.

The November Century is the initial number of the new Century year, beginning the 31st volume of the magazine. The fiction includes three short stories and parts of two serials. Of the former, A Cloud on the Mountain, by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, is a stirring romance of Idaho ranch life. Mr. James' Bostonians is continued. The new serial is Mrs. Foote's mining story, John Bodewin's Testimony, the opening chapters of which give promise of a novel surpassing in interest the same writer's romance of The Led-Horse Claim. General Grant's paper describing the campaign and battle of Chattanooga is a feature of the number which will excite world wide interest. It is, perhaps, the most finished article by him which The Century has thus far published. Various questions of interest are discussed in Topics of the Time, and Open Letters.

St. Nicholas for November is the first number of the new volume, and opens with the first chapter of a new serial story by Frances Hodgson Burnett, entitled Little Lord Fauntleroy, and relates the experience of a little New York lad who suddenly finds himself heir to large estates and a title in England. There is also the first installment of a series of New Bits of Talk for Young Folks, by Helen Jackson (H. H.), written especially for St. Nicholas. A November Evening, the beautiful frontispiece by Mary Hallock Foote, with the accompanying verses by Celia Thaxter, reminds us that Thanksgiving-day is at hand; and Sophie Swett, in Barty's Turkey, gives a very amusing account of one. The paper on Home Made Christmas Gifts appears in time to set many fingers busily working for the next two months.

The unusually handsome November Magazine of American History is as entertaining as it is valuable and informing. It would be difficult to point out the part of it that would entice and interest the larger audience. It is all good from the first page to the last. The portraits are also excellent. It will surprise the public to read of "Witchcraft in Illinois," but the paper of John H. Gunn speaks for itself. "The Burning of Washington in 1814," by Hon. Horatio King, is a graphic account of an event never before so clearly and forcibly represented. The Civil War Studies comprise the second of General W. F. ("Baldy") Smith's series of papers on "The Campaign of 1861-1862 in Kentucky—as Developed through the Correspondence of its Leaders." This is one of the best contributions which has yet appeared in any magazine on the history of the late war. The several minor departments are all up to their usual standard of excellence. This publication seems destined to eclipse its contemporaries in many directions. Subscription price, $5.00 a year in advance. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York City.

Among the many interesting articles in The Atlantic Monthly for November, "Some Testimony in the Case," Rebecca Harding Davis's contribution to the literature of the "negro problem" will especially appeal to the reader. The impressment of sailors is entertainingly written about by Edward Stanwood under the title of "An Old-Time Grievance." As for the serials by Henry James, Mrs. Oliphant, and Dr. Holmes, they maintain their interest, and one at least of the stories has a startling development. The Contributors' Club considers "An American Pantheon," "Provincial Influence in Literature," and "The Secrets of Authorship," and a survey of recent illustrated volumes and the usual "Books of the Month" complete an entertaining, readable and very valuable number. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

Among the articles in Lippincott's Magazine for November, the one which is likely to receive most attention has for its subject, "Queen Anne or Free Classic Architecture." In this paper, by George C. Mason, Jr., the subject is treated with fulness under its threefold aspect, historical, instructive, and aesthetic. Another article full of solid and interesting information is on "The Peabody Museum of American Archæology," by Ernest Ingersoll, who has had the assistance in preparing it of Mr. F. W. Putnam, who has charge of the institution, and to whom it is chiefly indebted for its excellent system of arrangement. The fiction includes the second and concluding part of "The Lady Lawyer's First Client" by Thomas Wharton, "A Random Shot," by C. W. Wilmerding, and "A Backwoods Romance," by S. H. Swett. There is the usual variety of poems, short papers and editorial matter.

The Premium engraving issued by Peterson's Magazine, for 1886, is of rare excellence and beauty. The artists are Illman Brothers, and they have engraved it—size, 21 inches by 27—for Peterson's Magazine, in their best and most brilliant manner. The picture is called The Angel of Paradise, and is a companion to the Not Lost, But Gone Before, published by Peterson's Magazine some years ago, and which was so popular. Another of the premiums is the Forget-Me Not, an illustrated album, a book of very great beauty. Another is an extra copy of the magazine, etc., etc. You can get any of them, gratis, by raising a club for Peterson for 1886. This is a rare chance. Specimens of the magazine sent, gratis, with full particulars, to those wishing to get clubs up, if written for. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MEXICAN FUNERALS.

It may be interesting to some of your many readers to know how funerals are conducted in Mexico. Instead of hearses, such as we have in the States, regular funeral-draped street-cars are fitted up for the purpose. The driver is a most comical genius, and is only to be seen to be appreciated. He is gotten up in the most sombre style, sable coat, gloved hands, broad band of crape around his hat, which is an immense stovepipe, and that cocked jauntily to one side, and to give him "tone," a huge cigar—such as they smoke here—is stuck in his mouth. Instead of a subdued look, suitable to the occasion, he assumes a rather festive air, as if chaperoning a picnic party, or as one going out on a lark, and bound to have a good time. I have seen a couple of peons start with a corpse to the car, and, it not being in sight, take a seat, one on each end, looking as comfortable as if they were seated on a red sofa—and, as they smoked, deliberately discuss as to which was the best drink, "tequila," or "pulque." A game of cards is admissible, and "pulque" is sometimes drunk to the corpse's health, to relieve the tediousness of waiting. Being somewhat of a stranger in Mexico, I shall not vouch for the two latter facts.

There is a second-class car, which, having no curtain, exposes the poor unfortunate corpse, not only to the burning rays of the sun, but to the eager gaze of the passers-by. No sooner does the native see this sad sight, than down he drops on his knees and crosses himself, but the fresh American gazes as long as he can see a trace of it, with eyes as large as "moons." The coffin lid is rarely put on until the cemetery is reached and, in consequence, one often gets a glimpse of a sallow face and crossed hands.

It is not etiquette for a Mexican to attend the funeral of his dead. This is left for hardened men, who are paid for all such work. This is not the case, however, with the poorer class, who are not able to hire the commonest car, or even to buy a coffin. The peon rents a coffin for twelve-and-a-half cents, and is often seen with one containing some dearly beloved one on his back, wending his way slowly and sorrowfully to the cemetery, perhaps with feet bleeding as they come in contact with the rough stones. When he reaches the cemetery, he deposits the body in the grave without ceremony, returns the coffin to the undertaker, and—that is all. No one either cares for or pities him, for he is only a poor unfortunate peon.

FIGHTING ANCIENT AND MODERN.

The only difference between ancient and modern armies is in the application of steam, gunpowder, and dynamite—a very great one in appearance, but not so much so in reality. Modern armies do not need to be so large in the field as ancient armies; yet it is very questionable whether fewer people are required for an affective war in modern times than of old. The men who make the powder and dynamite and the girls who fill the cartridges are quite as much part and parcel of a modern army as the soldiers who fire them off, and run pretty nearly similar risks. The methods of modern warfare are exactly the same as of ancient warfare, and relatively not much more effective, though just as coarse and brutal. The long bow was quite as effective a weapn as the rifle, and modern cannon do not seem to be any great advantage on the balistæ and battering rams of the ancients. In naval warfare we have actually gone back again to one of the most ancient naval manœuvers, that of ramming. The siege trains of the present day are just as cumbersome as siege trains in times when, as the Bible tells us, "Mountains and hills were made low and valleys exalted; when rough places were made plain and the crooked straight." Science has not yet said its last word on the adaptation of nature's secrets to resistance against rapine, carnage, and wrong whether exercised by nation against nation or nations against individuals. Even now substances are known to chemists which it only needs finer mechanical skill to make into efficient and invincible agents for defending civilization against barbarism and savagery. What secrets may be, and no doubt are, hid in the womb of nature, and are waiting to be revealed by the hand of science, can only be conjectured. But we may be sure of this much—that the higher the civilization and the more developed the intellect of the future the more hopeless will become the attempts of needy and adventurous barbarians against the well-being of rich and highly civilized nations. If the rich Romans had left to Britain with their civilization a body of physical knowledge similar to that even of to-day, the Saxon conquest would have been impossible.

SWISS ECONOMY.

The Swiss carry their economy to the length of inhumanity. The public hiring-out of children to the lowest bidder still obtains in the Canton of Berne. A case of this kind is reported from Biel, where the public crier, despite the tears and entreaties of the widowed mother, placed her four young children of ten, eight, six and two years for 28, 31, 40 and 70 francs, respectively, for the remainder of the year, thus separating the family for fear the woman might become a burden upon the town.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA?

Among the many symptoms of Dyspepsia or indigestion, the most prominent are: Variable appetite; faint, gnawing feeling at pit of the stomach, with unsatisfied craving for food; heartburn, feeling of weight and wind in the stomach, bad breath, bad taste in the mouth, low spirits, general prostration, headache, and constipation. There is no form of disease more prevalent than Dyspepsia, and none so peculiar to the high-living and rapid-eating American people. Alcohol and tobacco produce Dyspepsia; also, bad air, etc. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, will cure the worst case, by regulating the bowels and toning up the digestive organs. Sold everywhere.

NORTH PEABODY.

What has become of our North Peabody correspondent?—Peabody Press, Oct. 28.

In answer to the above would say he has returned from the north and is at his post once more.

First snow of the season Oct. 31st!

The Salem & Danvers R. R. think they have fixed Andover street by putting in about a dozen what-do-you-call-'em-things between the outside rail and the sidewalk, thereby making the enterance to residences more dangerous than before, making a great deal more cost to the town to keep the gutters open in the winter, and they have also been making a very poor sidewalk by dumping a load of gutter scrapings, manure, etc., here and there in different places on them, between Andover street bridge and Pike & Whipple's.

Ground froze here for the first time Nov. 1st.

Mr. McDonald, of Forest street, will remove to the house of Mr. John Pike on Sylvan street.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson has been ill at her residence on Andover street with pneumonia.

Mr. J. B. Stevens, of Swampscott, has purchased the estate, situated on Cross and Prospect and Andover streets, of the widow of the late Justin Cook, of North Reading, formerly owned by the late Stephen Proctor, and will remove thereto soon and make extensive improvements.

Mr. Foster has removed from the house of Mr. John Pike to Hamilton.

Mr. J. B. Wilson has had a new chimney erected in the L of his house on Andover street.

There was a very high wind here Monday, blowing limbs from trees and blowing down fences, etc.

Mr. A. T. Blake has had a furnace put into his house on Andover street.

A Mr. Dodd has removed from the old Moes Preston place to Willow Dale, formerly occupied by the late Amos Putnam.

Mr. John B. Wilson has been attending lectures at Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Augustus Harrington has a stump puller at work, pulling up his peach orchard on Andover street.

SPARKS.

Hose Company No. 4 held their annual clam chowder at the hose house Tuesday evening. The chowder was got up by Treasurer Thomas F. Hutchinson and Horace G. Upton of the company, and was excellent, and was partaken of with a relish by the members and their guests. After supper cigars were lighted and speeches in order. Foreman John H. Moreland, of Hose 4, acted as toastmaster and remarks were made by Chief Tibbetts, Engineers Johnson and Reed, Foreman Miller, Thomas and others. The affair was a complete success.

The Board of Engineers will hold their regular meeting this evening, when they will approve the pay rolls of the different companies.

County Commissioners Raymond, Colby and Bishop with the Selectmen and others visited the brick engine house this morning and inspected the rooms and apparatus.

The black horses of the steamers ran away on Elm street Monday night, starting toward the stable, but were turned aside in front of Dodge's blacksmith shop and brought up against the lamp post, throwing it out of position, and breaking the pole of the wagon. The horses became frightened at something.

Z

MUSICAL NOTES.

The concert of Mr. Macgregor in the Peabody Institute last Thursday evening took place in the midst of a severe storm—thereby deterring many from an attendance. With a few exceptions the artists had been heard many times by our people; Miss Dalton and Mr. Macgregor both being members of the Unitarian Choir, and Mr. Record being well and favorably known to our musical people. Miss Sopha C. Hall was a stranger to most of the audience and her singing was the best thing of the evening. Her single solo was Raff's Ave Maria, with violin obligato by Mr. Record, which was beautifully and artistically rendered. That she did not receive an encore was because of the selection itself. Miss Hall has a rich, mellow contralto voice, and her presence won the favor of the audience at once. It was manifested not only in her solo, but in the duett with Miss Dalton. The voices of the two ladies blended perfectly; the clear, deep tones of Miss Hall inducing a power and timbre by which Miss Dalton surpassed any of her efforts during the evening. The duett(Alpine Morning)was enthusiastically received, and a repetition demanded. The quality of Miss Hall's voice was again manifested in the closing trio, this being the only number in which Mr. Macgregor did himself justice. The beneficiary has a fine tenor voice, which he forces unnaturally at times, but which is capable, with study, of good results. He does not always sing in tune, which was especially noticeable in the duett with Miss Dalton(The Adieu) and his phrasing is anything but commendable. Miss Dalton's selection for a solo was unwise, yet it was carefully rendered, and well received. The piano selections of Mr. Newcomb brought out the good points, and poor ones also, of the ancient piano belonging to the Institute Hall. The violin solos of Mr. Record were first class—as they always are. We think some lighter selections would have given more pleasure to the audience, but they were given very artistically and the obligato to Miss Hall's Ave Maria was in exceedingly good taste. Mr. Aborn, the reader, was at a disadvantage on account of being assigned the opening piece on the programme. He did better in his second selections, which, however, had too much the flavor of "chestnuts" about them. The arrangement of the programme was miserable; and the changes made, placing the two lady soloists in juxtaposition with each other, was little improvement.

A number of Salem people were present at the benefit concert of Mr. Macgregor, among them Prof. C. R. Bill, teacher of music.

Mr. Aborn, of Lynn, has been engaged by Prof. C. R. Bill for his concert in Gloucester.

The next rehearsal by the Salem Oratorio Society will be Nov. 12.

In addition to the Fair to be holden in Salem this week for the benefit of the Salem Oratorio Society, Mr. Phippen will give a recital in Plummer Hall Satuday afternoon at 4 o'clock for the same purpose. A fine programme has been arranged.

Arthur Foote, the conductor of the Salem Schubert Club, is to be in Saratoga this week to play at a musicale given by Mrs. Otis G. Rockwood, in the hall of Temple Grove Seminary.

At Mr. Hood's third concert in Lynn to-morrow evening, will appear the Meigs Sisters vocal quartette, Prof Kelley's Art Tableaux, Miss Annie B. Lincoln, reader, and the Salem Cadet Orchestra. A good entertainment.

J. F. Rock, the Music Hall manager in Lynn, will open his celebrated Star Course with the production of the "Mikado" by John Stetson's company from New York, with fifty people, and special scenery. November 10th, next Tuesday evening, is the date fixed for the performance. Mr. Rock is to be congratulated on such a brilliant opening.

The musical event of the season in Boston, is the appearance of Mr. Abercrombie, the tenor soloist of H. M. chapel royal, St. James Palace, London, who has been granted a three month's vacation. He will give a select concert in Chickering Hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 11. It will take the form of the Boosey ballad concerts in London. Mr. Abercrombie, twelve years ago, was tenor in King's Chapel in Boston, since which time he has studied with Randegger and other teachers. At the concert he will be assisted by Miss Emma Hayden Eames, Mrs. George L. Tracey, sopranos; Miss Gertrude Edmunds, contralto, Mr. A. D. Saxon, baritone, and Wulf Frier, the celebrated 'cello performer. Mr. B. L. Whelpley will be the conductor and accompanist.

The Sunday evening Popular concerts have been given up in Boston owing to the refusal of Mr. Higginson to allow the members of his orchestra to play under Mr. Neuendorff, and the latter gentleman cannot spend time to rehearse with musicians unaccustomed to playing under his lead.

Very complimentary notices have been sent from Spain regarding Miss Jenny Sargent, who is some expected to return home to this country. She was soprano in the Unitarian church in Woburn many years ago, and was a pupil of Lyman W. Wheeler of Boston.

Flotow's charming opera, "Stradella" continues to draw large audiences at the Bijou Theatre, yet the policy of the theatre limits its run to this week. On Nov. 9, will be produced Manager Neuendorff's own opera, "The Rat-Charmer," which made a popular success in New York fiveye ars ago. The libretto is wrought from Robert Browning's famous poem, "The Pied Piper of Hamlin." Mme. Januschowsky makes her first appearance this season in this piece, which will have a strong cast. "The Hermit," in preparation, will be the next production.

Mrs. Emma Bartlett resumed her position in the Baptist choir last Sunday. Solos were rendered by Miss Clemens and Mrs. Bartlett.

A series of select Musicales are to be given during the winter by some of our young musical people in the parlors of their residences. This is another evidence of the revival of a musical interest among us—and one which we mention gladly. The first one will be given to-morrow evening at the home of Warren Wilson, Jr. Misses Clemens and Howard of Salem, Miss Jackson of Lawrence, Messrs. Merrill, Martin and others from Salem, besides local talent, will take part.

The Arlington Quartette, of Boston, consisting of Miss Lizzie Webb Cary, Miss Gertrude Edmunds, Messrs. Geo. W. Want and Harry Cornell, made their first appearance in concerted music, as a Quartette, last Monday evening. The Boston Herald thus speaks of them: "The voices of the quartette of singers are most happily suited for the best results in the class of music contributed by its members to the programme and excellent taste was shown in making these selections. Each of the individual members was also heard as a soloist, and many pleasing numbers were in this way added to the vocal music of the evening. Miss Cary's voice was admirably displayed in a Donizetti aria and a charming French song, given as an encore, and some English ballads, sung by Miss Edmands, were veritable vocal gems, the artistic finish and the clear, distinct fashion in which they were presented calling for the highest commendation."

Mr. E. S. Plaisted, station agent at West Peabody, has been promoted to a similar position at Danvers.

Poor & Littlefield have increased the pay of their workmen $1. a week without their asking for it.

Farmers who want tools should attend the auction sale at the West Peabody Gravel pit. See adv.

A big break was made in the water main on Stevens street, this afternoon and a small river was rushing down Central street.

A man named Currier, belonging in Middleton, backed his team over an embankment at Phelps Mills some time ago, and he has notified the town that he will bring a suit for damages.

Mr. George A. Whitney received today a check for $1750 being a part payment of the $3000 life insurance of the late James H. Thomas. He paid it over to Mr. Michael Kelly the administrator.

Nugent Bros'. Fall and Winter stock has been most carefully selected, was bought low for cash and is marked at very low figures. All economical buyers, looking for bargains, by calling on them will find their search rewarded.

A representative of C. H. & J. Price was around town yesterday distributing sample bottles of Lubin's of Tolu and Wild Cherry which is prepared and sold by them. If any of our readers did not obtain one, it is an oversight and by calling on Messrs. Price in Salem, they will be furnished one with pleasure.

The report of the engineer of the pumping station, for October, is as follows:—Number gallons pumped, 18-579,970; average per day, 599,353; pounds coal used for the month, 44,256; average per day, 1427 pounds; gallons of water pumped per pound of coal, 418 9-10; running time, 7 hours 34 minutes per day.

The County Commissioners gave a hearing on the proposed new road in West Peabody to-day in the rooms of the Selectmen. They met at 9 o'clock, and after opening, adjourned to view the road. A barge containing the commissioners, F. H. Appleton, the Selectmen, and Col. Cyrus T. Batchelder, representative elect, viewed the road, and after dinner they met again in the Selectmen room. Mr. Appleton explained the road, and a few remarks in favor of it were made by Chairman Southwick of the Selectmen. Rev. Mr. Spaulding opposed the road in a vigorous speech, of which we will give a more extended report next week, the lateness of the hearing, and the press of election news preventing its appearance this week.

RINK NOTES.

Mr. John Phalen, of Salem, who played polo with the Peabodys last season, lost a good opportunity in the following manner: The manager of one of the large teams, we think the Walthams, wrote him a letter offering him $25 a week to play with them. The letter came to Peabody and was not called for until a week or two later it was adyertised and fell into the hands of Phalen. When he replied it was too late, the manager not hearing from him had given the job to Goulding, another member of the old Peabody club.

William Murray, of the Peabodys, has accepted a very flattering offer to play with the Somervilles for four days in the week, at a salary of $20.

The Morocco Dressers Association held a very successful and pleasant party at the Skating Rink Friday night. One of the principal attractions in skating was the performance of the Coogan Bros., which was first class in every way. To say that the audience were delighted would be drawing it mild. Then came a three mile race on skates, in which eight contestants entered. Hargrave won the medal and Leighton of So. Peabody came in second. After this, dancing to the music of the Salem Band Orchestra was indulged in to the satisfaction of all. A temporary band stand was erected on the floor, and the party broke up about 2 A. M. A good sum will be realized.

F. P. Baker, the inventor of the Masachusetts goal cage, is said to have patented a cage that can be folded.—Chelsea Telegraph.

The Phœnix Associates have secured the skating rink for a grand skating and dancing party on Wednesday evening, Nov. 11, 1885, at which time Mrs. Jesse McClellan, the wonderful fancy skater, will appear. Music by the Salem Brass Band.

The opening of the rink last evening was attended by about 300 people, the advertised programme was well carried out and an enjoyable time was the result. Prof. C. C. Martin and Miss Allie Lawry were present and gave fancy skating.

Nugent Bros. desire to direct the attention of ladies, who have been paying enormous prices for boots and shoes, to the fact that they carry the best stock and largest selection in town, and sell their goods ten per cent. less than any other dealer in this vicinity. Ladies will find it to their interest to make a note of this and save money.

Novelties in the fruit and vegetable markets are scarce. The supply of grapes is diminishing and the price is going up. Pears, too, are becoming scarcer. Nice quinces can be had, also a good quality of fall apples. There are good varieties of water cresses, celery, lettuce, peppers, cauliflower and sweet potatoes displayed.

The old scheme of a message to the lady of the house from her liege lord to pay some money on insurance or some other account, was tried on Mrs. A. W. Berry last week, but without success. The man wanted $10 on a life insurance policy, and was very angry when he could not obtain it. He ought to have had an opportunity to cool his anger at the police station.

Naumkeag Clothing Company,

177 & 179 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Z. A. GALLUP, Manager.

The Western Union telegraph company have transferred their Danvers business from the post office to the Western Division Depot where it will be in charge of E. S. Plaisted, formerly of West Peabody.

The Fair in Salem, by the Oratorio Society, was a grand success,—netting the Society over $1200. We congratulate them and the ladies who have labored so earnestly for the accomplishment of this end.

Mrs. J. D. Morland received a silver butter cooler with a package of baking powder at Hallowell & Smiley's store, last Thursday. Besides all these valuable presents they are giving excellent goods at low prices.

The revised list of lectures at the Peabody Institute will be found in another column. Two other lectures are added, Will Carleton and Alban Andran, and a change in the order of some of them is made.

Mr. Oliver Lane, of this town, who has been in the employ of Upton's Glue works, has gone to Chicago, where he will be employed in the same business under the charge of Mr. Eben Upton, formerly of this town.

Mr. C. F. Hathaway, the baker, has just returned from a pleasure trip to Chicago and St. Louis. At the former place he visited the celebrated Swift packing house, where most of the beef sold in this town comes from.

Look out for a fellow who professes to be agent for Peterson's Magazine, offering it at one dollar a year with a chromo premium. He's a swindler, and the publishers wish us to put the readers of the PRESS on their guard.

Mr. Henry C. Torr dropped in to explain the other day why he could not vote election day. He had paid his taxes but in his haste neglected to go before the board of registrars. There was a number of others who did the same.

Mr. Henry Palmer, who was at one time employed as a machinist, by Jennings & Chase, of this town, has received an appointment as foreman of a large machine shop at Grantham, Lincolnshire, England, at a salary of $2500 a year.

A good box of blacking is something that every man is looking for. Nugent Brothers at their shoe store are introducing the Crooker blacking which is superior in many respects to the numerous kinds on the market.

The inventor of those confounded "squawkers" that the boys blow from morning until bed time, ought to be annihilated. They are a perfect nuisance and if they are allowed to keep it up all winter, our quota at the insane asylum will be filled.

A convention of the Mass. W. C. T. U. for organizing Essex County, is being held in the vestry of the Congregational Church to-day. Miss E. S. Tobey of Boston—the President of the State Union—will speak this evening at 7.30. All are invited.

The PRESS extends an invitation to the veterans of the late war in this vicinity to contrbute to its columns personal reminiscences of the rebellion. We have heard many of them related at G. A. R. camp fires, and they would be very interesting put in print.

A person called at four of our doctors' offices a short time ago before one was found in. Returning to her home she met two of those on whom she called and the third was just leaving the house opposite her own where he had been making a professional visit.

Engine-men on the Boston & Maine railroad have been notified to abandon the sounding of the one long whistle, as a signal that a train is not to stop at a station that it is approaching, at stations where there are highway crossings, where the usual whistle is given.

The Selectmen have under advisement the purchasing of a set of dishes for the town hall. Now that the lower hall is the only one in town for a dance hall, and as the supper room is frequently in use, the purchase of dishes would seem to be a move in the right direction.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea now that we have a messenger boy at the post office, to have three or four letter boxes in different parts of the town. Postmaster Ward is certainly disposed to do all in his power to accommodate the public, and these would prove a great public convenience.

It is now conceded that the Boston & Maine railroad has secured control of the Worcester, Nashua & Rochester. Thus giving a through short line from Worcester to the Provinces under one management, and a good connection to Halifax, N. S.. It was a shrewd move on the part of Mr. Furber.

A laughable thing happened in the post office the other morning. While a number of our citizens were waiting for the mail to be distributed they were taken with violent fits of sneezing, and it was not until one of them noticed that a package of pepper he held in his hand had broken open that the cause of the epidemic became known.

Mrs. Kittie E. Bomer, widow of the late Charles Bomer, died at her home in Salem last Thursday morning of pneumonia. She was only 32 years of age, but had seen a large amount of trouble which she endured with patience and was always cheerful when among her friends. Two small children survive her.

The Boston Herald never published truer words than the following: "The pernicious idea that newspapers are in constant want of "something to fill up with" is still current in the land. Men and women who have things to say are always welcomed by a newspaper— but they are thrice welcome if they put it in a few words."

The next annual meeting of the New England Methodist Conference will be held in Newburyport, the 15th of next April. The committee which visited Newburyport were tendered the use of the Unitarian and Old South Congregational churches, and were assured by the local committee that a like cordial spirit pervaded all the churches.

We can't see the policy, on the part of the Naumkeag street railroad, of running a small box car, for the late theatre trip from Salem at midnight. They run two horses, and two horses can draw one of the larger cars just as well. And if they want the driver to collect the fares, he can do it just as well in a larger car. The patronage is all through travel. There is no necessity, at that hour, of making people stand up, when they could run a larger car as well as not.

Poet's Corner.

My Saint.

BY MRS. LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON.

Oh, long the weary vigils since you left me—
In your far home, I wonder, can you know
Too what dread uttermost your loss bereft me,
Or half it meant to me that you should go?

This world is full, indeed, of fair hopes perished,
And loves more fleet than this poor fleeting breath;
But that deep heart in which my heart was cherished
Must surely have survived what we call Death.

They cannot cease—our own true dead—to love us,
And you will hear this far-off cry of mine,
Though you keep holiday so high above us,
Where all the happy spirits sing and shine.

Steal back to me to-night from your far dwelling
Beyond the pilgrim moon, beyond the sun;
They will not miss your single voice for swelling
Their rapture-chorus—you are only one.

Ravish my soul, as with divine embraces—
Teach me, if Life is false, that Death is true.
With pledge of new delights in heavenly places
Entice my spirit—take me hence with you.

Who'll Buy?

DORA READ GOODALE.

My neighbor wears a cotton dress;—
She comes with marigold and cress
All dripping, coiled together.
The willow basket in her hand
Is bright with water and with sand,
This happy, happy weather!
"Who'll buy?" Who would not buy?
—They grew beside an April stream,
Beneath an April sky!

Again I meet her, flushed and brown,
With braid and bonnet slipping down;
She looks upon me gayly.
She knows the grassy upland farm
Where berries ripen high and warm,
And redden deeper daily!
"Who'll buy?" Who would not buy?
—She found them in the summer fields
Beneath a summer sky!

To-day she enters at my gate;
She steps inside the sill to wait;
And so once more I find her.
Alack! the whirling leaves are brown—
And he who shook the chestnuts down
Is standing there behind her!
"Who'll buy?" Who would not buy?
—They found them in the autumn woods,
Beneath a frosty sky!

A River Dream.

The blue, blue sky above,
The blue, blue water under,
Two eyes more blue, and a heart that's true,
And a boat to bear me with my love
To lands of light and wonder.

The sunny fields around,
The river rippling by us,
A smile more bright than noonday light,
Our brows with meadow garlands crowned
And never a care to try us.

A drifting with the tide,
A wind that whispers greeting,
An isle of rest in the faded west,
With only the waves on the shore beside
And two hearts fondly beating.

The gunning season is now open, and we may expect to hear of the usual number of accidents caused by the careless handling of firearms. The skilled sportsman never risks his own life or that of others by holding or carrying his gun in such a position as to endanger anyone by its discharge. He appreciates the dangerous character of his weapon, and is, therefore, careful in handling it. Now that breech-loading arms are generally used, there is no excuse for keeping them loaded. Whether loaded or not, muzzle should at all times be kept away from the body. It is just as easy to acquire careful habits in handling guns as to get other habits that place one in constant danger of being self-wounded and perhaps killed.

Nearly one-half of the stock for the proposed street railway at Nahant has been subscribed for, and the promoters of the project have no doubt that the Selectmen will give them a location. Work will begin early next spring, and the road will be completed in 60 days after commencing operations. The motive power will be electricity.

Smart Weed and Belladonna combined with the other ingredients used in the best porous plasters make Carter's S. W. & Backache Plasters the best in the market. Price 25 cents,

Letter from the West.

ON THE TRAIN C. C. C. & I. R. R., OCTOBER 24, 1885.

A natural inclination to scribble leads me to while away a leisure hour in writing a few sheets of copy to the PRESS, which will try the patience of the compositors and no doubt that of the reader, for the jostle of the car as it rumbles over the track does not improve penmanship any more than an animated game of whist between four young traveling men, in the section across the aisle, helps one's composition. However, we met several former towns-people on our travels whose whereabouts and life in the occident may be of interest to their many friends in the "effete" east as it is sometimes called by the go ahead-westerner.

Our trip to Kansas was over a more circuitous route than we were obliged to take, but being bent on seeing as much of the country as possible in a somewhat limited time we shaped the course accordingly, and taking the Pennsylvania railroad, at New York, passed through the picturesque scenery of the Alleghanies at that season when the dense foliage of the forests was tinted with the thousand and one shades of autumn. The weather was delightful, but perhaps a more striking contrast in the atmosphere could not be found than one sees on this road, between the sharp, clear and invigorating air of the mountains and the almost impenetrable smoke which envelopes the blackened, soot-begrimmed, dirty city of Pittsburgh. We were told that the place was not so smoky as it used to be, as many of the mills and foundries burn the natural gas for fuel, but even if this is so, the inhabitants are yet to be pitied, for they really "live in the dark."

From Chicago, a city whose attractions are legion, we set out for Newton, Kansas, to visit Mr. William E. Francis, well known in Peabody as a former book keeper in the office of Munroe & Arnold. Newton is situated in the central southern part of the state near the Arkansas river. It is 200 miles west of Kansas City and nearly 1700 from Boston. Being somewhat of a railroad centre, on the Wichita branch of the A. T. & S. Fe line, and located in a very fertile country, rendered more so by the big tributary of the Mississippi, it is the largest city of the county and has a population rising 6000, which is rapidly increasing.

The citizens are active and enterprising; they offer a welcome hand to all new comers and hold out liberal inducements for manufacturing business, doing their utmost for the prosperity of the city. Mr. Francis went west nearly two years ago and is settled on a section of 640 acres, seven miles from Newton depot, in the township of Sedgewick. The land is rolling like all the prairie in Southern Kansas and is very rich and prolific, growing about everything that can be raised in a temperate clime. His farm is fenced and divided into small sections but only a portion is under cultivation, Mr. Francis' business being that of cattle raising rather than agricultural. The ranch is already well stocked with 200 head of cattle and 150 hogs, and besides a nice two story cottage house and large barn it is provided with numerous sheds and feed racks for the shelter and convenience of the stock.

The genial "ranchero" is as happy and contented in his new home as it is possible for a man to be, but his better half, like most eastern ladies, has not yet become acclimated to the country. One peculiarity in building houses in the west is the absence of all boarding from the sides, the clapboards being nailed directly to the frame. This scheme costs less and works well enough in the summer, but the cold winds easily find their way indoors in the winter time. The entire country about Newton and in the Arkansas valley is well improved and quite thickly settled in some parts. All the land except that in the extreme western end of the state is taken, and timber groves of cotton woods, black walnuts or maple flourish in every direction.

It is thought by many New Englanders that civilization in Kansas lacks refinement, but this must be a mistaken idea, for the æsthetic sunflower grows in every field and by every wayside. There are acres and acres of these plants thriving wild everywhere and they are about the worst enemy the western farmer has to contend with. The only difference between the eastern and western plant is in the size of the flower, it being much smaller in the uncultivated. The prairie country affords rare sport for the gunner, as there is plenty of game, such as quail, prairie chickens, teal and jack rabbits, to be had for the mere effort of shooting, no hunting being necessary.

The large number of blackbirds that abound struck us with amazement. On several occasions we saw flocks of thousands of these birds in the distance where they presented the appearance of a cloud of black smoke as they moved through the sky. The blackbirds live in pastures among the cattle and feed upon flies and insects; their flesh is not palatable and they are seldom fired at, except for sport, when a fair shot will drop from twenty-five to fifty at a time. Snakes, for which the prairie has a great reputation, were not as numerous in the locality where we sojourned as they once were. However, we kept in mind the wise conclusion of the late Artemus Ward, who decided upon coming across a rattlesnake in his hole one day, that the hole belonged to the snake, and his proper course was to walk around it, and we were not molested; it was a little late in the season to encounter many of them anyway.

One of the most interesting sights it became our good fortune to witness was the partial mirage of a section of country several miles away, between eight and nine o'clock, one fine morning. The atmosphere near the horizon was hazy; and, reflected in the air, as though suspended in the heavens, could be seen trees and houses miles away. These optical illusions are of frequent occurrence in the open prairie country, and we were told that on one time in particular the town of Halstead, twelve miles from the ranch, was so plainly visible that streets and even houses could be easily distinguished. A mirage generally lasts about an hour, when it gradually fades away before the rising sun. A large number of Mennonites are settled and own farms in the vicinity of Newton. They are thrifty people and like the Quakers are at peace with all men. While riding along a section line one morning I saw one of these Prussian exiles gathering his harvest of peanuts from the ground, a sight which I had never before witnessed. Our stay at the ranch lasted nearly three weeks, and it was with many regrets that we took our last stroll over the fields and among the cattle before starting on our homeward trip.

It would, however, hardly be the correct thing to return east without stopping at Kansas City, especially if one has friends there, and so we made that much advertised place our immediate destination after leaving Newton. Of course we registered at the Lindell hotel, kept by Mr. Frank W. Poor, too well known in Peabody for the reader to be reminded of his former residence there. The first person we met with whom we were acquainted was Charles Crowley, a former school mate, who is now in the employ of Mr. Poor. The Lindell is a large five story granite building situated on the corner of two of the principal streets. It has sixty-five rooms and an annex of thirty-five rooms in a building near by. The house has a large patronage, all the traveling men making their headquarters there, and is conducted in a manner which makes it one of the most popular hostelries in the city.

We had just returned from a morning walk when we were met in the office by the landlord who gave us a right royal welcome, and with characteristic western hospitality invited us to a drive about town. We first visited the mammoth packing establishment of Armour & Co. where thousands of cattle and hogs are slaughtered daily. The trip through the many departments of that place was full of interest and gave us some idea of the immense business that concern does. About 1500 hands are employed in the works and the firm has an establishment in Chicago even larger than that in Kansas City. From Armour's place we drove over to Wyandotte, the town across the river that the funny men spell, and returning went from Y&. there to the stock yards.

It was estimated that 10,000 head of cattle were in the pens and nearly as many hogs were distributed about the yards. The greater part of the cattle were Texan rangers and some of them were wild and vicious looking brutes, without a redeeming feature. Their ears were slashed into many parts and their hides branded with hideous marks which showed in clear outline on their bony bodies. There is a great difference between a Texas and Kansas steer in favor of the latter which need only be seen to be appreciated.

In the afternoon we took another drive around the city, Mr. and Mrs. Poor accompanying us, and were much surprised at the many fine churches and public buildings as well as business places which we passed. Among the most interesting places visited were two fire stations where the men on duty kindly volunteered to give us an exhibition of hitching up. At one hose house two horses were harnessed, all ready to start, in three and one-half seconds, and at another house four horses were hitched to a hook and ladder truck in three seconds, which is claimed to be the quickest time on record. All the hose carts are drawn by two horses and the trucks by four horses in that city, which, though young, is not behind the times. While on the drive we called upon Mrs. Moses E. Johnson, who is pleasantly situated in the suburbs of the city, and later in the day had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Johnson, who is in the real estate business there.

Kansas City like Rome and Boston is built upon a cluster of hills, and the site is the most unfavorable imaginable, in many respects. The railroads centered there however and built up the city, for in Kansas City, is one of the largest union depots in the country. The clay hills which loom up in all directions are fast being converted into bricks, and large business blocks are rising on their site. The city is provided with horse and cable street railways, and has all the advantages of an eastern metropolis. Its growth has been phenomenal, and it is estimated by the more conservative that the population of 65,000 in 1880 has doubled the last five years, while the more sanguine claim it to be 150,000, now.

Part of Kansas City is in Kansas and part in Missouri, the dividing line being the Kaw river, but the business part of the town is in Missouri. The rise in the price of land and real estate has been parallel with that of the population and everything appears to be booming with life. From Kansas City we crossed the state to St. Louis, which we found nearly as smoky as Pittsburg. The exposition gave us a good chance to pass an afternoon profitably and having been driven around to the various other attractions in a hansom, we felt mean enough to leave the city and so took the Bee line for Cleveland, which the affable porter with a perq in his mind tells me is the next stopping place. When we get there I will post this letter not caring whether it reaches its destination or not, as is has served one good purpose, viz: that of killing the time of

Our readers who are not in the habit of visiting often the store of Samuel Trask have no idea of what a variety of goods he keeps—and particularly up stairs. He has just added in a little room adjoining his office an assortment of glass ware at 5 and 10 cents each, and the goods are well worth an inspection. There seems to be everything desirable in household ware—and nearly everything at these low prices. There are a few articles, such as lamps, which are sold at 25 cents, and even at that price are cheap. In this room also is the folding clothes horse, which is certainly valuable to every housewife. It takes up the room of 14 inches when folded, and has five bars, which unfold and make a strong, durable, and convenient dryer for clothes, and one that will not overturn. They cost only $1.50, and they are so much superior to anything else in the market, that the price of all other dryers has gone down—down—down. Then there is a five cent counter, and one for 10 cents and 25 cents, filled with all sorts of useful household ware, which must be seen. No woman would pass these counters without finding on them something desired. New goods are being put in constantly and Mr. Trask is having a good sale on these articles. Then over the stairs is a large new rack for brooms and rakes, of which there is a good assortment. There can also be found here oak and hemlock tanned sole leather—for tapping—and belt leather—a big line of steel shovels, all sizes and varieties from 50 cents upwards, rubber and felt moldings for doors and windows, just the thing to put on now, and some wire flower pot stands, which is the most convenient thing we have seen. For workmen in our shops Mr. Trask has just put in a new line of rubber aprons at $1.25—never before sold less than $1.90. In general hardware, paints, oils, lamps, and such goods Mr. Trask's is headquarters. We advise our readers to visit Mr. Trask's store, and to remember that there is nothing in his line that cannot be found there—and at bottom prices.

We cannot too strongly urge upon our readers the necessity of subscribing for a family, weekly newspaper of the first class—such, for instance, as The Independent, of New York. Were we obliged to select one publication for habitual and careful reading to the exclusion of all others, we should choose unhesitatingly The Independent. It is a newspaper, magazine, and review, all in one. It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial, and a political paper combined. It has 32 folio pages and 22 departments. No matter what a person's religion, politics or profession may be, no matter what the age, sex, employment or condition may be, The Independent will prove a help, an instructor, an educator. Our readers can do no less than to send a postal for a free specimen copy, or for thirty cents the paper will be sent a mouth, enabling one to judge of its merits more critically, Its yearly subscription is $3.00, or two years for $5.00. Address, The Independent, 251 Broadway, New York City.

ONLY A STEP.—When catarrh has progressed to a certain extent, it is only a step to that terribly fatal disease, consumption. If you have catarrh, even slightly, it is a terrible mistake to allow it to continue its course unchecked. If you will only read you will find conclusive reasons why you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, in the statements of many people who have been completely cured of the disease in its most severe forms. Send for book containing abundant evidence, to C. I. Hood & Co., proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Mass.

A tramp was arrested, taken before an up country justice, and sentenced to three months. His worship, in explaining the sentence, remarked that while there was no evidence that the prisoner had been guilty of any crime, he thought it prudent to commit him, as he had the wild, haggard look of a man about to start a newspaper.—The Northumbrain.

IN THE FOREST CITY.—Mr. G. E. Byram, No. 151 Putnam street Cleveland, Ohio, has naturally much experience in sickness,—with a family of seven children, and his doctors' and druggists' bills are heavy. He states publicly that he has given Red Star Cough Cure a thorough trial in his home, and finds it to be the best remedy that he has ever used for coughs or cold. It contains neither morphia or opium, and therefore leaves no depressing effects.

MARBLEHEAD.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

It seems to be the proper thing among our exchanges just now to notice each other in complimentary terms and otherwise when they deserve it. The PRESS has received a large number of such notices of late, and would return thanks for the same.

The Milford Journal last week issued a special edition the size of its regular edition, containing both sides of the controversy in regard to the division of that town. It was an enterprising piece of work, and placed the matter squarely before the public. The Journal in its regular edition opposes the division as solidly as the Messenger did in Old Marblehead last winter.

Editor Shepard, of the Danvers Mirror, has established a real estate and intelligence office in connection with his paper. It does seem that the double business should go well together, and we have faith to believe that Brother Shepard will make a success of it.

That leading Democratic paper of New York City—The Sun, has a card in another column. We look for it as regularly as we do the Boston papers.

The Merrimac Budget comes to us regularly, and from all appearances is doing a thriving business. It frequently issues double numbers, showing that people there believe in advertising, and whereever you find such a community, you can bet you have "struck" a wide awake people.

Some of our exchanges are telling what a first class paper the Middleboro News is as it enters upon its fifth volume. We haven't the pleasure of exchanging, and will Brother Sylvester please send it along that we may judge of its merits.

What is the trouble with that excellent paper the Lynn Transcript? It has not reached us for several weeks till Wednesday morning, and it was probably mailed Saturday, and the Union too did not get here till Wednesday last week. We shall have to ask our neighbors to send their papers on the horse cars.

The Beverly Citizen is appreciated, and the large amount of work put into it by Editor Cook, is beginning to tell Last week they were obliged to issue a supplement.

The Gloucester Bulletin is giving its readers a large amount of reading matter of an interesting and local nature. But we can't help thinking that if the machine that furnishes it with poetry should become clogged, its circulation would have quite a boom.

The Cambridge Press, one of our old exchanges, has taken a new departure, and is devoting many columns of its valuable space to local affairs. Until recently, it has been contented to furnish solid reading in the shape of editorials, but has probably found that the public like the "little locals" sandwiched in.

We have watched with considerable interest the success of the Waltham Record as a semi-weekly. We have always contended there was no half way place between a weekly and a daily, but must confess that the Record through the push and enterprise of its managers seems to be making a success of it. The Record is one of our most interesting exchanges and is out spoken on all subjects concerning the welfare of the smart little city in which it is published. It has now passed into the hands of the Pratt Bros., of Marlboro, who will have considerable to do to keep it where it has been placed by Bro. Barry.

We like the Woburn Journal. Its locals are written in a breezy, western, off hand style that often provoke a smile when the subject matter is the most serious imaginable. But it has queer ideas sometimes. For instance, last week, it speaks thus of Capt. Crane, the representative elect from that town, elected by the labor vote, and last year elected on the Butler ticket:

> Capt. Crane voted several times in the interest of temperance during last session of the Legislature, and there is good reason for the belief that he will do so again next winter if the opportunity is given him.

It then says:

> The Metropolitan Police law will doubtless come before the Legislature for repeal this winter, and if it does it is hoped that Capt. Crane will not disappoint his Republican supporters.

Now any one would naturally think the Journal expected Capt. Crane to vote against the repeal of the Metropolitan police bill, if it comes before the next Legislature. But it don't mean anything of the sort. The Journal is one of the very few Republican papers which is not in favor of the Metropolitan Police bill, and this too while professing to be a temperance paper. The action of the democratic members, at the last stage of the passage of the bill, ought to have convinced any paper, whatever their previous opinions, that the necessity for the law existed. It "gave away" the whole animus of the opposition. But the Journal is a good republican paper, and the good results already achieved by the change in Boston ought to have weight with it.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

For the first time, Mr. Samuel Plastrick, "the very model" of a Hebrew commercial traveller, will bring his samples to the stage of the Boston Theatre this week. "Sam'l of Posen" has invariably proved a great drawing card. The central character, as portrayed by Mr. M. B. Curtis, is recognized as "drawn from life" and its humor and spirit commend it to a good many people who do not care as a rule for stage portrayals. "Sam'l of Posen" will have on the stage of the Boston Theatre every advantage of elaborate scenic setting.

With a better "Humbug" play than ever—and made additionally attractive by including a pocket edition of "The Mikado," with the original Ko Ko to sing and dance—Mr. Roland Reed comes to the Park this week. "Humbug" has been warmly commended by many critics, and the star will have the advantage of being surrounded by a specially engaged company. In addition to his "Mikado" offering, the popular impersonator of Jack Luster will introduce in the course of "Humbug" that popular song by Sydney Rosenfeld, "With the Accent On," which is everywhere a great go.

Neither Mr. William Redmund nor Mrs. Thomas Barry need any introduction to a Boston audience. They are assured on their re-entrance on the Boston Museum stage a worthy welcome. The engagement of these stars, limited to this week, will be marked by the production, in elegant, style of their successful romantic play "A Midnight Marriage." The drama has enjoyed a career of over 350 performances; and the stars will be supported by their own combination.

The Hollis Street Theatre becomes this week, a Boston institution. Manager Rich is singularly fortunate in his opening production. "The Mikado" has long been awaited with eagerness. Under the direction of Mr. John Stetson, the Gilbert and Sullivan opera will be given with all the ornateness of stage setting and attention to every detail of representation that has won so much admiration from attendants at the Fifth Avenue Theatre in New York. The director will be John Braham. In the principal roles there are to appear Miss Laura Clement, an English favorite; Miss Hattie Delaro, Miss Rosa Cooke, Pearl Dudley, Mr. Arthur Wilkinson, Mr. John Howson, Mr. George Olmi, Signor Brocolini, S. Cadwallader, and other favorites. Chorus and orchestra will be the largest ever engaged in a comic opera production in this city.

"His Little Hatchet" is to be the opening attraction of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence at the Museum—the first these favorites have played at this house. This piece will be offered Monday November 16, and on Thursday it is to be supplanted by "Dombey and Son," with Mr. Florence as Captain Cuttle, one of his greatest character impersonations. "The Mighty Dollar" is to have a single performance during the engagement—on Saturday night the 21st.

Rose Coghlan will be the Park star next week, presenting "Our Joan," Mr. Meredith's play, with the original New York scenery, and a cast including Frazer Coulter and other well known members of the profession.

Salvini will begin his engagement at the Boston Theatre, November 30, appearing as the Gladiator, Othello, Coriolanus and the Outlaw. On the off nights Alexander Salvini will appear in "The Duke's Motto."

The new Augustin Daly play will give the Boston Museum company their re-entrance after the Booth tour.

A CELEBRATED PIANO.—For nearly fifty years the Pianos made by Wm. Knabe & Co., of Baltimore, and 112 Fifth Avenue, New York, have been before the public. Their fame for singing quality of tone, ease of action, durability, and workmanship was long ago established. The most thorough and conscientious attention is paid by the firm to every detail. In the construction of their Pianos the best Rosewood, English Oak, Mahogany and Ebony are used. The evenness of the scale is marvellous and the upper tones especially, are as clear and sparkling as a bell. Knabe & Co's Pianos are used at Dr. Damrosch's concerts. The firm established an agency in Mexico not long ago, and orders are already pouring in.—New York Sun.

CATARRH.—Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. (A)

"Say" shouted a boy in front of the city hall the other afternoon. Something like fifty men came to a dead halt. "Say! your wife said I was to tell you not to forget to bring home tea!" continued the boy, in a louder voice. Forty-five men wheeled, slapped their legs and grunted out: "Hanged if I hadn't forgotten all about it!"—Exchange

Revised Chronicles.

And it came to pass in the Region of Mountains that one Jared begat a son, and he called his name Enoch, and he said "He shall be a sign unto the nations and a disciple unto the foolish." And Enoch grew rapidly in (dis)grace. Selah.

And while Enoch was still in the flower of his youth, he went into a new land and sojourned there. And his shoulders were bowed down by reason of the burdens he bore, for Enoch was the menial of a bricklayer. And it came to pass, on a certain day, as Enoch looked down from the dizzy height of the two story house he had scaled, his eye rested on Lawyer's Square, and the men who went in and out, and earned their bread by the sweat of their wits. And Enoch said unto himself, "I have much in common with these, but while their sole property is wit, I possess not only this, but likewise knavery. I will go down among them, and be as one of their number." And Enoch cast aside his tray, and went down into the great Square, and apprenticed himself to a lawyer; and having passed examination by the skin of his teeth, as it were, he set up an office on the public highway. And he knoweth not Latin, yea, verily, nor his native tongue, but speaketh in a strange language even unto this day. And shortly after he began to call in unto him the populace, and to say unto them, "Give me of your shekels, and I will release you from your burdens."

And not a few of the foolish were left empty handed in the market place, because of the deception he had practised upon them; and they christened him, "Enoch False."

But he went out and sat in the high places (having squeezed himself in among men of goodly patterns) and he made long faces in the synagogue. Selah. And he took unto himself a partner, who was a literary man and a scholar. And Enoch's soul was filled with ambition, and he said, in a mysterious and vague manner, "Excelsior," and shortly after there went out from his office a book, and the name of the volume was "A Twin Existence" and it was destitute of wit, wisdom and grammar, and not long therefter some learned men found the plot written down elsewhere. Selah.

And Enoch lost caste among his followers, and his business grew beautifully less, and he adopted literature as a profession, and the language he used, abounded in idioms, and no man, even unto this day, knoweth the construction thereof. And it came to pass that one morning there was a violent explosion, and Enoch was not, for Beelzebub took him.

THE BAD BOY'S FRIEND.

Grandma is old and wrinkled and gray,
The bloom of her beauty has faded away,
But the words of affection still fall from her tongue,
And her heart is as warm as when she was young.
She's kind to the young, and it makes her heart glad
To shield the bad boy from the wrath of his dad.
Ah! let him be grateful to her while he may,
He'll lose a warm friend when she passes away.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by scrofulous taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was

Can be

Cured

Of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That flow from the nose, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

ONWARD! ONWARD! ROLLS THE WAVE!

OSBORNE'S MATCHLESS BOOTS.

RIDE THE TOPMOST CREST.

The extremely gratifying result of the mark down sale of these now famous boots are induced us to continue their sale at $1.85 for 30 Days More. The remarkable Beauty of Style, Perfection of Fit, and Lowness of Price of these inimitable boots, admirably adapts them to meet the popular demand for a Fine Dress Boot at a price within the means of every one. They have made A Hit! A Palpable Hit! and their extraordinary merits have been appreciated by hundreds of customers, who have nothing but praise for their many excellent points. Equal in all the qualities that catch the eye to any $3 boot in the market. They are Models of Grace and Beauty, and are irresistibly forcing to the rear the inferior styles of our would-be competitors.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to compete with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims

The Peabody Press.

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,
Editors and Publishers.

WE GIVE a tolerably full report, in another column, of the objections urged by Rev. Mr. Spaulding to the building of the proposed road in West Peabody. We commend them to our readers, and we do so the more willingly because he certainly makes out a better case than the petitioners for the road.

At the town meeting, as was said by him, there was a very small attendance. Very few people seemed to know much about the merits of the case. There was a small number present at the hearing. Surely the road benefits West Peabody people if anyone. We don't imagine any of the residents in this part of the town, as far as their own personal convenience is concerned, care a picayune whether the road is built or not. But if the West Peabody people need it as a public convenience, there does not seem to be a disposition to oppose it.

If the West Peabody people want the road, they certainly show little interest. We believe the road surveyor of that district was present at the town meeting, besides Mr. Appleton. At the hearing the number was increased by one, we believe, including the reverend gentleman who spoke against it.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the road appears to be that there is a considerable grade, seven and one-half feet to a hundred, on the old road. It was argued that it would be a deal more economical, and serve the purpose nearly as well, to remove the grade on the old road.

We do not propose to argue the case for the Commissioners, but we submit that $2000 is considerable of an expenditure for what does not appear to be a very great public necessity. Peabody has no money to expend extravagantly, and it is a matter worthy of some consideration if it is a wise course to lay out the road.

We do not often agree with Rev. Mr. Spaulding, but in this case we confess we shall have to hear stronger reasons in favor of the road before we shall be convinced that he is not right.

IN THE make up of the PRESS recently, considerable original, local, and interesting matter is put on the inside pages, and these pages this week are of especial interest. There is a letter from the West, descriptive of a visit to some of our former townspeople, from the pen of Charles C. Hills, the correspondent of the News. There is a full report of Mr. Spaulding's remarks on the road proposed in West Peabody; there is a defense of Barnes' History of the United States, from the pen of a gentleman particularly qualified to write on such matters; besides the usual columns of dramatic and musical notes. There are other articles which will not be overlooked by our readers.

IT IS noted that the Peabody Institute Course of lectures will be given this year in the Institute itself. This was done after much consideration by the Committee, and we are inclined to believe it may be wisdom. If it should prove to be so, before the Course is through, it is a terrible reflection upon our large Town Hall. The Institute hall is not large enough to accommodate our population,—or at least as many as ought to attend the free lectures. If the large hall is not the place for a free show, we are at a loss to know what use is to be made of it.

"False History."

Under the above heading the Salem Telegram lately published an editorial condemning in strong terms Barnes' History of the United States. It uses such words as "untruthful," "unreliable," "a disgrace to our schools," and states that the book "is full of errors from beginning to end." If this is so Peabody people ought to know it, for it is the text book in use in our schools. Let us examine the matter a little.

The first error noted is recorded in the book in question in these words: "Rumors of a plan to assassinate Lincoln impelled him to come to Washington in disguise." This is all, with no hint about a "Scotch cap" or a "big shawl;" while the fact behind this is that no incident in Mr. Lincoln's history is better substantiated than that his plans were changed as to how and when he should reach Washington; and that he went secretly in the night, by special train, with telegraph wires cut behind him, from Harrisburg to Washington, the movement being known only to a very few. In the light of this fact it would seem that anybody who calls the quotation from the history untrue and having a tendency to hold up Mr. Lincoln "as a man lacking in moral and physical courage," must read either through malevolent eyes or eyes distorted by deep seated prejudice.

On the other hand let us see what the book does say of Mr. Lincoln's character. On the next page to the one quoted from are these words: "He (Mr. Lincoln) was gifted by nature with great common sense and everywhere known as 'Honest Abe.' Kind, earnest, sympathetic, faithful, democratic, he was anxious only to serve his country." "This is the book which the Salem school committee sanctions." But "this one is not the only error," says the Telegram. "It is full of them, and is the only history published in the North which tells the story of the late war from the southern side." The accounts of the battles of Belmont and Pea Ridge are the only incidents referred to, and these, to quote further from the critic, "which are grossly untrue, we have previously shown are copied almost verbatim from the reports of rebel generals." It will be sufficient answer to this "grossly untrue" charge to quote from the history itself. "Later in the fall Gen. Grant made an attack upon a Confederate force which had crossed over from Kentucky and taking post at Belmont." Only this and nothing more.

Of Pea Ridge, Barnes says: "The Confederates, by great exertion, increased their army to twenty thousand, Gen Van Dorn now taking command. Gen. Curtis, in a desperate battle, totally defeated him(Van Dorn)at Pea Ridge." This account, whether from Pollard or not, can be verified from the best and most authentic histories of the Rebellion. The only thing from Pollard in connection with the above, is in regard to some Indians who joined the Confederate army, and took part in this battle. Pollard says, and this Barnes quotes, "They were difficult to manage in the deafening roar of the artillery, which drowned their loudest war-whoops. They were amazed at the sight of guns which ran around on wheels; annoyed by the falling of trees behind which they took shelter; and in a word, their main service was in consuming rations." This is a foot-note in the history. Dreadful, isn't it, to tell the story of the war, "from the southern side" in such language as this.

The fact is Barnes' U. S. History is among the best, if not the best school history published, and its popularity is well indicated by the recent issue of an entirely new edition, which is, without question, the most elegant school book ever put into the hands of school children.

SOUTH PEABODY.

At the Seventh Annual Meeting of the Essex South Branch Woman's Board of Missions held in the South church Salem, last Wednesday, a number of Peabody ladies were present. Mrs. George A. Osborne recently returned from abroad gave a valuable paper on the McAll Mission in Paris. Miss Fannie Brown was appointed Secretary of the Mission Circle, and it was voted to hold the June meeting of the Branch with Rev. J. W. Colwell, of this place.

The Marblehead Messenger says: "The Lynn horse-car had a narrow escape from destruction last Monday noon, it having passed the tree which was blown down, near Cross street, but about four minutes before it fell." It is a little singular but the noon car from Lynn on the Peabody branch on the same day, just passed the large willow tree at South Peabody when it fell across the track.

Miss Flavia M. Goodwin was given a very pleasant surprise at her home in South Peabody, last Wednesday evening, by a number of her young companions. She was presented during the evening with a handsome gold ring and music book.

Mr. Hardy M. Shillaber, a respected resident of So. Peabody, died at his home on Lynn street, yesterday, of Bright's disease, after a not very severe illness. He was 73 years of age and a widower. One son and two daughters survive him.

MUSICAL NOTES.

The musicale at the house of Warren Wilson, Jr., last Thursday evening, was a successful inauguration of a series which it is proposed to hold every month, in the parlors of several of our musical people, who are interested in the matter. The invited guests, from Peabody and Salem, were all musical people, by whom the rendering of choice selections was fully appreciated. Miss Clemens' rendering of Tosti's "Good Bye" was particularly pleasing. The second musicale is to be given by Miss Alice Nelson.

We have the pleasure of announcing, in another column, a series of concerts and entertainments by the Salem Cadet Band, to be given in Mechanic Hall, beginning about the middle of December. The course is to open with an opera, by one of the first class opera companies in Boston, to be followed by Walter Emerson and his Concert Company, a lecture by Harry W. French, the Ladies Schubert Quartette and Leland T. Powers, a miscellaneous Concert, and the Salem Cadet Band—last but not least. The Band has hosts of friends in town, and we hope the Course will be well patronized. Tickets will be for sale by members of the band, and elsewhere, probably, when more definite arrangements have been made.

It is understood that Mr. E. S. Mac gregor will sing at the South church, beginning Dec. 1st.

The recital at Plummer Hall, last Saturday afternoon, for the benefit of the Salem Oratorio Society, by J. Phippen Jr., was greatly enjoyed. It was a rare musical treat.

The first rehearsal of the Salem Schubert Club occurs this evening.

It is expected that the new lecture room of the Peabody Academy of Science, will be ready for dedication about the middle of January, when a musicale will be given by such artists as Elene Buffinton Kehew, Sopha C. Hall, Avon D. Saxon, and others to be announced.

At Professor Bill's Concert in Gloucester, Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th, several Salem people will take part, among them Miss Amanda Bailey, Mr. E. S. Macgregor, H. B. Innis, and the Misses Bill. Mr. S. C. T. Aborn, of Lynn, will read.

In nearly all of our exchanges, where we see announcements of a course of entertainments, appears the name of Edward K. Hood, the manager of the fine course given in Lynn every year. Mr. Hood is one of the best—and we congratulate the people of the different towns and cities where he is to appear, on the rare treat in store for them.

There may be jealousy among professional people, but it is not often, it may thankfully be said, that the rudeness of which a solo soprano was guilty a few Sundays ago is equalled. She had been an unsuccessful aspirant for a church position, and went to the church, where, seated under the eyes of her successful rival, she made such noticeable sport of her singing as disturbed the congregation to such an extent that the chairman of the committee determined to write her that if she could not deport herself with courtesy she had much better not attend the service there.—Boston Home Journal.

The Oxford Male Quartette, who sang in Peabody Institute a few weeks since will sing in Salem. Dec. 7th, in a course given by the Wesley M. E. Church of that place.

Since our last issue, two of the entertainments in Hood's Course, of Lynn, have occurred. Every seat in the hall is sold, and the people even crowd up on the stage. No better endorsement than this can be given of the entertainments furnished.

This evening is given in Chickering Hall, Boston, a ballad concert, by Mr. Abercrombie, of Boston, of which we made mention last week. It is the event of the week in musical circles.

Our people very generally concede that Mr. E. V. Emilio is one of the finest piano tuners in this vicinity. He does a good share of this work in town.

The little paper the "Spinet," published for the Oratorio Society Fair, contains much historical musical information. The past work of the Society, also the Schubert club, is outlined in full. It is valuable for preservation, and copies can be had of Merrill & Mackintire.

The run of Flotow's Stradella has closed at the Bijou in Boston, and another opera takes its place, this time one of Mr. Neuendorff's own composition. With it comes Georgine von Januschowsky, whose performances last season at this same theatre are so pleasurably remembered. There will also be heard Janet Edmondson, Emma Tuttle, Walter Pelham, besides Babcock, Fessenden and other favorites. Its reception last evening was very gratifying.

The operetta, "The Three Bears" which has been in preparation by the Young Workers of the Unitarian Society, under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Ferguson, will be given in the Vestry next Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 18, and Thursday evening Nov. 19.

The Misses Nelson, who give selections on the violin at the Baptist Fair this evening, are daughters of John A. Messer of the Salem Cadet Band.

Mr. E. B. Balcomb, who built the drying loft of Poor & Littlefield, will build the one for Horace A. Southwick at Tapleyville.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Edwin N. Freeman, for being drunk, was fined $3 and costs, last Friday.

Willie McGee, living on Tremont street, was badly bitten on the hand by a vicious dog one day last week.

Henry Meader, of South Peabody, was fined $1 and costs for sampling too much of the "forbidden fruit" last Saturday.

A boy named John O'Hara, while jumping over the hydrant cover in front of P. J. Lyons' barber shop, last Saturday, fell and broke his thumb.

Some one has daubed the Lexington monument with a lot of brown paint. Such vandalism should be severely punished if the guilty party is detected.

The Salem papers speak of the heroism of Mr. Lewis Manning in stopping a runaway horse in that city, last Thursday, thereby preventing probable injury.

Mr. William Marrs, employed at Elbridge Rust's, had his foot badly injured, recently, by the falling of a piece of the press used in extracting grease on it.

A carryall containing a gentleman and three ladies, while coming down Lowell street last Thursday, met with an accident by the horse falling and breaking a shaft.

Mrs. Monohan, living on Foster street, while standing on a chair at her residence, one day last week, fell and sustained a fracture of the small bones in one wrist.

Fred Shaw, of So. Peabody, while doing a little fancy bicycle riding near the High School, last Friday, was thrown to the ground and badly sprained his left wrist.

A heifer belonging to Geo. Boynton, on Endicott street, attempted to jump a stone wall, last Wednesday, and the wall fell on her breaking her leg. She had to be killed.

A deaf and dumb man, living in Salem, was knocked down and run over on Central street, last Friday, by a buggy. He was some bruised and the skin was broken about his face.

In the Superior Court last Friday, the case of Edward Draper was called and he was fined $50 and costs for keeping liquor, and Elizabeth Sweeney was fined the same for a similar offence.

Christopher Campbell was fined $50 and costs on one case and $100 and costs on another, making $230 in all. This is the liquor case of the party who lived on the line between Peabody and Salem.

A boy named McDonald, while prospecting on the roof of the old Upton tannery, last Friday, fell through, but striking upon a lot of rubbish was not seriously injured although he was considerably scared.

In the Superior Court at Lawrence last Wednesday, John Carney of this town, was fined $50 and costs, and given four months in the house of correction for selling liquor without a license.

A six-year old boy named Lee, while chopping wood at Samuel Trask's wood yard last Friday, dropped the axe on his left hand and chopped off the forefinger. The wound was dressed by a physician.

Last Saturday two boys got to fighting over a game of truck on Walnut street, when one of them named Birmingham bit his companion named Burnes on the face and arm, in the latter place drawing blood.

A little girl named O'Shea, six years old, living on Fulton street, recently ate a number of red ivy berries and was shortly afterwards taken sick. An emetic was given and the child recovered, although she was very sick.

Mrs Nancy, widow of the late Franklin Osborn, living on the corner of Foster and Oak streets, fell by tripping over the carpet and broke her hip. She is over 80 years of age and no hopes are entertained of her recovery.

The little spaniel dog belonging to Allen Osborne had its paw broken in two places, recently, by some one throwing something at him. A physician set the bone, and the dumb animal showed his gratitude by licking his hand.

In the Superior Court docket is the case of Jas. O. Safford et al vs. Charles A. Weare. This is a suit to redeem the property occupied by C. H. Goulding as a furniture store, and formerly owned by E. W. Jacobs, but was sold on execution in 1882 and purchased by Mr. Ware.

The police called on Wm. R. Austin and secured two gallons of sweet cider, last Saturday night, and at the saloon of Ellen Ring they found thirty-one bottles of lager and a bottle of whiskey. Charles P. Elligott and James Corbett were visited.

An eight year old boy named Willie Butler nearly lost the sight of one eye recently. He was catching on behind a wagon belonging to one of our masons, when the driver threw a piece of soft cement at him striking him in the eye and badly burning it. He was taken to Dr. Coggin and is now doing nicely.

A resident on Wallis street found a hornet's nest a few days ago which he supposed was uninhabited, and took it home to a warm room. Shortly afterwards the hornets came to life and there was a lively scene in that house. One room the hornets appropriated to themselves and occasionally one would put in an appearance in other rooms.

Last Friday afternoon as Mr. George H. Poor with his span of spirited animals was driving around the corner of Foster and Lowell streets, a boy named Chisholm ran directly in front of them and was knocked down. The horses, who were walking at the time, seemed to realize the situation, and stepped over the boy, who escaped without injury.

It seems by the Boston papers, that the man giving the name of S. J. Brice, and claiming Nova Scotia as his home, who had a hemorrhage on Lowell street, and another after reaching Danvers, was an impostor, and has been working the dodge in many places. By creating sympathy in this way, he would obtain large sums of money. At Danvers he got $5.00, and in one place enough to pay his fare to Lewiston, Me.

As a lady and gentleman were driving along Main street, Monday afternoon, in a buggy, the transom bolt broke, dropping the buggy and throwing out the occupants. The horse ran a short distance but was stopped and the damage quickly repaired. No serious damage was done.

The liquor cases of William Austin, Ellen Ring and James Moriarty were called this morning and continued one week.

In the police court yesterday John Ring, charged with assault on Catherine Kingston, paid costs, $4.33.

Mr. James R. Murphy, of Spring street, was arrested on Sunday, and on Monday morning Doctors Osborne and Pike pronounced him insane and he was taken to the Danvers Asylum.

By arrangement with the Essex Institute, of Salem, Mr. John Fiske, who is to give a course of thirteen lectures in Tremont Temple, Boston, beginning this week, will give a course of four lectures on the Battles of the Civil War in Salem Mechanic Hall, as advertised in another column. Mr. Fiske has a brilliant reputation as a lecturer, and his theme cannot fail to interest both the veterans and their sons, as well as others. The Great Battles of the Civil War are matters of absorbing interest, and with the new and fine stereopticon pictures, taken specially for these lectures, an audience only limited by the capacity of Mechanic Hall, should be gathered.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

When J. Warren Upton, librarian of the Peabody library, was re-arranging things to suit himself, he came across a work in manuscript, concerning events in Charleston, S. C. harbor, previous to the war, and sent it to that city. It proved very valuable to them, as the city had just made an appropriation for the obtaining of historical facts concerning it. It was no use to our library and would probably have gone into the waste paper basket.

The Salem & Danvers horse Railroad Company has purchased the Teel estate on Central street for $7000. The stable which is now occupied by Mr. Ira Foster, will be fitted to accommodate 40 to 50 horses. A car house with a capacity of eight cars will be built. The company, it is understood, will run half hour trips between the Andover street bridge and Salem. Geo. Spaulding is remodeling the stable and will put in about thirty-two stalls.

Some tailors can tell by the look of the customer what style of goods will best suit his figure and complexion, and when the goods selected are made up they look as though they were fitted by an artist. Such tailors are Howley & Brennan and their reputation for good work is equal to their good fit. They have now a full line of fall and winter clothing, which they are prepared to make up in overcoats or suits.

The other day we received a very ponderous and official looking document from the post office department, and at first we thought we had received an appointment and was about to order a box of those excellent cigars at Spaulding's, when we opened it and found inside only a list of the post offices where the special delivery was in operation. We shall continue to be an offensive partisan.

Col. Cyrus T. Batchelder of Peabody was chosen Representative from that town, on Tuesday, by a vote of 578, to 405 for W. H. Brown, Democrat, and the present member. Col. Batchelder is the senior member of the firm of Batchelder & Co., coal dealers at the Port, and is a first class man in every respect. We congratulate Mr. Batchelder, and the town of Peabody.—Danvers Mirror.

The leaves continue to fall without as much as saying "By your leave," and the tree trunks and limbs are becoming as destitute of decoration as the trunks and limbs of Fiji islanders. The old belief that the leaves waited for frost before turning color was not sustained this season, for the foliage dropped its green hue before the thermometer fell to the freezing point.

The Officers of the Band of Hope for the present month are as follows: Superintendent, Miss M. J. Floyd; President, Henry M. Melcher; Vice Presidents, Miss Hattie M. Saunders, Miss Hattie A. Thatcher; Secretary, Miss Nellie Burton; Treasurer, Miss Louise E. Osborne; Collector, Miss Jennie Strout; Librarian, Miss Minnie McNeal.

What everybody says must have a pretty good foundation in fact, and everybody says the Peabody Laundry is the best place to have laundry done of every description. Every article passes through experienced hands and is given personal attention. We learn that Mr. Sanger will soon add steam, and a large amount of improved machinery.

Rev. C. B. Rice of Danvers preached at the South church, last Sabbath. His discourse was a defense of the characteristics of the pilgrims. He gave an interesting account of the troubles which led to their emigration to these shores—in fact the whole discourse was a very able production.

C. A. Thomas has reduced the price of admission to the rink this season and it will be as follows:—Afternoon sessions, 10 cts; evening sessions, 15 cts; package tickets, good for eight admissions, $1; skate checks, 10 cts. Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, children, 10 cts., including use of skates.

Mr. Luther Whitney Mason, formerly superintendent of music in the Boston schools, was in town last Friday afternoon. He is the author of several works on music.

On account of the free lectures occurring on Thursday evening, the Peabody rink will be open on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and evenings at present.

The total vote of Massachusetts in all but five small towns was,—for Robinson, 112,348; for Prince, 90,133; for Lothrop, 4594; for Sumner, 2184. Robinson's plurality over Prince, 22,210.

Honora O'Connor, a four year old child, died at her home yesterday from pneumonia. She was as well as usual and at play in the streets Sunday.

Last evening West Lynn lodge of Odd Fellows paid a fraternal visit to Holten Lodge of this town. The visiting brothers came in barges arriving about quarter of nine. After an address of welcome, and a few minutes in which to get acquainted, the lodge was closed and an excellent entertainment was provided for the enjoyment of the visitors, and members of Holten Lodge. It consisted of singing by the Hawthorne Quartette, with Leslie Goldthwaite as accompanist, who are well known to our readers, and of readings by Brothers Weare, Goldthwaite and Winslow of Holten Lodge. Each part was pleasing and heartily encored. About half past ten the committee having the matter in charge invited all to partake of a spread, which had been prepared by Past Grand N. C. Patterson at the town hall, consisting of escalloped oysters, cold meats, fruit, ice cream, cake, coffee, etc. After the cigars had been passed, there was the usual flow of eloquence and wit, interspersed with singing by the quartette. It was a happy, social time and every speech elicited warm applause. The company broke up about half past twelve by all joining in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

The fair at the Baptist vestry for the benefit of the Parsonage society was opened very successfully yesterday afternoon. There is the usual display of useful and fancy articles, also a confectionery counter and a table used exclusively for articles furnished by Aunt Sally Wheeler, over 80 years of age, who had hoped to be present to tend it, but having overworked in preparing the articles she was unable to do so. There was an album quilt on exhibition on which the ladies have already received some $85, and which is now offered for sale. The leading feature last evening was a barbecue supper and it was enjoyed by a large number and the tables had to be reset several times. The novelty consisted in serving on each table a roasted pig which was duly carved and partaken of, besides all the other good things. This evening there is to be an entertainment with violin selections by the Misses Messer, of Salem, which will begin promptly at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Timothy Mullane died at her home on English street, this morning, very suddenly of heart trouble. She had not been feeling well for the past two weeks, but was able to be about the house, and was attending to her work, when she died at ten o'clock today. She was a lady well known in town, and loved and respected by all who knew her. She was over fifty years of age. She leaves a husband, a daughter, Mrs. P. H. O'Conor, and a son Cornelius, who have the sympathy of the community.

Union Post 50 G. A. R., assisted by the Ladies' Relief Corps, have arranged for a grand fair to be held in town hall January 19th, 20, 21, 22 and 23d, inclusive. Every purchaser of a ticket will be entitled to a chance in 100 gifts, three-quarters of which is cash. The grand gift is $1000 and besides that there is to be given away a $500 piano, a $300 buggy, $325 sleigh, $100 chamber set, gents' gold watch, ladies' gold watch, besides many others of more or less value.

Last evening, Rev. J N. Shipman, pastor of the Baptist church, united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. Geo. O. H. Pope to Miss Anna P. Hackett, the well known store keeper on Main street. The ceremony was private, but the newly married couple are receiving the congratulations of their many friends and the PRESS is pleased to be counted among the number. Mrs. Pope will continue her store at the old stand, we are informed.

In another column there is an announcement by the Old Ladies Home Auxiliary Society. They will give a supper at town hall, Tuesday evening, November 17, to be followed by dancing. Music will be furnished by the Salem Cadet Band, which must prove a pleasing feature. The object is a worthy one and should meet with a hearty response from our citizens.

Thanksgiving day is nearing its eventful advent. In a few weeks the wail of the turkey will be loud in the land, and the butcher's boy will sharpen his edged tools for the work of slaughter which is incumbent upon the observance of their king of feast days. Have your hatchet sharpened at A. W. Jones' factory on Wallis street.

The shipments of leather from Peabody and Salem for the week ending Nov. 7, were 7281 rolls, 1091 sides, 171 bundles, 14 barrels, 10 boxes, 10 bales of leather, 141 rolls, 31 bales, 22 bundles, 1 cask of skins.

The Salem police don't want to play polo with the Peabody officers before an audience. They are too modest, they say. This is the first time anything belonging to Salem was ever accused of modesty.

W. M. Ward shipped four coops of Brahma fowls to Leominster, two to Fishkill, N. Y., and one to Concord, N. H.

Business Notices.

Edward C. Almy & Co. have an announcement of unusual interest in another column which is of interest to every male reader. This firm although a new one, are fast building a reputation that will eventually place them in the front rank of Essex County store keepers. Read a few of their prices. English plaid suits from $15 to $25; Whip cords from $10 to $30; Overcoats from $4 to $30. Prices to suit every one.

Mary B. Wilson is offering to her Peabody customers, a line of millinery that it will be well for all to inspect. Miss Wilson has a large and constantly increasing trade from this town, and her prices are very low for the rich goods she offers, while her taste in trimming is equaled by few.

Our lady readers who find it difficult to obtain a large supply of artist materials to select from, are invited to visit the beautiful store of Mr. Charles J. Edmands, No. 12, Bromfield street, Boston. He keeps constantly in stock, a large line of decorative art goods and pottery. Plush work is made a specialty, and many ideas of new designs can be obtained by a visit to his store.

The firm of Almy, Bigelow & Washburn have arranged, in connection with their Art department, for the stamping of all kinds of materials. A room has been fitted up for this purpose, under the management of Miss M. C. Osgood, and new patterns will be designed and instruction and information given in any work of this department. The materials are for sale at the worsted counter, and new and choice designs are being constantly added. We can commend the department and the firm to our readers.

Merrill & Mackintire take a half page this week to announce the novelties which they are preparing to show to the people of Essex County. This firm, in the opening of their new toy store, have taken a step which is already proving a success, and we commend the announcement to our readers as worthy of attention.

The Foster street drain is receiving its annual cleaning out.

Rev. J. W. Hudson preached at the Universalist church last Sunday.

Mr. Thomas Fitzpatrick has removed from this town to Ballston Spa, N. Y.

Mr. Geo. F. Ward is painting the Exchange News Room in the Bank building.

Mr. George Foan has put in a new 35 horse power boiler and Albert Trask is setting it.

Mr. Edward Blaney and Harry Moore, morocco manufacturers, have dissolved partnership. See adv.

Rev. Mr. Shipman, of the Baptist church, preached an interesting sermon last Sunday to young men.

Mr. John J. Cahill has been appointed to take the agricultural census of this town and Lynnfield in behalf of the State.

We learn that Mr. Frank W. Poor has purchased another large hotel at Kansas City, Mo, known as the Metropolitan.

Among the patents recently issued was one to Thomas W. Shepard, and assigned to Edgar W. Upton, for a thermometer.

The vacant lot on Boston street, belonging to the Timothy Walton estate, was bought by J. B. Thomas yesterday, for $2700.

The Vaughn Morocco Machine Co. have just received orders for their machine to be put in at Lynch, Walsh & Donallon's, at Lynn.

Some one suggested the other day that unless we had more attractions in the town hall, the police would get rusty as dramatic critics.

Charles Harrington & Co., have just received a new engine of about 100 horse power. It was built by the Atlas Engine Works at Indianapolis, Ind.

This evening the Phœnix associates have a grand skating and dancing party at the rink and Jessie McClellan, the fancy and trick skater, will give an exhibition.

Mr. Eugene T. McCarthy has removed his law office to that of Charles A. Weare in Allen's Block, where he will be found evenings. Mr. McCarthy has also taken the office in Salem, lately occupied by Hon. C. P. Thompson, with C. W. Richardson.

About twenty of the morocco manufacturers of this town met in the Selectmen's room at the town hall, last night, to consider the price list submitted by the Morocco Finishers Union of the K. of L. The advance if paid will materially effect the morocco and sheep skin trade. There are thirty-five firms in town employing about 2000 men. The meeting was held with closed doors, but we learn that the object seemed to be the establishment of a board of Arbitration such as there is in Lynn. A committee was appointed to draw up a list of prices for the manufacturers. Nearly all the manufacturers express themselves as willing to adopt a uniform price list, and on the other hand the K. of L. believe that the manufacturers meeting will have a good effect and result in a board of arbitration. The meeting was probably the outgrowth of the presenting of a price list to Pemberton Brothers, recently.

DENTAL NOTICE.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anæsthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anæsthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

OUR GREAT SILK SALE

Is being well attended

Never before in the History of this Country were Silk Goods, Velvets, etc., offered at such low prices.

It will pay any one to travel a long distance to secure a Dress pattern of us this week. The Haskell Silks are warranted to wear well.

The abundant light in every part of it inspires a feeling of welcome at once, besides affording customers an opportunity to see what they are buying, such as no other store in Salem can begin to do. That our sales since we have got ready for business are double our most sanguine expectations, show that the people appreciate our efforts. This gratifying opening is but a beginning; we propose to make ours the most popular Dry Goods House east of Boston. "Popular Goods at Popular Prices" is our motto. All are welcome; come and see us.

We are Determined to Lead not Follow.

To quote the many additional inducements to be found in Hosiery, Lace, and our many other departments, seems unnecessary, since we give our candid assurance that prices throughout the House are low, and that a visit to our Establishment will not disappoint the shrewdest buyer, and will make even a long journey profitable.

THE INDEPENDENT.

The Largest, The Ablest, The Best.

Religious and Literary Weekly.

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London. Eng.

THE INDEPENDENT is one of the best papers in the world. Its good points are many and striking. They have only to be stated to be appreciated, and for proof of our claims appeal may be taken to any of the fifty-two issues of the year. Any number of The Independent will show that its contents are marked by—

ABILITY, VARIETY AND INTEREST.—The great thinkers, the great story-writers, the great poets, men of the highest reputation in all departments of human knowledge, make up its list of contributors. Religion, philosophy, science, literature, art, travels, discoveries, stories, and all conceivable topics are embraced in the contents, and everybody old or young, learned and unlearned, without regard to sex, employment, or condition, will find something of special interest in every issue.

COMPREHENSIVENESS.—It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial and a political paper combined.

BREADTH, CANDOR, EARNESTNESS.—The Independent is tied to no denomination; it is the organ of no clique or party in state or Church. It is free, therefore, to discuss all questions, and to speak its mind candidly. It is not swerved by fear or favor. It is a vigorous defender of the Evangelical faith, it preaches practical righteousness, and earnestly supports all moral reform. All its columns—the advertising as well as the reading—are free from everything of doubtful or objectionable character. No matter what a person's religion, politics, or profession may be, if he desires to keep up with the times and know what the brightest minds are thinking of, the ablest pens are writing about, and what the world at large is doing—he should read The Independent.

The prospect that the priesthood of the Roman Catholic church in this country, acting under the special sanction of the Pope, will ere long engage in the temperance work with a vigor and purpose never before employed, directing their efforts especially against the business of liquor selling, is one of the most encouraging promises of recent times. If that trade were put under a ban by the Roman Catholic church, the influence of the step would be very powerful. The bishops and clergy of the church can but know—probably they know better than any other persons—the waste and suffering and sin which follows in the train of the grogshops. It is apparent, also, that in all our cities a large proportion of the retail liquor shops are kept by communicants of their church. This enormous evil was the subject of an earnest expression by the plenary council of the Roman Catholic church held last year, the work of which has been sent to Rome for approbation. If the holy see sanctions this new crusade of religion and morality, and the work is resolutely undertaken, it is reasonable to hope for beneficent results.—Boston Advertiser.

The post-office department have issued a modified circular in regard to the special delivery service, which includes not only postal-cards but sealed packages, when they are properly stamped. When the special delivery business of any office is so limited as to preclude the employment of regular messengers, the postmasters are directed to make other arrangements for deliveries, having regard to the provision of law that forbids the payment of more than eight cents for the delivery of each letter. Postmasters are also directed to place a notice upon the face of registered packages containing special delivery letters, informing the postmasters at points of delivery of the nature of their contents, so that the packages may be opened immediately and the matter delivered.

Lippincott's Magazine will make its appearance next year in an entirely new dress. The double column will be done away with, and the page will be printed in large, clear, bold faced type, specially selected for the magazine. A new cover of artistic design will add to its attractions.

Stated by H. B. Cochran, druggist, Lancaster, Pa.: "Have guaranteed over 300 bottles of Burdock's Blood Bitters for dyspepsia, sour stomach, billious attacks, liver and kidney troubles."

The man who can give a fine free lunch of soup, beef, fish, vegetables, butter and bread to a customer who pays fifteen cents for a glass of liquor, could afford to give a much finer lunch for fifteen cents without liquor, as a reasonable matter of business; but no temperance man has the nerve to try it, and clerks are learning to be drunkards on account of the lunch. The temperance idea of a lunch for fifteen cents is a glass of sour milk and water, and a hardware sandwich. This does not rejoice the stomach, and the liquor man wins.—New Orleans Picayune.

DON'T GIVE UP YET. It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never to late too try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., was cured of Rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr. R. W. Mosier, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

What with the laboring men's riots in the West and Dakota pulling the tail feathers of our noble bird and the people beginning to urge the Mormons to move, it looks as though Pilot Cleveland would run the ship of State on to a sand bar.

Be Warned

in time. Kidney diseases may be prevented by purifying, renewing, and invigorating the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When, through debility, the action of the kidneys is perverted, these organs rob the blood of its needed constituent, albumen, which is passed off in the urine, while worn out matter, which they should carry off from the blood, is allowed to remain. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the kidneys are restored to proper action, and Albuminuria, or is prevented. Ayer's Sarsaparilla also prevents inflammation of the kidneys, and other disorders of these organs. Mrs. Jas. W. Weld, Forest Hill st., Jamaica Plain, Mass., writes: "I have had a complication of diseases, but my greatest trouble has been with my kidneys. Four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla made me feel like a new person; as well and strong as ever." W. M. McDonald, 46 Summer st., Boston, Mass., had been troubled for years with Kidney Complaint. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, he not only the disease from assuming a fatal form, but was restored to perfect health. John McLellan, cor. Bridge and Third sts., Lowell, Mass., writes: "For several years I suffered from Dyspepsia and Kidney Complaint, the latter being so severe at times that I could scarcely attend to my work. My appetite was poor, and I was much emaciated; but by using my appetite and digestion improved, and my health has been perfectly restored."

Bright's Disease

Prevented

For Instant Use

As a reliable remedy, in cases of Croup, Whooping Cough, or sudden Colds, and for the prompt relief and cure of throat and lung diseases, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. E. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy for home use. I have tested its curative power, in my family, many times during the past thirty years, and have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most serious affections of the throat and lungs, whether in children or adults." John H. Stoddard, Petersburg, Va., writes: "I have never found a medicine equal to

for the prompt relief of throat and lung diseases peculiar to children. I consider it an absolute cure for all such affections, and am never without it in the house." Mrs. L. E. Herman, 187 Mercer st., Jersey City, writes: "I have always found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral useful in my family." B. T. Johnson, Mt. Savage, Md., writes: "For the speedy cure of sudden Colds, and for the relief of children afflicted with Croup, I have never found anything equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is the most potent of all the remedies I have ever used." W. H. Stickler, Terre Haute, Ind., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured my wife of a severe lung affection, supposed to be Quick Consumption. We now regard the Pectoral as a household necessity." E. M. Breckenridge, Brainerd, Minn., writes: "I am subject to Bronchitis, and, wherever I go, am always sure to have a bottle of

with me. It is without a rival for the cure of bronchial affections."

Now is the time to rid the system of humors and all Blood Impurities. Ferrated Hygienic Wine is a most effective remedy. tf

At the late session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., a new degree for the uniform rank, to be called the "patriarch's militant degree," to take the place of the present degree of the uniformed camp, was adopted. The degree is officered as follows: The grand sire is ex-officio commander-in-chief. The commissioned officers are a lieutenant-general, a captain general, a brigadier, a colonel, a major, a captain, a lieutenant and an ensign. Instead of "camps," the organization hall be known as "cantons." Instead of comrades the members are designated as "chevaliers." How will it sound to greet some of our old friends thus: "Good morning, Lieutenant-General Waugh;" "nice day, Captain-General Fraiser;" "it looks like a long spell of weather, Brigadier Mills;" "How do you do, Colonel Nugent;" "nice day, Chevalier Stewart." By all means let us have "cantons" instead of "camps" and "chevaliers" instead of "comrades."—Cambridge Press.

As there has been a case of hog cholera in town, the following from the commissioners on contagious diseases is interesting. The disease is described as highly contagious, and owes its existence in any locality to a germ or seed, which may be carried about in numerous ways, even by the feet of rats and birds, by the wind or by brooks and rivers. In Massachusetts the disease has been brought by western hogs sent to this state over the railroads. Happily, hog cholera is a disease not communicable to human beings, and even affected flesh may be made inoccuous to swine by the process of cooking. The commisioners recommend, both to the consumers and farmers, a scrupulous care that the swill barrel, from which supplies go to the pigs. is kept free from bits of raw pork or pork blood from any source whatever. If a disease breaks out in a herd, measures of isolation must at once be taken.

The resurrected "Evangeline," at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, has really caught on. It is drawing big houses. How it reminds one of the days of auld lang syne, when Eliza Weathersby was young, Nat Goodwin just beginning his climb, Harry Josephs and Harry Murdock alive, Lilian Conway, unmarried, Harry Dixey unknown and unseen of fame, save as the hind legs of a heifer, and Crane had not taken to the legitimate.

NO COMMON SOLDIER.

An old French writer relates the following of the reign of Louis XIV: "On parade one morning, when my grandfather was inspecting his new regiment he saw a soldier who held his musket awkwardly, and was about to reprove the man, when the major whispered him not to notice it as he would be informed of the reason. When the parade was over the major related that when the regiment was quarted in the provinces, this soldier, then a corporal, saw two of his comrades fighting in the street with drawn swords. By a general order soldiers were forbidden to draw swords in the streets under pain of losing the right hand—the corporal therefore, seeing the consequence likely to accrue to his comrades, rushed to prevent it, and, according to military usage, which forbids any one from separating crossed swords but with a sword drawn, at once drew his sword and placed himself between them. At this moment the guard appeared, and the two culprits saved themselves by flight; but the corporal knowing the correctness of his intention and forgetting that in the execution of a good deed he had himself offended against the law, quietly surrendered with his sword in his hand and was conducted to the guard-house. A court-martial was speedily called and the corporal told the truth. They demanded the names of the guilty persons, and menaced him with the punishment if he did not reply. 'Gentlemen,' he replied, 'it is true I know them, but I cannot name them; which of you would betray a comrade? No; if I must suffer the punishment, I shall at least know that I have been the means of saving two men for the king's service and the only favor I ask is that my left hand be cut off instead of my right, in order that I yet may be able to draw a sword for my country.' He was condemned, and his request was granted; but when he arrived at the block, he said to the executioner; 'I suffer this humiliation from a sense of discipline and honor, but, as it is the order of the king, it ought to be executed by a soldier. Stand back, therefore, and give me the axe!' Seizing the instrument, he placed his hand upon the block, and severed it from his body at a blow. This was the same soldier that held his musket so indifferently on the parade."

YOU CAN HAVE IT—"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly envying the girls. The Balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE BEE.

Is the bee entitled to the eulogies which have been lavished upon her for so long as a tribute to instincts which some naturalists have held to be little short of reason? Entomologists of the present day seem to incline to the opinion that she is not. Despite the habits and wonderful social economy of bees, their acts upon analysis do not appear to be the result of such a highly-developed intelligence as has been supposed.

For many generations naturalists have have been loud in their praises of the architecture of the honeycomb, and they went into ecstasies when the mathematicians conclusively proved—after much disputing amongst themselves—that the bee in the structure of her hexagonal cell had solved the recondite problem of constructing her waxen storehouses with the minimum expenditure of material. Yet, however difficult it may be to believe it, it is now quite certain that the bee evinces no very extraordinary intelligence in producing the exquisite workmanship displayed in the honeycomb, with all its interesting arrangements of planes and angles. The first instinct of the bee was undoubtedly to construct a circular cell, and at present the work is always commenced by excavating a circular pit in the layer of wax from which the work proceeds. A moment's reflection will show that if all the cells were circular they would not fit closely together, and this would entail a great waste of space, as well as a large expenditure of wax in constructing a separate wall for each cell. Now, as the work of construction proceeds, both these undesirable contingencies are avoided in making the cell hexagonal, by simply straightening out, as it were, and eating away to a single thickness the original circular wall at the six points where it comes into contact with the walls of the surrounding cells.

If it were desirable to go into detail, it would be easy to show how easily and naturally this is accomplished in the manner in which bees work, and that without it being necessary to assume any extraordinary intelligence on the part of the little architects, who are guided by a few simple instincts, after the exercise of which the shape of the cell becomes a mathematical necessity.

Nevertheless, the honeycomb of the hive bee is a wonderful instance of perfection in nature, and it has a place of its own in the story of evolution. Between it and the rude agglomeration of cells of the humble bee there is a wide distance, and every step in the progress upward has, no doubt, been taken through the operation of the law of natural selection.

NATURE'S MORE RIDDLES.

Chickens, two minutes after they have left the egg, will follow the movements of crawling insects and peck at them, judging distance and direction with accuracy. They will instinctively appreciate sounds, readily running toward an invisible hen when they hear her call. Some young birds have an innate horror of the sight of a hawk and of the sound of its voice. Swallows, tomtits and wrens, after having been confined from birth, are capable of flying at once when liberated, on their wings having attained the necessary growth. The Duke of Argyle relates some interesting particulars about the instincts of birds, especially the water ousel, the merganser and the wild duck. As to a class of beasts it is recorded: Five young polecats were found comfortably imbedded in dry, withered grass, and in a side hole, of proper dimensions for such a larder, were forty frogs and two toads, all alive, but merely capable of crawling a little. On examination the whole number proved to be purposely and dexterously bitten through the brain. Evidently the parent polecat had thus provided the young with food which could be kept perfectly fresh, because alive, and yet was rendered quite unable to escape. This singular instinct is like others which are yet more fully developed among insects—a class of animals, the instincts of which are so numerous, wonderful and notorious that it will be, probably, enough to refer to to one or two examples. The female carpenter bee, in order to protect her eggs, excavates in some piece of wood, a series of chambers in special order, with a view to a peculiar mode of exit for her young; but the young mother can have no conscious knowledge of the series of actions subsequently to ensue. The female of the wasp, sphex, affords another example of a complex instinct closely related to that already mentioned in the case of the polecat. The female wasp has to provide fresh, living animal food for her progeny, which, when it quits its egg, quits it in the form of an almost helpless grub, utterly unable to catch, retain or kill an active, struggling prey. Accordingly the mother insect has not only to provide and place beside her eggs suitable living prey, but so to treat it that it may be a helpless, unresisting victim. That victim may be a mere caterpillar or it may be a great, powerful grasshopper, or even that most fierce, active and rapacious of insect tyrants, a fell and venomous spider. Whichever it may be the wasp adroitly stings it at the spot which induces, or in the several spots which induce, complete paralysis as to motion, let us hope as to sensation also. This done, the wasp entombs the helpless being with its own egg, and leaves it for the support of the future grub.

Venus is just now a magnificent light in the evening sky.

CALL AT THIS OFFICE FOR FINE JOB PRINTING. Specimens given

Rev, W. Spaulding's Remarks.

A hearing was given last Wednesday by the County Commissioners on the petition of F. H. Appleton and others for a road in West Peabody which has already been described in these columns. After a visit to West Peabody the hearing was continued in the Selectmen's room in the Town House. Mr. Appleton explained, by the aid of the plans drawn, the proposed road. The land damages would be very slight; in his own case they would be nothing.

Mr. S. A. Southwick, for the Selectmen, read a copy of a vote of the town instructing the Board to appear before the Commissioners and advocate the building of the road. He had little to add. As far as he knew the large tax payers in this section of the town were in favor of it—or at all events were not opposed to it. The Selectmen should ask for a year to build the road, but would expect to have it completed in June. The estimated cost of the road, thirteen years ago, was less than $2000. It could be done cheaper now. In reply to a question from the Commissioners in reference to the bridge over the brook, Mr. Southwick thought it would answer for the present. It might have to be widened to conform to the law, but that would be a very small expense. A part of the proposed road he had understood was considered an old public way. Thought it would accommodate travel from Lynnfield through West Peabody, also from Middleton to Lynnfield. It would also make a convenient route to the Junction depot. It would shorten the distance some half a mile.

Mr E. M. Twiss, one of the abuttors, would not oppose the road, but would want some damages. He thought the road for Middleton people would be out of the way. (Mr. Appleton here explained that they would go through Winona street and then strike the new road.) He thought not many people would be accommodated at first, but West Peabody people would avoid the hill on the old road. He would not state definitely how much land damage he would want.

Rev. Mr. Spaulding was unable to see that the road was a public convenience or necessity. It might accommodate a small number, but not the people of West Peabody. The Newburyport turnpike marks a straight line. People who would pass on that road would not turn to this proposed road. Lake street was a straight road. The people of Reading or No. Reading who desired to go to Lynnfield would go by Lynnfield hotel, which was a direct line. It would not convenience Lynnfield or No. Reading or Danvers. The petition is signed by one Middleton and one Lynnfield party, and we were told it would accommodate Lynnfield and Middleton people. Is it shorter than Lake street and the section of Russell street? Is there any gain? In measuring the map instead of making a gain it was a loss. The present road was shorter by half a mile. If this proposed road was a gain, then a road which should be a continuation of Lake street to Russell by his house would be a still greater gain, and would shorten the distance between Middleton and Lynnfield. It would be a straight and entirely level road the whole distance and not cost one-sixth part as much to build. If the proposed road could be built for $2000, this one could be built for one-quarter of $2000. With regard to the accommodation to West Peabody people he had shown the road to be longer than the present one. A great many residents of West Peabody live on the Newburyport turnpike and in going to Lynnfield would follow that road. It is a broad road. There are a few residents on side streets, but all are nearer the turnpike than the proposed road. It will not accommodate them. There are also people who live on Lake street and west of it. In going to Lynnfield they would travel over Lake street. Nine-tenths of the people who live in West Peabody live on the turnpike or Lake street and west of it. In passing to Lynnfield they all would pass either by the turnpike or Lake street. The proposed road cannot accommodate them.

How many will it accommodate? It will accommodate Mr. Danforth. It would shorten the distance for him perhaps twenty rods. Then there is Mr. Upham who lives next to George Taylor. Mr. Wilcox would save one-third of a mile, also Mr. Southwick. Mr. Appleton and Saltonstall would save one-half a mile. There are four people besides Messrs. Appleton and Saltonstall who would gain a few minutes. Now he submitted that a road which would accommodate four people is not a public convenience or necessity, and not a justification for the County Commissioners to ask the County to pay for it. Appleton and Saltonstall are summer residents. They live in West Peabody six months in the year. The rest of the time the road would be of no use save to two or three men. Saltonstall and Appleton were not the public—only a small part of it. The road was not a public necessity. In the winter time it would have to be broken out and there would be no one to travel it. Neither Southwick or Danforth would care to use it. There would be no prospect of it being used in winter.

At the railroad crossing of Lake street there used to be a side track, and there would be a family station there at no distant day. Then Appleton and Saltonstall would be twice as near. If they followed on to Lynnfield there is a station not half as far as the Junction station—over a perfectly smooth road—which they could reach in five minutes. Mr. Spaulding did not know why they took the cars at West Peabody except, that the cars left West Peabody at 8.30, while they left Lynnfield at 7.40 and there would not be time for an elaborate breakfast. He questioned if the town or County ought to build a road for that. It had been said tax payers favor the road. That was no reason. The Commissioners should have good reasons shown them. They should be shown that it would be a better and shorter road, or they would not be justified in building it.

Then at the town meeting there were nineteen men; five of them were the Selectmen, and they were as dumb as oysters. How much weight is a town meeting with twelve or thirteen men to have? Is it to have any weight? Peabody is to be called upon to pay for it. and then there will be more than nineteen there. The Commissioners might build out a road most anywhere and it would be more of an accommodation than this one. Peabody has no money to throw away in this direction. He should as soon think of calling on the Commissioners to give Appleton a fifth wheel to his coach, or establish steamers on Sontaug Lake. In closing Mr. Spaulding recapitulated his reasons for opposing the road. It would make a longer instead of a shorter road; a saving between the two towns, Lynnfield and West Peabody, could not be made here; the people living on the turnpike would pass over the turnpike, not over this road; the people living on Lake street would pass over that; all of Russell street would pass over Lake street; it would take an expenditure of money to pay for it; only six families would be accommodated and those not in the winter. Appleton and Saltonstall were nearer the Lynnfield depot than this. Now, said Mr. Spaulding, if, with these facts before you, you will lay out the road, then you will.

Mr. S. A. Southwick said the remarks of Mr. Spaulding reminded him of a gentleman who used to figure in town meetings years ago. It used to be a standing joke that anything he advocated in town meeting would be defeated, and anything he opposed would be carried. He surmised that Mr. Appleton had retained Mr. Spaulding in his interest. Mr. Spaulding replied that he enjoyed Mr. Southwick's jokes as well as anyone, but he thought they were better for children in the nursery than to be used before the Board of County Commissioners to show the reason for building a road. He wanted Mr. Southwick to prove that it was a convenience. He had asked one of the signers of the petition the reason for signing. The man said: "Mr. Appleton was a good little fellow; let him have the road." He (Mr. S.) insisted that the convenience of two or three men was not a public convenience.

After some further explanations and a few questions by Mr. Bishop, of the Commissioners, the hearing was closed.

SPARKS.

Monday forenoon at 10.28 o'clock an alarm was given for what was thought to be a fire in the lower tenement of the Institute house, on Wallis street, occupied by Charles A. Sanger. Steamer 2 and the H. & L. from the Central Station turned out, together with the apparatus from the other parts of the town but their services were not needed. The alarm was caused by the boiling over of a kettle of fat, which filled the house with smoke driving the inmates out of doors, and giving the impression that the house was on fire. Good time was made in getting out, the steamer and H. & L going through the Square in less than two minutes from the striking of the bell. Ulick Brophy of Steamer 1, gave the alarm.

Foreman John A. Hart of Steamer 1 resigned his position, and withdrew from the department Nov. 1st., after serving many years. Monday evening a special meeting of the company was held and Joseph F. Hart was elected foreman in his place. William F. Littlefield was appointed in charge of the leading hose, a position which was held by the new foreman. After the meeting, the company with invited guests, sat down to a fine clam chowder with all the fixings, prepared by William H. Jolls. Supper over, the cigars were lighted and speeches were in order from the ex-foreman, the new foreman and others, after which the party broke up. Joseph F. Hart was a member of the Old Eagle No. 5. hand engine, and has served in both the Union and Eagle Hose companies, Steamer 2 of which he was foreman at one time, and Steamer 1.

The Directors of the Relief Association will hold their regular quarterly meeting Thursday evening, at the Central Station.

Steamer 2 will hold a meeting this evening to elect a member to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George A. Voorhees.

Last Thursday morning, a slight fire was discovered burning in a mattress in a tenement house on Hancock street, which was extinguished with the hand hose. No alarm.

The Board of Engineers met last Wednesday evening and approved the pay rolls of the various companies. They voted to appropriate a sum not exceeding $15, for double windows for the house of Hose 3. It was also voted to discontinue the lighting of the stree lamp in front of Hose 5's house in South Peabody. Engineers Reed and Buxton were appointed a committee to procure a pung for Hose 5.

By the Fireman's Herald of last week, we see that a Chief Engineer of a Pennsylvania town has invented an apparatus for heating the water in Steamers. The description given of the apparatus is about the same as what has been in use in this department for about ten years, if anything the arrangement in use here being the best.

A concrete walk is being laid in front of the Stimpson estate on the lane leading to Hathaway's baker shop.

Mr. William Cate will put in three of his machines at the Bates' morocco factory at Danversport. Benj. McKeen has put one of his machines in Eagan & Kelley's and also at L. B. Southwick's.

The Naumkeag Street Railway Co. have adopted the Lewis & Fowler permanent register, and they will soon be attached to all the cars of the main line and branches; and the fare will be the same as in Boston, five cents.

We regret to learn of the continued illness of Mrs. David Proctor at her home on the extension of Pierpoint street and that no hopes are entertained for her recovery. She has been married but a few weeks.

Mr. J. Warren Upton, the librarian, has distributed the catalogue of 250 books on history, travel and biography among the schools, as requested by some of the teachers. This has been tried before without much success.

The morocco manufacturers met in the Selectmen's room Monday evening and organized on a permanent basis. Nearly every establishment in town was represented, and the feeling expressed was a friendly one toward their employes.

Mr. John J. Cahill commenced last Monday to take the agricultural census statistics. As there are several hundred questions to answer it is safe to say that some of our farmer friends will have to sit up nights and do considerable figuring.

Treasurer George W. Williams of the Salem & Danvers Street Railway has resigned on account of the pressure of other business. He will remain, however, on the Board of Directors. On Tuesday evening, Mr. George A. Vickery was elected Treasurer.

Frank E. Farnham, Esq., has been appointed as attorney in the local liquor cases representing the Law and Order League in place of Daniel N. Crowley, Esq., of Danvers. The friends of Mr. Farnham are confident that he will make a good man for the position.

Mr. Robert Murray's 53d birthday was remembered by his friends, last Thursday evening, and a pleasant surprise was given him at his home on Pierpont street. During the evening an elegant easy chair was given him in which to rest his weary limbs.

Large Florida oranges are the principal novelty in the markets this week. The supply is large. Grapes are becoming scarce. Concords are nearly gone. Pears continue plentiful. Chestnuts and walnuts are quite scarce and there is a good demand for them.

It is reported that Mr. Joseph H. Poor is doing an extensive business in the sale of hemlock bark in this town and that his recent trip to Pennsylvania was a purchasing tour. The tanners prefer the bark from that state to that from Canada and large quantities are arriving.

By invitation of Prof. Taft of Cincinnati, president of the section on "Oral and Dental Surgery," of the International Medical Congress, to be held in this country in 1887, Dr. A. M. Dudley of Salem went to Buffalo, N. Y., on Monday, to assist in the organization of the section.

A friend of the fair sex declares that a raw potato is more effectual in beautifying the complexion than cosmetics. The face should be rubbed with the vegetable, then washed, and then a gentle friction. Ladies are advised to keep a raw potato on the wash-stand at all times.

The quarterly session of the Essex County Good Templars Union is being held in Town Hall, Danvers, to-day. The morning session opened at 10 a. m. to members of the order. The afternoon session opened to the public, Brother W. B. Morgan of Danvers Lodge, Danvers, read a paper on the " Felicity of License."

No one who, fatigued with over-exertion of the body or mind, has ever experienced the reviving influence of a tumblerful of milk heated as hot as it can be sipped, will willingly forego to resort to it because of its being rendered somewhat less acceptable to the palate. The promptness with which its influence is felt is indeed surprising.

The War Lectures by John Fiske at the Mechanic Hall, Salem, will attract much attention, for the great Battles of the Civil War absorb the mind of the public, and with the brilliant style of Mr. Fiske's lectures, and the new Stereopticon pictures of Battle Scenes, portraits, etc., there should be a large demand for tickets. See adv. in another column.

If our gentlemen readers wish to smoke one of the best five cent cigars they ever bought, let them call at Grosvenor's and try one of Waitt & Bond's Flor del Mundo. They are five cents straight, and are a better cigar than is sold by many dealers for ten cents. This is not a joke—try one, and we will guarantee you will buy more.

The complaints of the insults to ladies and the use of vile and profane language on our streets by the crowds of loafers who are there congregate nightly are becoming very numerous, and we are glad to learn there is a movement on foot to suppress the same, and make an example of a few of the offenders. It has got to be such a nuisance that it is time for action.

Mr. Frank Wilson died at his home on Central street, last Saturday, from diseases contracted while in the regular army, from which he has suffered for a long time. He has lived a roving life and visited many places in this and other countries. Several years ago he married a Maine lady and has since resided with his father. He left a widow and two children. He was about 34 years of age.

Although a little early for the holiday trade Merrill & Mackintire have resolved to offer a number of special bargains in their Book Department, which they will not have later on, thus offering a premium as it were, for early purchasers, to buy now instead of waiting for the grand rush. They have made a larger purchase than usual of Children's Books and offer an unusual assortment to choose from. They offer, for this week only, two bargains which cannot be duplicated.—Colonial Days, a $3.00 book, for $1.00 a copy, and Little Folks, a $1.50 book, for 39 cents a copy.

Poet's Corner.

The Years.

MRS. S. M. B. PRATT.

The years are all alike. With childlike laughter
They follow butterflies with endless wings;
They peep into the bird's nest; they look after
White lambs and other pretty little things.

Then, in the first flush of their youth, they bring us
Shy gifts of violets in a gallant way;
And ah! what charming low love songs they sing us
From leaf-green shadows, where the wild doves stay!

But somewhat later they show bearded faces,
And sway the scythe and bear the shears about
In the hot fields, and quite forget the graces
They had of old—as others do, no doubt.

Still later, they go out for us and gather
The scarlet fruit in and the yellow corn,
Or walk about the withering woods, with rather
A faded look, and sigh and seem forlorn.

Then they sit very still and watch the embers
Behind the curtains in some pictured room,
While each one somewhere in his heart remembers
The dew, the summer moon rise, and the bloom.

Then comes the last night-watch, the lonesome tapers,
The few tears of the many, prayers quick said;
The black-lined columns in the morning papers.
And—yes, the many virtues of the dead!

Odd Fashions.

I wonder how Great Aunt Millicent felt when she wore this guy of a hat?
The gown with its trailing splendor, Nell, is not so bad in its way;
But this soft limp thing with the flapping brim and ribbon laid broad and flat,
It makes me glad I was not a girl in my Great Aunt Millicent's day.

I've always wanted to take a peep in this lovely oaken chest;
I like the shimmer of faded silk, the lustre of dim brocade;
But I tell you, Nellie, that I really think that our modern times are best,
And a Paris dress of the period throws "auld lang syne" in the shade.

I can just remember I saw her once, a stately and ancient dame,
A velvet bag on her arm, my dear, and a wonderful cap on her head.
She was very kind to the tiny elf who was wearing her sweet old name,
And whose eyes and hair were so like her own the elderly people said.

I thought her a fairy godmother then; I declare I think so still.
There's an India muslin in this box, which will simply look superb.
How nice that Great Aunt Millicent left me all these things in her will!
We must air them and shake the lavender out, a horrid, old-fashioned herb.

Poor Great Aunt Milly! she's dead and gone. Once she was young, like me,
A belle, and the toast of half the town, she had beaux at least a score.
Nellie, my pet, the miracle grows that ever a girl could be
Passable even, dressed like this, and these are the clothes she wore.

And kept on hours a-talkin';
He twisted up my apron string
An' folded it together,
An' said he thought for harvest time
'Twas cur'us kind o' weather.

The sun went down as we sot there;
Josiah seemed uneasy,
And mother she began to call;
"Loweezy! O Loweezy!"
An' then Josiah spoke right up
As I was just a-startin',
An' said, "Loweezy, what's the use
Of us two ever partin'?"

It kind o' took me by surprise,
An' yet I knew 'twas comin';
I'd heard it all the summer long
In every wild bee's hummin';
I'd studied out the way I'd act;
But, law! I couldn't do it;
I meant to hide my love from him,
But seems as if he knew it;
In looking down into my eyes
He must a seen the fire;
An' ever since that hour I've loved
An' worshipped my Josiar.

Selected Story.

Caught in His Own Trap.

Mr. James Fox was the junior partner in the firm of Plumley & Fox, the principal solicitors in the somewhat dead-alive old Cathedral town of Slumborough. He was a smart, well set up young man, of two or three and thirty, with carefully trimmed black whiskers, a silken manner, and an unlimited flow of more or less entertaining small talk. Hence it came to pass that he was an exceedingly popular man among the ladies of Slumborough, both old and young, and, had his views lain in the direction of matrimony, he would have had small difficulty in inducing any damsel or widow to share his lot. But the handsome solicitor was ambitious; his share in the business did not at present bring him in more than a moderate income, and he had long ago determined that when he married he must consider not only beauty, but more solid advantages.

Heiresses, however, were not plentiful in Slumborough, and so, although Mr. Fox's attentions frequently fluttered a bosom, he was careful not to commit himself too far, and not even the local gossips could fairly say of him that he had knowingly raised false hopes. There was, indeed, one young lady who had made a deep impression upon the solicitor's heart, but she was the daughter of a county magnate with whom poor Mr. Fox was not even on visiting terms. He had met her at the annual hunt ball, she had danced twice with him, for Mr. Fox was an excellent waltzer; but her mother had doubtless warned her against him, for when next they met, some six weeks afterwards, Miss Laquerton passed the unfortunate man without so much as a bow. Miss Laquerton, however, was lovely and rich, and Mr. Fox was not a man to be easily discouraged. He knew that if he could only afford to cut the office and blossom into a landed proprietor, he would have just as good a chance with her as anybody else; so he waited patiently in the hopes of one day discovering the road which leads to fortune and success.

The firm of Plumley & Fox was a highly respectable and old fashioned concern which avoided litigation, and kept almost entirely to family business. Plumley was a fairly good lawyer, but Fox's legal knowledge was of the most limited character, and he was much too lazy to take the trouble to increase it. So it came to be understood between them that while Plumley did the office work, Fox kept the clients in good humor by calling on them apropos of nothing, and amusing them with his jokes and stories. This business was technically termed "keeping the connection together," and it suited Mr. Fox very well indeed. It was while he was thus keeping the connection together that Mr. Fox made the acquaintance of a certain rich old widow lady named Mrs. Johnson, and so well did he play his cards that before long Plumley & Fox became Mrs. Johnson's family solicitors, land agents, and confidential advisers. The firm made a pretty good thing out of Mrs. Johnson. In accordance with the usual arrangements, Plumley transacted the business and Fox became a constant visitor at her house, and worked his way into her good graces by his wonderful powers of amusing conversation. There was yet another accomplishment which stood our solicitor in good stead, and this was an accurate knowledge of chemistry and medicine, which he had picked up as a boy in the office of his uncle the chemist. The horrible smells young Fox had created in his experiments and the ugly stains he had made on his hands determined him to forsake medicine for law, but he never entirely forgot his early experiences. He could talk fluently about every known drug and disease, and about a great many which had not yet been discovered; he diagnosed Mrs. Johnson's symptoms at least as accurately as Mac Bolus, the Scotch doctor, and would even have prescribed for her had not the stalwart Scot angrily threatened to kick him if he did so. But he retained a very prominent place in the old lady's affections, and it began to be whispered about that he had an excellent chance of succeeding to her considerable property.

The disposal of Mrs. Johnson's money was a matter which had long furnished speculation of unfailing interest to the town of Slumborough, and filled many a yawning gap in conversation at afternoon teas. Mrs. Johnson had but one relative in the world, Miss Lizzie Roberts, the daughter of her late sister. This young lady, however, it was agreed, had not the slightest chance of being mentioned in her aunt's will. A handsome, well-bred girl, she was left at her own parents' death to make her own way in the world, inheriting nothing, but the battle of life and the dislike of Mrs. Johnson, who had not seen the child since it quitted its baby clothes. This strange antipathy was traceable, as some people said, to times gone by when Mr. Roberts, Lizzie's father, then renowned for his manly beauty, had been an assiduous visitor at the house of Mrs. Johnson's parents. She being the eldest daughter, and taking all his attentions for herself, had felt it keenly as a personal insult when her sister dared to "snatch him away," and even later on, having made a much more brilliant match herself, she never could forgive this early defeat. Death even had not buried the grudge, which not unnaturally passed from mother to child.

How far this saying may have been true or not, one thing is certain; poor Lizzie had not the ghost of a chance of ever seeing a single penny from her aunt's money-box; her claims were clearly quite out of the question. There remained, then, only Miss Nelly Brown, Mrs. Johnson's lady companion, and Mr. James Fox.

Mr. James Fox knew from his partner, who had cautioned him in a friendly way, that Mrs. Johnson was not going to divide her fortune, but would leave the whole of it to her "truest friend," though she had evidently not yet made her mind up as to who deserved that title. More than once had Mr. Plumley been suddenly summoned to draw up a new will; so slight an annoyance as a cold cup of tea having caused her to destroy the one in Miss Nelly's favor. Then two days' neglect on the part of Mr. Fox and a constant supply of hot tea at the hands of Miss Nelly again reinstated this lady in Mrs. Johnson's good graces. Mr. Fox, therefore, had good cause for anxiety as to what would be the exact state of affairs when the old lady was finally called upon to join the majority.

With such an old woman, he said to himself, who is ready to make a new will any day and to burn it the next, there is no dependence; one's future hangs upon a whim; a remedy must be found. The safest thing would of course be to make love to Miss Nelly; she is rather "thirtyish," and not altogether attractive; still, if she were to get all the money, she would be anything but undesirable.

So Mr. James Fox set to work at once to make himself agreeable to Miss Brown, yet without going too far; for he had by no means forgotten Miss Laquerton, but he felt that it was best to have two strings to his bow, and therefore he determined to do his best to keep Miss Nelly in good humor. This lady, however, was not so easily satisfied as the solicitor expected, for now he had once begun to pay her attentions, she wanted a decided offer of marriage, and not being able to get it she took refuge in a stratagem. This consisted in suddenly making the discovery that Mrs. Johnson's health was in absolute want of some German waters—in fact, she decided that it was quite dangerous for her to spend the spring in England, with all the changes of heat and cold. The old lady was therefore soon persuaded to yield to such tender solicitude, and away the couple went leaving Mr. James Fox in a rather awkward dilemma. What was he to do? If he wrote cool letters to Miss Nelly she would be offended and all his chances would be lost in the event of her inheriting Mrs. Johnson's property; on the other hand, if he played the part of a lover, he committed himself, and gave her the materials for a breach of promise case should the good lady die when his name only figured in her will, and should he then turn his attentions to Miss Laquerton. What, then, could he do?

The worthy Fox was baffled for the moment, but after deep deliberation he hit upon a great idea which his chemical studies suggested to him. Chuckling to himself, he went to a chemist's shop, purchased several drugs, and mixed and re-mixed them till a magnificent black ink was produced, which had the grand advantage that in about ten days after being committed to paper it would fade away without leaving the slightest trace. Emboldened by the happy results of his experiment, he became at once the most tender and zealous correspondent any woman could wish for. His letters, in fact, overflowed with promises of everlasting devotion. Miss Nelly beamed with joy, for she was now convinced how true and unselfish was the attachment of her admirer.

Under such circumstances it was surprising that the German waters speedily did Mrs. Johnson so much good that her careful nurse considered that the cure could be shortened, and accordingly the couple returned to England much earlier than had been expected.

Whether, however, the waters had really disagreed with the old lady, or something else had upset her, was never quite clear, but soon after returning to England her health and strength began seriously to fail. She complained bitterly that Miss Nelly had induced her to take an unnecessary and useless journey, and ever since she had neglected her altogether. The end of it was that in the height of her anger, she burnt the then existing will, and made Mr. James Fox sole heir to everything she possessed. This decision seemed to have exhausted her remaining energy, for she died not many days after.

Mr. Fox, who had been appraised of the state of affairs by his partner and friend, almost lost his senses, still his excitement did not prevent him from investing in hat bands and crape, and looking as mournful as if the sorrow of the whole world rested on his shoulders. Miss Nelly, too, melted away in tears, and could only be comforted by her Jamie, as she now called Mr. Fox. But the latter seemed to have turned quite dull with grief. He did not appear to understand her at all, and, as day by day she became more demonstrative, he grew less affectionate. The afternoon before the funeral Miss Nelly was extremely broken-hearted, and amid her sobs remarked how comfortable and happy she had always been with her late friend. To her astonishment Mr. Fox attempted to comfort her by saying with cool civility, I hope you may soon meet again with such a happy home as you have had here till now.

On hearing this, Miss Nelly's tears suddenly dried up, and, with eyes dilated with astonishment and anger, she cried: It is you whom I expect to make me this happy home.

Mr. Fox, however, simply shrugged his shoulders, saying: I do not deny that I may have once had such ideas; but of late I have grown wiser. Everything alters in this world; why, then, should not our opinions do the same? That is what we call progress.

Upon this he bowed and left Miss Nelly crying and fainting in an arm chair.

He did not hear anything more of her till a few days later, when a gentleman called upon him saying that he had been intrusted with Miss Nelly Brown's affairs, and suggesting that perhaps Mr. Fox before they went further, would prefer making some private arrangement about his breach of promise of marriage with his client.

And what proof of that promise has Miss Brown except her saying so? asked Mr. Fox.

Oh, answered the young man, I have seen a box full of letters from you.

Have you read them? continued Mr. Fox sarcastically.

Not yet, replied the other; but I have seen the box.

Well, you had better go and read them first before you take any further steps, and if you can find a single line from me to Miss Brown, I am quite willing to let her have ample damages without their being awarded by a court of law.

There was something so diabolical

MUSICAL NOTES.

The Young Workers connected with the Unitarian church in this town have been rehearsing for some time the Operetta of "Golden Hair and the Three Bears," under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Ferguson. It will be performed for a matinee this afternoon and for an evening performance to-morrow evening in the Unitarian chapel. There should be a good attendance and we have no doubt there will be. The Young Workers are deserving of encouragement.

Miss Annie L. Orr, soprano of the Universalist Church, sung in Music Hall, Boston, last Sunday evening, at the popular concerts which are given there Sunday evenings.

Mr. E. S. Macgregor will not sing at the South Church, as we announced last week. Mr. Sawyer will continue to sing for the present.

It is announced that the concert to be given in Salem early in January by Elene Buffington Kehew and other artists, at the new hall of the Academy of Science, will not be the dedication of that hall. We cheerfully make the correction, although it is a small matter. The name of the artists who are to perform ought to be a sufficient guarantee of a good audience, whether it is the dedication of the hall or not.

The entertainment given at the Baptist vestry last Wednesday evening was largely a musical one and consisted of banjo solos by Mr. Charlie Sheldon, with A. P. Chute as accompanist. There was also a duet on the piano by Mrs. J. N. Shipman and Miss Alice Berry and singing by a little daughter of Mr. Joseph Lloyd, all of which was very pleasing. A large part of the entertainment was furnished by the little Messer children, daughters of Mr. John A. Messer of the Salem Cadet Band. Miss Lulu gave selections on the violin and the two appeared in duets and songs, the younger one playing the accompaniments with ease and grace. Considering their age their performance was really remarkable.

The Musical Herald for November has an anthem entitled "O Holy Dove, Return," for soprano or tenor solo and chorus, words by Wm. Cooper, music by M. B. Foster, and also a composition dedicated to Miss Bella Bartlett, called "Protestations," words by Charles Maskey, music by Homer A. Norris. Dr. E. Tourjee is the managing editor of the magazine, and its subscription price is $1 a year.

Mr. Oliver Ditson, senior partner in the publishing firm in Boston that bears his name, has recently celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday. The foundation of the house was laid in 1835, and he has been with it from the beginning.

A ballad concert was given in Chickering Hall, Boston, last Wednesday evening, which was of much interest to musical people, in that it served to introduce Mr. Charles Abercrombie, formerly of Boston, but recently of England, to the public. Mr. Abercrombie gave several old ballads, among them "Sally in our Alley" with good effect. His voice is of good quality except when he forces it, which he is apt to do on the high notes. His style is, however, finished and his phrasing careful. He has decided to make Boston his permanent home, and will sing for the Handel and Haydn Society in Boston at their second concert. Among the artists who assisted at the concert, Miss Gertrude Edmands, of the choir of Dr. Webb's church, was easily first. Her execution and clear intonation were a positive pleasure. Mr. Saxon was enthusiastically received and for an encore sang "Dreaming," the selection given by him here with such good effect. Mr. B. L. Whelpley played the accompaniments magnificently.

Apropos of Mr. Abercrombie's permanent stay in the city of Boston, which is said to be on account of the unexpected number of engagements pressing upon him, it is worthy of notice how speedily any one with a foreign reputation is taken up in Boston. This tendency is not worthy of commendation. Doubtless the prices commanded by him for teaching are in advance of the best teachers in Boston—many of whom have had equal and some of them superior advantages to him. But there is a class of people who will desert the older and better known teachers, for this gentleman fresh from London. "It's English, you know."

The Handel & Haydn Society are out with their announcement of the works to be performed by the Society during the present season. The dates of the concerts, and the soloists at present engaged, are as follows: Sunday evening, December 27, 1885, "The Messiah," Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen, Miss Sarah C. Fisher, Miss Hattie J. Clapper, Mr. Whitney Mockridge, Mr. Myron W. Whitney. Sunday afternoon and evening, January 24, 1886, "Mors et Vita," Miss Alta Pease. Sunday evening (Easter) April 25, 1886, "Elijah," Mme. Fursch-Madi, Miss Helen D. Campbell, Mr. William Candidus, Mr. Alonzo E. Stoddard. Season tickets will be for sale to last year's subscribers for their last year's seats at Music Hall, on Monday, November 23, for $6, and to the general public on Tuesday, November 24, at the same price. On and after Wednesday, November 25, the price will be $5.

Attestation of popular liking for Mr. Adolf Neuendorff's opera has by no means been wanting since The Rat Charmer of Hamelin held the stage of the Bijou Theatre. Excellent as was the opening representation, the first night, the results then obtained have been bettered at every succeeding performance. Miss Januschowsky and Miss Edmondson have both been greeted by Mr. Neuendorff's audiences; and the work of Mr. Fessenden, Mr. Babcock, Mr. Cooper, Miss Emma C. Tuttle and their associates has been estimated at its full value, as well as the achievements of the well trained chorus and orchestra. The stage setting, by Mr. J. A. Johnson and his associates, is all that could be desired. The Rat Charmer is announced until further notice.

Miss Emma Rice, who has recently returned from London, will sing at a Concert at Smith College, Northampton, early in December. Miss Rice will remain in town for the present.

There is talk of changing the name of the National Band, of Lynn, to Perkins' Band. Their leader, Mr. Perkins, is a brother of E. G. Perkins, of this town.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

Such a genuine character study as Mr. M. B. Curtis' Sam'l of Posen at the Boston Theatre merits all the popularity which it gains. One may see the performance again and again with pleasure, because it is drawn from life, affords genuine and honest mirth, and maintains in a remarkable degree the interest of the average theatre goer. This will be the last week as Mr. Curtis is to fulfil a long series of engagements in Western cities.

The favorite leading lady for several seasons at Wallack's Theatre, New York, Miss Rose Coghlan, comes to the stage of the Park this week as a star. She is to appear in the successful play, Our Joan, written for her by Mr. Harry Meredith. Miss Coughlan has been seen in this vicinity but seldom. The supporting company will include, as leading man, Mr. Fraser Coulter, one of the most popular actors with this public. Our Joan is to hold the stage for the present week only.

Coming to the Boston Museum for their first engagement at the historic house, those favorite actors, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Florence are certain to be warmly greeted this week. His Little Hatchet, in which Florence appears as the phenomenal fabricator, Pinto Perkins, with his gifted wife as the enterprising correspondent, will form the attraction. Thursday and Friday and Saturday afternoon will be devoted to the production of John Brougham's dramatization of Dombey & Son, with Florence in his great impersonation of Captain Cuttle. The Mighty Dollar is to have a single representation Saturday evening. The stars will be supported during their brief season by their own company including Miss Ethel Greybrooke, Miss Sterling and others familar to the stage in Florence engagements.

Japanese opera, which opened the Hollis Street Theatre so notably, is to remain the lyric attraction at Manager Rich's house for a long time to come. The ornateness of the production, as regards scenic effects and costuming must be admired by all who see The Mikado. In point of general effect and smoothness, there has been a steady and gratifying gain nightly; and patrons now enjoy, at the hands of Misses Clement, Delaro and Cooke, Messrs. Howson, Brocolini and their coadjutors, a brisk and spirited representation, closing at a reasonable hour. It should be remembered that The Mikado is given Wednesday and Saturday afternoons as well as at 7.45 o'clock nightly.

McNish, Johnson & Slavin's minstrels, a great array of burnt cork talent indeed, are to make their bow to a Boston audience a week from to-morrow evening. Immense success has been the fortune of this aggregation in the West, and their engagement at the Boston Theatre Thanksgiving week bids fair, judging from the great interest already manifested by the public, to be something phenomenal.

Oh, [illegible] d,
And the summer's bloom is over!
O, what if the roses blush no more,
And the frost has killed the clover.

Let us turn to the Winter a smiling face,
And welcome the pale new comer:—
Isn't love as deep, isn't life as sweet,
As it was in the bygone summer?

Where are you going to, my pretty maid?"
"I'm going to the lecture, sir," she said,
"May I come with you, my pretty maid?"
"You won't understand it, sir," she said.

"What is the subject, my pretty maid?"
"The final extinction of man," she said
"Then you won't marry, my pretty maid?"
"Superior girls never marry," she said.

Brownie, Whitie and Blackie.

A PARODY.

Brownie, Whitie, Blackie, all,
Are my little piggies small,
Brownie with the curly tail,
Whitie with the face so pale,
Blackie who is up for sale.
Brownie, Whitie, Blackie, small,
Oh my little piggies, all.

As I scratched their backs one day,
While within their straw they lay,
Every piggie 'gins to squeal
As though very bad they feel,
Or as if they needed meal,
Mealy, mealy, piggie wee,
Oh my little piggies three.

No more meal I'll carry out—
Turned up is each bristling snout;
Everyone of you keep still,
When it's time to feed, I will,
Until then you get no swill,
Brownie, Whitie, Blackie small,
Oh my little piggies all.

A respected resident of Elm street, is confidentially relating to his friends how he was robbed of his supper a while ago. The good lady of the house had opened a nice new box of sardines and placed them beside his plate and left the room, not noticing the family cat quietly sleeping in the big arm chair. As the r. r. entered the dining room the cat skipped out between his legs and when he sat down to eat his sardines, there was not one left, the box was as clean as if it never contained forty-five cents worth of tom cod and whale oil.

Speaking of humorous mistakes, said the head pusher in a certain fish market the other day, reminds me of one we made a short time ago. A regular customer had ordered a lot of fish for dinner and it had been put up and left for the boy to take out on the team; in the meantime an employe had taken off a pair of overalls which he intended to take to the Laundry and had done them up in a piece of brown wrapping paper and placed them beside the fish. The boy took the latter and rushed off to the customer with them. The mistake was soon discovered and the right article sent, when the boy found the servant girl with a pair of overalls in her hand, wondering how she was going to get a meal for the family off of them.

Some of the milkmen are trying to solve the puzzle, how one of their number can pay 32 cents a can for milk and sell it at a profit at 25 cents.

Don't Give Up Yet.—It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never to late too try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., was cured of Rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr. R. W. Mosier, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

In October 3,750,000 silver dollars were put into circulation.

In Holland, Mich., C. J. Doesbury publishes the News, and in its columns strongly recommends Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for coughs, colds, sore throats, catarrh and asthma.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by scrofulous taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh

Can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was

Cured

Of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That flow from the nose, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

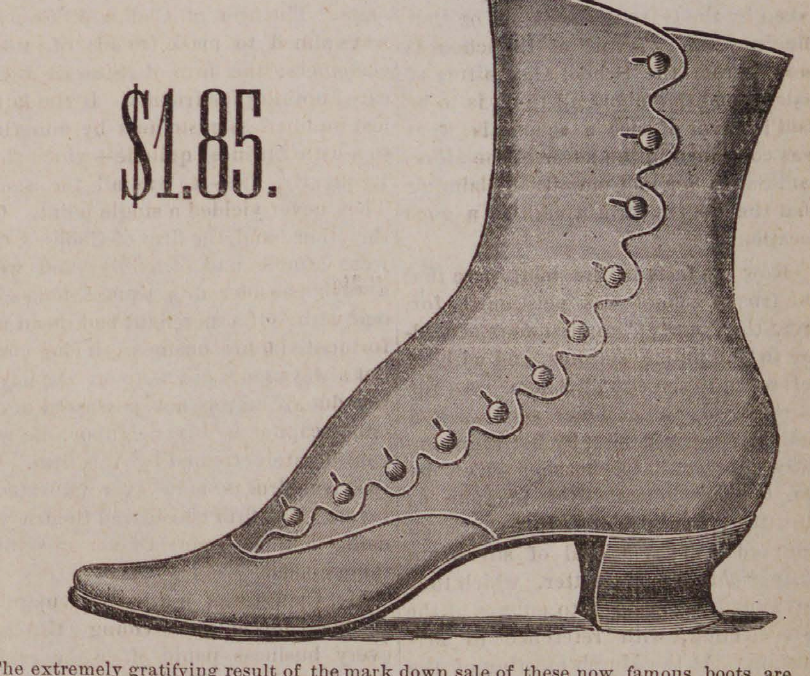
OSBORNE'S MATCHLESS BOOTS.

RIDE THE TOPMOST CREST.

$1.85.



The extremely gratifying result of the mark down sale of these now famous boots are induced us to continue their sale at $1.85 for 30 Days More. The remarkable Beauty of Style, Perfection of Fit, and Lowness of Price of these inimitable boots, admirably adapts them to meet the popular demand for a Fine Dress Boot at a price within the means of every one. They have made A Hit! A Palpable Hit! and their extraordinary merits have been appreciated by hundreds of customers, who have nothing but praise for their many excellent points. Equal in all the qualities that catch the eye to any $3 boot in the market. They are Models of Grace and Beauty, and are irresistibly forcing to the rear the inferior styles of our would-be competitors.

REMEMBER!!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to compete with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims.

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,

Editors and Publishers.

We do not believe that the proposed truant school at the expense of the county of Essex is an outlay to be fairly justified under all the circumstances of the case. It is to be a costly experiment the utility of which is very far from being proved in advance, and the pushing in favor of which gives evidence of being inspired quite as much by other interests as by a positive conviction that the abolishment of truancy demands it. The document which the Salem School Committee sent to the County Commissioners is one of a most remarkable character. It sets forth no argument in favor of a truant school and does not even petition for the establishment of such a school. It simply sets forth that such a school would be a good thing if located on the line of some horse car track, and that the Hooper farm is such a location; hence a truant school will be a good thing provided the Hooper farm is purchased, but not necessarily of much account if it is not. If the value of a truant school rests upon a foundation, so slender as that, it is a pretty poor defence for the proposed outlay; and in saying this we do not say a word to the detriment of the farm referred to, which may be the very best location in the world for the purpose. But the resolution is certainly a very striking one; and it is clearly of very questionable taste for Salem, which has a Plummer Farm School of its own, to be dictating conditions to Essex County, the treasury of which must pay the cost of the institution. We are very confident that the citizens of Salem would endorse no such position. The county of Essex is heavily burdened with debt and it is time that debt was diminished.

The above from the Salem Gazette is certainly as remarkable a production as it claims the letter, sent by the Salem School Committee, to be. The position taken by the Gazette seems to be that the "pushing in favor" of the school is mostly from the School Committee of Salem; and that about all there is to be said in favor of such a school is what was contained in the letter of the aforesaid Salem School Committee, claiming that the Hooper farm would be a good location.

Now the facts in the matter are that the truant school was petitioned for, from the County Commissioners, according to the public statutes, and without reference to the city of Salem. As far as we know, Salem never sent such a petition; nor was she, by her representatives, present at a hearing given by the Commissioners. But in spite of this fact, her School Board have attempted to make a deal of stir about their rights in the matter, which they attempted to bring into politics at the last election, with reference to Mr. Bishop. At the March meeting of the town of Peabody in 1884 this town voted to unite with Beverly and Danvers in petitioning for a truant school. The law says that when "three or more towns in a county petition the County Commissioners for a truant school," such Commissioners SHALL establish it, at the expense of the County. Such a school has been asked for by Peabody, Beverly and Danvers.

With this fact for a starting point, the argument of the Gazette to show the inutility of a county truant school falls to the ground. The Commissioners must establish the school.

There are reasons for such petition, also, outside of the letter of the Salem School Committee. When the matter was brought before the town of Peabody, Rev. J. W. Hudson, the chairman of our School Committee, explained that the Alms House was not a proper place for our truants; that a school supported by the county and to which children from different parts could be sent, would be more effectual in checking truancy in this town. If this argument was forcible then, it is much more so to-day. We know nothing about the provisions of the city of Salem for its truants, which the Gazette seems to think the only thing to be considered. But we do know that this town is sadly in need of some means of checking truancy other than it now has. If a child is convicted of truancy, there is no proper place for punishment. Consequently no convictions are attempted and the law is mainly in the hands of the offenders. We presume the same state of affairs exists in other towns—Danvers and Beverly.

These are good reasons for the establishment of such a school. Provision therefor has been made by the State. Three towns have complied with the statute, and we expect, and are confident, that such a school will soon be established in Essex county. Other reasons exist, as we have shown, besides the one mentioned by the Salem School Committee, and in showing up the assumption of that Board the Gazette is entitled to praise. At the same time, the Gazette should not be led into the same error, and assume that Salem is the whole county, or that the reasons advanced by Salem's officious Board in favor of this school are the only ones that can be urged,—or that if these reasons are not good ones, therefore the school should not be established.

THE DEATH of Horace B. Claflin, of New York City, is no ordinary event. He was not renowned in war, in statesmanship or literature, but he was one of the merchant princes of this country. He became so not in the manner in which Gould and Vanderbilt have amassed millions, but in the honorable pursuit of a legitimate business. When he opened a dry goods store fifty years ago in the city of Worcester in this state, his capital consisted of $1000. The success he has achieved since has been along one line, in the pursuit of this business alone.

The extent of the business done in the city of New York by the firm, of which Mr. Claflin was the head, has been the largest in the city. It surpassed the transactions of the rival house of A. T. Stewart in its palmiest days, and this too despite the fact that Stewart did a retail as well as wholesale business, while Claflin's house has been a jobbing house exclusively.

The name of H. B. Claflin is known wherever, in this country, the dry goods house exists. There is not a retailer, from Maine to California, who has not heard of him, or been engaged in some business transactions with his firm. Other jobbing houses have distributed goods in certain sections of the country—this one has known no North, no South, no East, no West.

In considering the volume of business done, it is but natural that comparisons should be made between Claflin's firm and that of A. T. Stewart, for many years his rival. These comparisons have always been in favor of Mr. Claflin. The methods of the two houses were entirely different, although Mr. Claflin began business years ago, his firm never was wedded to old fashioned ideas, but has always been alive to the best interests of its customers. The firm of Claflin & Co. always aimed to make friends of their customers; the firm of Stewart & Co. cared nothing for friends. If the latter lost numberless customers by adhering to a little business quibble—which they frequently did—it was all the same. They never yielded a single point. On the other hand, the firm of Claflin & Co. were affable and friendly, and were always considered a square house to deal with. If a merchant had been unfortunate in his business, if he could not always meet his note on the day it was due, if he was not possessed of so ample capital as his neighbor, he was considerately treated by this firm. Of the rival firm no man ever expected a favor. The firm considered themselves doing their customers a favor in selling them goods.

Mr. Claflin was an upright man in all his transactions. Going through every business panic since he established himself in New York, he has always paid 100 cents on a dollar. Twice the firm suspended—but it was only temporary. Once a settlement was effected by a partial payment—but in a few years their creditors were paid in full. Such a record is worthy of emulation. The value of such a man to the business community cannot be estimated. To the dry goods trade of this country his death is no ordinary loss.

THERE ARE rumors that a petition is in circulation asking the Legislature to establish a Metropolitan police system in Salem. Of the movement the Boston Post says:

> "Here is the first illustration of the truth of the statement made by the Post during the recent campaign, that the war on local self-government would not stop with Boston. * * * Some one does not like the Salem marshal, and therefore, recalling Boston's experience, a petition is circulated praying the Legislature to take control of the local police."

To this the Salem News retorts that the "some one" to whom the Post alludes represents hosts of citizens, and the number is growing.

There is complaint in Lynn of the same nature against the city marshal. It is represented that he appeared personally in the Superior Court and gave evidence tending towards the mitigation of the sentence of two liquor dealers, who had plead guilty to the crime. Now in both these cases, if the difficulty is with the marshal, there ought to be a way of remedying it without an appeal to the State.

We say this fully realizing where the argument which we have urged in favor of the Metropolitan police system in Boston, leads. It is said that if the system is good for Boston, why not for other cities? This also is the argument of the opposition claiming that local government will be destroyed everywhere. We admit that to a certain extent all the large cities of Massachusetts are becoming like Boston. More and more are they under the control of the rum power. And that a marshal and police force depending for their bread and butter upon this power who are in majority, should wink sometimes at violations of the liquor and other laws, is to be expected. Such was the case in Boston—such will be the case elsewhere when the power in control becomes as corrupt as it is in the hub.

But we don't believe Salem and Lynn are as bad as that. We do not believe the majority of the citizens of either of these cities desire the enemies of law and order to triumph. In other words, we believe local agitation by those who are in earnest, and above all a good Law and Order League, which does not exist either in Salem or Lynn, would bring about a good result.

In this one respect Boston differs from other cities—and this is why we favor the police system in one and not the other. The merchants, the business men, the manufacturers of Salem and Lynn and other cities in the State and residents in these places. It is not so in Boston. A very large proportion of the business men of Boston, who own property and pay large taxes there, do not live there, consequently do not vote there. They vote where they reside. Yet their interests are more largely at stake where they are deprived of the right to vote. Hence it was truly said in the Legislature that the whole State wat interested in Boston—and the asking of relief from the State in this matter seemed a wise thing to do.

But other cities ought to be able to take care of the enforcement of the law. We believe they can. We believe they will, if it is brought properly before them, and in this matter the press can be a great aid, if they will have the courage of their convictions and speak plainly and forcibly. In this connection, the course of the Salem News, of late, has been worthy of great commendation. Agitation and the election of a good government should make a call upon the State needless.

WE WANT to say a word regarding the prosecution of liquor cases at the higher court, and the power which the law and order leagues appear to have in "fixing" the cases. There seems to be the impression that on certain conditions, a violator of the law convicted in the lower Court, can have his case "put on file" or be "let down easy" as the saying is, if he will "fix things" with the Law and Order League.

Now we don't believe in this sort of business. The League complained, in Boston, because the District Attorney of that district put nearly all the cases on file, and they could get no convictions. So much was this the case, that at the present time no cases can be put on file without the permission of the Court. But the District Attorney can be convinced that there is not enough evidence to convict, although we don't see what right he has, even then, to decline to try all appealed cases.

We don't refer, now, to any particular case, although we might do so. The motto of the League is "Enforce the law," which is certainly not done, when violators of the law are allowed to go free, or be let off with a small fine, on a promise to discontinue the business, or leave the town or city. It is true that their one object is accomplished by the League—the saloon is closed. But the influence is on the wrong side. The law should be allowed to take its course in all cases, or if there is to be any distinction, it should not be in favor of those who are able to "fix things" either by money or influence.

The necessity of the Law and Order League came from the apathy existing regarding the enforcement of the liquor laws of the State. Whether that apathy was from the indifference of the citizens or from the unwillingness of the police in many cases to enforce the laws, is not now material. In the enforcement of the laws, good work has been done by the League every where. This should be their work. But when they attempt to take the part of the judge and jury, they are getting into deep water—so deep that there is danger of stranding.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Patrick McGuin was fined $6.53 in the police court last Monday afternoon for drunkenness.

Some one stole an overcoat valued at $20, from John Tumberty on Harris street, last Thursday.

A child ten months old belonging to Julia Tibney fell from a high chair last Monday and broke its nose.

Eddie Perkins, a carrier of the PRESS, cut his leg quite badly with a shoe knife one day last week.

In the police court last Thursday, George S. Low, of Danvers, was fined $1 and costs for being drunk.

A soap man named Hughes had his thumb broken last Sunday by having a halter wrapped around his hand when his horse started off suddenly.

Conductor David Nason of the Lawrence branch, badly jammed his hand, while making the five o'clock trip last Saturday, breaking the skin and bleeding profusely.

While attempting to open a freight car last Wednesday afternoon Daniel Haskell split his left thumb open the whole length. The old gentleman is unfortunate.

Chief Peasley recovered last week at Somerville the harness, recently stolen from Joseph H. Poor's stable in this town. It had been sold by the thief for $5 to a harness dealer.

Last Saturday morning Sarah Hogan was charged with assaulting her husband and put in an appearance at the police court. After hearing the evidence the judge dismissed the case.

Mr. John O'Regan, employed at the glue works, while fooling with a fellow laborer, stepped backward on Washington street, last Saturday, and falling cut a severe gash in the side of his head.

A short time ago a sixteen-year-old boy was detected in stealing money from the contribution box in one of our Sunday schools. He was in the habit of taking twenty-five cents at a time.

A couple of citizens while tramping in the woods near South Peabody last Sunday, surprised a party of young men who were playing cards for money. They quickly made themselves beautifully less.

Frank Allen, of Lynn, jumped from the Lowell train after it was in the station the other evening and struck his head against one of the posts of the platform, sustaining a severe scalp wound and bruising one shoulder.

Daniel Roach, of this town, was in the dock of the District Court at Malden, recently, for being drunk, and while the officer was out for a few minutes Roach walked boldly away. The court officers didn't recapture him.

Maurice Galway was fined in the police court Monday afternoon $1 and costs for being drunk, and for non support of his family he was sentenced to three months in the house of correction. The judge afterwards relented and he was put on probation.

While a stranger was driving down Foster street Monday, a horse attached to a light wagon became frightened by stepping on a barrel hoop, which struck him on the leg. The horse ran across the square and up Central street, but was stopped at the top of the hill near Elm street. No damage.

Horace Brown, a small boy living on Northern street was quite severely bitten by a large Newfoundland dog belonging to one of the neighbors last Friday. The dog was chasing a cat when the boy interfered and he turned upon him and bit a piece out of his arm. The dog was disposed of.

The case of Ellen Ring, from whom liquor was seized last week came up this morning, at which time Mrs. Ring did not put in an appearance It was understood that she was to give evidence against Mr. Moriarty, who sold her the beer, and that he had been selling to other parties, knowing the same to be exposed for sale contrary to law. Counsel for Moriarty pleaded nolo contendere, and Moriarty was fined $50 and costs. Mrs. Ring was defaulted. Officer Goodwin was her bondsman.

At the beginning of last term of the Superior Court at Lawrence, 98 cases were presented to the grand jury, who returned 72 indictments. Of these 72 indicted, all who were confined in the jails were convicted, with the exception of Minnie Hart, who was acquitted on the charge of setting fire to the Forest River house. The whole number of cases brought up for trial was 328, while the number disposed of by trial or default was 203. In many of the liquor cases, the convicted ones preferred paying a fine to imprisonment, the amount of money received from this source aggregating $2,331.94.

The man who played the hemorrhage game in this and other towns was arrested in Waltham. He gave his name as Charles A. Pierce and his age as 36 years. His practice has been to stretch himself beside the road, and when he saw a team approaching, he would break a small bladder, filled with a reddish liquid, which he had in his mouth, and the red liquid running out through his nose and mouth would give the impression that he was suffering from a severe attack of hemorrhage. Naturally the persons driving by would take pity on him, and after listening to a pitiful tale of illness, suffering and want, would hand him a sum of money to help him on his way.

The police made another descent on Baldwin's Hotel, last Friday evening and searched the whole house, including the rooms of the regular boarders, and in the room of Capt. N. Torrey they found a demijohn of Rock and Rye which they took away with them. Last Saturday the officers having become satisfied that it was his property and that Mr. Torrey was in the habit of taking it as a medicine, returned it to him. The action of the police has been severely criticised in some quarters, but they should not be condemned too hastily, as a police officer is just as liable to make mistakes as any one, and again it would be possible for the proprietor of a hotel to keep liquor in a guest's room that was sold on the sly. We know Mr. Torrey too well to know that he would be a party to the latter; and we hope that the returned liquor will assist in a speedy cure.

Last Thursday, as Mr. Charles Currier, was passing in front of the town house, he saw a boy pounding a cartridge with a rock. Mr. Currier stepped up to him, supposing it was a blank one, to warn him against playing with such dangerous things, when it exploded and the ball passed through the pants of Mr. Currier near the ankle.

The wife of James Egan, living on Washington street, left a little child in a room at her home for a short time, recently, when the little one secured a bunch of matches and had just lit one card, when the mother returned. There was no damage done except a small burned place in the carpet where the fire was dropped.

A man called at the house of Mrs. Potter on Foster street, Tuesday forenoon, having plated knives and forks for sale. The price at which they were offered seemed so low for the goods, that the lady was led to purchase a set of each. She paid the fellow and laid down the knives and forks, whereupon he picked the forks up and started out, going up Foster street in the direction of Washington street, before she could stop him. Word was immediately sent to the police and Chief Peasley started in pursuit, but without success. The only description Mrs. Potter could give was that the man had a moustache, and wore a brown overcoat.

Property to the amount of $1000 belonging to Daniel Hogan, has been attached by his wife, Sarah Hogan, on a libel for a divorce.

The case of W. R. Austin was continued till next Wednesday afternoon at 2. P. M.

In the District Court in Salem, this afternoon, the case of McGrath vs Winter was tried. This was a case whers suit was brought by Charles E. Hoag, in the name of Thos. H. McGrath, for subscription to the Peabody Reporter, after Mr. McGrath had sold out. Mr. Winter claims that he offered to pay Mr. McGrath who declined to receive it as he had sold the paper to Mr. Hoag. Mr. Winter then wrote a check, sending it by mail to Mr. Hoag, and some days afterwards suit was brought against him. After the testimony had been put in by the defense, Mr. Hoag admitted having received the check, claiming to have returned it to Mr. Winter, which Mr. Winter denied. The case was interesting in its testimony, a full report of which we will give to our readers next week. The judge was unable to see that tender had been made, and decided the case for the plaintiff, so that Mr. Winter's Reporter will cost him not only the regular subscription price, but the costs. An appeal was taken to the Superior Court.

About $190 was realized by the Baptist Parsonage Society by their late fair. The Ladies' Circle netted $80 from the album quilt. About thirty sets of Grant's Memoirs have also been sold for the benefit of the fund.

If you want a first class Piano examine the celebrated Ivers and Pond Uprights and Squares. They are equal in tone and touch to any, and endorsed by the musical profession. All styles on hand at W. J. LEFAVOUR'S, 175 Essex street, Salem.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The State Convention of the W. C. T. U. was held in the South Church last Wednesday and was well attended, and most of the towns in this vicinity were represented. Miss Mary J. Floyd with appropriate words welcomed the visitors. The following officers were elected, after which there were numerous interesting addresses on subjects relating to the work, and the meetings were continued in the evening: President, Mrs. A. C. Hammond, of Lynn; Secretary, Miss Lizzie Lummus, of Lynn; Treasurer, Miss M. V. R. Kimball, of Ipswich; Superitendents of Departments—Scientific Instruction in Public Schools, Mrs. C. J. Millett, of Swampscott; Juvenile Works, Mrs. Rachel Humphrey, of Marblehead; Flower Missions, Miss Clara Colcord, of Swampscott; Sunday School Work, Mrs. Mary M. Newhall, of Lynn; Prisons and Jails, Mrs. M. H. Austin, of Lynn; State and County Fair, Mrs. Victoria Batchelder, of Amesbury; Suppression of the use of Tobacco and other Narcotics, Mrs. Mott, of Newburyport; Union Signal and Message, Mrs. Morton, Newburyport; Evangelistic Work, Miss M. J. Floyd, of Peabody.

There was a full house last Thursday evening to listen to Hon. William Parsons in the opening lecture in the free course at the Institute. There was not the usual rush when the door was opened, but before the lecturer appeared on the platform the hall was more than filled. The speaker is too well known to a Peabody audience to need an introduction and from the time he announced his subject, "Masters of the Situation," to the close of the lecture the audience listened with the closest attention. He pictured with an easy flow of language the characters in history who were masters of the situation, and interspersed the same with advice to young men, and encouraged them by these noble examples to persevere in whatever they had undertaken. The lecture gave excellent satisfaction. The next lecture will be next Thursday night, when George H. Hartwell will speak on "Civilized Electricity."

As the cold wave struck him last Sunday with his ulster still unredeemed "Our boy" was heard to soliloquize thus: Signs of winter; No more doth the ice cream man hang his banner on the outer wall; the fizz of the soda fountain is silenced; the merry mosquito migrateth and the street sprinkler hath gone hence. Now doth the ice dealer chuckle o'er his accumulated wealth, and the plumber winketh knowingly at the early frost, while he getteth some billheads printed. The thermometer goeth down, and the price of coal goeth up the scale, even unto A-flat(pocket-book.) I must examine my lavender pants, and have them dyed black; the church committee buyeth an oyster and maketh much soup there from; the base ball bat hath been laid to rest, and the rumble of the roller skate is heard in the land.

Mr. John J. Bartlett, the young man who managed the first shoe store in town for Mr. L. R. Power, of Marblehead, and who at present is in the employ of the Naumkeag Clothing Store, was married last Thursday evening to Miss Annie Lancy, of Marblehead. Rev. J. J. Reader of the Baptist church performed the ceremony. The bride's dress was white throughout the under skirt being of satin with an overdress of albatross cloth trimmed with oriental lace, and from her head flowed a long veil with ornaments of smilax and roses. The groom was in evening dress. They were remembered with useful and ornamental presents by their numerous friends. They will reside in Salem.

The Essex Agricultural Society have decided to again hold the cattle show at Newburyport. We learn that there was considerable opposition to this as the resident trustee would guarantee them nothing, he having been very active in having them go there last year, and then he was not backed by the store keepers as they promised, and is $50 out of pocket in consequence. Messrs. James P. King, and Francis H. Appleton of this town, spoke in favor of holding the fair in Peabody, but out of regard for the farmers of Newbury and other towns near Newburyport, it was decided to hold it there another year.

According to the new census, it seems that hereafter the basis of representation for each of the 240 members of the lower branch of the legislature be 1843 instead of 1462 as under ate census of 1875. This will material difference with the ative districts all through the and one result will be to increase resent lamentable evil of "taking ' by the several towns in a repre- ive district. It will leave Pea- a unit as before however, we l presume.

Nancy Poor, widow of the late Franklin Osborne, died at her home on Oak street last evening. She had been an invalid for several years, and a short time ago fell and broke her hip, since which time she has been gradually failing, till she passed away very quietly last night, at the advanced age of 81 years and 4 months. By the death of Mrs. Osborne we are reminded that our old people are fast being called home. She was one of a large family, her father being Capt. Benjamin Jacobs, who, in his early years, followed the sea, and at one time filled the position of town clerk. The family to which she belonged have been conspicuous in the history and business of this town. The brothers were Benjamin, Joseph, George and Richard Jacobs, and her sisters were all married to Peabody men. There was Mrs. Richard Smith, Mrs. Edward Lamson, Mrs. Francis Baker and Mrs. Perez Winchester. Mrs. Osborne was married early in life and became the mother of a family of five children, all of whom are living at the present time. For fifty-five years she lived with her husband who died in December, 1883. Her life was devoted to her family and in her early years she was active in the benevolent works of our town, and around her clustered the affection of relatives and many friends. The natural vigor of her constitution helped her to live to a good old age, and the kind friends and relatives who have ministered to her declining years will remember her presence which in years gone by was sunshine that was never dimmed. Her pure soul has passed to a better world. She leaves three sons, Franklin, Joseph and John, and two daughters, Mrs. B. F. Southwick and Mrs. Geo. S. Poole. Her funeral will take place from her late residence, on Friday, at 2 o'clock P. M.

Rev. J. W. Hudson of the Unitarian Church, preached a very able sermon last Sabbath on "Transcendentalism." The preacher gave the origin of the philosophy underlying it—and traced its movement in the Unitarian denomination. It had played a very important part in the doctrines of the church and was the basis of the movement in the Orthodox Church towards more liberal ideas. The philosophy of transcendentalism was being merged to a certain extent to-day in the doctrine of Evolution. The discourse was very profitable as well as interesting.

At the Baptist church, Friday evening, instead of the regular prayer meeting there will be a meeting for church members only. As many as can conveniently will meet in the ladies' parlor in the afternoon. A free supper will be provided at 6 30 by the ladies' circle. The purpose of the meeting is to become better acquainted with each other, to discuss the state of religion in the church, and to devise ways and means for the future. The church clerk will be present with the roll of membership, which will be examined to see if any brother or sister has been overlooked or neglected. A social and profitable time is expected.

Mr. John Carbrey and Miss M. A. McCarthy were united in marriage, last Sunday evening, by the Rev. Father Masterson. They will reside on Holten street in this town. Mr. Carbrey has been employed at the Danvers Bleachery and P. J. Lyons' barber shop. The newly married couple received many pretty presents from their numerous friends. Last Friday the choir of St. John's Church presented the bride with a fine easy chair, as she has for a long time been a member of the choir.

There was a praise service last Sunday evening at the Universalist vestry, which will be continued each Sunday evening. The service is mostly singing, using the books of the Sabbath School. A subject is to be assigned, and the selections sung, the poems recited and the words spoken are to be in harmony with it. Last Sunday evening the subject was self-sacrifice.

The Old Ladies' Home Auxiliary Society gave a supper and dance last evening in the Town Hall. An elegan and substantial supper was served and the patronage was large. At the close while the hall was being cleared for dancing the people adjourned to the upper hall. A goodly number remained to the dance, to the music of the Salem Cadet Band. The affair was a decided success.

The drivers and conductors on the Lynn & Boston Horse R. R., have asked for an increase of pay, and the limit of a day's work to be ten hours—these ten hours to be within thirteen. A conference has been held between Mr. Breed and the Knights of Labor Committee, and it is probable that a settlement will be effected, resulting in the demands of the men being acceded to.

Wm. G. Webber & Co., of Salem have an arrangement for hanging all their cloaks on revolving stands, which allows them to keep all of one size together, show them at the same time, and takes up but little room. They are a great improvement and have been used in Chicago with great success.

Where Hours Go Merrily.

The Father Matthew C. T. A. Society are arranging for their annual social dance to be held at town hall Thanksgiving eve. The dance is in the hands of an efficient committee and a good time will be enjoyed.

Last Wednesday evening a party of young men who have headquarters on Boston street, Salem, and call themselves the Phœnix associates, gave a skating and dancing party at the rink which was well attended. Skating was engaged in till 9.15, when Miss Chrissie McClellan, a young miss of only 14 years, made her appearance, and for half an hour gave one of the best exhibitions of fancy skating ever seen at our rink. Many difficult feats and tricks were performed and were loudly applauded by the audience. The young miss is graceful and pretty as well as being a fine skater. After the exhibition, dancing followed till 12 o'clock. The Salem Brass Band furnished the music. Another under the same excellent management will shortly be held.

At the rink this evening the Salem Brass Band will have a benefit, and a skating and dancing party will be held. Skating till 9.30 and dancing till 11. There will be lots of music and a good time.

Morill, Phalen, Tully and Felton played polo in the Lynn Odd Fellows tournament last Thursday evening and won third prize.

The rink has been hired by a party of young people for a private skating party commencing on Tuesday evening Nov. 24, and continued the 1st and 8th of December. And if they prove successful they will be continued all winter. It is hoped to make them as popular as the Monday night parties the first of last season.

Remember that the firemen have the rink for Wednesday evening Dec 2nd, and will provide an evening of pleasure.

Mr. Lewis Nevers, the instructor at the rink, seems to be the right man in the right place. He maintains the best of order and discipline, and at the same time does it in such a polite and gentlemanly way that no offence can be taken. The boys are not slow in seeing that he means what he says and good order prevails in consequence.

The Tanners and Currier's Assembly K. of L. will hold a grand assembly at Town Hall, Friday evening, Nov. 27th.

Last Thursday evening the rink opened as usual but owing to the small attendance, the band was sent home and no session held. The free lectures at the Institute took the crowd.

The building of a temporary band stand at the rink each evening for the dancing parties gives good satisfaction as the prompter can now be distinctly heard.

Mr. Charles A. Thomas has arranged a very interesting programme for Thanksgiving day at the rink. In the afternoon at 3.15, will appear the well known stars, Princess Yamatschai Yeddo, and her faithful attendand Master Willie Bacon. In the evening Princess Yeddo, and Master Bacon as Mee Lung the great Chinese Skater. in Oriental Costumes and native exhibitions. Mee Lung is one of the most artistic skaters now before the public. Princess Yeddo is the only Japanese lady skater in the world, and appears in full costume of her country. Skating as usual. Mr. Thomas has been to a large expense to secure these attractions and a full house should greet them.

After refusing several offers, Billy Felton of the old Peabody polo team, has signed to play with the Providence R. I., team in the Southern New England League, at a salary of $25 a week. Tully is playing with the same team, and Phelan is with the New Bedfords.

H. Bissell, Master of maintainance of the way, of the Boston & Maine road, Road Master Stevens and other heads of departments of the Boston & Maine road were in town Tuesday overseeing the construction of Proctor's freight railroad.

Four tramps ate baked beans left over from the O. L. H. Society's supper, at the station house this morning. The cold nights begin to drive them under cover.

At the Brooksbie Club last evening, a musical entertainment was given, to which the public were admitted on payment of ten cents. There was a comb drill, and banjo solos.

The firm of Luther Fernald & Co., as will be seen by notice in another column, is dissolved. This is one of the oldest leather firms in this town.

Mr. Matthew Lynn is having a face wall built around his place on Crowninshield street. Mr. N. M. Quint is doing the work.

A. W. Jones is having a foundation put under his extensive edge tool manufactory on Wallis street. The building is also being reshingled.

The Selectmen have purchased a full set of crockery, knives, forks and spoons for use at the Town House.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

The December Number will begin the Seventy-second Volume of Harper's Magazine. Miss Woolson's novel, "East Angels," and Mr. Howell's "Indian Summer"—holding the foremost place in current serial fiction—will run through several numbers, and will be followed by serial stories from R. D. Blackmore and Mrs. D. M. Craik. A new editorial department, discussing topics suggested by the current literature of America and Europe, will be contributed by W. D. Howells, beginning with the January Number. The great literary event of the year will be the publication of a series of papers—taking the shape of a story, and depicting characteristic features of American society as seen at our leading pleasure resorts—written by Charles Dudley Warner, and illustrated by C. S. Reinhart. The Magazine will give especial attention to American subjects, treated by the best American writers, and illustrated by leading American artists.

WHO BIDES HIS TIME.

Who bides his time and day by day
Faces defeat full patiently,
And lifts a mirthful roundelay,
However poor his fortune be—
He will not fail in any qualm
Of poverty—the paltry dime
It will grow golden in his palm,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time—he tastes the sweet
Of honey in the saltest tear;
And though he fares with slowest feet,
Joy runs to meet him, drawing near;
The birds are heralds of his cause,
And like a never-ending rhyme,
The roadsides bloom in his applause,
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time, and fevers not
In the hot race that none achieves,
Shall wear cool wreathen laurel, wrought
With crimson berries in the leaves,
And he shall reign a goodly king,
And sway his hand o'er every clime,
With peace writ on his signet ring,
Who bides his time.

PLEASING AN AMATEUR MUSICIAN.

"I think," said a well-known orchestral leader, "the best joke ever played in this town was on an ambitious amateur pianist when Gottschalk was here. The amateur's father was the owner of a large hall, and he offered the use of it to Gottschalk for his benefit. There was to be a piece for eight pianos, and the amateur was to play one of the instruments. I was the leader. I thought Gottschalk would have a fit when I told him that the amateur couldn't play three straight notes.

"He is sure to throw us all out," said I, "and ruin the performance."

"Gottschalk swore like a Major, but 'twas no good. The bills were out, and he couldn't go back of his programme, even if the gift of the hall for the night was no consideration to him. At last I hit on an idea that fixed the whole business. The amateur came down to rehearsal, and we praised him up until he thought he was to be the star of the night. As soon as he left we took the hammers out of his piano and made it as dumb as an oyster. I guessed he would never know the difference, with seven pianos going at once."

The tuneful convention laughed.

"And just as I thought," said the leader hammering on the table with his glass, "that amateur or his friends never discovered the trick."

"No?"

"No, sir; he just sailed in and pounded on that piano as if it was the worst enemy he ever had. He was bound to show off among so many good pianists, and hammered on his keyboard until the perspiration nearly blinded him. Now and then I looked at him approvingly to give him fresh courage, and nearly every time that I did he gave the piano a lick that nearly made matchwood of it. His friends all around threw bouquets at him till he looked like a wedding arch, and when it was all over his fond parent fell on his neck in the green room and slipped a check for two hundred and fifty dollars into his hand. The old man didn't know whether he was standing on his head of his heels, he was so tickled, and the way he set up the wine for the crowd was a caution."

"'Didn't he do fine,' said he, to me, 'among so many first-class professionals, too?'

"'I never heard an amateur do so well in public,' said I, and what's more I meant it, eh? Don't you think I was right?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

MATILDY'S VOICE.

There was an exciting scene this morning in the Recorder's Court. The neighbors of Gabe Snodgress, living on Galveston avenue, were compelled to have him arrested. He had whipped his wife, and her screams were so terrific that a crowd at a saloon ten blocks distant put their untouched glasses back on the bar and went to the door to see what was the matter. Both Gabe and his wife Matildy were in court.

"What do you mean, sir," said his Honor, sternly, "by such cruel treatment of her whom you vowed at the altar to love and cherish."

Gabe assumed a persuasive attitude and emphasized every word he said by the most extravagant gestures. He was laboring under intense mental excitement.

"I'll explain it ter yer, Jedge. Foah God, I hardly teched her wid de toe of my boot. I tell yer, Jedge, dat nigger's voice am to blame. When she sings out hit sounds like a hull camp-meetin'. Am I ter blaim bekase Matildy has got a voice like a biler explodin?"

His Honor shook his head, as if to intimate that the theory was too thin.

"Yer don't believe me? Now, Jedge, jess you jedge for yourself," said Gabe, and lifting up a hoof the size of a ham, he gave Matildy a kick that would have jolted an elephant. She threw her hands up and opened a mouth as big as that of a circus hippopotamus. She gave a prolonged yell that caused two teams to run away, and caused everybody in the court room to hold their hands to their ears.

"Dar," said Gabe, triumphantly, when she subsided, "is yer gwine ter punish me bekase she has got a sopraner voice? Is I ter blame bekase she makes a Saengerfest outen herself?"

His Honor saw the justice of Gabe's defence, and told him to clear out.—Galveston News.

USE

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

It is a medicinal preparation, and, at the same time, an elegant and cleanly toilet article. Its action upon the scalp is healthful. It nourishes the glands which support the hair, and causes thin, dry hair to become thick, soft, and vigorous. It restores the color of youth to locks which have become faded with age or disease; and relieves and cures itching, caused by humors of the scalp. Dr. George Gray, Nashua, N. H., writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the wonderful effects produced by Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, as observed by me in very many cases. IT WILL CERTAINLY RESTORE THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It cleanses the head of dandruff, and leaves the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. Sandhein, 1010 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unavailingly trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only four bottles of the Renewer, and am perfectly satisfied that it is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use about Mr. Fox that the young defender of innocence found it best to retire for the present, leaving his opponent to rub his hands triumphantly and build castles in the air about the country seat and the horses and carriages he was going to buy in order to dazzle Miss Lacquerton, whom he felt justified in seriously thinking about now.

It has effected an entire cure, and I am now as well as ever."

Miss Nellie had meanwhile been informed of the conversation at Mr. Fox's office, and with an indignant exclamation about such incredible untruths, she went to fetch her letter box. There, sure enough were the letters, all in little packets, neatly tied up with blue and pink ribbons; but strange to say, she could not see an address; and oh heavens! when she undid the packets they contained nothing but paper—all white paper, without a single word on it. The wily lawyer had evidently deceived her by some diabolical trick.

The shock was so great to the poor love-sick lady that she scarcely had the courage to show herself when the will was to be read; but she rallied at last, hoping against hope that it might still be in her favor, when she could treat with scorn and contempt her faithless lover and his paltry damages.

Mr. Fox, although he considered himself already master of the house and everything in it, felt considerably excited on the morning of the day appointed for reading the will, and when Mr. Plumley, as chief executor, sat down and slowly got his spectacles out, his junior partner came over so faint and his heart fluttered to such an extent that he fancied all his hopes and beautiful castles in the air were crumbling away as in a dream. Why did not his old friend at once read the document? Why did he make the suspense so unbearably long? Why did he continue to stare first at the paper in his hand, then at those around him, and then once more at the paper without uttering a single word; and then at last when he did speak, why did he stammer, I—I—do not know; I see nothing—in fact, it is the same paper, but—?

Could it be? Yes, sure enough there was the paper on which the will had been made out, but there was nothing upon it now; it was merely a blank, a white sheet!

Good heavens! With what ink did you write out this will? burst out at last Mr. Fox.

With what ink? repeated the old gentleman indignantly, with your ink. As I found the inkstand up stairs dry, and the old lady was in such a deadly hurry, I rushed down myself to get some, and seeing your bag in the hall, I took from it the little inkstand you always carry about.

Mr. Fox turned deadly pale, and without saying another word, vanished like his ink, before anybody had found time to ask for an explanation. When the rest of the company had composed themselves again Mr. Plumley said:—

I know that the testatrix has destroyed all former wills, so that there is none at all in existence, and by law, therefore, the property will go to the next of kin. I know, also that Mrs. Johnson had no relatives whatever except Miss Lizzie Roberts. She is consequently sole heiress.—London Truth.

YOU CAN HAVE IT.—"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly envying the girls. The Balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

Book Notices.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for December closes the eighteenth volume of this well known favorite magazine with a table of contents which is attractive and timely. It is especially rich in portraits, each with a biographical sketch. The twenty-second of the series of Parables is devoted to "The Pharisee and the Publican," and the Sacred Musicians of this number are Ignaz Issmayer, George Perry, John Henry Griesbach and Johann Van Bree. The interesting series of Glances at Bible History is concluded in this number, as is also Mrs. Farmer's story, "What She Made of Her Life." Among the other articles are "Old St. Joseph's," of Philadelphia; "The Home and Grave of Anthony Wayne," Gounod's "Mors et Vita," and many bright short articles, stories and poems. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid.

Ballou's Magazine for December contains the final chapter of "Lewey and I; or, Sailor Boys' Wanderings, by Wm. H. Thomes, author of "The Belle of Australia," and "On Land and Sea; or, California in 1843, '44, '45." Here are three of the most entertaining novels of adventure that have been published in this country for many years. In addition the December number of Ballou's has an unusually large assortment of short stories, engravings, poetry, wit and humor. The January number will appear in new type, with new features, illustrated stories, heavy white paper, and will be the leading magazine so far as brightness and good looks are concerned, yet the price will remain the same—only $1.50 per year, or 15 cents single copy. For sale at all news depots. Published at 23 Hawley street, Boston.

Canon Farrar, in his lecture on Browning, brings pleasantly home to his hearers that poet's delightful dedication of his "fifty men and women" to his poet-wife, in which Browning calls to mind Raphael's "century of sonnets" and Dante's single picture as examples of how every man desires to achieve success outside of his peculiar genius. One is reminded of this by the announcement that in the Christmas issue of Harper's Magazine the novelists Black and Blackmore will both have poems, and the artists Boughton and Gibson literary contributions.

Mr. Howell's annual farce has now come to be expected as a regular feature of the year, quite like Thanksgiving and Christmas. It will appear, as usual, in the December Harper's, and introduces again our old friends of The Sleeping Car, The Register, and The Elevator. The Garroters is the title, and it actually takes liberties with Boston Common. This awful fact lends confirmation to the rumor that Mr. Howells intends to desert Boston for New York. Certainly no one would be allowed to continue existence in Boston after speaking triflingly of the sacred Common.

We have received from George Stinson & Co., of Portland, Maine, the well known Art Publishers, a magnificent full length, steel engraving of General Grant. It is after Anderson's celebrated photograph, which was made while the general was still in full vigor, and represents him in his sturdy, manly strength, as the people wish to remember him. It is, undoubtedly, the best portrait ever made of the general. Messrs. Stinson & Co. are in need of agents for several important, popular, new publications, and offer inducements that should be heeded by those in need of profitable work; those who write to them will receive, free, full particulars.

THE WORLD'S PROGRESS.—With the term cyclopaedia, we usually associate the idea of a ponderous set of octavo volumes, calling for a large outlay and requiring a considerable proportion of the library space. We have, however, just received from the publishers, Messrs. Putnam, of New York, a work which can fairly claim to be described as a cyclopaedia, although comprised within the limits of one volume (a handsome octavo of 1,100 pages) and selling at the very moderate price of $2.00. This is the new edition, revised and extended, of their standard work of reference, "The World's Progress," which was originally compiled by the late Geo. P. Putnam, and of which later revisions have been prepared by F. B. Perkins and L. E. Jones. The volume is certainly quite exceptional in the extraordinary amount of information which has been compressed within its 1,100 pages, and is further exceptional in offering its valuable material at such a very moderate price.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPION.—Mr. Edward Hanlan, the great oarsman, and until his recent contest with Beach in Australia, the champion of the world, may certainly be looked upon as an authority in everything affecting athletic sports. Before leaving Australia for this country, he wrote a letter in which he stated that he had used St. Jacobs Oil with the most beneficial results. He found it a reliable remedy for muscular pains in the arms and limbs, and from his personal experience took great pleasure in recommending it. No stronger proof of the truth of what is claimed for St. Jacobs Oil could be furnished than this, and it will undoubtedly carry great weight with all thoughtful and intelligent people.

GENTS:—I have been subject to Sick Headache for years, and have tried, in vain, many advertised remedies and several physicians, but all to no purpose. At last I tried your B. B. Bitters—without much faith, I admit—but to-day I can truly say, that after taking the third bottle, I have not suffered from it. I recommend it to all my friends; several have been cured by it. My little grandson was permanently cured of Biliousness and Sick Headache, which were so severe as to cause convulsions. They have all ceased since he commenced the use of B.B.B.

Goulding's Furniture Store.

A few weeks ago we mentioned that Mr. C. H. Goulding had taken the store recently vacated by Geo. R. Norton, to be used in connection with his own. The building is very familiar to our readers, and a slight idea of the amount of goods he carries may be gleaned, when we say it is literally packed from basement to roof. Entering the store, on the first floor above the basement, there is the usual counter on one side with a fair line of crockery ware, including chamber furniture in the rear, and beyond this is the shade roller department, where every description of spring roller may be bought at wholesale and retail. They are of many designs and prices, including the two yard spring roller and curtain complete for 50 cents. Beyond this is the work shop where men are constantly employed in making up goods of every description to order and where upholstering in all its branches is attended to. On one side is a large line of mirrors and made up goods to be delivered. A door has been cut through to the new part, and in this room Mr. Goulding is enabled to display one of the largest lines of carpets and oil cloths shown this side of Boston. A small room in the rear is used as a feather room where beds and pillows are made. This whole floor contains some 3000 square feet. In the basement there is kept a large stock of dining room and kitchen chairs, which are bought in the "white" and put together and furnished in any style desired, on the premises. Mr. Goulding also buys large numbers of beds and tables in the same way. In the second story there are chamber sets of every conceivable design, ranging in price from $15 upward. A large lot of this furniture is bought in Chicago and Owosso, Michigan, this particular work being entirely of hard wood, and beautiful sets are sold for $40. On this floor were neat French beds in hard wood which sell for $3.50, and solid ash bedsteads for $4.25, besides these, there was an endless variety of cribs, childrens chairs, cradles, etc. On one side of the room is a fine display of elegant furniture in Cherry, Walnut, and Ash in prices from $24 upwards. There are also willow rockers and easy chairs. Most of the Parlor suits and odd chairs, sofas, etc. in hair cloth and upholstered goods were made on the premises, and these goods represent brocaded plush, raw silk, and parlor suits in silk and plush, of his own design and manufacture. Mr. Goulding is selling a large number of marble top tables, averaging to carry out half a dozen a day with prices from $6 to $10. A neat design was a barrel head lounge in silk and plush for $15. The third story is devoted to spring beds and other coarser furniture, and the former sells from $1.50 to $5. One spring we noticed for $3.50 that a peddler was recently selling around town for $10. As we said when we commenced the store is packed with goods to suit all classes of customers, and our readers will be more than pleased by a visit to his store. In the rear is a building devoted exclusively to the use of curled hair, excelsior, and similar work.

One year ago last Saturday morning the big fire at Upton's glue works took place, by which property to the amount of $113,006.61 was destroyed, upon which was a insurance of $69,780

Noel Denot was elected a member of Steamer 2 last Wednesday evening to fill an existing vacancy. Mr. Denot is one of the clerks at the Central Fish Market.

At the meeting of the Directors of the Relief Association, last Thursday and Saturday evenings, arrangements were made to run a skating and dancing party in the rink on Wednesday evening, Dec. 2nd. Skating from 7.45 until 9.15; dancing from 10 until 12 o'clock, and a game of polo between two clubs picked from the members of the fire department, between the skating and dancing. The arrangements were left with a committee of three, consisting of J. H. Miller, Fred B. Thomas and J. F. Morland. The Reception Committee consists of the President of the Association, D. S. Littlefield, Chief Engineer Tibbetts, and Engineers H. A. Southwick, A. E. Johnson and W. W. Reed. Daniel B. Lord is the Treasurer. Floor Director, Vice President, C. G. Folsom and three aids from each company as follows: Steamer 1, C. A. Littlefield, George H. Carr, J. W. H. Ferguson; Steamer 2, H. J. G. Kimball, J. B. Reith, M. W. Cummings; H. & L 1, J. H. Miller, A. A. Carleton, W. P. Hills; Hose 1, Fred B. Thomas, W. F. T. Gunn, F. C. Blake; Hose 2, F. G. Farrington, Geo. O. Peirce, E. W. Pierce; Hose 3, Chas. H. Hooper, J. F. Barrettt, F. A. Wilkinson; Hose 4, John H. Moreland, Chas. J. Halpin, T. H. O'Keefe; Hose 5, Walter Curtis, Daniel B. Brown, Lewis S. Peabody. The polo teams are being formed, one having been picked from the firemen at the Central Station. The price of tickets is only 25 cents, and it is hoped that every citizen will help the boys out in their effort to increase their fund for the relief of sick and injured firemen. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Salem Brass and Quadrille band. Tickets for sale by all the firemen.

Tuesday evening, the members of Hose Company No 2 requested the attendance of Engineer A. E. Johnson at their quarters on Washington street, and upon his putting in an appearance, foreman F. C. Farrington stepped forward and with a short speech, presented the Engineer with a very handsome easy chair, upholstered in old gold and plush, with the remark, "that it was for him to repose his tired limbs in after a hard fought fire." Andy was wholly taken by surprise, but he managed to "bob up serenely" for the occasion, and responded in his well known happy style. The evening was pleasantly passed by the company after the presentation. The easy chair was made at Goulding's.

SOUTH PEABODY.

A collection was taken up in the church last Sunday for the benefit of the Congregational Union.

The base of the flag staff at Hose 5's house has been put in good repair by Mr. Calvin Peirce.

Mr. Frank E. Newhall lost a valuable horse Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Giles are the happy parents of a boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Newhall celebrated the fourth anniversary of their marriage by giving a party to their many friends last Tuesday night.

The funeral of the late Hardy Shillaber took place from his late residence on Lynn street last Thursday after noon, a large circle of relatives and friends following the remains to the family lot in Cedar Grove Cemetery.

Mr. Oscar Stowell will build a dwelling house opposite his brother-in-law's in Lynnfield, the work of building the cellar having commenced.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Chas. Basford is able to walk across the room.

The second dance of Hose 5 took place Friday night, a good party being present.

The rest of the willow tree that blew down a short time ago in the yard of Mr. Murray, has been removed and it is an improvement to the looks of the place.

Rev. C. C. Carpenter, formerly of this town, but now of Andover, is said to be dangerously ill in that town.

We record another sudden death this week. Maurice Roche, father of Mrs. Wm. Hayes, died suddenly at his home on Sherman street last Saturday. On Friday he was about his work at the Bleachery but was taken with a hemorrhage of the lungs from which he died. He was sixty years old and leaves a widow and two daughters.

Mr. Wm. H. Brown has just received a new 75 horse power engine from Indianapolis, Ind. It will be set by Mr. Arthur Trask.

We have had sent us the order of exercises of the Massachusetts Teachers Association. They will hold their forty-first annual meeting in the girls high school building, West Newton street, Boston, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 27 and 28. Any practical teacher of good moral character within this Commonwealth can become life members by signing the constitution and the payment of $1.00. These meetings are of great benefit to young people.

Edward Leary, a young man well known in this town, died last evening of consumption, at his residence on Harris street, at the age of 30 years 6 months. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Murray Club held a meeting Monday evening, at which time a pleasant entertainment was provided.

THE PRESS throughout the county, without distinction of party, we believe, are commending the course of Distric Attorney Hurlburt. If we have not added our tribute, it is not because we have not been assured of the wisdom of his election. We take occasion to do so now. His conduct has been manly and honorable, and we say so just as willingly as if he was a straight out republican. And while we are about it, we want to say that we are in sympathy, entirely, with the movement to take these offices, and all connected with the judiciary in any way, out of politics. What matters it whether the District Attorney or the Attorney General belongs to this or that party? So long as he is faithful in the discharge of his duties, we care not to what party he belongs.

It is a matter of surprise that no larger audience assembled at the Coliseum, Wednesday night, to listen to Dr. Newman's lecture on Grant.—Lynn Union.

The Union must be easily surprised. The public are heartily tired of Parson Newman, and will have nothing to do with him or his lectures. They might do for a free course.

IT IS NOT yet very late in the season, but sufficiently so to see that the drift of the managers of entertainments in Peabody is away from the Town Hall and towards the Institute. It began last season with the Grand Army. It has been continued thus far. Two concerts have been given in the Institute; it was let four nights one week, while the large Town Hall has been let just twice, we believe, this season.

This should not be. What is our large hall for, if it is not to be used? The expense of the building will never be paid by allowing the hall to remain idle. Before the new Town Hall was built our people did not like to go to the Institute, and managers did not care to bring an entertainment there. Now both managers and the public are glad to get back. What is the reason?

Firstly, it has been demonstrated that at any entertainment in this town, where a price of admission is charged, the hall cannot be filled. Unless it is, the acoustic properties are such that there is difficulty in hearing. Therefore the people do not like to go there, because of this discomfort.

Secondly, with these facts before the manager, he cannot afford to risk an entertainment at the price even now charged by the town. Because the town has a hall the size of Mechanic Hall, in Salem, or larger, it is not an indication that it is worth as much. And the difference in price already existing between the hall and the Peabody Institute has led to the leasing of the Institute many times when possibly the hall would be preferred. For music, the hall is better than for speaking. The Lotus Glee Club, at the concert of War Songs two years ago, were distinctly heard. The Oxford Male Quartette, would undoubtedly have rendered their music beautifully in our new Town Hall. But the managers did not dare to engage itt and we don't blame them. The hall ought to be put within reach of such entertainments.

The following choice poetical inscription is lettered on the Dustin monument at Penacook, N. H.

"Know ye, that we, with many plant it,
In trust to the State we give and grant it.
That the tide of Time may never cant it;
That children here may heed their mothers,
That Truth and Faith and all the others
With banners high, in glorious colors,
May stand forever."

Charles A. Weare read a paper on Jefferson, at the Unity Club, which held its regular meeting last Monday evening.

The Conference committee of the Manufacturers and K. of L., met at town hall yesterday and came to an understanding so that the whole thing will be satisfactorily settled at their meeting next Monday.

The young ones were having great fun in tobogganing on Warren street the other day. The slide was the old "dump," and the toboggans were pieces of board. Dust and dirt were no objection to the fun of the thing.

The store of Messrs. W. P. B. Brooks & Co., 151 Hanover street, Boston, is a busy place. They sell a wonderful quantity of goods every day, and for the kind of goods read their advertisement in the business columns of the PRESS.

They are telling about what a cribbage player Augustus Merrill at the hotel is. The other evening he held 28 in his hand, 12 in the crib and pegged 10, making 50 in all. Mr. M. "takes the cakes," among the cribbage players at the hotel.

A good house is assured for Rachel Noah to-morrow night.

This has been an unusually prosperous year for our painters. Mr. George Ward has had six or eight men constantly employed from the first of February till within a week. The men have lost only one day, (July 4) and that was a holiday.

Notwithstanding the severe rain storm last evening, a full house greeted Miss Nella Brown at the Institute. She is too well known to a Peabody audience to need an extended notice. Her selections were well made and the audience was pleased.

Mr. B. B. Humphrey has a mammoth squash in the window of his store on Washington street. It weighs 213 pounds and a card above it says it was "fed on corn and meal." It was raised in Waverly, Ill., and while it is a jumbo it only represents the jumbo bargains offered inside.

Spelling matches are being revived as the popular pastime of the season, and to be able to spell correctly will be considered as great an accomplishment this winter as it was last year to skate gracefully or play progressive euchre successfully. Organize your spelling matches for the winter.

The next edition of the Naumkeag Directory for Salem, Beverly, Danvers, Marblehead and Peabody, will be issued during the summer of 1886. The public are cautioned against representations which are being made that the work has been abandoned. The Naumkeag Directory has come to stay, and patrons can rest assured that it will be issued regularly every two years.

To-morrow, Thanksgiving evening, the play of Colleen Bawn, will be presented at the New Town Hall by a company consisting of Rachel Noah, Mrs. Pennoyer, Miss Barnicoat, Thos. Shea and others. Miss Noah is well known from her connection with the Boston Theatre Company. Mr. Shea, the leading man, formerly supported Maud Granger, and is a first class actor. We have reason to believe that the play will be presented in good shape, with appropriate scenery and properties. Tickets at popular prices are on sale at Spaulding's. *

Poet's Corner.

Thanksgiving

When the grapes have been gathered, the fields have been shorn,
And the wealth of the land has been garnered with joy,
For the glow of the vintage, the gold of the corn,
What tribute of praise shall we fondly employ?
O what shall we render, what gifts shall we bring
To the Lord of the harvest, our Maker and King?

His sun-shine was poured over orchard and plain,
Alike on the ground of the evil and good;
All softly descended his bountiful rain,
On the churl who had often his kindness withstood;
And the grace of the flowers, the sheaves of the wheat,
Were sent from the hand that rules bitter and sweet.

Not less to thank him, not more may we do,
He needs not our praise 'mid the worship of heaven:
Yet haply its minor steals tenderly through
Some rift in the chorals, if truly 'tis given.
Nay, hush, little faith! If he stoop to our prayer,
For the psalm of our gladness, He surely shall care.

And we thank him, not only for blessings bestowed,
For the gains we have counted with triumph and pride,
We thank him for conflicts midway on the road,
For fair things withholden, for pleadings denied,
For trial and hinderance; He saw from above,
And all that he gave or witheld was in love.

Ah! sometimes the cloud has been murky and thick,
And wearily kneeling at close of the day,
"Lord, listen, for one whom thou lovest is sick,
And one whom we love," has been ours to say.
Ah! sometimes the cross has been heavy; the pain
Has silenced earth's music, again and again.

Still, never defeated, though often o'er-borne,
Still, conquering ever, our songs shall arise,
To him who has dowered us evening and morn
With mercies uncounted, like stars in the skies.
Oh! what shall we render, what strains shall we bring,
To our Maker, Defender, our Captain, our King?

We thank him for freedom, for peace in our land,
For the voices of children, for purity's reign,
For the millions of homes that so sturdily stand,
Where mothers in honor their sceptres maintain,
For virtues transmitted from father to son.
For all of renown that our country has won.

When grapes have been gathered, when fields have been shorn,
And the wealth of the earth is in garner and bin,
Ere the bugles of tempest their message have borne,
Or the storms of the winter their fury begin,
To the Giver of Good let our Anthems ascend,
For the Lord of the harvest is always our Friend.

Firmness.

BY PHOEBE CARY.

Well, let him go, and let him stay—
I do not mean to die;
I guess he'll find that I can live
Without him, if I try.
He thought to frighten me with frowns,
So terrible and black—
He'll stay away a thousand years,
Before I ask him back.

He said that I had acted wrong,
And foolishly beside.
I won't forget him after that—
I wouldn't if I died.
If I was wrong, what right had he
To be so cross with me?
I know I'm not an angel quite—
I don't pretend to be.

He had another sweetheart once,
And now, when we fall out,
He always says she was not cross,
And that she didn't pout.
It is enough to vex a saint—
It's more than I can bear;
I wish that other girl of his
Was—well, I don't care where.

He thinks that she was pretty, too—
Was beautiful as good;
I wonder if she'd get him back
Again, now, if she could?
I know she would, and there she is—
She lives almost in sight;
And now it's almost nine o'clock—
Perhaps he's there to-night.

I'd almost write to him to come—
But then I've said I wont!
I do not care so much—but she
Shan't have him if I don't.
Besides, I know that I was wrong,
And he was in the right;
I guess I'll tell him so—and then—
I wish he'd come to-night.

Original Story.

A Co-operative Thanksgiving.

BY M. O. STEVENS.

Thanksgiving day was drawing nigh. The President and the Governor had proclaimed which one of November's thirty days should be observed.

Mrs. Ferson, who loved company, plenty and brightness, and was deprived of them, was in the dumps at thought of the coming festival. Possessed of her Aunt Pomeroy's spacious home, instead of her narrow and dingy quarters, and,—she took a long breath,—plenty of money, too, she would bid all her kith and kin be her guests for the day. Her warm and tender heart beat quickly as she thought what she would enjoy doing, and a cloud of vexation went over her pretty face as she realized how impossible it was to carry out her desire. She would have her own appetizing and enjoyable feast, carefully and prudently prepared with her own hands; she would have her husband, daughter Mabel, restless, noisy Walter, Cousin Joe, who lived and slept well nigh all the year in Means Brothers' Factory, and old Aunt Susan, her husband's aged and crippled sister, who determinedly would live in the Alms House, about her dinner table. Perhaps her widowed sister would come in and spend the afternoon, or a part of it. Others might come in the evening and the day would not go into her calendar quite one of clouds, but she longed for something more in every way to fill up the coming feast day. As she pondered in walked Aunt Pomeroy in her serene and self sufficient way to make some inquiries about a piece of knitting and count the stitches that composed it. Mrs. Ferson was out of tune with her Aunt's complacency. It irritated her. She envied the style, and possibilities of ease and comfort, that surrounded Mrs. Pomeroy, and believed her niggardly and selfish that she lived in a quiet and secluded manner. In this mood it was an easy thing for her to say spitefully: I suppose you give no more thought to Thanksgiving Day than to any other day of the month. You and Hannah will eat dinner alone in the little dining room just as you do other days.

But I have no love for holidays, Ruth. I would like to forget that such days come, was Mrs. Pomeroy's calm reply.

You didn't think so once. When you was young the old mansion was a blaze of light and gayety, and you looked forward to the holidays with eager expectancy.

Mrs. Pomeroy nodded thoughtfully. And that is just the reason why I would forget the holidays now.

Aunt Pomeroy, that is just the reason why you ought to remember the holidays. You know just what they are worth in a life.

One can be very comfortable without them.

But isn't life sweeter with them? You wouldn't have all the holidays of your past blotted out of your memory.

Oh, no indeed! Perhaps I would like holidays now if the loved and the lost were here to brighten them.

But can't you brighten the holidays for others? When you came in I was thinking that if I was mistress of your lovely old house I would have such a Thanksgiving this year. Sister Alice and all the children, John and Nell, Luke's boys down here learning business, Marcus Small, who must be tired of his little attic over on the west side, Cousin Joe and Aunt Susan, who will spend the day with me anyway, and Nathan's family, should all come and spend the day, from early morn until bed time, with me.

Aunt Pomeroy actually looked flustered as Ruth Ferson rattled on. You have named more than twenty guests. Robert hasn't been earning more than usual that you have the wherewithal to heat and light the old house and furnish your guests with food, has he?

Mrs. Ferson flamed up now. You know he has not. But it wouldn't hurt you to do it for once.

Ruth told Robert, her husband, among her evening confidences, when Mabel and Walter were snug in dreamland, I shall never forget Aunt Pomeroy's face when I said that. She turned so white I thought she would faint, and my heart stopped beating for two minutes.

Mrs. Pomeroy was terribly upset by Ruth's bold thrust. She acknowledged it to herself. She started to go away angered, but Ruth caught her hand and cried: Pardon me, Auntie, you see what an envious mortal I am. I would possess your home and I would spend your money.

Ruth never told Robert of how her Aunt Pomeroy drew her to the shabby sofa in the little parlor and told her of the skeletons she had been concealing for years. Of how her dead husband and wandering son had spent all her vast personal property a long time before, leaving her only the narrowest of incomes; of how she had planned and contrived to keep her fine old mansion and all its elegant belongings intact from mortgage, and the tooth of time; and how Hannah Morgan and she lived alone in a corner of the house in seclusion because she could not bear that sharp eyes should discern how little they had to spend on personal gratification. Ruth was taken quite into the holy place in her Aunt's heart at this interview, and came to understand the grand pride which concealed the faults of loved ones, the intense love for her beautiful home that would not allow one healthy tree or shrub to be destroyed, or a single adornment of the elegant rooms to be sold or removed. She now comprehended the self poised and royal nature that could conceal all trouble and regret and live out a brave determination.

Well, Aunt, you can't give grand dinners any better than I can. Uncle Henry will have a house full of his own family. They that feast every day can do no more on Thanksgiving. All the rest of us in isolated little groups can make our gala day the best we may. Perhaps I shall some time come to wish that holidays never came.

But, Ruth, we can get all the pleasure and brightness in our way.

Well said, Aunt Pomeroy, and I have an idea how it may be done. Will you lend me your home for Thanksgiving Day?

What can you do with it?

Oh! have a bright Thanksgiving. Don't you believe we could have a co-operative feast? If we united what we would each spend at home singly we could send the flames up every chimney in Pomeroy Hall and dance and sing till we were content. Say I may have the house and every thing in it.

On the condition, Ruth, that you manage the whole affair and don't ask me to play hostess.

That is too bad, Auntie. You can do the honors graciously, and I don't know how at all. I will talk it over with Hannah and if she will stand by me faithfully we won't forget the Thanksgiving of 1884.

If you find the undertaking is practical Hannah will be delighted to serve you. I can promise nothing for the feast but vegetables. All you may want Hannah can furnish. And now I must go.

When Mrs. Pomeroy was gone Ruth went to figuring and making out lists. In a day or two she was the busiest of women. Everybody caught her spirit and willingly carried out her instructions or followed her suggestions. John, who was a book keeper in a market, and with Nell, had begun their married life in a boarding house, said, the firm will give me a turkey, or its equivalent in money. I will take the turkey and perhaps it will be large enough to be fit for such an occason. Nell can help you, Ruth, and add whatever somebody else forgets.

Alice would supply the pies, the bread, and the cake for the entire company. Nathan promised a ham, oysters, and the butter. His wife would make the plum pudding. Their oldest son and his chum, who wished to come because he was in love with a maiden of the household, would see that wood and cannel coal sufficient for warming and brightening the whole house was at hand on the day before when the fires should be lighted. Even Marcus Small and Cousin Joe quite overwhelmed Ruth, when they insisted on supplying something for the table, and when an evening or two before the great occasion, Luke's boys came tugging a bag of nuts, and a basket of delicious apples that they had received from their country home, she could not keep back the happy tears, but when Aunt Susan, bent and worn and old, came out of the Alms House milk wagon, on the day before Thanksgiving, with two tumblers of jelly, given her by some charitable friend, she didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Ruth, aided by Hannah, Nell, and some of the girls, arranged and brightened every room. Aunt Pomeroy never had such lovely plants before. It seemed as if every one had extra blooms for the occasion. She made no complaint when Ruth cut many of them, almost ruthlessly, to place where the plants might not go themselves. She saw every available piece of princely silver brought out and burnished by other hands than hers. She gave up the keys of chest and cabinet and let Ruth and her coadjutors bring into view rarities enough to endow a museum.

The draperies went back from the drawing room windows further than they had been known to do in many years, and all was warmth and light and luxury.

Ruth resolved that they should commence the day in the old mansion with breakfast. No one must eat the matutinal meal at home. Ruth had her way. She marshaled twenty-six guests before Aunt Pomeroy on Thanksgiving morning, and led the way to the grand dining room, where, on many a past occasion the most famous men and loveliest women in the land had clustered about the same banqueting board.

A grander spread had many times loaded the table, but never one that gave greater satisfaction to the partakers. Ruth had furnished two of the daintiest of chicken pies made with so luscious a potato crust that the party seemed hardly willing to be helped to the other goodies. Mrs. Pomeroy, sitting on the right of Robert Ferson, at the foot of the table, bowed her face in her hands when he gave God thanks for the day, and all His bounties and tender mercies, and mentally said to herself: In visible, worldy wealth, I am the richest person at this table, and yet in God's sight I fear that I am the poorest. He considers the condition of our heart and the fruit of our living. Have I been indeed a barren tree absolutely without fruit?

The morning was none too long for an inspection of the treasures of the house. No one of the company was quite aware of all the articles of beauty, consequence and value, that had been gathered there, and which Mrs. Pomeroy had concealed with selfish pride. Circumstances had deprived Ruth and her guests of familiar acquaintance with beautiful things, and yet their tastes were not unformed only untutured or repressed. Marcus Small forgot all his shyness. His whole-souled love for art burst all bounds and the struggling young artist, whom nobody had ever seen warmed into spontaneity, blossomed into such richness of nature and fulness of promise as to arouse Mrs. Pomeroy's interest. She was cultured by training, travel, and experience, but the dust of disappointment and sorrow had buried it all. As Marcus elicited her surprise, so she astonished him. What different creatures they seemed to each other that day. The warmth and light of the occasion got into their souls, and the reticence of the one, and the shyness of the other was thawed out forever.

The dinner passed off happily, and when at dessert, Ruth astonished the company with a cluster of hot house grapes for every plate, announcing that they bore the congratulations of Uncle Henry, John rapped the table and surprised all with a speech that would have charmed any dinner party, and finished with a toast that created a hurrah for Ruth, and brought the red blood in a flame to her face. Ruth was on her feet in a twinkling. She did'nt know how she came to do it, but her reply was the brightest, wittiest thing imaginable.

These were not the only speeches. Nathan said emphatically, We cannot be quite commonplace people again. The spirit of this day has ennobled us.

Mrs. Pomeroy marvelled at Ruth. She never dreamed that there was so much in her neice. The practical,

MARBLEHEAD

Winter's Newspaper.

The case of McGrath vs Winter came up before Judge Osgood last Wednesday. This is the case where suit was brought by Charles E. Hoag in the name of Thomas H. McGrath for David T. Winter's subscription to the Peabody Reporter. The case opened and Mr. Hoag claimed that he might ask for a continuance, on the ground that the answer was irregularly filed, as he had received no notice. Frank E. Farnham, Esq., who appeared for Winter showed that everything was proper, and the judge decided to proceed.

The first witness called was Thomas H. McGrath who said that he owned the Peabody Reporter till last July, when he sold out to C. E. Hoag. He said he kept his business on several books, and was shown a small blank book about 3x4 inches which he recognized as his mail book for the Peabody Post Office. He said that he had considered Mr. Winter a subscriber; he thought he commenced when Mr. Irvin Besse was with him in 1881, and he had sent the paper through the office to Mr. Winter each week. Mr Winter had never paid him (McGrath) anything, but he thought he might have paid Mr. Besse but didn't know. He certainly had not paid for 1882-3-4. On cross examination by Mr. Farnham, he said he supposed Winter subscribed of Mr. Besse; he did not say it was a gift. He remembered that he met Mr. Winter on Essex street, and he offered to pay him for the paper, after making several inquiries; among other things, saying he would rather pay him than Mr. Hoag; did not take it because he had sold the accounts to Mr. Hoag and thought he was the proper party. The subscription book was part of the sale. He did not remember of saying that he was afraid of Hoag or saying he didn't know whether he sold his books or not. Could not remember the date whether it was September or October.

Frank A. Masterson, an employe, recognized the little book as the Peabody mail book; had known it for three years, it was the only book used for the Post Office, and he had seen Winter's name on it and called off the names at different times, while Mr. McGrath wrote them.

Mr. A. P. Chute said he was assistant post master. The papers are put in the boxes, and those who do not have boxes, are given their paper. Phillip Colman was the only one who had the paper, that didn't have a box; no Reporter was laid aside for any one else.

Frank H. Smith said he was connected with the Peabody Reporter Company and had been since last July; he usually mailed the papers from the book put in evidence; remembered to have mailed the paper to Winter. From his connection with the office July 10, to within three or four weeks he had sent the paper. Discontinued it when he received a printed notice from the post master that the paper was refused and not taken out. This notice he handed to Mr. Hoag at the time, and had not seen it since.

Mr. David T. Winter did not remember when he first received the bill for the paper; sometime in August he received something, but could not make it out it was so poorly written. He took it to Mr. Farnham to read for him, and was advised to send it back as it wasn't legible. After finding out it was a bill for the Peabody Reporter, he went to Mr. McGrath as it was the first time that he had learned that Mr. Hoag owned the Reporter. He met McGrath on the street in Salem, having previously called at his office, and was told that he had sold to Hoag; he then offered to pay him, but McGrath said he dare not take it, as he was afraid of Hoag and did not want anything to do with him. He said he did not sell him his books, only the machinery and the good will of the office; that after the money had passed, he spoke of taking away his books but Mr. Hoag claimed everything, and told him not to touch a thing as the books were his, (Hoags). He was afraid of him and did not want anything to do with him. A third party coming up, the conversation ended. This was on the 15th or 16th of September last, and after talking with McGrath, he talked the matter over with various ones, and on the 29th of September he made out a check for the amount of the bill to date of discontinuance amounting to $5.30. This check was drawn in the presence of two witnesses and another check was written at the same time in favor of Webster & Co. In company with a young man he went to the post office and gave them to Master Ward, the son of the post master, and asked Ward to put the stamps on which he did and received his pay. On Cross examination he said he was two or three weeks in deciphering it. Saw McGrath a short time after, and then made out a check. Mr. McGrath had told him he did not sell his bills or books; had never received the check back; the check was on the South Danvers Bank, had money there then. Two days after he sent the check, Hoag tied up his bank account and the writ that tied up his money was in favor of Charles E. Hoag and was for $1000.

Willie L. Ward said he was a clerk at the post office and remembered the circumstances as related by Mr. Winter. After stamping them, he put the letter addressed to Mr. Hoag in the Peabody Reporter box, and left Webster & Co's on the table as he was not sure whether it should go to Boston or not. The Reporter box is lock drawer number 21. and the Reporter mail goes into it. It is emptied at least once every day, all of Mr. Hoag's private letters are put there, and he often got the mail himself. A week or so after this Mr. Winter related the circumstances and said there was a check in that letter, addressed to Mr. Hoag. Could not remember the exact date.

Albert Vittum testified to being in Winter's office to settle a bill against Mr. Winter for the Peabody Press, and to seeing the check made out to Charles E. Hoag and signed by David T. Winter, and also the one to Webster & Co. Had some conversation with Winter about the bill.

Frank Howard said he was employed by Mr. Winter and saw the check made out. It was payable to Charles E. Hoag, also saw him put it in the post office and heard the conversation with Ward.

Mr. Thomas H. McGrath was recalled and said he heard the testimony of Mr. Winter, he thought Mr. Winter was willing to pay but did not think he offered to. The job account belonged to himself and the subscriptions to Mr. Hoag. Did not remember telling Mr. Winter that he was ordered out by Mr. Hoag. "I sold out to you (turning to Hoag) and I was not afraid. Might have said I didn't want anything to do with Hoag, might have said I was afraid to settle that account as it was not mine. Had never said to any one that he knew of, that Winter offered to pay.

F. G. Preston said he was a member of the Essex bar; he met McGrath, and in speaking of the case, McGrath told him that Mr. Winter had tendered him payment for the bill, and that he (McGrath) had no doubt that Winter was one that would pay it, but he supposed he didn't have a right to settle it. Asked McGrath if he brought the suit why he could not settle the bill? He said he considered Hoag a slippery sort of a fellow, and he didn't want anything to do with him but he did not authorize him to bring the suit.

Mr. Hoag said the answer of the defendant was a surprise to him, and as he said before he didn't know but what he would ask for a continuance. Here he read from the statutes in regard to the validity of money sent through the post office, but he said that he wanted to make statement. Mr. Farnham insisted that he be placed under oath if he was going to testify, and he took the stand. Under oath he said, some time in October, my clerk called my attention to a check that had been received from David T. Winter a few days before, and he had neglected to call my attention to it. I took the check and wrote a letter to Mr. Winter, saying the suit had been brought and declining to accept the check. On cross examination he said he did not know where the check was. Addressed it to David T. Winter, Peabody, Mass. Wrote it in his office and thought one of his clerks was in the other room; he thought his name was Ramage or it might have been Smith, did not remember which clerk called his attention to it; he didn't keep a copy of the letter; didn't know whether there was a return address on the envelope or not; sent it right off and in the letter told Winter the costs had been added; put it in the office himself.

Mr. David T. Winter was recalled and said that he never received the letter and check from Hoag, there was only one key to his box and no one was allowed to get his mail but himself.

The case was then argued by Mr. Farnham, and Mr. Hoag was partly through his argument, when Judge Osgood said that he could not see that any tender had been made and nothing accepted, and he should find for the plaintiff. The case was appealed to the Superior Court.

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

Under the banner of McNish, Johnson and Slavin no less than forty-six celebrities in Ethiopianism are to appear this week at the Boston Theatre. It is a new organization, with new features in refined minstrelsy and specialty that have been received with acclaim in cities of the West. In the first portion of the programme no less than fourteen vocalists of note are to appear. A grand orchestra and military band of twenty soloists will also make noteworthy the musical features of the entertainment. Among the special events on the programme will be a realistic coachman's clog, and a political skit, with the title "Cleveland's Reception at Widow Malone's." In this Mr. W. Henry Rice appears one week only.

To all who have a liking for the artistic in acting, the brief engagement of Janish, at the Park Theatre, will appeal with peculiar interest. The star is undoubtedly one of the most charming actresses of the time. The favorite will present during the week the Sardou drama "Anselma." Janish's performance in the leading role of the play has been so warmly praised that a rare interpretation may be expected. "Anselma" will be given by a carefully chosen company. Among them may be mentioned Mr. Henry Miller and Mr. John C. Freund, the journalist actor, who will appear as the Prefect of Police. Gabrielle du Sauld will play Stella, the danseuse, and Hart Conway, Basil.

At the Boston Museum this week "No Thoroughfare," the famous dramatization of Dickens and Collins, in which Fechter made such a success, is to be revived. The drama itself is interesting, and critics say that the character of the Swiss villain is Mr. Florence's most artistic assumption. "No Thoroughfare" will hold the Museum stage until Saturday night. Then the stars take a farewell benefit, the bill being made up of acts from "the Mighty Dollar," "His Little Hatchet" and "Dombey and Son."

There is no longer room for doubts as to the popularity in Boston of "The Mikado." Successful in New York, it is successful here; and all signs point towards a continuance for many weeks to come at the new Hollis Street Theatre. Manager Rich is meeting with every evidence of support from the public. The audiences are among the best in quality and size that have ever been gathered in any place of amusement in this city, and the opera and the company are evidently liked, and greatly liked, too. "The Mikado" will be given throughout this holiday week as usual, except that there will be no Wednesday matinee, but in its place a special performance on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Salvini, the great Italian artist, who is now fulfilling his farewell engagement on the American Stage, will begin a fortnight's season at the Boston Theatre on the 30th inst. The star is to be supported by a company including young Salvini, Viola Allen and other favorites, under the management of C. A. Chizzola. The artist comes with the prestige of a very brilliant engagement now in progress at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

Janish will be followed at the Park Theatre, Nov. 30, by Aimee, who will play a fortnight's engagement. On Dec. 14, John T. Raymond will appear; Dec. 21, Frank Mayo in Nordeck; Dec. 28, Janauschek; and the first week in 1886 will be filled by the popular comedian, Nat. C. Goodwin, Jr.

Living for Show is the title finally selected for the new comedy drama by Augustin Daly that is to give the Boston Museum company reappearance on the home stage a week from to-morrow evening. The rehearsals, under Mr. Daly's own personal direction, will be very thorough, as a matter of course; and the production will rank among the season's special events, as the play is written for the Museum, and with special reference to the company's ability.

J. M. Hill announces that the success of Romeo and Juliet at the Union Square Theatre, New York, has been so much better than he anticipated, that instead of the fifty performances he at first announced, it will be given seventy-five times. The seventy-fifth performance will occur on Christmas day and will be regally celebrated. Many of our readers will visit the Great Metropolis before the holidays, and they will of course go to the Union Square and see Margaret Mather.

After Diphtheria.—Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system. (c)

Finish up the out-of-door work as soon as you can.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injure the complexion, induce pimples, sallow skin, etc. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose.

Like the squirrels lay in a few nuts for winter.

Modern Architecture.—Mr. W. W. Armitage, architectural draughtsman, No. 402 Montgomery street, San Francisco, California, writes that having a very severe cough, which he found it difficult to remove, he tried Red Star Cough Cure, and after a few doses was completely cured. Encouraged by this remarkable result, he gave it to the young members of his family who were sick from a little cause, and it produced similar effects upon them. He recommends its use in every household.

The coal teams are numerous and kept pretty busy.

Don't Give Up Yet. It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never to late too try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr. Michael Guilfoyle, of Binghamton, N. Y., was cured of Rheumatism by it after ten years of unspeakable suffering. Mr. R. W. Mosier, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by scrofulous taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh

Can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was

Cured

Of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That flow from the nose, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

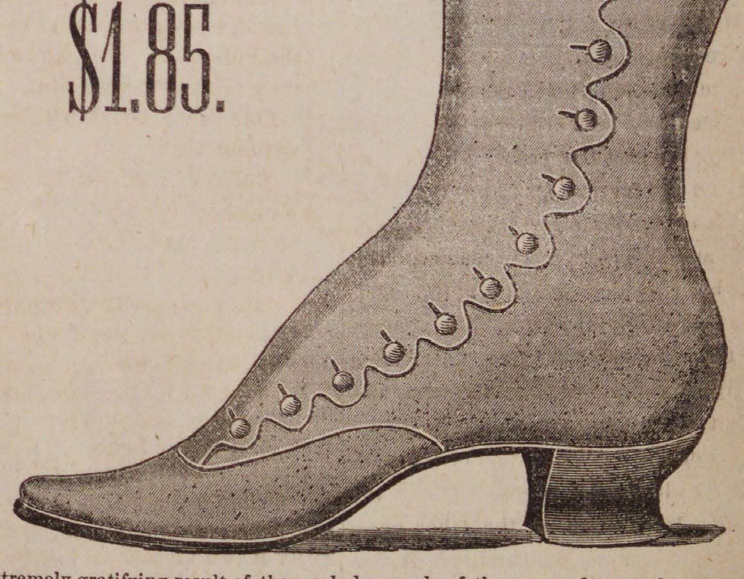
$1.85.



The extremely gratifying result of the mark down sale of these now famous boots are induced us to continue their sale at $1.85 for 30 Days More. The remarkable Beauty of Style, Perfection of Fit, and Lowness of Price of these inimitable boots, admirably adapts them to meet the popular demand for a Fine Dress Boot at a price within the means of every one. They have made A Hit! A Palpable Hit! and their extraordinary merits have been appreciated by hundreds of customers, who have nothing but praise for their many excellent points. Equal in all the qualities that catch the eye to any $3 boot in the market. They are Models of Grace and Beauty, and are irresistibly forcing to the rear the inferior styles of our would-be competitors

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to compe with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims.

The Peabody Press.

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,

Editors and Publishers.

WE DESIRE to announce to our readers that we have secured the exclusive control for the town of Peabody of Hollyer's line and stipple engraving of Longfellow in his library. This elegant work of art is 24x32, represents the author at full length in his study, and will make a worthy adornment to the walls of any room.

We purpose, from this time until Jan. 1st, 1886, to dispose of copies of this engraving on the following conditions:

Every subscriber to the PRESS who will settle all arrearages to this paper to Jan. 1st, 1886, AND PAY ONE YEAR IN ADVANCE, shall be entitled to a copy of the engraving free.

Every person, not a subscriber, who will forward us $2.00, as advance payment for the PRESS for one year, shall receive this paper until Jan. 1, 1887, and a copy of the engraving free of charge.

The engraving is not for sale, and no copies of it can be obtained except on the conditions named by us, as above.

For the twenty-five years since this paper was established, no effort, that we are aware of, has been made to increase the subscription list of the PRESS; yet at no time of its existence has it numbered so many subscribers on its books.

We desire to very materially increase that list during the coming year. With this object we make the liberal offer above mentioned.

The attitude of the PRESS has been commended, both at home and abroad, during the past few years, for its outspoken and fearless stand on the local issues of the day; for its criticism of men and measures, where such criticism has been for the advantage of the town, the county, or the state. Its support of the Law and Order League, not in a partisan sense, but from the sole stand point of "enforcing existing laws," has won the commendation of the leading men in the League throughout the state. Its position on the labor question has been one of liberality. It was one of the first papers to endorse in the most emphatic manner the advanced platform of the Republican party, in favor of weekly payments, a State Board of Arbitration, and the abolition of the present convict system of labor.

The local news of the PRESS is summarized for the week, and is full and complete. These columns receive particular attention, and every effort is made to have them reliable and free from personalities of every description. When events of local interest occur requiring detailed reports, no expense is spared to obtain them. At the legislative hearing, on the division of the town, the PRESS was the only paper giving anything like a full and correct account of the proceedings.

For the benefit of our amusement loving patrons, the PRESS gives each week notices of coming events at the different theatres in Boston. This is not done occasionally, and scattered in different parts of the paper, but it appears in a column by itself every week in the year.

Our column of Musical Notes is a recent addition to the PRESS. The musical people read it with interest; it is looked for from week to week. And we have reason to believe that, outside of musical circles, owing to the general interest in this branch of culture, no column is read with more interest.

With these and other departments, the PRESS gives its readers, each week, a large amount of original matter. We furnish from twenty-four to twenty-eight columns of reading matter, weekly, outside of advertisements, an amount equal to the capacity of most of the papers of Essex County, including their advertisements.

The engraving which we shall give upon the conditions mentioned in this article, is on exhibition in the window of Spaulding's drug store. It has been handsomely framed, through the courtesy of Nugent Bros., the enterprising shoe dealers of this town, and we believe it will receive the commendation of all lovers of art.

TO-MORROW is Thanksgiving day—the one holiday dear to the heart of every New England son and daughter. It is the home holiday. All its pleasures spring from the enjoyment and appreciation of the home and the family. Where the love of these is wanting the day is often fraught with sorrow.

There is much to be thankful for this year. There is peace and plenty in the land. The crops of the husbandman have prospered, and the hands of the laborer have not been idle. And this is true particularly in our own town. The report of the Overseers of the Poor, of Peabody, recently made, reveal a condition of affairs for which we all should be thankful. The number of people asking aid of the town has very sensibly decreased. The amount expended for outside supplies has been materially diminished, showing that in spite of increased population, destitution and poverty have decreased. If it be true, as it seems to be, that the money spent in years gone by in the saloon, is now used to purchase bread and meat for the home and the family, who is there that will not rejoice at what this Thanksgiving day has brought?

Business of all kinds is better. Most of our laboring men are at work, and that, too, at higher wages, which means prosperity both to employer and employee. At the same time the necessaries of life are obtainable at a very low price. At no time since the war has wearing apparel, of every kind, in all its departments, been so cheap as to-day.

We trust the prosperity in town may long continue. There is room for improvement, and particularly along the line of increased variety of manufacturing interests. Business men, here, too, could with advantage take a broader view of their interests and that of the town in which they live. But we should be thankful for the blessings that surely have come to us during the year that is past, for they are by no means few.

A MOVEMENT has been made in the city of Lynn towards the election of a Board of Government, solely on the basis of enforcement of existing laws. Citizens without reference to party are uniting on this issue alone. It should be successful, and we believe it must be. Surely the people of Lynn are not ready to hand over the city to the enemies of law and order.

With regard to the liquor question, their position is the key note of the Law and Order League. Enforce the law—whatever that law is. They do not dictate whether its citizens shall vote license or no license, but WHEN THEY HAVE VOTED, abide by the result, and let the law be enforced.

Not only with regard to unlawful sales of intoxicants, but the suppression of gambling, disorderly houses, and vice and crime in all its forms, there is to be an effort to array the city on the right side. The citizens propose to vote on the side of temperance, good government and the enforcement of law. They propose to make virtue commendable and vice and crime odious. We trust every good law abiding citizen will see to it that his vote and his influence counts in the coming municipal election. As a neighboring city, connected as we are by a line of horse cars, we make no further excuse for a kindly interest in her welfare.

THE LAW and Order League have very properly sent a notice to the bottlers of Salem and other places, whose teams are seen on our streets with such light drinks as ginger ale, tonic, spruce beer and the like, requesting them to discontinue the sale of intoxicants in the town.

Evidence is not wanting that they have been in the habit of peddling such liquor, in small quantities, as wanted in different parts of the town. This is unlawful. The driver of a team who sells such liquor therefrom, puts himself on a par with the unlicensed saloon keeper here, if any such exist. While, if he has a license to sell such intoxicants in the city where his business exists, he may legally deliver liquor to a private family, bought at his place of business, or ordered from thence, he must not carry such liquor through our streets ready to sell to any purchaser, in other words, make of himself a travelling rumseller, or of his team a travelling liquor saloon.

The League have given these people warning in time. A detection in such illegal sale renders them liable to the penalties of selling intoxicants in a no-license town, and we have reason to believe that they will be proceeded against, if so detected. They ought to know the position of our Law and Order League by this time well enough to heed the warning.

THE MUNICIPAL contest for Mayor in our neighboring city of Salem seems to have settled down to a contest between Alderman John P. Peabody and Hon. John M. Raymond. The former will probably receive the Republican nomination at the caucuses, and the latter the Citizens nomination. Mr. Peabody has been very active in politics and has done a large share of the work on committees, etc., since he has been Alderman, and will receive a large support. He is a representative business man. Mr. Raymond is a lawyer and very popular in the city. He, too, is a Republican, but like many others does not believe in party nominations in city affairs, and will probably have the support of many who agree with him in the Republican party. Either one would make a good Mayor and Salem would be sure to be well governed which ever is elected.

Suppose Blaine were president. And suppose he had manifested great interest in a closely contested election in his own state, had sent his private secretary with his directions about fixing up things, had contributed $1000 to his party's campaign fund and ostentatiously gone home to vote, so as to let his party know how great his interest was in the result—what mugwump or democratic paper in the land could have restrained its fiery indignation? It would be said that the country had an infamously corrupt administration that was debauching its politics and debasing its name, and the whole proceeding was in accord with Blaine's well-known character.—Portland Oregonian.

We commend the above to the mugwumps. The point of the article is that every word of it is true,—and cannot be denied by the most conservative democrat or mugwump. If they object to the sarcasm, they should also object to the occasion given for it.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES.

The Cape Advertiser is holding its own nobly against two daily papers in the city where it is published. The Advertiser is crowded with advertisements, but instead of enlarging, its publishers believe in having all the news by serving it in smaller type. This week it devoted a good share of its space to "doing up" the "Breeze" and its pet, Mayor Parsons. How a paper can sustain a man for office who has done nothing but make himself a laughing stock and kept the city in hot water all the year is past finding out.

The Milford Times has been coming to us for several weeks. It is Democratic, and the publisher shows his patriotism, and at the same time his appreciation of Ireland's national colors, by mailing them in green wrappers.

The Hingham Journal is one of our neatest printed exchanges. It is printed in one of those good old towns where there is really nothing very bad happens and where local news is not plenty. But the Journal more than makes up for locals by giving one of the most interesting Boston letters each week, imaginable. The author is a veteran and is as familiar with the affairs of this state, past and present, as a grown up child with a primer. We anticipate the coming of the Journal each week.

The Hampshire County Journal, besides presenting its readers with a full page supplement, also furnishes them with a fine cut of the Mary A. Burnham classical school in that city.

Mr. Charles H. Hastings, of the Lynn Item, was united in marriage to Miss Lucie I. Glines, of Newburyport, last Wednesday. We wish them many happy years of wedded life.

Miss Lillie Splaine of this town, played a piano solo which was heartily encored at the entertainment furnished on the occasion of the C. T. A Society of Danvers, last Thursday evening. John Black and William Garniss also assisted with vocal and instrumental music.

Mr. D. B. Lord's men will change the hydrant on the corner of Upton street, to the opposite side of the street, as it comes within six inches of the new Proctor railroad. The change will be made at the expense of the B. & M. railroad.

MUSICAL NOTES.

The operetta of "Golden Hair and The Three Bears," given at the Unitarian chapel last Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening drew crowded houses, and was a pleasing and successful entertainment. At the matinee, the darkened chapel, and gas lights showed the attractive costumes to great advantage. The eleven soloists, and chorus of twenty young girls sang with spirit, giving evidence of the careful training and instruction of Mrs. Ferguson, under whose direction the entertainment was given. The part of the Queen was taken by Miss Nellie Merrill, and Golden Hair by Miss Agnes Grosvenor—the Bard by Mr. Warren Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. Bruin were personated by Messrs. Osgood and Pierce, and Master Dan Lord performed the role of Tiny Cub with great spirit. The Young Workers receipts from the entertainments were over seventy dollars.

The second of the series of private musicales will be given by Miss Alice Nelson, Friday evening, Dec. 4.

There will be no rehearsal of the Salem Oratorio Society this week.

The announcement is made of the course of entertainments to be given by the Salem Cadet Band. The opening one will be the opera "Barber of Bath," and will be given Dec. 17. In this the only female part will be taken by Miss Anna Crain who is well known in Salem, and who is studying with John O Neill of the New England Conservatory of Music. Other entertainments will be Prof. Kelley's Tableau d'Art Co., with a vocalist and reader, Walter Emerson and his Concert Co., the Ladies' Schubert Club of Boston, with Leland T. Powers, a lecture by Harry W. French and concert by the Salem Cadet Band.

E. P. Smith and Susie M. Fulton of the Bennett and Moulton opera company (B) were married on the 17th inst. at Philadelphia.

Miss Addie Pitman, of Salem, announces a concert in Plummer Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 1st., at which time she will have the assistance of Arthur Foote, pianist, the well known conductor of the Salem Schubert Club.

The music-loving people of Peabody are to have an opportunity to enjoy Gilbert and Sullivan's new Japanese opera "The Mikado," as the entertainment committee of the Cadets have made arrangements with Mr. John Stetson for the appearance in Mechanic Hall, Salem, of his celebrated Fifth Avenue Theatre Company of sixty-two people. This is the same company which opened the Star Course in Lynn a week or two ago and they give the finest presentation of the popular opera of any company yet organized. The date of the engagement will be Friday, December 11th, with Mary Beebe as Yum Yum.

Mr. Theron D. Perkins, the new director of the Lynn National Band, and a brother of E. G. Perkins of this town, is permanently located in Lynn. Mr. Perkins has been the cornet soloist of Brown's Brigade band, of Boston, and is a thorough musician.

The opera which is being performed at the Bijou Theatre, the "Rat-Charmer of Hamelin," should be seen by all our musical people. Such artists as Januschowsky, Emma Tuttle, Janet Edmondson, Babcock, Fessenden, Kammerlee, and the like cannot be seen often at a single performance. And when to this is added the fine orchestra, under the direction of the composer himself, it should be appreciated to the full extent. Mr. Neuendorff has spared no pains to give the public a series of representations second to nothing in this country. They are a rare treat. And it is understood that only a limited number of performances, further, will be given. A word ought to be sufficient to those who have not seen the opera.

The Salem Schubert Club will give a "Mikado" entertainment in Plummer Hall, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Dec. 8 and 9. This is for the benefit of the Matsuri which is to be given a week later in the same place.

The daughters of John A. Messer who were heard so satisfactorily at the Baptist Fair, have been engaged at the next entertainment of the Brooksbie Club.

A parlor concert was given last evening at the residence of Rev. Geo. Walker, in aid of the rectory fund. Mrs. F. C. Ferguson and Warren Wilson, Jr., contributed solos and duets, Master Martin Melcher violin solos, Benj. Jacobs and Agnes Grosvenor piano duets and solos, and Mr. Preston, the organist, selections, on the organ. About $30 was made.

Mr. George B. Chandler, employed at Wiley & Poor's, will be united in marriage this evening to a young lady of Wyoma. On Monday he was presented with by his fellow employes with a handsome marble top table, Mr. George Manning making the presentation speech.

If you want a first class Piano examine the celebrated Ivers and Pond Uprights and Squares. They are equal in tone and touch to any, and endorsed by the musical profession. All styles on hand at W. J. LEFAVOUR'S, 175 Essex street, Salem.

Harper's Weekly.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Weekly has now, for twenty years maintained its position as the leading illustrated weekly newspaper in America. With a constant increase of literary and artistic resources, it is able to offer for the ensuing year attractions unequalled by any previous volume, embracing two capital illustrated serial stories by Thos. Hardy, among the foremost of living writers of fiction, and the other by Mr. Walter Besant, one of the most rapidly rising of English novelists; graphic illustrations of unusual interest to readers in all sections of the country; entertaining short stories, mostly illustrated, by the best writers, and important papers by high authorities on the chief topics of the day.

Every one who desires a trustworthy political guide, and entertaining and instructive family journal, entirely free from objectionable features in either letter-press or illustrations, should subscribe to Harper's Weekly.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

The December Number will begin the Seventy-second Volume of Harper's Magazine. Miss Woolson's novel, "East Angels," and Mr. Howell's "Indian Summer"—holding the foremost place in current serial fiction—will run through several numbers, and will be followed by serial stories from R. D. Blackmore and Mrs. D. M Craik. A new editorial department, discussing topics suggested by the current literature of America and Europe, will be contributed by W. D. Howells, beginning with the January Number. The great literary event of the year will be the publication of a series of papers—taking the shape of a story, and depicting characteristic features of American society as seen at our leading pleasure resorts written by Charles Dudley Warner, and illustrated by C. S. Reinhart. The Magazine will give especial attention to American subjects, treated by the best American writers, and illustrated by leading American artists.

THE OASIS OF PENJDEH.

Penjdeh is in the shape of a triangle, formed by the Murghab, which waters the Merv oasis, and by its affluent, the Kushk. To the south and southwest the frontier of Penjdeh—a district traversed by the nomad tribe of the Sarik Turcomans—is easily confounded with the hills of the once flourishing territory of Budghis. According to the investigations of European travelers, we should understand by this name the region bounded on the north by the sand of Merv, on the west by the Heri Rud, on the east by the Murghab, and on the south by the chain of the Paropamisus. The most fertile portion of Badghis at the present time is the eastern part, between the Murghab and the Kushk. The sands of Merv extend into this region to the east Penjdeh, while on the south they touch the well-cultivated region once belonging to the Usbegs, but now to Afghanistan, and in which the towns Maimena, Aripul, Shibergan, Andkhol, and Akcha.

The oasis of Penjdeh, fully capable of careful cultivation on the one condition that a good system of irrigation shall be introduced, forms, as it were, a sort of turning point between the deserts of the north and the fertile regions of the south, which await colonization. History proves the flourishing state of the ancient Badghis, which is still testified to by immense ruins. With regard to the aosis itself. Penjdeh is still peopled by about 8,000 Sariks, who occupy themselve chiefly in raising flocks. Their encampments skirt the banks of the Murghab from the site marked by the ruins of old Penjdeh. The greatest breadth of the oasis from west to east is about twenty miles; the greatest length from northwest to southwest—that is, from Ak Tapa to Meruchak—is about twenty-seven miles. The area is rather more than 300 square miles.

The Penjdeh Sariks are rich. They live in kibitkas or felt tents. Some among them possess as many as from 1,500 to 2,000 sheep and between seventy and eighty camels. They raise there, but in small quantities, crops of rice, wheat, sorghum, etc. They weave carpets which rival those of Persia, and fine cloths of camel hair for khilats and women's veils, famous throughout the whole of the East, but which are exceedingly dear. The Sariks of Penjdeh have commercial relations with Bokhara, Merv, and Herat above all other places. The irrigation of this region is quite insufficient. Its agricultural future depend upon the improvement of this essential. The culminating point of the oasis is Ak Tapa. Ruins are to be found there of a town and a citadel. There is a road from this place to Herat by following the left bank of the Kushk, which is crossed by the half-ruined bridge of Pul-i-Khisti or Dash Kepri. At the southeast extremity of the oasis are the ruins of Meruchak, and a little to the north of them begins the canal which issues from the Murghab and irrigates the fields of the Sariks.

PRONUNCIATION AND CHARACTER

The pronunciation of English is often regarded as a touchstone which reveals whether a person is well or ill bred, and to a certain extent the observation is undoubtedly true. Pronunciation is one of the outward and visible signs which most quickly betrays the lack of culture, and which, although the speaker may wear good clothes, betrays also the presence of vulgarity. But there are two classes of persons who can not be set down as either vulgar or uncultured, yet who, at the same time, entertain radically different views concerning the pronunciation of numerous English words. One of these persons occupies what he is pleased to call a common-sense position, which may be explained as follows: A word in common use is popularly pronounced contrary to the method given by a majority of the lexicographers, yet such pronunciation has the sanction of one or two good authorities, as allowable, although perhaps not preferable. One common-sense man says "there is authority for the popular pronunciation, and I propose to adopt it rather than make myself conspicuous by speaking differently from ninety-nine out of a hundred of my countrymen." The person who represents the other class is a strict purist. The one person accommodates himself to popular usage whenever he can find reasonably good authority for doing so; the other is unbending, and claims that common use has no right to acknowledgment, but that what he considers the best must always rule.

PAPER SLIPPERS.

Paper slippers are the latest form in which paper is introduced in new inventions. An Englishman has patented a system of manufacturing slippers, sandals, and other coverings for the feet out of paper. Paper pulp, or paper mache, is employed for the upper, which is molded to the desired form and size, and a sole is provided made of paper or pasteboard, leather board, or other suitable paper material, which is united to the upper by means of cement, glue, or other adhesive material. The upper is creased, embossed, or perforated at the instep and sides, which render them somewhat pliable and prevents their cracking while in use.

Arouse the faculties, stimulate the circulation, purify the blood by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Happiness

results from that true contentment which indicates perfect health of body and mind. You may possess it, if you will purify and invigorate your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. E. M. Howard, Newport, N. H., writes: "I suffered for years with Scrofulous humors. After using two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I great relief. It has entirely restored me to health." James French, Atchison, Kans., writes: "To all persons suffering from Liver Complaint, I would strongly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with a disease of the liver for nearly two years, when a friend advised me to take this medicine. It gave prompt relief, and has cured me." Mrs. H. M. Kidder, 41 Dwight st., Boston, Mass., writes: "For several years I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family. I never feel safe even without it. As a liver medicine and general purifier of the blood, it has no equal." Mrs. A. B. Allen, Winterpock, Va., writes: "My youngest child, two years of age, was taken with Bowel Complaint, which we could not cure. We tried many remedies, but he continued to grow worse, and finally became so reduced in flesh that we could only move him upon a pillow. It was suggested by one of the doctors that Scrofula might be the cause of the trouble. We procured a bottle of and commenced giving it to him. It surely worked wonders, for, in a short time, he was completely cured."

Found

At Home

SOUTH PEABODY.

Our citizens were shocked last Sunday, to learn that a little daughter of Thomas Dunney, about ten years of age, had been badly bitten by bloodhounds. The dogs were the property of Willie Upham, the son of the foreman of King Upton's glue works, and were kept on the Pepper farm, or what was the old pest house. Mr. Upham senior raises a large number of fowls here, and a negro who has charge of the place, lives in the house. The dogs had been let loose for a run about the farm, and for a while seemed to be playing with the children, when the Dunney girl started to run and the dog after her, forcing her to the ground and tearing her flesh in a horrible manner. The girl was bitten about the back of the neck and thigh and the left side was so badly lacerated that the action of the lungs was visible. Doctors Weston and Shannahan were called, and the child was removed to the Salem Hospital where she is receiving good care and may recover.

Rev. J. W. Colwell preached to the young ladies last Sunday and was very interesting.

Miss Lizzie Davis gave a party to a few of her friends last Friday night at her home on Lynnfield street. The evening was spent in games, singing, etc. About ten o'clock the party were invited to the dining room, where the table was spread with all the good things, which the company seemed to relish. The party broke up about midnight all pleased with the evening as spent.

Master Lester Newhall had a ingrowing toe nail removed from his foot last Friday, which will confine him to the house for a week. Dr. C. C. Pike performed the operation.

All trips on the Lynn & Boston R. R. horse cars to Revere Beach are discontinued since Wednesday.

Henry Forness and Bert Farrington shot several black ducks at Humphrey's pond last Thursday.

It is reported that there is a prospect of quite a building boom in the quiet little town of Lynnfield another season.

Mr. Wallice Oliver and wife are happy over the arrival of a little girl last Saturday night.

Rev. J. W. Colwell gave an interesting address at the church, last Sunday evening, on the subject "How, when and where Thanksgiving day originated."

Don't forget Colleen Bawn at the Town Hall to-morrow evening. Get your tickets at Spaulding's. *

SPARKS.

Hose 5 will hold a sunlight party in their hose house Thanksgiving afternoon. Dancing from 1 to 5 o'clock.

Gen. Eben Sutton has sent his annual check for $25, to the Lawrence Firemens Relief Association.

Foreman Miller and Assistant Foreman A. A. Carleton of H & L 1, and George O. Morse of Hose 3, were among the invited guests at the dedication of the new Central station in Beverly last Friday evening.

Secure tickets for the skating and dancing party at the rink Wednesday evening Dec. 2nd, and by so doing you will help out the fund of the Relief Association. Tickets only 25 cents, for sale by members of the Association.

Chas. J. Edmands, dealer in Artists' materials, No. 12 Bromfield street, Boston, has as extra announcement in this week's issue. In all kinds of artists materials, pottery, etc., he carries one of the finest stocks in the city of Boston, and he makes a specialty of filling orders by mail. Our lady readers especially will be interested in his advertisements, and when they next visit Boston, a cordial invitation is extended to them to visit Mr. Edmands' store and look at some of the elegant goods displayed there. Such a visit incurs no obligation to purchase.

Dr. Henry A. Reynolds of Reynolds Dakota, who has been visiting friends in Wakefield, left on Thursday for Mississippi where he has been engaged for a year by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of that State to lecture on temperance throughout the state. The doctor has lately closed a similar engagement in Michigan.—Wakefield Banner.

An exchange says the time is fast approaching when the visitor to the sanctum will step in smiling and confidently, and just as he is about to say: "Here is a little thing I had just dashed off," he will be paralyzed by a voice exclaiming in tones of thunder: "Go back and shut the door!"

There is a movement on foot to establish a lodge of the Improved Order of Red Men in this town. This is a social, secret, fraternal and benevolent association after the style of the Odd Fellows. The paper is being circulated and good names obtained.

Three Chinese men in ample blouses, white solid cloth boots and general oriental make up were seen laughing and chatting on our streets Saturday.

Mr. Henry Law at South Lynnfield, is building a large addition on his shoe factory. Mr. Law is an active business man, and furnishes work for a large portion of the inhabitants of that part of the town and west part of Peabody. He manufactured upward of four thousand cases of boots and shoes last year— Wakefield Bulletin.

INTERESTING TO FUR BUYERS.—Edward Kakas of 404 Washington St., Boston, is unquestionably the leading fur house of that city, handling strictly first-class and reliable goods. Their announcement appears in our business columns, and is worthy of perusal by all intending purchasers of fur goods of any description.

Mathew Mahoney, who died in Lynn Monday, under circumstances which would lead to the impression that he committed suicide, was well known here and was employed as a cook in several restaurants. He was given more or less to dissipation.

"Longfellow in His Library," at "Cragie House," Old Cambridge, Mass., is a beautiful picture and lasting ornament to parlor, library or sitting room. See our liberal offer to patrons in another column.

It is some time since our citizens have had an opportunity to see a good play in the new Town Hall. So they must not forget to-morrow night. Tickets at Spaulding's. *

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Campbell on Lowell street, are receiving many congratulations from their friends. It is a little girl and was born yesterday morning.

Mr. Geo. P. Dexter, who has been in the employ of Mr. Charles E. Teague, has returned to his home in Lowell.

An inventory of the estate of the late Isaac Hardy was filed in the Probate Court Monday, amounting to $40,827.93.

We have added five new subscribers to the PRESS this week,—two professional men, one business man and two musicians.

The price of turkeys keeps up despite the bad weather.

The PRESS extends congratulations to F. G. Preston, attorney at law, who was united in the holy bonds of matrimony last evening to Miss S. Etta Faxon of Salem. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends, Rev. E. C. Bolles D. D. tying the knot. The newly wedded couple will reside at 114 Central St., where they will receive the congratulations of their many friends.

E. G. Kelly has just finished the job of piping the old carpet factory in Danvers, and the Tapley shoe factory. In these places about 8000 feet of pipe was used. Mr. Kelly will also put in 300 feet of piping in the drying loft of Thomas Carroll's shop. He has put in a steam heater in Newman Perkins' shop on Grove street, and will shortly put in steam piping for the house of George Clerk.

Commander-in-chief Burdette of the Grand Army of the Republic, has appointed Maj. Geo. S. Merrill, Gen. Louis Wagner, of Philadelphia, Coporal James Tanner, of Brooklyn, Capt. John C. Linehan of Concord, and John S. Kounts of Ohio, as the National Committee on Pensions for the current year. We hardly think that means the $8 a month pension bill however.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the boot and shoe store of George E. Pearson, on Essex street, in Salem, whose announcement appears in another column. Mr. Pearson has one of the finest stores and stocks on Essex street, his show windows are elegantly fitted up, but this is only an indication of the elegantly fitting boot or shoe which is to be obtained inside.

The social skating party at the rink last evening, was not largely attended on account of the storm. But about 150 were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Another will be held next Tuesday evening. Only a limited number of tickets will be sold.

The entertainment committee of Holten Lodge I. O. O. F. have arranged an attractive programme for next Tuesday evening, and a full attendance is desired.

The case of William R. Austin, for keeping sweet cider with intent to sell, came up this afternoon and he was fined $50 and costs. Appealed, and held in the sum of $300.

After your Thanksgiving dinner you will want to go to the Opera House and settle it by seeing the powerful drama "Colleen Bawn."

Mr. George H. Jacobs calls attention in another column to the fact that he has one of the largest and finest lines of clothing, hats, caps and gents furnishing goods in Essex County. Give him a call.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Bazar is the only paper in the world that combines the choicest literature and the finest art illustrations with the latest fashions and methods of household adornment. Its weekly illustrations and descriptions of the newest Paris and New York styles, with its useful pattern-sheet supplements and cut patterns, by enabling ladies to be their own dressmakers, save many times the cost of subscription. Its papers on cooking, the management of servants, and housekeeping in its various details are eminently practical. Much attention is given to the interesting topic of social etiquette, and its illustrations of art needle-work are acknowledged to be unequalled. Its literary merit is of the highest excellence and the unique character of its humorous pictures has won for it the name of the American Punch.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY.

The position of Harper's Young People as the leading weekly periodical for young readers is well established. The publishers spare no pains to provide the best and most attractive reading and illustrations. The serial and short stories have strong dramatic interest, while they are wholly free from whatever is pernicious or vulgarly sensational; the papers on natural history and science, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best assurance of accuracy and value. Illustrated papers on athletic sports, games and pastimes give full information on these subjects. There is nothing cheap about it but its price.

An epitome of everything that is attractive and desirable in juvenile literature.—[Boston Courier.

A weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—[Brooklyn Union.

It is wonderful in its wealth of pictures, information, and interest.—[Christian Advocate, N. Y.

YOUR HAIR

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. P. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dadman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures diseases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.

energetic, thrifty and sunny Ruth had gained her admiration. She was indeed a fitting wife for the hard working young mechanic—but this brilliant, graceful, and elegant young woman, who did the honors of hostess like a queen in a story, was a complete stranger.

There was music and dancing. Uncle Henry, accompanied by a married son and wife, looked in out of curiosity, and remained to participate in the festivities, not running away when Alice's cake and sherbet were served. There were many sweet singers in the company, (even Mabel, who had always broken down at Sabbath concerts, carolled enchantingly) but when Marcus, and a blue-eyed daughter of Nathan's, sang together a dear old song with such sweetness and pathos as to fill stern Uncle Henry's eyes with tears, the climax of sentiment was reached, for he was not wont to show emotion, and nobody had suspected, until now, that the gentle maiden and the young artist had found out their voices and lives could blend in one sweet tune.

The most beautiful thing in life is a happy woman. Mrs. Pomeroy thought so when she watched Ruth restore order, but no gloom, to the old house the day after the festival, and she said simply: You gave me a very happy Thanksgiving, my dear. Perhaps the happiest I ever passed. Ruth couldn't remember when she had ever done such a thing,—she had never had the inclination, and couldn't dream if she had that she would have dared—but she hugged and kissed Aunt Pomeroy.

Mr. W. H. H. Murray, in reply to an editorial in the St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Republican, under the title of "A Wasted Life," made a speech preliminary to his reading there last Friday evening, in the course of which he said: "For six years I have studied to fit myself for other kind of work, and I think a more useful kind of work than I once did among you. As I started poor the first time, so I started poor the second time, and I have worked with my hands in part to pay my way. I am now graduating the second time and beginning to write and talk on secular and literary themes, as I once did on religious ones, saying what I deem true frankly and fearlessly. Some say I have lost my hold on the people. I never had much hold on them; the people had a stronger hold on me. But such a hold as I had, perhaps I have lost—we will see. Some say I have dropped down and out from among forceful men and powers. Perhaps they will live to hear me drop up and in among them before I die. I have met with some losses; I have been oppressed by some misfortunes; I have made some mistakes. But no one has ever heard me bemoaning my losses, or babbling about my misfortunes, or weakly trying to extenuate my mistakes. I ask no charity of any, and no favors. I know the world well enough to know that the world would give neither if I needed them. I ask only what all citizens have in this country, a fair field and a fair chance. If by careful preparation, if by travel and observation, I have fitted my tongue for instructive utterance, and my pen for entertaining expression, then will the people welcome pen and voice as of old. If not, I know how to keep my silence without bitterness of spirit or silly complaining."

YOU CAN HAVE IT.—"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle-aged ladies to young ones. Madam, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly envying the girls. The Balsam is not oily, not a dye, but is an elegant dressing, and is especially recommended for its cleanliness and purity.

Read what the people say concerning the ability of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, to cure asthma, catarrh, croup, colds, etc. Mrs. Dora Koch of Buffalo, says: "For croup it is decidedly efficacious." [Mrs. Jacob Mellisor of Marion, Ohio, says the same thing.] S. S. Graves, Akron, N. Y., writes: "Had asthma of the worst kind, took one dose of Thomas' Eclectric Oil and was relieved in a few minutes. Would walk five miles for this medicine and pay $5 a bottle for it." Druggist C. R. Hall, Grayville, Ill., says: "Cured an ulcerated throat for me in twenty-four hours." "Sat up in bed and coughed till the clothing was wet with perspiration. My wife insisted that I use Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first teaspoonful RELIEVED me." E. H. Perkins, Creek Centre, N. Y., Thomas' Eclectric Oil is also a TIP-TOP external application for rheumatism, cuts, scalds, burns, bites, bruises, etc. When visiting the druggist, ask him what he knows of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; if he has been long in the drug trade, be sure he will speak highly of it.

We noticed last Thursday a fishmongers team in front of the boarding house in Sutton block. The dealer continued his "scaly" business even if it was Thanksgiving.

Peabody has another male quartette forming. The ease with which musical (?) quartettes are formed in this town is only equaled by the facility with which they die.

The weather is so variable at this season that the printer dare not hazard a remark about it, lest it may change from one extreme to the other from time of writing to time of printing.

A Main street show window had five quids of tobacco sticking to it last Friday morning. It is a pretty small man that will thus deface a clean pane of glass, but it is done too frequently.

"The beautiful snow
Will come and will go
And when melting away,
In a sunshiny day
Your feet will go down in the slush and the mud
With a slash and a splash and a sickening thud.

The case against one of the Waltham druggists for Sunday selling, has been decided in the superior court by a verdict for the dealer; this will probably put an end to similar prosecutions in this state.

It is said that one of the best and most pleasant things that can be used to relieve toothache is chewing cinnamon bark. It destroys the sensibility of the nerves, and suspends the pain instantly.

We are indebted to Messrs. William Ware & Co., publishers, Boston, for a copy of the Old Farmer's Almanac for 1886. As good as usual, and that is first rate. It shall hang in the usual place on the gas pipe.

Everyone who loves to read the works of Longfellow, should have a picture of him at Cragie House, Old Cambridge, such as we are giving with the PRESS. It represents, "The workman in his work shop."

Mr. Edward Wilcox has hired the old Lillis place on the corner of Walnut and Wallis street and will open a grocery store there the last of this week. Mr. Wilcox was the founder of the Boston Street Cash Store in Salem.

Notices are posted in the street cars of the Danvers road, that no transfers will be issued to passengers excepting those from Peabody bound for the Port and Centre, and from Tapleyville and Centre bound for Peabody only.

The wages of the employes of the Danvers Horse R. R. have been voluntarily advanced by the Corporation to go into effect Friday Dec. 4th. The men also receive their pay weekly. This road deserves to prosper and we believe it will.

It is said that the length of the day and night at any time of the year can be ascertained as follows:—Double the time of the sun's rising, which gives the length of the night, and double the time of setting, which gives the length of the day.

Mr. Daniel Buxton, of Andover street, has a cow upon whose feet the claws had grown to the length of six or eight inches, and seriously interfered with the animal. They have been removed recently by the neighbors. They were so hard a saw was used in removing them.

Mr. Charles E. Teague has on exhibition at his store a neat model of a passenger car which shows the workings of the Ober ventilator, in which Mr. Teague and several other Peabody people are interested. The patent seems to give good satisfaction and the model attracts considerable attention.

Slight sprinklings of "the beautiful" have greeted us since our last issue, and we have "opened the bag" where the poets lie buried. Take heed, therefore, lest with poetic tread ye do enter the portals of our sanctum sanctorum. To do so, might prove disastrous to the frame of he who attempteth it.

Anyone may carry a sealed letter for nothing wherever he pleases, or may carry for pay a letter or letters, as special messenger on a single occasion, but he may not carry pay letters regularly as a private express, except the letters be in stamped and sealed envelope, the postage thereon being sufficient to carry the letter through the mails. Uncle Sam will not suffer any opposition to the postoffice business.

The meeting of the Brooksbie Club last evening consisted of an entertainment. Refreshments, including ice cream, were in order.

This is the season of joy and festivity. It is well to be lively and hilarious. It is well to make the most of human life. It is well to subscribe for the PRESS, and to enjoy reading it, and to follow its advice—and to send a copy to a friend. What present would be more highly appreciated throughout the whole year?

"It is stated that Henry Salstonstall, the new collector, is a cousin of Secretary Endicott. H'm-h'm?"—The Chelsea Telegraph.

We are not going to deny the relationship, Mr. Telegraph, but we don't believe that West Peabody's wealthy summer resident knows that he is collector. How would Leverett do instead of Henry.

The Danvers Horse R. R. Co. have petitioned the Selectmen for leave to extend their tracks from their location on Central street on and through Tremont, Northend and Holly streets to their track in Salem. Also from their location in the Square on and through Foster street, connecting with the Lynn & Boston R. R. and running to the point where Lynnfield street commences; thence on Lynnfield street to the boundary line between Peabody and Lynnfield.

Ames & Edgerly, in the little store belonging to Samuel Trask, engaged in the provision business, some months ago, in a small way. Their expenses are small, they sell wholly for cash, and do not deliver their goods. But their business has assumed large proportions. Their prices in provisions has brought this about. They keep the best meat to be obtained in Boston market, buy and sell, as we have said, entirely for cash, and people are finding it for their interest financially to purchase goods there. We have seen the entrance so blocked on a Saturday evening, that a entrance was by no means an easy thing. They have just received a car load of excellent Vermont apples which they are offering at their usually low price.

Poet's Corner.

A Lesson in Tennis.

They played at tennis that summer day—
Where was it? Oh, call it Mount Desert—
The place matters not; I will simply say,
They were playing tennis that summer day,
And she wore a short and striped skirt.

He played but ill—'twas his first essay—
And she his partner and coach was both;
Though perhaps not "up" in the points of play,
Yet she knew the game in a general way
And to give him points seemed nothing loath.

He did his best, but his best was poor;
The balls served to him on his side staid;
And thus it went on for a round or more,
Till, anxious, he ventured to ask the score.
"The score? Why, it's Thirty—Love," she said.

"And Love? What is love?" he fain would know
Yet blushing to ask it, for he could see
What pardonless ignorance he must show;
But she calmly answered him, speaking slow,
"Why Love is nothing, you know," said she.

* * * * * *

The sun of that summer day is set;
The season is gone as seasons go;
But his heart was caught in that tennis net,
And they might have been playing partners yet
Had she not given her answer, "No."

He plays no tennis at all this year,
But he mopes, and moans, and sighs—heigho!—
That fate is so hard, and life is so drear;
And, worse than all else, he remembers clear
That "Love is nothing"—she told him so.—

C. F. Coburn, in Century "Bric-a-Brac."

Spiritual Life.

Hymn for the Mother.—

My child is lying on my knees;
The signs of heaven she reads;
My face is all the heaven she sees,
Is all the heaven she needs.

And she is well, yea, bathed in bliss,
If heaven is in my face,—
Behind it is all tenderness
And truthfulness and grace.

I mean her well so earnestly,
Unchanged in changing mood;
My life would go without a sigh
To bring her something good.

I also am a child, and I
Am ignorant and weak;
I gaze upon the starry sky,
And then I must not speak.

For all behind the starry sky,
Behind the world so broad,
Behind men's hearts and souls doth lie
The Infinite of God.

Ay, true to her, though troubled sore,
I cannot choose but be:
Thou who art peace forevermore
Art very true to me.

If I am low and sinful, bring
More love where need is rife;
Thou knowest what an awful thing
It is to be a life.

Hast thou not wisdom to enwrap
My waywardness about,
In doubting safety on the lap
Of Love that knows no doubt?

Lo! Lord, I sit in thy wide space,
My child upon my knee;
She looketh up into my face,
And I look up to thee.

—George Macdonald.

Too Late.

What silences we keep year after year,
With those who are most near to us and dear;
We live beside each other day by day,
And speak of myriad things, but seldom say
The full, sweet word that lies just in our reach,
Beneath the commonplace of common speech.

Then out of sight and out of reach they go—
These close familiar friends, who loved us so;
And, sitting in the shadow they have left,
Alone, with loneliness, and sore bereft,
We think with vain regret of some fond word
That once we might have said and they have heard.

For weak and poor the love that we expressed
Now seems beside the vast, sweet unexpressed,
And slight the deeds we did, to those undone,
And small the service spent, to treasure won,
And undeserved the praise, for word and deed
That should have overflowed the simple need.

This is the cruel cross of life, to be Full visioned only when the ministry
Of death has been fulfilled and in the place
Of some dear presence is but empty space.
What recollected services can then
Give consolation for the might have been.

Prof. Barbour at the So. Church

A very large congregation, including many from other churches, welcomed Rev. Mr. Barbour at the South church last Sunday morning. He preached from Romans 7:22-25. "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man But I see another law in my members etc." The preacher spoke 1st of the law, 2d of the captivity, and 3rd of the deliverance. He said the selections read for a scripture lesson, comprising the chapter from which his text was chosen, showed this conflict in its broad outline. It suggested the possibility of a change of condition by a change of masters. This war is going on between two powers in the same man, or two men in the same person, an I that does good, and an I that does evil. It is a most singular thing. I, the natural man, approve the rule of action laid down in these scriptures, nay more, I applaud it; I like to live it out; it is upheld by the inner man, whether christian or skeptic; but I see a different mode of living in my members. I find a different rule of action, one of mental gratification, and, sad to say, this will be gratified, and I consent to this war. Everybody is a living illustration of this war. The conscience will testify as long as there is law, and that there is no basis of reconciliation in themselves, and the mind will consent to gratification. So when ministers preach in smooth language, the man calls it beautiful and praises it; but the legalities of the mind condemn such preaching, as faithless to the realities of life. There are certain things no man can preach about but in a certain way. The war must go on. What shall change? Shall conscience give in? or shall the desires for good be renewed, and ever after be obeyed? If there is no such thing as a new life what is the outlook? When the awakening comes what lies before?

(2.) The captivity. This comes by being under the grip of the worse nature. Its perpetuity is brought about by the inability to be other without radical change. The issue is as any war. In ordinary experience the nether overcomes the upper nature. Paul himself was aware of this bondage. In the carrying out of these desires we become captive to them. This loss of manly freedom makes slaves of men. Some men confess to such a passion for art, that they have nothing further to do with morality. They make this their employment, without reference to the glory of God. What different is such a man from the epicure? He is only different in the nature of the object enslaved to. The saddest fact of this captivity is that men do not wish to be awakened; they are insensible to their bondage. An instance of this occurred in the slavery of the South. It was said by the masters, "See how happy these slaves are." But the reply of the North was, "Suppose they are, all the more they need to know that they should be free—every man a king of himself."

(3.) The deliverance. The first thought of the awakened is who shall deliver? He does not think how he can deliver himself, but he looks outside. It is not so much the deliverance as the deliverer. This deliverer is Jesus Christ. What will you add? This is the gift of God. There is nothing left to do but take it. There is one more thought, the look of faith in the captive's eye, then the word Christ—now there is no more condemnation.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Barbour preached from John 4:29. Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did. Is not this the Christ? The preacher called attention first to our Lord's manner of approaching the mind, second to the substance of a few of the doctrines taught here, and third the effect of the truth upon the hearer.

(1.) The manner. Jesus approached the woman from the level of humanity, from their common needs. He asked from her the ordinary courtesy of the times. He gets into contact with her, and at once draws near the mind. She is a Samaritan. He does not therefore open to her Moses and the prophets, but on the ground of an inner need, he suggests the common need of a spiritual satisfaction. She sees nothing in his first exertion. He next attacks her conscience. She has had five husbands. She sees the tale of her life. He gives her credit for one thing. "In that sayest thou truly." Now he has her attention. He stirs her to asking questions, and when he has unfolded his theme he tells her to go and deliver what she has heard. The preacher commended this method to those who wished to reach men. Christ took the woman as she was. What he said he expected her to act upon, and to judge how welcome she would be to God, no matter where she was born, or who she was.

(2.) A few of the doctrines taught. First, a recognition of a spiritual need in the human heart, only filled by a gift from himself. This is the standard doctrine of Christ through the new Testament. "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall never thirst." There is a need of something by way of gift from Him. There is no life without it. Second, the human soul can always be challenged on account of its sin. Christ was bold appeal to the woman on account of her conduct. He makes for her conscience, and convinces her of sin, not as a defect, or a disease, but as actual practical wrong doing, for which she must be personally responsible. We must convince men thus—make them feel that they are personally responsible.

Again, Christ taught here the important doctrine of worship or approach to God. It must be according to his nature, in spirit and truth. Neither at Jerusalem or on this mountain. Externals were of no account, now that the Messiah had made accesssion to the Father. Christ does not find fault with the system of the Jews, who looked for a Messiah, but from the time of His coming all was superseded.

Lastly, Christ taught here his own Messiahship, as a doctrine and a fact. It is clear that he held the woman to be on the right track by turning to a deliverer by mediation. She was awakened to the need of one to come between her and God. She says "There is a Messiah to come." Christ says "I am he." Let the heart be truly pricked and it is ready for the word "I am he." There is not so much religion given in the entire teaching to the apostles as to this woman.

(3.) The effect of the truth on the hearer. As conscience is awakened she becomes more serious in manner, and turns to the deliverer. The seriousness of her report shows how she was impressed. She had several grounds for her belief in Christ, but she tells only one. "Come see a man which told me all the things that ever I did; is not this the Christ?" This is the one confession of his power. How natural? She knows but one thing, the fact of his power to know her heart, and his authority to condemn her life. The preacher closed with an exhortation to present such truth as commends itself to the heart and conscience of man, that carries with it its own authority. This was the method in Christ's teaching all through. When Paul preached to the Gentiles he did not begin at the old testament, but begins with idolatry, turning from that to the advocacy of the true God.

No report, short of a verbatim one, can give a clear idea of the terse expressions, the vivid characterizations, and the earnest delivery of the former well known pastor of the South church. At both services the congregations were unusually large showing that the reverend gentleman still has a warm place in the hearts of our citizens.

Unitarian Church.

Rev. J. W. Hudson, last Sabbath, preached on the application of the doctrine of transcendentalism of which he had given a history two Sundays previous. He announced his text from John 9:25. "One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see." The preacher remarked that several trains of thought could be profitably carried out by the chapter of which the text was a part—the officiousness of the neighbors—the consciousness of the Pharisees—but he would refer to only one, the reply of the young man, "One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see." He had already judged by the facts. He could not tell whether Christ had violated the law of Moses or of the Sabbath. But he knows he sees. That is real evidence to him. These evidences of Christ were never appreciated by the Pharisees. They asked the prophets, and weighed the testimony whether Jesus is of God. There is a branch of study called "Evidences of Christianity" which follow this one general track of thought. Its application is exclusively from the outside. It tries to prove, by argument, the historical genuineness of the Scriptures, that they are what they assumed to be, and were written by the authors claimed for them, and rely on the miracles to prove that Christ was supernatural. Such evidence has been of value. It has led to the investigation of the doctrines of the bible. It has thrown light on the character of Christ by showing his surroundings. It only presents us with a historical figure, and from God, provided we can follow the entire argument. On the same ground we may reject Christ as from God. Such argument has been made, and many have wavered in doubt between these evidences. Many have been led to lose their interest, and few or none brought into sympathy by this form of evidence. It is not deep enough. New methods of interpretation of the bible have broken the force of arguments of this kind. The preacher had read the arguments, during the week, of Justin the martyr, made in 1600. It would be called puerile to-day. It meets none of the difficulties of the present time. It is not the kind that endures.

This, therefore, is not the only evidence of Christianity. There is evidence that never grows old, that is unassailable, in the soul's recognition of the good in the New Testament. If Christ is an agent of good to the soul, he is of God. If we have witness in our souls that his agency is good, then we have the witness that his agency is from God. If he gives us things to hope for, he is divine to us. "Whereas we were blind, now we see." They may be beyond our scope to understand. But the evidence is real or transcendental. It needs no apparatus of books, no skilled logic. It comes home to the heart of the candid and truth seeking person.

Every century has had to deal with Christ. How is this century dealing with him? At the outset difficulties developed themselves. Old books of evidence lost their interest. New ones have taken their place. Lives of Christ are being read, because they present the career of Jesus in an intelligent manner.

One of the traits of this age is the passion of certainty—the desire to sift to the bottom, to dissolve all illusions. It would rather confront a disagreeable fact and know it, than to harbor a pleasant delusion. Science has little regard for theory. Nations send out expeditions in search of little facts. The archives of history are ransacked to get the history of nations. Roman history has been cut away of much that will not stand the search of the age. There is a desire to know the certainties of life. The old systems of evidence are ineffectual to do this. They may prove that the Scriptures are honest, but it remains to be shown that the Christian religion comes from the Father. Internal evidence shows an influence from Christ—uplifting the soul, and it knows it cannot be mistaken. Does it meet his needs? Then it is a fact.

A deal is said about the skepticism of this age. It is not skeptical. There is no skepticism in the desire for truth. The eighteenth century was skeptical, it was indifferent to spiritual truth. It began with the scoffing of Voltaire, and ended with the scoffing of Thomas Paine. This age is reverent. It wishes to believe what is credible. Christ's teachings are not treated with indifference. Let criticism do what it will with the record, as we study it as a spiritual fact and influence in our life, as related to our needs, it will come to be divine. When homes are made more sacred by this spiritual influence, then all these things bear witness to the divineness of that new power and light which dawned on the world. It is only by what we see that we arrive at any knowledge of Christ, only as we perceive the truth of the ideas of his shall we know we see.

The well known millinery store of Reith & Co. on Essex street, Salem, has during the past season undergone a change. The walls have been neatly tinted and the ceilings tastily frescoed. To correspond with these improvements a large stock has been added and now there is going on there a great slaughter sale in millinery goods. Handsome trimmed hats and bonnets are offered for barely the costs of trimmings, and like low prices prevail throughout the different departments, feathers, plushes, ribbons and ornaments are shown in wonderful varieties and their low prices create big sales. It will pay all to make an early call at Reith's.

Many of our readers have noticed the immense iron resevoir in Swampscott while going to Boston. It is 22 1-2 feet in diameter and 110 feet high and is being built by the Marblehead Water Co. The construction of this water-tower requires about 80 tons of steam-boiler plates and rivets, there being 14,000 of the latter to hold the plating together. When complete it will hold 324,000 gallons of water, which will approximate 1,300 tons. This reservoir when complete, will be the most prominent landmark on the coast in this vicinity. It is now rapidly approaching completion.

Now is the time to select a holiday gift when stores are not crowded and ample oppotunity is afforded for a thorough examination, and the gratification enjoyed of looking at a full stock. In the way of holiday goods, no dealer in this vicinity can show a prettier or richer line of sutiable goods than Daniel Low. Special attention has been given to oft-expressed desires of patrons, and an assortment is to be seen that would do credit to any New York house. There are diamonds, jewelery of all kinds, fancy ornaments, silver and silver plated ware, fancy lamps and an endless variety of Christmas presents.

The germs of scrofula, latent in every person, are destroyed by Ayer's Sarsparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Have you seen our beautiful steel plate engraving of "America's Immortal Poet," Henry W. Longfellow, in his Library, now on exhibition in Spaulding's window. This is no chromo or lithograph work, but a beautiful premium given to new subscribers of the Press.

MUSICAL NOTES.

Mrs. S. P. Chase has resumed her position in the choir of the South church. The singing last Sunday evening showed unusual care in preparation.

A musicale will be given Friday evening by Miss Alice Nelson. The contributions will be mostly by home talent.

The tickets for the course of concerts by the Salem Cadet Band are now for sale at Luscomb's drug store, in Salem. The opening entertainment is to be by the Boston Comic Opera Company. Wherever this company has appeared it has been received with marked favor by press and public. A concert precedes the opera and will consist of solos by Messrs. Lindall, cornet; Fennelly, violin; Miss Crain, soprano; Mr. Walter Bell, tenor. This entertainment will conclude with Offenbach's sprightly and melodious opera, "Barber of Bath."

E. S. Macgregor, of the Unitarian choir, directed the opening concert of the Y. M. C. A. course in Salem, last Monday evening.

The tickets for the Mikado entertainment by the Schubert Club, which takes place the 8th and 9th of December in Plummer Hall, and which comprises scenes from the new Japanese opera, are having a rapid sale at Luscomb's drug store.

Miss Elene B. Kehew is having good success this season. She sings in Manchester, Dec. 15; Providence, Jan. 19, and Charlestown, Jan. 29th.

There is a possibility of the appearance of the Centennial Jubilee Singers, in town, some Sabbath evening, within a few weeks.

The concert in Gloucester, by Prof. Bill, teacher of music in our public schools, is well spoken of by the local press of that city. Miss Amanda Bailey, of Salem, Miss Bill of the South Church choir, Mr. Macgregor and others took part. The trio, "Memory," as sung by Misses Bailey and Bill and Mr. Macgregor were well received, as was also a duet by Miss Bill and Mr. Macgregor. Mr. Innis, the xylophonist, of Salem, created a furore, as he always does, and the readings of S. C. T. Aborn were well given. We congratulate Prof. Bill on the success of the whole affair.

Miss Emma Cheney, contralto of the choir of the Harvard Street Church, Charlestown, spent Sunday with friends in town.

The coming of Rev. Mr. Barbour to town for a Sabbath calls to mind the praise services which are held in the College Church in New Haven, once a month, and which would prove interesting, we think, in any church. Some five or six hymns are sung by the entire congregation, the pastor makes a short address, not exceeding ten minutes, which with the reading of the Scriptures and a prayer completes the service. It is a vesper service, only that the congregation do the singing, with this variety, however, which adds additional charm. Some time during the service a solo is rendered by one of the singers of the city, any one of whom is very willing to thus favor the College Church. The song is in harmony with the occasion, and all together the service is impressive. Miss Adelaide Phelps, one of the finest contraltos in the city of Elms, has been frequently a soloist on that occasion. The praise services now being held by Rev. Mr. Sprague are the nearest to this idea of anything in this vicinity.

Miss Katie F. Linehan has been appointed assistant organist at St. John's Church.

The Mikado entertainment in Mechanic Hall Dec. 11, as per announcement in another column, should attract large numbers of our musical people, as it doubtless will do. It is being brought to Salem by the Salem Cadets, and they deserve the encouragement of a full house. Horse cars on both the Naumkeag and Danvers roads will run to Peabody at the close.

The Keynote of New York appears this week in a much improved shape. It is smaller than before, being now a trifle larger than the popular Truth of London, and like that weekly, it has an illustrated cover. The matter never appeared so attractive as it does in its new shape. It is the finest musical sheet in the country. It is edited by Frederic Archer, the renowned organist of New York; 10 cents will buy a sample copy and we think our musical readers will be more than pleased with the paper, which is more like a magazine than a weekly journal.

It should be a matter of regret that the opera performances of Neuendorff at the Bijou Theatre in Boston, were not remunerative. This was not owing to any failure of preparation, or want of care in the presentation, nor in the cast of characters, which included some of the best in the profession. But like many other musical ventures, it lacked the element of popularity necessary to draw enough of the public who were not specially musical. It is said that Mr. Neuendorff will go to New York, where he anticipates better success.

There is no abatement in the popularity of "The Mikado" at the Hollis Street Theatre. The splendid manner in which the opera is put on the stage, and the fine singing by the company, as well as their easy and intelligent acting, furnish an evening of rare entertainment. "The Mikado" is in for a long and prosperous run.

The solo engagements for the Handel and Haydn season are now complete. We took occasion, some time ago, to remark upon the schedule of performances and to call attention to the subscription sale of seats, which is now progressing at Boston Music Hall. It therefore only remains to note in detail the solo list, which is: For the Christmas "Messiah," Mrs. Humphrey Allen, Miss Sara Fisher, Miss Hattie Clapper, Mr. Mockridge, the new tenor, and Mr. M. W. Whitney; for the "Mors et Vita," January 24, Mrs. Norton-Gower, Miss Alta Pease, Mr. Abercrombie and Mr. Hay; for the Easter "Elijah," Mme. Fursch-Madi, Miss Helen Campbell, Mr. William Candidus and Mr. A. E. Stoddard.

Merrill & Mackintire's Stores.

One of the first firms in Salem to announce their readiness for the holiday season is Merrill & Mackintire, whose connecting stores are already visited by throngs of purchasers who are in the habit of making an early selection of their Christmas gifts. It would seem that this firm had given up nearly their entire quarters to Santa Claus—indeed if he is not at home here, we know not where he could be. The counter on the left of the main store is devoted, as usual, to small novelties and articles of vertu. One of the latest novelties here are some real terra cotta plaques, which are much admired by the visitors. There are ink wells in imitation of ivory, with bronze ornaments of every conceivable design. This department is presided over by Miss Robson, who is so well known to Peabody people and all of the customers of this firm. On the same side is an elegant display of bibles, prayer books and hymnals, with the choicest selection of albums—all the direct importation of this firm—that was ever displayed in this store. In books of all kinds there is the usual variety. Juvenile books, standard works, novelties—everything desirable is to be found here. Lee & Shepard's illustrated series still meet a large demand. Our Father which art in heaven, is one of their best, and sells rapidly. There are children's toy books, Kate Greenaway series, and the usual assortment of literary calendars, of which there are new ones every year. It is a very novel and popular method of perpetuating the golden sayings of the favorite authors. Christmas Cards this year are more in the line of souvenirs. They are plainer, and made in the form of books, of novel designs. The fringed series seem to have been abandoned, and in their place are the neater and more ornate styles, equally rich, however, and expensive. On the other side of the store are to be found diaries of every style, cabinet frames in plush velvet, and gilt, from 25 cents upwards, novelties in stationery for the young miss, the El-Mahdi and Mikado which are surely worth an examination. There are lap tablets, pens and pencils, pocket books and opera glasses,—standard goods, yet especially appropriate for the holiday season.

In the new store, the little folks hold high revelry, and the older ones are not far behind. It is a regular toy bazar. If our readers are in doubt as to what to amuse the children with, we will guarantee that a visit to this store will dispel every doubt. For there is something for all ages, all conditions. The boys are interested in the magic lanterns, the printing presses, the work and tool chests, express wagons, blocks and games. For the girls there are punch and judy, toy bureaus and bedsteads, tricycles and the like. There is shown a large line of dolls,—dolls that do everything except talk. There is a mahogany writing desk made of solid wood, one piece, in the best manner, which is sold for $1. It is the best bargain we ever saw in such a desk. There is also in this store a line of musical instruments, banjos, violins, accordeons, etc., which will be sold at the very lowest prices. We could not begin to enumerate all the articles to be found in this store; it is worth while for our readers to take a look for themselves, and they will be more than pleased. It would be needless to tell our readers that all are welcome to this store whether they wish to purchase or not. Every one who knows the genial proprietors is perfectly aware of the fact.

Why does Peabody sell so much Silver? Plated Ware and Jewelry?

Answer. Because he keeps only approved makes. Buys for cash at the best discounts and is satisfied with the smallest profit.

How is it that his trade is doubled during the hard times?

Answer. Because every customer brings another—for low prices always tell and no one will sell as cheap as he does.

MORAL.

Go to Peabody's Jewelry and Silver Ware department when you desire anything in that line.

STREET GOSSIP,

NOTES

I learn that the bad weather of Thanksgiving day prevented a cocking main, which was to have been fought on the outskirts of the town. This was not to have been a fight between some of the old pets that are known to sporting men, but was to decide the superiority of certain broods, and this year's chicks were to have been fought.

I learn that the friends at the old home of Capt. N. W. Torrey at Hamilton, N. Y., are considerably amused at the recent accident to his stock of medicines, taken from the hotel by the police. More particularly as Capt. Torrey, when a resident of that town, ran several times on the prohibition ticket for excise commissioner, a body that regulates the liquor traffic in the town.

It is astonishing how our people like to buy of peddlers. A couple of young men in one of our club rooms recently made a bet that one of them could buy stationery at retail prices and then peddle at an advance. The would be peddler "stocked up" at Merrill & Mackintires and peddled all the way home and about town, till about four o'clock at a large advance on retail prices, and at such a good profit, that he made over three dollars beside the wager. There are people who will always bite.

There is a family of three girls, who live in a Northerly direction from the square, who are likely to bring disgrace and shame on their parents unless they mend their ways. They are young and tender, yet, one not being over 15 years of age. They are gaining a reputation that is not enviable.

Two young fellows recently traded horses, and an agreement was made that if either horse did not prove satisfactory they would exchange horses again. After one of them had had his new horse for a short time, he took him back but his companion was reluctant to give up the horse he had traded for, but after being threatened with a law suit, he traded back. The original owner left the animal in a small enclosure at night, and the next morning he was dead. He wished then he had traded.

There was an act not down on the programme at the show on Thanksgiving night. One of the stars appeared with a pair of pants that had been picked too soon and they fitted him too quick, so that the seams parted and the audience applauded. But he did not respond to an encore till the defect had been remedied.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by scrofulous taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh

Can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was

Cured

Of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That flow from the nose, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take

St Nicholas.

An Illustrated monthly periodical for boys and girls, appearing on the 25th of each month. Edited by Mary Mapes Dodge. Price, 25 cents a number, or $3.00 a year in advance. Booksellers, newsdealers, postmasters, and the publishers take subscriptions which should begin with the November number, the first of the volume.

St. Nicholas aims both to satisfy and to develop the tastes of its constituency; and its record for the past twelve years, during which it has always stood, as it stands today, at the head of periodicals for boys and girls is a sufficient warrant for its excellence during the coming season. The editors announce the following as among the

LEADING FEATURES FOR 1885-86:

A Serial Story by Frances Hodson Burnett. The first long story she has written for children.

A Christmas Story by W. D. Howells. With humorous pictures by his little daughter.

"George Washington," by Horace E. Scudder. A novel and attractive Historical Serial.

Short Stories for Girls by Louisa M. Alcott. The first—"The Candy Country"—in November.

New "Bits of Talk for Young Folks," by H. H." This seires forms a gracious and fitting memorial of a child-loving and child-helping soul.

Papers on the Great English Schools, Rugby and others. Illustrations by Joseph Pennell.

A Sea-coast Serial Story by J. T. Trowbridge will be life-like vigorous, and useful.

"Jenny's Boarding-House," a serial by James Otis. Dealing with news-boy's life and enterprise.

Frank R. Stockton will contribute several of his humorous and fanciful stories.

"Drill," by John True. A capital school story for boys.

The Boyhood of Shakespeare by Rose Kingsley. With illustrations by Alfred Parsons.

Short Stories by scores of prominent writers, including Susan Coolidge, H. H. Boysen, Nora Perry, T. A. Janvier, Washington Gladden, Rossiter Johnson, Joaquin Miller, Sophie May Hezekiah Butterworth, W. O. Stoddard, Harrset Prescott Spofford and many others.

Entertaining Sketches by Alice W. Rollins, Charles G. Leland, Henry Eckford, Lieutenant Schwatka, Edward Eggleston and others.

Poems, shorter contributions and departments will complete what the Rural New Yorker calls "the best magazine for children in the world."

The Peabody Press.

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,

Editors and Publishers.

WE SEND this week sample copies of the PRESS to a number who are not regular subscribers. We wish it distinctly understood that their reception incurs no obligation on their part. We do so in the hope that they will be pleased with the paper, and we desire to call their attention to the following offer which we made last week.

We have secured the exclusive control for the town of Peabody of Hollyer's line and stipple engraving of Longfellow in his library. This elegant work of art is 24x32, represents the author at full length in his study, and will make a worthy adornment to the walls of any room.

We purpose, from this time until Jan. 1st 1886, to dispose of copies of this engraving on the following conditions:

Every subscriber to the PRESS who will settle all arrearages to this paper to Jan. 1st, 1886, AND PAY ONE YEAR IN ADVANCE, shall be entitled to a copy of the engraving free.

Every person, not a subscriber, who will forward us $2.00, the advance payment for the PRESS for one year, shall receive this paper until Jan. 1, 1887, and a copy of the engraving free of charge.

The attitude of the PRESS has been commended, both at home and abroad, during the past few years, for its outspoken and fearless stand on the local issues of the day; for its criticism of men and measures, where such criticism has been for the advantage of the town, the county, or the state. Its support of the Law and Order League, not in a partisan sense, but from the sole stand point of "enforcing existing laws," has won the commendation of the leading men in the League throughout the state. Its position on the labor question has been one of liberality. It was one of the first papers to endorse in the most emphatic manner the advanced platform of the Republican party, in favor of weekly payments, a State Board of Arbitration, and the abolition of the present convict system of labor.

The local news of the PRESS is summarized for the week, and is full and complete. These columns receive particular attention, and every effort is made to have them reliable and free from personalities of every description. When events of local interest occur requiring detailed reports, no expense is spared to obtain them. At the legislative hearing, on the division of the town, the PRESS was the only paper giving anything like a full and correct account of the proceedings.

For the benefit of our amusement loving patrons, the PRESS gives each week notices of coming events at the different theatres in Boston. This is not done occasionally, and scattered in different parts of the paper, but it appears in a column by itself every week in the year.

Our column of Musical Notes is a recent addition to the PRESS. The musical people read it with interest; it is looked for from week to week. And we have reason to believe that, outside of musical circles, owing to the general interest in this branch of culture, no column is read with more interest.

With these and other departments, the PRESS gives its readers, each week, a large amount of original matter. We furnish from twenty-four to twenty-eight columns of reading matter, weekly, outside of advertisements, at amount equal to the capacity of most of the papers of Essex County, including their advertisements.

The engraving which we shall give upon the conditions mentioned in this article, is on exhibition in the window of Spaulding's drug store. It has been handsomely framed, through the courtesy of Nugent Bros., the enterprising shoe dealers of this town, and we believe it will receive the commendation of all lovers of art.

IT IS not usually the province of the press to enter the field prescribed to the religious teacher. Yet we feel that there are times when such a word may not be out of place in the editorial columns. And we want to say such a word at this time, regarding the tendency of people, to-day, who are like the Pharisees of old who brought to our Saviour the woman taken in adultery, and to whom Christ said, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone at her."

It was not the common people who brought this woman to Christ. It was the scribes and pharisees. So, to-day, those whose reputation is generally considered blameless; in plainer words, those who feel themselves on a higher social plane than the common people, are the first to condemn their neighbor for some act or crime or mistake in their lives which has brought sorrow or perhaps disgrace to them and theirs.

We use the word reputation advisedly, because a man's reputation and true character may be as different from each other as daylight and darkness. A man may make an error in his life, may even commit a crime, yet if there is anything true in the christian religion he may retrieve his error, he may expiate his crime, while his reputation with these self sufficient pharisees may be at the lowest ebb. It does not follow, either, that these latter people are any better at heart, or any less guilty of crime or error, because their reputation with their own class is that of one who has kept the whole law. The man who has never been led into the temptations which befall many a man with less fortunate surroundings may not wisely plume himself on his superior virtue. Experience has shown that those who have made the loudest pretensions are often the soonest to fall.

It is a sad commentary on practical christianity, when a church, instead of encouraging and helping a brother who has been led astray, is the first to condemn him. It is a sad commentary on the life of the man of professedly pure morals, when he is the first to condemn those who do not come up to his outward standard. Saddest of all is this, to use a homely expression, "kicking a man when he is down." Yet there are those who apparently take delight in so doing. Such as these need to ponder well the words of Christ, Let him that is without sin cast the first stone. Still more should they recall the parting message to the woman, "Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more."

We are led to these remarks, just at this time, by the return to this town of Bowers and Ricker, who have been pardoned in the sight of the law, and are to-day free men. The circumstances by which they have been deprived of their freedom for sixteen years, or thereabouts, is known to the older portion of our readers. We do not desire to recall it. They were young men then. They had chosen the company of evil companions, and under the influence of strong drink had been led into crime. They have expiated that crime. They have repented of their evil deed, and in the belief that they will in the future lead a different life, they have been pardoned by the Governor with the advice and approval of the officers of the institutions in which they were confined.

It is to be remembered that these men are not criminals in the sight of the law. They stand to-day as if they had never been guilty of any crime. They have been pardoned. And the fact that they have received such a pardon carries with it the assurance that they are worthy of it. It was a Thanksgiving pardon, a gift from the State, which is bestowed every year on some unfortunate person, who is deemed by the officers worthy of such a gift. And in this connection it may be well to say that such a pardon is entirely inconsistent with reports that Bowers has not behaved himself during confinement. Good behaviour is prerequisite to such a pardon. We believe every encourment should be extended to these young men to shun evil and to do good. We don't believe in throwing obstacles in their way. We don't believe in passing them by on the other side. Let him that is without sin cast the first stone.

THE death of Vice President Hendricks calls renewed attention to the wisdom of some action by Congress, regarding the Presidential succession. The situation, as at present, surely suggests that the custom of allowing a president pro tempore of the Senate to be chosen by the retirement of the vice-president from the chair, should not be departed from. Mr. Hendricks declined to yeild the chair for that purpose. Gen. Arthur also declined. This should not be. Congress meets so speedily now, that if President Cleveland should be taken away, a short time only could intervene, and by the death of the President a republican would come in to power for the time being.

It is to be remembered that there is no provision for filling the vacancy caused by the death of the vice-president. A presiding officer of the Senate will be chosen, but he is only such. He is not the vice-president of the United States. In case President Cleveland should die, there being then no president or vice-president, provision is made for the election of both. In the meantime the president of the senate pro tempore, or if there is none, the speaker of the house would act as president during the interregnum.

Several attempts have been made to fix the presidential succession so that a single life shall not stand between government and the want of it. We do not fear the sober, good sense of the people, however, in such an emergency. But it is wise to provide for possible danger. The present Congress should fix the succession beyond the possibility of accident.

MESSRS. EDITORS, There are several citizens in town who have asked the question this week, how the Selectmen could furnish edge stones for the Salem & Danvers Street Railway Company for their new estate on Central street, when a number of our citizens have been refused them because the appropriation had been exhausted. The application of the citizens was made long before the Railway Company bought the Teel estate. Has an outside corporation more influence with the board than the average tax payer?

Free lecture to-morrow evening at the Institute.

The flag was at half mast yesterday in respect to Vice President Hendricks.

Mr. P. A. Snyder has broken ground for a new dwelling house near the station.

A young man, as candidate, will preach at the South Church next Sabbath.

Mr. John A. Lord, Jr., is opening a drive way across the brook from his tannery to Walnut street.

The primary class of the South Church Sunday School went down to visit the Salem Museum with Miss Floyd to-day.

The services at the Alms House next Sabbath, at 10 o'clock, will be under charge of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Mr. Elbridge Kelley has the contract to pipe the new shoe factory 24x42 and three stories high, belonging to Henry Law of Lynnfield.

The W. P. L. A. have engaged Prof. Joseph Kimball, M. A. of Andover, to deliver a course of four lectures in West Peabody Hall.

Mr. David T. Winter has about 200 orders ahead on his patent door checks. They are in successful operation in many places in this town.

The Unity Club have in preparation a play which will be given in the Unitarian Chapel Dec. 16th. Further particulars will be given next week.

Among the choice Thanksgiving day reading in the Boston Globe was an appropriate original poem by Mr. Geo. Randall, now of the Attleboro Advocate.

George Peabody Lodge, No. 18 A. O. U. W., will celebrate their sixth anniversary at Warren Hall, Dec. 9th. There will be an entertainment and dance.

Mrs. Daniel Conroy died last evening about 12 o'clock, at her home on Harris street, of pneumonia. She had been ill a week or so. She leaves a husband and four children.

Mr. Joseph H. Poor has been congratulated this week on the arrival of the third boy at his home on Chestnut street. That is a pleasant way to be *boy*cotted.

There was a small but select party at the rink last night and all enjoyed a pleasant evening. The young men who had charge of it will give another next Tuesday.

The announcement is made in another column, of the Fair to be held by the ladies of the Universalist Church, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings of next week. Many attractions are offered—a supper Wednesday evening and an entertainment Thursday evening. See their advertisement.

Where Hours go Merrily.

A game of polo is said to have been played yesterday afternoon between the Peabody police, consisting of Officers Sweeney, Grady, Ruth, Ferren, Goodwin and Barnaby, and the Salem police consisting of Officers Bickford, Lynch, Abercrombie, Haegan, Pollock and Tourett. Grady was the rusher for the Peabodys and got all the rushes. Abercrombie was the rusher for Salem. The Peabodys got the second, third and fifth goals; the Salems the first and fourth. The time was one hour and a half.

Last Friday evening the Tanners & Curriers of the K. of L. held their first dance at the Town Hall, and it was largely attended. The Salem Quadrille Band furnished the music.

The attendance at the annual assembly of the Father Matthew C. T. A. Society last Wednesday evening was not large but it was one of the most enjoyable held for some time. The stormy weather prevented many from going, who had planned to do so.

Messrs. W. H. Haskell, Col. E. H Haskell and Samuel W. Brown with their families passed Thanksgiving Day with Mr and Mrs. Chas. A. Haskell at Newton, Mass., says the Cape Ann Advertiser.

By earnest request Mr. Byron Groce, formerly of our High School, has consented to give a lecture in the Roxbury Universalist church, personally conducting the audience "To Athens and Back," for the benefit of the fair soon to be held by the ladies of that society. Mr. Groce, who is a teacher in the Boston Latin school, was granted a leave of absence early in the year, for the purpose of visiting Greece, and his lecture will be an interesting and instructive one.

The floor of the Rink was we were going to say crowded Thanksgiving day, both afternoon and evening by the many devotees of roller skating, with whom the sport seems to have lost no charms. There was plenty of music and the best of order prevailed. The attraction provided by Mr. Thomas proved to be all that was claimed for it, and the fancy skating by Princess Yeddo, the Japanese skater, and Master Willie Bacon in his amusing impersonations of Mee Lung, were "great." The large audience was delighted and frequent bursts of applause greeted the performers.

A good house greeted Rachel Noah and company in Colleen Bawn at the Opera House Thanksgiving night. The play was fairly mounted and the support was reasonably good. The hoodlum element were out for exercise, and sadly interfered with the enjoyment of others. The usual complaint of not being able to hear was heard on sides. Mr. Arthur D. Morrison through whose efforts the company appeared, realized a fair return for his work.

NORTH PEABODY.

Mr. J. B. Stevens has removed to the estate recently purchased by him at the corner of Cross and Andover streets.

Mr. B. W. Earle will remove to Sunnyside Farm, Danvers, as foreman for Mr. Conant.

Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Winchester celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, last Wednesday evening. Friends and relatives gathered there to the number of about forty, leaving as a token of their regard a purse of between $30 and $40, marble top table, silver ware and other useful articles. It being stormy only a small number assembled. A very pleasant evening was spent, refreshments being served from 9 till 10 o'clock, after which the party broke up, all very much pleased with their evening's entertainment.

Rev. Mr. Shipman will conduct the services at the Chapel this evening, commencing at 7.45.

SPARKS.

John A. Teague, formerly a member of the Peabody Fire Department, serving in Hose 1 and H. & L 1, has been elected Assistant Chief Engineer of the Detroit, Minn., fire department, just organized. The apparatus consists of a chemical engine and a hook and ladder truck, and about 50 men.

Steamer Company No. 1 will hold a special meeting this evening to fill a vacancy in the company.

Be sure and attend the entertainment at the rink this evening, and by so doing you will help the fund of the Relief Association. Tickets only 25 cents. The attractions are skating, dancing and a polo game between members of the fire department.

Steamer 1 has been moved into the position lately occupied by Steamer 2, in order that no change would be required in the swing harnesses, and Steamer 2 takes No. 1's place on relief.

At a special town meeting held Monday evening, Beverly appropriated $3000 for the purchase of an electric fire alarm, to consist of ten boxes, two bell strikers, five horse gongs and twelve miles of wire. The Board of Engineers as a committee were put in charge of the matter. Salem and Peabody are left behind on the question of fire alarms. z

About 200 feet of a two inch plank embankment which protected the land of Mr. David T. Winter's summer residence, at Clifton, was entirely washed away during the heavy sea last week.

The shipments of leather from Peabody and Salem for the week ending November 28 were 4914 rolls, 265 sides, 93 bundles, 22 barrels, 20 bags of leather, 150 bundles of hides, and 48 bundles of skins.

The Emerald Court of Forresters have a meeting this evening.

MR. STETSON

would respectfully remind the musical public that this will be the only authorized and genuine production of the "Mikado" in this city, the Exclusive Right to the Original Orchestral Score and Libretto, together with the original models of the Scenes and the designs for the wardrobe, armor and properties from the Savoy Theatre, London, having been legally assigned to him by the Author and Composer through their Representative, Mr. R. D. O'Oyly Carte, for New York, Boston and the New England States.

The Opera will be presented with an Admirable Cast. Complete Chorus and Grand Orchestra. A Special Car is used for the transportation of the New and Magnificent Scenery, Costly Real Antique Japanese Costumes, Armor, etc., constituting in every detail an exact counterpart of the famous original productions at the Savoy Theatre, London, and the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York.

The sale of Seats will open at W. E. Luscomb's on Friday, Dec. 4.

Horse Cars to all adjoining towns at close of performance.

Wednesday Evening, Dec, 2 1885,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The skies which had emptied its rains upon the just and the unjust for four days last week looked forbidding Thanksgiving morning and the ground was covered with snow. Only a few ventured out to the preaching service at the South Church, which was conducted by Rev. J. W. Colwell of So. Peabody, but those who were present listened to an able and interesting discourse. Otherwise "Governor's Sunday" was observed in much the usual way. The banks, public offices and schools, besides our manufacturers, closed and the barber shops and stores about noon time. There were many pleasant family reunions and a large number remained inside all day, while others went to see the breakers at Revere Beach and Marblehead, and others found enjoyment by a visit to the rink.

Arrangements are being made by the evangelical churches of this place for a series of union meetings, beginning the first of the new year, under the leadership of the pastors assisted by Morse and Davis of Boston. Mr. Morse, who leads the singing, is a thoroughly devoted christian man, a member of Dr. Gordon's church in Boston. Mr. Davis came originally from the West. He is the evangelist of "The Christian Mirror," the headquarters of which are at 202 South Washington street, East Saginaw, Mich. Mr. Davis during the past six months has preached in Boston, Dedham, Weymouth, Saxonville, Chelsea, Melrose and Stoneham. He was arrested last summer with Dr. Gordon and H. L. Hastings for preaching on Boston Common. Those who know him know him to be a preacher of great ability and of the very best moral character.

The following is the report of the truant commissioners for the month ending Nov. 30th:—Whole number of visits, 60; absences reported by teachers, 73; without permission, 52; second offence, 13; third offence, 17; parents and guardians notified, 71; returned to schools from streets, 3; number of arrests, 2. A number of scholars reported were absent very frequently, but careful guarding prevented their continuous absence. It is to be hoped a truant school may be established as soon as possible, as its existence would be a wholesome restraint on a great many boys of passive temperament who at present are led away by others more hardened and of stronger will. On the whole, considering there is no place but the Alms House for confinement, the decrease in wilful absence during the months of October and September has been very encouraging.

It is thought that through the efforts of the Knights of Labor, the stores in Salem will close three or four nights in the week, and we hope it will extend to this town also. Tuesday and Thursday nights are the only ones that the stores close, and as a result meetings and entertainments of every kind must be held on those nights, and by driving them all into these two nights, several come on one evening, and many are deprived of the pleasure of attending them all, and they can't be postponed because there are not Tuesdays and Thursdays enough to go round. This divides the patronage, and in consequence there is only a small profit, and to some financial loss.

The Danvers and Lynn horse railroads had their snow plows out for the first time Thanksgiving day, and the Naumkeag road had their new snow sweep. It is built on the street sweeping-machine patent, and has two revolving brushes that sweep about six feet each on either side of the centre of the track. Six horses are required to operate it, and it does the work of fifty men with brooms. It is the intention of the superintendent to run it during snow storms so as to prevent the accumulation of snow on the tracks.

We learn from good authority that the Custom house berth that Mr. Levi Preston is in line for, is that of auditor, with a salary of $2800. We learn that another of our Board of Selectmen, Mr. Thomas J. Relihan, is also out with a long petition for the appointment of himself as head weigher in the Custom house at a salary of $2200 a year. Mr. Relihan has some very strong names on his paper, including Jacob Rogers, Thomas E. Proctor and others.

The local assemblies of the K. of L. will unite in a union meeting at town hall to-morrow evening to listen to an address on the aims and objects of the Knights of Labor, by Capt. Richard Trevellick, of Detroit, Mich. He is an eloquent and forcible speaker.

Union Post 50 G. A. R. has accepted an invitation to attend service at the Baptist church on the Sunday preceding Decoration day of next year.

The storm signals are getting a little the worse for wear.

A friend has called our attention to an article in the Cincinnati Enquirer of a recent date. It is a curious fulfillment of a prophecy of death by a man named Richard Bissell, a naturalist and excentric character. The story is still more interesting as Bissell at one time lived here and was in the employ of the late George Upton at the glue works. As our friend remembers him he was uncongenial and made few acquaintances, but would wander off by himself in the woods. Last spring Bissell walked into the Enquirer office and said he wanted to leave in charge of the editor his autobiography to be published after his death, which would probably occur this fall. His prediction was fulfilled recently at the Hammel house in that city. In the office of the hotel while walking he suddenly threw up his hands and with no other sign fell to the floor dead. The paper publishes a part of the MS. left with them. He said he was born in Connecticut and his ancestors settled on a farm in Massachusetts. He had never had a doctor or took any drugs in his life and died a natural death in his 85th year. He says: "At seventeen I was a school teacher and taught boys of eighteen years how to think properly. Subsequently I practiced the humbuggery of medicine, which is experimenting and guess-work. Then I was a traveler and stood upon the banks of the Rio Grande; visited the tombs of the presidents and saw some of the renowned people of our country. I have now gone where lodgings are free to play permit for my own amusement, till Gabriel calls for saints and sinners to arise. Thus ends my eventful life in my eighty-fifth year; yet my evil deeds will live in voices, while my virtue will be written in sand. I have many distant relatives living in New England and York state, but my near ones have gone where the 'woodbine twineth'."

About 400 volunteer observers scattered over New England have made reports on thunder storms to the New England meteorological society, as they have happened in their neighborhoods. The thunder storm season was late this year. From the middle of June till the last of August thunder storms averaged one in every two days in New England. The biggest storm was that of July 9, that moved from southern Vermont across the state to Rhode Island, 40 miles wide and 250 miles long.

The latest craze for fixing the hair of ladies is called the "Mikado style." It consists of brushing the hair straight up high in both front and back; and forming it into a coil at the crown of the head. It plainly shows the forehead, and is the means of beautifying many young ladies. Ancient maidens will reluctantly adopt this style of hair dressing, as it may be the means of telling their ages by the wrinkles on their forehead.

An order of the postmaster general provides for the use of inner registered sacks in the transportation of registered mail matter. The inner sacks are of three sizes, te be used according to the amount of matter to be sent, and they are to be placed inside the regular mail sacks. Heretofore registered letters and packages have been handled separately. The new departure is a saving of time and work to the route agents.

The marriage of Mr. George B. Chandler and Miss J. Anna Beckford, took place last Wednesday evening at the residence of Rev. F. W. Sprague of the Universalist church. They then repaired to their new home on Main street, where there was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and a pleasant reception followed, and congratulations were in order. The presents were many and varied.

Mr. George H. Jacobs, the Klothier, in Blaney's Block, is offering splendid inducements to purchasers of ready-made clothing. His stock is exceedingly large and his prices the very lowest that can be named. The garments are all cut and made in the latest and most fashionable styles, and the workmanship is equal to custom made garments. It is well worth your while to give him a call.

Mr. Jacob Countz, formerly of Woburn, who has been in this town since last June, and in the country about 30 years, started for Germany last Friday. He is going partly for his health and also to look up old friends, as he said "in the Fatherland." He will return in the Spring, provided his father's estate is settled by that time.

At the late state election, the amendment to the constitution was carried providing for separate voting precincts in towns where they were deemed advisable. Will this result in three or more voting precincts in Peabody? Many think a larger vote and the convenience of voters would be the end attained.

The Springfield Republican in speaking of a sermon preached some time last month at St. Paul's church in that city, by Rev. F. W. Sprague of this town, says, "The subject was, 'What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ.' It was a discourse full of fine and elevated feeling."

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Henry J. Sneider is a barber at P. Mahoney's barber shop on Walnut street, and early last week he employed a German named Paul Sessions as assistant, and on Wednesday the man skipped with a number of razors and other implements belonging to his employer. He was arrested in Salem and turned over to the Peabody police, and was bound over to the Superior Court and held in the sum of $300. The value of the tools was about $12.

In the police court Friday morning James Holland for assaulting Dennis McCarthy was fined $5 and costs, and Michael Coleman for assaulting John McAuliffe also paid $5 and costs.

A man in Peabody was recently fined $50 and costs for keeping sweet cider. We would suggest that if the officials of that town would let sweet cider alone for a while and turn their attention to the large amount of hard liquors which is said to be sold there, the community would probably better appreciate their efforts.—Wakefield Bulletin.

You are away off, brother. Come down here and we will show you a police force that has done excellent service, and as a result there is not an open rum shop in operation in our town to-day.

John H. Cooney, while wrestling on Union street, Thanksgiving day, ruptured the muscles of his left knee pan and will be compelled to use crutches for some time.

The family of a well known Walnut street resident came near being suffocated by the gas from their cook stove, last Friday night. The lady of the house and two children were almost unconscious in the morning. The children recovered before noon but the lady kept her bed all day.

Mr. John Noonan is suffering from a severe case of erysipelas on the hand, which is badly swollen and has to be painted. It started about a week ago with a little pimple.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell of Salem were riding over the Swampscott road when the transom bolt of the buggy slipped out, precipitating the occupants to the ground. Mr. Mitchell was not injured but his wife struck the dash board with such force as to fracture the costal cartilages of two ribs on her left side. She was quickly removed to her home.

A painful accident happened to a man on the rear of a car of the Naumkeag street railroad on Thanksgiving day, by the pole of the Danvers car striking him in the face and badly bruising it and setting his jaw. He was removed to a physician's house that the car was passing.

A venturesome stranger jumped from the Lowell train Thanksgiving day as it was passing Sawyer street. He rolled in the snow and mud but did not appear to have been injured.

George H. West, of Danvers, who learned his trade of "Bobby the barber" of this town, badly cut his hand with a razor last Thursday.

There are two impostors ranging this section of the country, the elder assuming the role of a blind man, while the other, a boy, leads him. In some localities the man wears a pair of green goggles. Should they put in an appearance here, the police will provide for their necessities in a way they won't refuse to accept, however unwelcome.

An elderly farmer fell from his team on Lowell street, last Friday, while peddling chickens about town. He was bruised about the face but would not let anyone touch it, saying "Mother will fix it when I get home."

The report of Chief Peasley is as follows for the month of November: whole number of arrests 23; drunkenness 8; assault 7; affray 2; larceny 2; non-support 1; illegal sale 1; disturbance of the peace 1; keeping liquor with intent to sell 1. Whole number of lodgers 71.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

IRISH SOCIABILITY.

Sociable gatherings afford an Irish peasant the means of recreating himself which he likes best. The coupling of funerals with weddings and fairs is characteristic; indeed, the word "funeral" has been known to be used by a countryman as synonymous with a large gathering. Joviality goes hand in hand with sorrow at a wake, manifestations of grief being confined to the room where the body lies, though many cottages do not permit of such an arrangement, and drinking and weeping go on around the very coffin. A wedding offers the additional attraction of dancing, of which the Irish countryman is genuinely fond. Schools of dancing are established in the winter months, and on Sunday afternoons, in the summer, boys and girls—these words are as elastic in their application as the Latin juvenis—assemble at some favorite crossroads to foot it to the scraping of a blind fiddler. Their dancing is not graceful, because it is apparently de rigueur to keep the body as stiff as possible; but it serves to exhibit a very remarkable faculty of keeping time and is, in all other respects, an excellent and health-giving exercise. In happier days the friendly relations between landlord and tenant were periodically cemented, when any occasion for rejoicing offered, by the giving of bonfires and dances, in which the "quality" would figure as performers and not merely as spectators. For we know of several Irish ladies who have turned their leisure during a winter residence to account and mastered the intricacies of the jig and reel step. In one such case the instructor, having to take his pupil's hand to perform some evolution, was seized with sudden shyness, and suggested imploringly, "Maybe ye'd have a mit or a bit of paper." Vocal music enters to a certain extent into the recreation of the country folk; but their songs are more curious than beautiful, and we never remember to have heard, or heard of any concert music among the country people. Then there are the fairs where the stick comes into great play, and old scores are settled or new ones run up. The worst feature about the fairs is the drunkenness that they encourage. Paddy is seldom a habitual drunkard, but at intervals he will exceed and it takes very little of the poison sold under the name of whiskey by rural publicans to make him mad drunk.

YUM WELLA, WELLA, WOP TO MEN.

"Yum wella, wella, wop to men. Pot amen. Cheers to can. Yum wella, wella, wop to men." It is many years since I heard that cry, the crier being a pot and kettle tinker, a caner of chairs, and a mender of umbrellas. He was soldering a cooking utensil when, with the heedless audacity of beardless youth, I told him no one could understand what he meant by his cry. "Why don't you call umbrellas to mend, instead of shouting Yum wella, wella, wop to men?" "Well, young fluffy, I won't introduce my pair of fives to your pair of peepers, 'cos you raw-cheekers don't know what is manners. My cry has done pretty so-soish for this here party. 'Cos why? It's a rouser for the whole pot-boiling of the people, and they all has a squint to see what it is, and any-one what has anything in my ways brings it out. When you have growed to your jaw what is worth a halfpenny shave, and if you take to a public line, just you get a cry what is a rouser, and I promise you, my young fluffy, it will fetch the halfpence, though so be there is no more head nor tail in it than you can find in an oyster without spectacles." Often, since my chin has become daily shaveable, I have been reminded that there is much sound sense in the advice of "Yum wella, wella, wop to men." What is the use of a cry unless it is a rouser? And loudness alone will not do; for a customary noise, however loud, is not rousing, since after a while the ear ceases to notice it, and so some of us are undisturbed by the rushing, rumbling, and shrieking of the railway trains, or by the maddening din of street traffic or by cock crowing or by donkey braying, or by piano thumping of little girls learning to murder music. The itinerent jobber, though bull-voiced, would not have excited attention by crying, "Any umbrellas to mend?" but he was heeded when he bellowed the novel cry, "Yum wella, wella, wop to men."

THE SHAMROCK.

The shamrock, which is the emblem of Ireland, is not known by its flower, but by its leaves; it is a little trefoil, as is clover, but it is very rare in England and not common in Ireland. Bentham, in his "British Flora," says that Oxalis acetocello, or wood sorrel, is the original shamrock; it has a pale pink, almost white, flower, which is said to be very plentiful in woods in April. He also states that the purple Dutch clover (Trifolum repens) which we all know so well, is now accepted as the shamrock. The tradition runs that St. Patrick, when preaching in Erin, gathered a shamrock and used it to illustrate the doctrine of the Holy Trinity. From this circumstance, the trefoil has become accepted as the national emblem of the Emerald Isle, and on the 17th of March every Irishman who can obtain a few leaves thereof wears them in his button-hole, and many little boxes, containing a tiny root, arrive by post addressed to Irishmen living in England.

THE CENTURY

FOR 1885-86.

The remarkable interest in the War Papers and in the many timely articles and strong serial features published recently in The Century has given hat magazine a regular circulation of

MORE THAN 200,000 COPIES MONTHLY.

Among the features for the coming volume, which begins with the November number, are:

THE WAR PAPERS

BY GENERAL GRANT AND OTHERS.

These will be continued (most of them illustrated) until the chief events of the Civil War have been described by leading participants on both sides. General Grant's papers include descriptions of the battles of Chattanooga and the Wilderness. General McClellan will write of Antietam, General D. C, Buell of Shiloh, General Pope, Longstreet and others of the Second Bull Run, etc., etc. Naval combats, including the fight between the Kearsarge and the Alabama, by officers of both ships, will be described.

The "Recollections of a Private" and special war papers of an anecdotal or humorous character will be features of the year.

SERIAL STORIES BY

W. D. HOWELLS, MARY HALLOCK FOOTE, AND GEORGE W. CABLE.

Mr. Howells' serial will be in lighter vein than "The Rise of Silas Lapham" Mrs. Foote's is a story of mining life, and Mr. Cable's a novelette of the Acadians of Louisiana. Mr. Cable will also contribute a series of papers on Slave songs and dances, including negro serpent-worship, etc.

SPECIAL FEATURES

Include "A Tricycle Pilgrimage to Rome," illustrated by Pennell; Historical Papers by Edward Eggleston, and others; Papers on Persia, by S. G. W. Benjamin, lately U.S. minister, with numerous illustrations; Astronomical Articles, practical and popular, on "Sidereal Astronomy"; Papers on Christian Unity by representatives of various religious denominations; Papers on Manual Education, by various experts, etc., etc.

SHORT STORIES

By Frank R. Stockton, Mrs. Helen Jackson (H. H.), Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, Joel Chandler Harris, H. H. Boyesen, T. A. Janvier, Julian Hawthorne, Richard M. Johnston, and others; and poems by leading poets The Departments—"Open Letters," "Bric-a-Brac," etc., will be fully sustained.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

Will be kept up to the standard which has made The Century engravings famous the world over.

PRICES A SPECIAL OFFER.

Regular subscription price, $4.00 a year. To enable new readers to get all the War Papers, with contributions from Generals Grant, Beauregard, McClellan, J. E. Johnston, Lew Wallace, Admiral Porter and others. we will send the 12 back numbers, November, 1884, to October 1885, with a year's subscription beginning with November 1885, for $6.00 for the whole. A subscription, with the 12 numbers bound in two handsome volumes, $7.50 for the whole. Back numbers only supplied at these prices with subscriptions.

A free specimen copy (back number) will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

All dealers and postmasters take subscriptions and supply numbers according to our special offer, or remittance may be made directly to CONSTIPATION!

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by Constipation, and there is no other ill flesh is heir to, more apt to be neglected, from the fact material inconvenience may not be immediately felt from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action, the retention of decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing piles, fistula, headache, impure blood and many other serious affections. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will immediately relieve, and one bottle positively cure or relieve any case of Constipation.

"Was troubled for a year with torpid liver and indigestion, and after trying everything imaginable, used BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. The first bottle revived me and the second cured me entirely."—J.S. Williamson. Rochester, N. Y.

DENTAL NOTICE.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anæsthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anæsthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

Be Warned

in time. Kidney diseases may be prevented by purifying, renewing, and invigorating the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When, through debility, the action of the kidneys is perverted, these organs rob the blood of its needed constituent, albumen, which is passed off in the urine, while worn out matter, which they should carry off from the blood, is allowed to remain. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the kidneys are restored to proper action, and Albuminuria, or is prevented. Ayer's Sarsaparilla also prevents inflammation of the kidneys, and other disorders of these organs. Mrs. Jas. W. Weld, Forest Hill st., Jamaica Plain, Mass., writes: "I have had a complication of diseases, but my greatest trouble has been with my kidneys. Four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla made me feel like a new person; as well and strong as ever." W. M. McDonald, 46 Summer st., Boston, Mass., had been troubled for years with Kidney Complaint. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, he not only the disease from assuming a fatal form, but was restored to perfect health. John McLellan, cor. Bridge and Third sts., Lowell, Mass., writes: "For several years I suffered from Dyspepsia and Kidney Complaint, the latter being so severe at times that I could scarcely attend to my work. My appetite was poor, and I was much emaciated; but by using my appetite and digestion improved, and my health has been perfectly restored."

Bright's Disease

Prevented

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M.]

At the Boston Theatre this week Sig. Salvini will make his reappearance after an absence of over two years, and will present all of those parts in which he has already become famous, and will also give his first performance in Boston of Coriolanus, which will be presented on Thursday, Dec. 3, and at the matinee Dec. 5. On Wednesday and Saturday evenings the company, of which A. Salvini is a member, will produce The Duke's Motto. From the sale of seats it is evident that the high esteem in which Sig. Salvini is held by our theatre going population has not lessened since his former visit, and that on this, his farewell to us, he will repeat his former triumphs. In addition to his son Allessandro, who is known to our readers from his Romeo, supporting Miss Margaret Mather, the company includes Viola Allen, Mrs. Augusta Foster and other English speaking artists. The engagement of Salvini is for two weeks.

Thousands who were disappointed at being unable to see the Pinero success at the Museum will be glad to know that The Magistrate is again to occupy the stage for one week only. The merry comedy will introduce the company to their friends at home after three weeks of high success in other cities. The present revival is for a brief series of representations only, and there is excellent reason to expect a new "boom" for one of the most decidedly successful of the mirthful pieces of the time.

Mr. Edward H. Hastings has resumed the management of the Bijou Theatre. He had but three days to prepare an attraction, that selected being Mugwumps, by Wm. Gill, author of Adonis, in which Richard Golden and Dora Wiley will be supported by Messrs. James Gilbert, J. Mackie, D. Longworth, Edward Cameron, Frank Blake, Misses Florence Bate, Georgie Knowlton, Mary Stuart and Willie Deane.

At the Park Theatre Aimee is to appear for one week in Mam'zelle, in which she will introduce her celebrated chansonettes, and sing Pretty as a picture. Thursday, Friday and Saturday Aimee will appear in Divorcons. Next week John I. Raymond will appear for a brief season.

Robson & Crane open an engagement at the Boston Theatre, Dec. 14, when The Comedy of Errors will be produced with all the spectacular magnificence of its New York production.

H. B. Lonsdale, who made many friends at the Bijou last season, has been cordially welcomed back by them this week. He is managing Sig. Salvini's tour.

It would be absurd, says a correspondent from New York, to lose sight of the fact that the success of Mr. Hill's notably artistic Romeo and Juliet production depends upon Miss Mather quite as much as upon the manner in which the play is presented. Miss Mather came to us as a stranger. At present she is admired with enthusiasm, and is spoken of as the coming tragic actress of the country. She has faults; the faults of inexperience and of an incomplete education. But the inexperience will pass soon enough, and the incomplete education will ripen with years. Two or three writers assert that Miss Mather is "passee," somewhat "mature" in figure, and so forth. They should provide themselves with stronger glasses. Miss Mather has just got beyond her 23d birthday. She has a slight, graceful figure, and a face which, if not conventionally pretty, is marked by a finer kind of beauty. She acts from the heart, with passion and decided breadth of style. It would be impossible for any actress on the stage, either here or in England, to match her Juliet in sustained force or pure feeling. That is the verdict of New York—of both criticism and spontaneous public tribute. Nearly all the characters in Romeo and Juliet are neatly handled; and Mr. Frederic Paulding's Romeo is properly regarded as a striking and interesting work. Mr. Hill's confidence in Romeo and Juliet is illustrated by his announcement that the fiftieth and seventy-fifth performances will occur on dates in December.

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to comp with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims.

Jersey Waists in all grades and the best styles, at Peabody's.

Mr. Benjamin Bailey, of Marietta, Ohio, and Mr. Frank W. Poor, of Kansas City, Mo., were visiting in town this week.

The leather splitters of Peabody and Salem met over Howley's tailor shop, last Friday evening, and steps were taken to organize a branch of the K. of L.

Mrs. Lucy Barker died at the residence of Thomas C. Durkee, in West Peabody, Sunday night. She leaves three daughters, one of whom Mrs. Durkee. Her age was 72 years.

Last Sunday was the fifth anniversary of the dedication of St. John's Church, and it was celebrated in a most solemn manner. In the morning, at 10.30 o'clock, a Solemn High Mass was sung. Rev. M. Masterson was celebrant, Rev. Vincent Borgiali, deacon and Rev. P. Masterson sub-deacon. Rev. M. Masterson preached a short sermon dwelling on the blessings given the people of the parish by having such a temple in which to worship. The choir finely rendered Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass," and at the Offertory, Gounod's "O Salutaris." In the afternoon Vespers was sung by Father Borgiali. The choir rendered Rossini's Vespers, Alma, Cirillo's "O Salutaris," and Tantum Ergo. The church was dedicated by Archbishop Williams in November, 1879. At that time the debt on the handsome edifice was very large, the cost of building and necessary fixings being upwards of $130,000. But through untiring efforts of the pastor it is now but a little rising $10,000, which it is expected will soon be liquidated.

It is reported that Selectmen Southwick and Relihan had quite an experience last week, while trying to locate the boundary line between Peabody and Middleton. They started out in a snow storm, from the paper mills, and as they drove through the country, the storm increased, filling up the beaten paths and confusing the driver, and as they traveled along half numbed with the cold, they were in inmediate danger of being thrown out as a wheel would settle in a gully and the other struck a rock. To add to their discomfiture, the horses feet would become balled with snow and found it difficult to travel. At one place near the Ipswich line they had to get out and walk into the woods about half a mile. They did not meet the Middleton Selectmen till the tramp was most over.

Holten Lodge I. O. O. F., after the close of the regular session last evening, were furnished by the entertainment committee with a programme which included a mock trial for breach of promise. The lodge room was transformed into a court room and the celebrated case of Clara Moses against Solomon Levy for $50,000 damage was tried. There were learned counsel on both sides and a very intelligent jury and dignified judge, besides several witnesses in made up character. The jury returned a verdict of $100 for the defendant.

Mr. D. A. Smail gave a very interesting lecture on "Metals and their Uses," before the Farmers' Club. He took the various metals in the order of their value, describing them as to their composition, etc., giving methods used in their production, their uses, and manner of use. His lecture from beginning to end was filled with facts, and the speaker showed himself to be well booked on his subject. Messrs. Ingraham, Needham, Spaulding and Walcott followed. Mr. Andrew Nichols, Jr., of Danvers, will deliver a lecture on Geology at the next meeting. The next meeting will be the annual meeting for election of officers, etc.

Mr. Samuel Trask, our leading hardware man, is taking a little recreation from business cares, and with his wife and daughter, Miss Jennie, has gone to Skowhegan, Me., for a month.

Skating is beginning already. The young men are all purchasing their skates at Samuel Trask's on Walnut street. He has a good stock and at a very low price. Call and get his figures.

The Union Leather Measuring machine company put in one of their large machines at L. & G. H. Poor's currying shop last week, and two more have been ordered from Haverhill.

The Springfield Republican man spells it catalog. Oh, what a rog to try to get into vog a spelling which any theolog will say is forbidden by the decalog, for it robs the epilog from the word catalogue, and may be merely a prolog to further attempts at abbreviating the form of dialog.

Mr. Joseph Jacobs, who is a claimant of the French Spoilation Claims, has several well preserved documents relating to the capture of his father's vessel, and among them is one signed by President John Adams in his own hand writing, which is plain and legible.

The free lecture at the Institute last Thursday evening by Alban Andran on "Norway" illustrated was well attended and the lecture was much enjoyed by the large audience present. The next will be by W. C. Richardson on the "Philosophy of Poetry of Flame," to-morrow evening.

We spoke last week of the beautiful meteor showers last month. Last Friday there was another and ten or a dozen meteors a minute were seen by many. The majority of them were small and yellow, but some were large, reddish and very brilliant, and left a luminous train which was visible some seconds.

One of the finest shoe stores in the city of Salem is that of George E. Pearson's, Essex Street. He not only gives the best bargains, but in addition a beautiful Christmas card to each purchaser. His stock of Christmas goods are not equaled by any other dealer in the city, and besides being beautiful they are useful.

The Selectmen have voted to give a hearing on the petition of the Danvers Street Railway Company in the Selectmen's room on Thursday afternoon December 24 at 2 o'clock, and they also voted to give a hearing on the petition of the Naumkeag street railroad to lay tracks through Endicott street to Central street, at the same place on Monday Dec. 28, at 2 o'clock.

The contract between the Concord and the Boston & Lowell railroads, which was entered into about a year ago, and which was to have been terminated Dec. 1, owing to dissatisfaction on the part of the contracting parties, will be continued, the managers of the road having come to an amicable arrangement Saturday.

The butchering season has commenced in the rural districts, and will soon be going at full blast, and the healthy porkers will "drop off" in greater numbers than if they had cholera. An abundant supply of sausages, shoulders, ham and pudding, creates comfortable contemplations around the country home fireside.

The tenth anniversary of the Peabody W. C. T. Union will be publicly observed in the M. E. Church on Sunday, Dec. 13, 1885, at 7 P. M. A report of the work will be given. Mrs. Dr. Steele of Reading will make an address. The young people of the M. E. Church will sing, and Miss M. J. Floyd will preside. Public invited.

It is understood that the Boston and Maine and Fitchburg railroads have substantially agreed upon the plan for a union depot, on Causeway street, in Boston, on the ground now occupied by the Eastern station and freight houses, both roads to abandon their present stations; plans have been completed, and only await formal ratification.

Kind reader, just a word. Before you start out to make your purchases for Christmas take a glance over the advertisements in the PRESS. It will pay you to patronize those who advertise, for they are alive to your interests and take this way of personally inviting you to call. All the reliable houses will be found in our columns.

Last Monday noon as Lewis R. Power was endeavoring to collect a bill from William B. Wyman, the two got into an altercation, when the latter assaulted Mr. Power and knocked him to the ground. Dr. Sanborn was called and had the injured man conveyed to his home. Mr. Power has been confined to his home since the assault.—Marblehead Messenger.

Lecture by Capt. Trevellick.

The town hall was well filled last Thursday evening to listen to an address by Capt. Richard Trevellick, under the auspices of the Knights of Labor of this town. The audience was welcomed in behalf of the Knights by Eugene B. McNeil, who introduced Rev. Willard Spaulding as one who sympathized with them. Mr. Spaulding talked for three quarters of an hour, mostly to the chairman and those on the stage, as he has done every time we have heard him in the hall. For only a moment at a time would he address the audience. Shortly before nine o'clock, when the meeting should have been nearly ready to close, Mr. Trevellick was introduced. He said that there were certain things in which we all agreed. The reverend gentleman who had spoken might not agree with him in theology or ethics, yet Catholics and Protestants all agree on one fact, that we all ought to live a good life here. The speaker proposed to speak from the standpoint of the Knights of Labor. There were certain things that we could do that we ought not to do, and there were other things that we ought to do which we leave undone. We never can violate the laws of equity without chastisement. The struggle in which we were engaged is not a new one. It was part of a continuous fight that had come down for thousands of years. We find under the Levitican law that there were certain periods when there were divisions between men as to the mode of government. It is said that the heavens were the Lord's but the earth was for the children of men. As to who these children of men were had always been incomprehensible. Some have said WE are the children of men, and others are not. The speaker said that from this time on, we, the Knights of Labor, propose being a part of the children of men.

Early in civilization good men saw that wrongs would be perpetrated, that in the years to come the earth's inheritance would pass away into the hands of a few, and who would under law gather up the products of other men's toil. The result was that a year of jubilee was proclaimed every fifty years, when debts and mortgages were released, and became the property of the people. If any preacher should proclaim this doctrine now he would be considered a fit subject for a lunatic asylum. Years after there was another struggle. Under the rule of the King of Persia it was the custom to appoint governors over the provinces at certain periods. When a breach was made in the walls of Jerusalem, the governor of Judea provided men to rebuild the walls. After a time a murmur went forth from the men which the governor of Judea heard. He asked questions as to the murmuring, and the answer fell, "Our houses are mortgaged; our children are going into bondage; some have gone already; others have our lands." The Governor seeing those wrongs, sympathized with them, called the rulers together and took counsel that the people might be relieved. This was in Persia. In the 19th century, when there is a murmuring among the people, the governors call in Pinkerton's cut-throats from Chicago. Well, the Governor asked them why they complained, and rebuked the nobles and rulers, and said, "I pray thee to leave off usury." Now in regard to usury, the church sometimes puts her foot into it. What is usury? The law of New York says the rate of interest shall be four per cent. If a man collects five that is usury. In Nebraska the rate is 10 per cent. So that a man could be a saint in Nebraska and collect 10 per cent, but a sinner in New York and collect five. The speaker thought if St. Peter could keep two sets of books for these people he must be a good bookeeper. The Governor said, "leave off usury". So they called the preisthood and took an oath to enforce the decree. They said "we will give back even to the tenth of all the oil and wine." There are difficulties constantly overtaking the sons of toil but the march will be onward.

A little farther down, and men were taught that "Heaven's decree appointed the King." Speaking against the King was treason and blasphemy because the King was appointed by Jehovah. They were not bad men who believed this, but the speaker never could believe that Jehovah appointed Henry VIII. Yet from Henry VIII, and Charles I down, we find this: "I, the King," grant to you certain pieces of land, etc. Did not the audience think this a deal of cheek? Did not Satan have a deal of cheek in offering to our Saviour what he never owned? Yet it was as much cheek in the U. S. Congress granting to the railroads the lands along their line.

Let us come further down. There are things which we could do, which we ought not to do. The speaker said he could get drunk, but he would not, and however much he might believe in the christian church or the power of prayer, if he should drink a pint of whiskey at night he did not believe there were preachers enough in the land to save him from a headache the next morning. The speaker then warned the young men present that this world had no darkness that could hide their wrongs; that they could not violate the laws of their being without punishment. They should not think that because they were in darkness, our Father in heaven could not see them. And if he could see individuals, so could he see the wrong doings of nations.

Years rolled by. The struggling sons of Europe effected a landing on American soil. How long were they here, after rebelling against the oppressions of the mother country, before they cast about to see who they could get to do their work, and they themselves sit and look on. They saw Indians—but an Indian never works. Men prayed and believed that above us was the ever hearing ear, yet in the lust of their own soul they hied away and stole the son of Africa. Were they brought here for civilization? No, they were brought to see how much labor could be extracted from them, and how little they could live on. This nation was clearly seen by the eye of Him who seeth all things. In the light of the history of time can we afford to violate the laws of equity? We should so educate ourselves as to give these thoughts some consideration. The same overruling Power lives to-day.

There are young men to-day, who will not read good books, but think they will go and play "Seven-up." There is no statute which says they can not make fools of themselves in this respect, or waste their time on billiards, but if they wanted to receive the just recompense for their toil, they must improve the talents God committed to them. Their cunning will not take the place of their intelligence.

The Knights of Labor are called hard names. Why? Are they not as fair as other people? It is said some of them get drunk. The speaker wished it were not so. But he did not think there was a larger proportion than outside. Neither were they worse in morals. He knew Congressmen who got drunk. The Master didn't get twelve disciples without one Judas. He had read in the Boston papers of some preachers kissing other men's wives. He had not seen them, but the reporters had got hold of it, and they were always a little sharper than the other fellows.

There has been little progress in the nations without the organization of the working masses. In the palmy days of Greece the workman was known by the badge of his trade. For centuries the working men of Rome were known in the streets by the badge of their trade. There came a time when the nobles saw that it was dangerous for these workmen to discuss questions of State—to question the moral practices of the nobility. The workingmen of Rome said, "Why is it that we who toil from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same—why is it that we are clothed in rags, why is it that our hands build palaces, why our fingers make sandals, and the feet of those we love leave prints upon the sand." These are questions the Knights of Labor are asking to-day. Rome said what? These are dangerous men. This is conspiracy—treason against the King. They were forbidden to meet. And when their rights were thus blotted out, the great multitude still toiled on. There was none to question the voluptuousness of Rome. There was none to say why or why not. Rome went on, and sunk among the nations of the earth. From that time show me, said the speaker, one ray of light until organization took place among the masses.

Take the history of Great Britain. What piece of machinery had been invented from the time of Alfred the Great till there was organization among the masses? The nobility of England were educated fairly for the day and generation. But what was the cause of Liverpool being 90 days from New York for three hundred years. The nobility were educated; their bread came from others. The laboring men worked 14 and 16 hours a day. There was no necessity on the one side, and a physicial impossibility on the other.

Two hundred years passed on. Trade organizations were recognized by law. Mr. Gladstone said in the last campaign: "Such improvements have been made in Her Majesty's government within the last 50 years that if all the machinery were put at work 10 hours, 6 days in the week, it would more than equal the labor of 800 millions of men." Why was this introduced? A physically tired body causes a tired mind, and creates a desire for a false stimulant. Over work in factories has caused more drunkenness than all other causes. The nobility did not live far from the sea. They could have gone to Yarmouth beach and caught a mackerel, (the speaker supposed they knew a mackerel) and took pattern from them. But they built ships just the reverse of a mackerel, and it took from 65 to 78 days to cross the Atlantic. Now it is done under 10 days. The growth of intellect has overcome the barriers, and Europe and America are only divided by a ferry of 8 days. It is no thanks to the nobility, Britain is what she is to-day by the force of the toiling men.

The speaker had conversed with Congressmen who said the Knights of Labor were dangerous. Why? Because they dictated to capital and this is wrong. The speaker said this is the first link that labor has got to break. He held this to be true. The owners of the Boston Globe have the right to put a price on the papers they sell, because it belongs to them. The men who tan leather have a right to put a price on the leather, because they own it. The landlord has the right to put his price on the bed and food he provides, for it is his. The dry goods merchant has the right to put the prices on every yard of cloth he sells, because he owns it, and the laborer has the right to put his price on his own labor. If there is a difference of time, we don't come up and say we will take what is our right, but we will call in disinterested men, and abide by their decision. Is this dictation? The laborer has a right to the products of labor if he earns it all. But we are willing capital should have its legitimate share. James G. Blaine said that this country had added to our wealth in 25 years thirty thousand millions over all we had ate and spent. Who added it? Did the capitalist work? Did he spin? Labor has not only fed itself but those who did not work, and added 32 thousand millions of dollars. Don't you think they ought to have some say?

How much does labor get? Labor is paid here better than in some countries, excepting in Australia. But how much is that? He found by the reports of Carroll D. Wright, in Massachusetts, that the average wages in the Commonwealth is $367 a year. In Ohio it is $370. New York is about similar. In Michigan it is $368. In Missouri and New Jersey it is about $370. We must take out sickness and lost time. By the U. S. Reports the average family consists of two parents and three children. There are five to be sheltered for $370. What will you pay for a house? Will it amount to $6.00 a month? That is $72.00 a year. How much will it cost for fuel? It will take four tons of coal or four cords of wood. That will bring it up to $100. That gives $270 to be shared for 365 days for food, clothing, medicines and something for the preacher. He should not care to be the preacher. Is this true? Then the system of government which allows 32,000 millions of dollars to be carried away to capital is a robbery. They say the workmen are well fed. 17-20 of the workingmen are never 30 days ahead of hunger. The speaker knew what he said. If the laborer is not at work the capitalist cries Overproduction. How many laboring men get too much clothing? How many can afford a library or a conservatory, or an organ or piano?

America exports 18 per cent. of beef, pork and mutton. Is it because we need a market for 18 per cent.? Ireland exports more than that but it is because she is so poor she can not eat it. How many are there here who go twice a week and get six lbs. of soup meat. If they had a part of that 32,000 millions of dollars they could get sometimes two pounds of sirloin steak. Would it choke them? Would it injure the pride of the workingman to see his wife well dressed?

We desire to teach the rising generation that upon them devolves the duty of educating their children, and the Knights of Labor say that children shall not enter the works until they are 15 years of age. How shall we settle differences. One way is this: In Russia, I, the Emperor, says you shall do thus and so. The capitalist says, I will put a price on the article we sell, and on your labor. The Knights of Labor say, Stop? You have no right to put the price on our labor. The speaker did not counsel strikes. They were an injury to the employer and workmen. We say, gentlemen, as fast as we can reach the end, we let the calm reason of the mind step in between men, instead of counseling strikes. Is this wrong?

Another thing. We demand that women shall receive equal pay for equal work. People in business know no patriotism or religion. If there were four ships in Boston harbor, the merchant does not ask the flag under which she sails, he asks speed, safety and cheapness. He never knew a Methodist to pay a Methodist 10 cents a pound more for an article on that account. Woman is called upon to perform work that has been performed by man. Within 20 years he knew of committees hiring lady teachers for schools where men had been employed, because they could hire them cheaper. Man is not willing to grant to woman the right to equal work and equal pay. The Knights of Labor demanded equal pay for two reasons, because it is right, and because otherwise capital would use her to bring wages of the men down.

One step further. When a man is arrested for crime and you do put him in prison, because he is there, if you sell his labor for 30 cents a day, and bring it into competition with legitimate labor because he is the ward of the State, we say you shall discontinue that practice. The speaker said that in New York seven years ago. Three years ago the Knights said to the N. Y. Legislature, "repeal the convict labor bill." What, said the legislators, dictation? Then, the Knights said, we will kill you at the ballot box. We will not do this because we have got the power, but because it is right. We will elect ourselves, and then we will get more votes because we will cut off the poll tax.

What next? We demand that where capital employs labor as a corporate power, they shall receive their pay in lawful money of the United States. Many corporations in Pennsylvania for the past 15 years have only paid in orders on corporation stores. The men never see a cent of money. They have to sell them at 62 cents on a dollar, sometimes, to go on a journey. The men in one third of the mines in Pennsylvania are paid in store pay. They often pay 100 cents a pound for tea. The Knights of Labor say stop. You shall pay us in lawful money under the flag.

One step more. We want to make labor respetcable. Getting drunk is not respectable. The Knight of Labor swears that no man that sells liquor shall enter their councils. They put them and the lawyers together with the gambler. They do not expect the laborer to be respected unless he respects himself.

MUSICAL NOTES.

The second of the series of musicales mentioned some weeks ago in this column, was given last Friday evening by Miss Alice Nelson, at her home on Chestnut street. The invited guests filled the spacious parlors of Mr. Nelson's house, and an interesting programme, rendered entirely by musical people of Peabody, was provided. Miss Nellie M. Bartlett and Mrs. Culliton contributed a piano duet. Several quartettes were given by Mrs. B. F. Upton, Mrs. F. C. Ferguson, Messrs. Frank W. Stanley and Frank W. Taggard. The Angel trio was given by Miss Nelson, Mrs. J. Henry Osgood and Mrs. Ferguson. Mr. Warren Wilson, Jr., sang feelingly the ballad "Marguerite," and was also heard in a duet with Miss Nellie Merrill. Miss Carrie Clark played a "Drinking Song" with excellent taste, and Mrs. Sprague sang a song, which gave great pleasure to the guests. Mrs. J. P. Fernald sang "Only a pair of blue eyes," and a chorus from "Olivette" closed the evenings entertainment. Miss Bartlett was accompanist. The next of the series is to be given by Miss Nellie Merrill.

An impromptu musicale will be given to-morrow evening at the home of Misses Ella and Hattie Perkins, at which William Atherton, of Stoughton, Miss Emma Cheney of Charlestown, Miss Emma Rice and Mrs. J. P. Fernald of this town, and others will contribute selections.

It is pleasant to note an interest among the younger people of this town, in musical matters. This will be still more apparent as the teaching of music in our public schools continues. It is also a pleasure to say that the pupils of our schools are making good progress under Prof. Bill.

The production of the "Mikado," in Mechanic Hall, Friday evening; under the local management of the Salem Cadets, is to be the occasion of a large audience. The seats are being rapidly taken, and what remain will doubtless be speedily sold.

Miss Sopha C. Hall, who recently sang in Peabody, was the guest of Walter R. Rowe of Lawrence, Thanksgiving day.

It is said that Bennett & Moulton's Opera Company are to perform the "Mikado" in Salem shortly. We thought Mr. Stetson had enjoined all other companies, save his own, from performing the opera, and it is not yet clear in our mind that he has not done so.

The Oxford Male Quartette sang Monday night in Salem, at Wesley Chapel, in their course of entertainments.

E. V. Emilio, the wellknown music dealer of Salem, is to remove January 1st, to the store now occupied by Morrill & Bowen as a carpet store. Mr. O. W. H. Upham is to have a portion of the store.

The performance by the Salem Schubert Club last evening, consisted of scenes from the "Mikado" by members and friends of the club. The stage had been handsomely prepared, and the friends of the club were out in goodly numbers. We have only space to say that the Yum Yum of Mrs. Clara Emilio Gilbert both in singing and acting, was the best thing of the evening. It will be repeated to-night and some of the best scenes will be given at the "Matsuri" next week. We shall have something further to say next week regarding it.

We learn that the Alabama Students, who gave such good satisfaction at a sacred concert last year in this town, will be again heard within a few weeks. This was the first company that appeared here.

The tickets for the Salem Cadet Band Entertainment Course in Mechanic Hall, Salem, are being rapidly taken. At the opening one Miss Anna S. Crain, of Boston, and the Boston Comic Opera Co. will appear.

Judging from the number of "swell" theatre parties that are to be observed nightly at the Hollis, the reign of "The Mikado" in Boston, will long be unchallenged. Gilbert and Sullivan's latest work is as popular here as in New York, in Philadelphia or in Chicago. The representations are invariably characterized by many encores and recalls, and Mr. Stetson's company have abundant cause to be satisfied with their continued popularity, "The Mikado" is Manager Rich's announcement, of course, until further notice.

Most of our musical people have enjoyed the singing of the Ruggles Street Male Quartette. At the same time they may have noted the characteristic of their music, which was seen in Edward K. Hood's Course in Lynn, and more recently in other places, and which is thus described by the Boston Home Journal. Those who have most frequently heard the quartette of late will most readily endorse the criticism: "The second tenor and the basses of the quartette are to be commended for subordinating their individuality to the interests of the ensemble, and it is all the more to be regretted that their efforts in this direction should be so constantly thwarted by a first tenor who seems to labor under the hallucination that his associates are simply affording him an accompaniment, and that his indispensable duty is that of playing the role of soloist. It may be asked in all sincerity why the Ruggles street organization should be termed a quartette? Does it not after all simply exist in name, and do not three of the voices contribute the somewhat menial service of accompanying a first tenor, who indeed cannot in any legitimate sense be regarded as a pure tenor, but whose frequent habit of singing falsetto and singing out of tune at times with a superb degree of abandon, is as disagreeable to a refined and cultivated ear for music as it is conspicuous? * * * While musically it is the misfortune of Mr. Johnson's associates, or more correctly speaking, accompanists, that their efforts to constitute with him a quartette are so unfruitful, it is yet ludicrous for the pseudo soloist to personally ignore his associates, and with a pomposity that is at once puerile and offensive. When the young falsettist awakens from his blissful dream of his own importance, and acquires at least a more manly habit of tone-production, he may be expected to conform somewhat to that doctrine of eternal fitness which at present he so faithfully ignores."

In a Ventilated Car.

Accepting an invitation of the Ober Car Ventilator Company the PRESS was represented on a trial trip from Boston to Nashua, N. H., last Thursday. The invention was attached to an ordinary car of the B. & L. road and left Boston at 10.15. As the machinery of the invention is under the car it was inspected while in the depot with difficulty, and we never saw the Salvation Army do the "knee drill" any better than those invited guests from this town, including professional men, business men, capitalists and reporters who were on their knees, the latter for the first time. Soon the call "all aboard" was sounded and the "special," consisting of two cars, was filled with about 70 as congenial people as it has ever been our pleasure to meet. As we slowly leave the station we have time to make the acquaintance of our companions and soon the inventor, Mr. William Y. Ober, is introduced and sure enough, everything is plain, he is a Peabody boy, a son of Mr. "Pete" Ober, whose familiar face was daily seen on our streets several years ago, and naturally we shall credit the invention to the long list that have originated in this town and proved a blessing to humanity. The car that we entered had nothing to distinguish it from an ordinary coach, except between each seat was noticed a nickel plated pipe with an opening at the top that resembled an ear trumpet. There were thirty of these in the car, and seating oneself comfortably the little thumb screw in the pipe is turned and as a result we feel a breeze as fresh and soft as if in the summer time. This breeze is furnished in a novel manner. Beneath the car is a large cylinder like box, and in this is placed a fan and kept in motion by being attached to the axle of the wheel.

The air is drawn in by the fan, then passes through or over water which removes all particles of dust and dirt. It is then blown into tubes running the entire length of the car and regulated by the passenger as described above. It is said that it furnishes a new supply of air every twenty seconds when the train is running at an average speed, and when the train is stopped sufficient momentum is secured to keep the fan in operation two minutes. The first two hours were spent in a thorough examination of the practical workings of the invention, and it was given a pretty thorough test when twenty-six men were smoking at one time, and yet the air was so free from smoke that a person unaccustomed to it was not disturbed in the least. As the train increased its speed one would have to close his ventilator or he would feel a draught like that from an open window. The company expressed themselves much pleased with the workings of the invention which is believed to be only in its infancy and is destined to revolutionize the methods of ventilation and add comfort to all who travel for either business or pleasure. The company is officered as follows and the invention is in the hands of enterprising gentlemen who will develop it:—President, Dr. George M. Frost; Vice President, Mr. William N. Clark; Secretary, Mr. Charles E. Teague; Treasurer and Manager, Mr. William Y. Ober, the inventor. The company's stock consists of 50,000 shares, the par value of which is $10 a share. We learn that only 2000 shares will be put on the market at a less price. And this only to procure a working capital for the development of the invention.

Several stops were made along the route and everywhere the car was the centre of attraction. We entered Lawrence just as the great factories were turning their thousands of operatives into the street for the noon hour, and they were objects of considerable interest.

Fruit and cigars, card playing, reading and social converse occupied the attention of the company till Nashua Junction was reached, when a stop of several minutes was made for refreshments and again at Nashua. At the former place the young lady in charge was taken by storm as the company made descent on her stock in trade, and as she watched the Item man stow away food and—coffee, she timidly asked "when he was coming back." The run to Boston on the return was a rapid one with but few stops, and the company repaired to the Quincy House where a fine banquet was served. President Frost with a few remarks invited all in behalf of the Ober Ventilator Company to partake of what had been set before them. The company broke up about 7 o'clock, and all expressed themselves much pleased with their day's pleasure, and wished the company the abundant success their new invention deserves.

A LIVE COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.—Many of the successful business men of the country owe their success to the advantageous start in business they obtained through the medium of Comer's Commercial College. This institution, which has been in existence nearly half a century, is well known as the leading school of its class in America. By its long standing and thorough work, it has gained the confidence of the community, and has thereby peculiar facilities for obtaining employment for its graduates. The course of study commends itself to all who are dependent on their own efforts for a livelihood, the branches being such as to insure the services of their possessor ever being in demand. In six months at this excellent school, young people who have a good English education can master half a dozen practical studies that will be of Dollars and Cents value to them ever after. We are indebted to a former graduate of this successful institution for the above information, and any further particulars regarding this college, its advantages, etc., can be learned by addressing the principal, Mr. C. E. Comer, 666 Washington Street, Boston.

LIVING MONUMENTS.—On the tomb of Sir Christopher Wren, architect of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is the inscription in Latin: "If you ask for his monument look around you." The thousands and hundred of thousands of people whom we see to-day free from rheumatism and kindred diseases are living monuments to the power of St. Jacobs Oil.—The Conqueror of Pain.

The girl who does not get a representation of an owl's head in some form or other as a Christmas present this year will be wofully disappointed.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by scrofulous taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures catarrh. Thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh

Can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was

Cured

Of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That flow from the nose, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,
Editors and Publishers.

WE HAVE given this week as fair a report of Mr. Trevellick's address as the crowded condition of our columns will allow. It was a clear and forcible address, the points were well made and commanded the attention of all, even those who did not agree with all his utterances.

With a goodly share of his remarks no sensible person can take exception. Particularly worthy of commendation was the advice given to the members of his Order, with regard to education and abstaining from the use of intoxicants. He held up clearly the advantage to the laboring man of reading books of information, of becoming posted on the questions of the day, in social and political life, rather than in spending their time over billiards and in the saloon. These are timely words. With an educated voter no harm can ever come to the Republic. And while the gentleman would be very far from condemning innocent amusements, he saw clearly the peril to which the workingman is exposed by indulging in such amusements to excess.

In this connection Mr. Trevellick made a point, or attempted to, with reference to the payment for the education of other people's children. "What," says the capitalist, in the words of Mr. Trevellick, "shall we pay for the education of the children of workingmen?" As if any one would dissent from this proposition, in Massachusetts. Is not this what the old Bay State has done for years? It has been shown, time and again, that the proportion of children of workingmen attending our public schools is very large; while the proportion of the children the rich man is very small. The number of voters who pay only a poll tax, and send a number of children to our schools, is very large. Who pays for their education? Does the laboring man? To ask the question is to answer it. Yet the State of Massachusetts does not complain. Its tax payers do not complain. The children of the poor and the rich alike are educated and the State, or the tax payers, provides liberally for it, even to the text books and supplies.

We certainly agree with Mr. Trevellick in his efforts to give the children of the land a good education, and to this end, his efforts to keep them from the mills and factories until they are of a suitable age, is very laudable. And in furtherance of this the free text books in this State are a valuable aid. While the State furnished the education many a poor workman has been unable to keep his son and daughter in school on account of the expense of text books. This is now remedied, and we already begin to see its good effects.

On the whole, we think the address was an able one. And if the Knights of Labor follow the advice given them, many a town will have reason to be thankful that Mr. Trevellick was permitted to address its citizens.

The idea so generally adopted that the man who pays his taxes promptly is the best citizen, is altogether a mistake. On the contrary, the man who pays a couple of years interest on his tax at seven per cent. while the town is borrowing at four, is, so far as his townsmen are concerned, by far the more useful member of the community, and is entitled to the gratitude of his fellow citizens.—Exchange.

Where Hours go Merrily.

The rollers ran smoothly at the skating rink last evening and everyone present seemed to enjoy the fun. The occasion was the fourth private skating and dancing party under the management of some of our young men.

A three mile race on roller skates between George Hargrave and Edward Gill came off at the rink, last Saturday evening, Gill allowing Hargrave one halt lap at the start. Gill won in 13 1-2 minutes and came in 1 1-2 laps ahead. Another race will shortly take place.

At the Peabody skating rink next Saturday an attractive programme has been arranged. The Pawnee Indian boy, "Bright Star," and the little lady skater, M'lle Fantina, who is only nine years old, will appear. In the afternoon M'lle Fantina will race three miles with three boys, skating a fresh boy each mile, and "Bright Star" will give an exhibition of fancy skating. In the evening he will do the same and will race three miles for a gold medal with Finn, of Salem, T. McGarrity, E. Gill and G. Hargrave, of Peabody. Look out for "Bright Star" as he will appear in town in full costume.

The friends of Mr. James Eagan, who has been sick for some time, will give him a benefit dance at town hall, Friday evening, Dec. 11. "Many can help one—while one cannot always help many."

To-night the A. O. U. W. will celebrate their sixth anniversary at Warren Hall by a pleasing entertainment, consisting of singing by the Grand Army Quartette of Salem, readings by Miss Lagrange and whistling solos by a young lady. We return thanks for tickets.

Mr. and Mrs. William Verry celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage last Wednesday. It was a very pleasant occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Southwick, who "stood up" with them when they were married, were present on this occasion. After the congratulations of the company all retired to the dining room and Rev. Mr. Sprague in behalf of the assembled company presented them with a generous sum of money, and other suitable presents came from individual members of the family. The company retired at an early hour after listening to vocal and instrumental music. We trust the venerable couple may enjoy many more pleasant years of married life.

The fair at the Universalist Vestry opened this afternoon and the decorations are neatly arrayed. On a table to the right of the entrance are to be seen books for the holidays, Christmas cards and fine stationery. Next is the American booth filled with novelties; and next that of the Merry Workers, and this little army is entitled to great praise. On the left is the Swiss booth where is a fine assortment of Foster's celebrated confectionery, and the flower booth. The bride's reception takes place on the stage, and the Art exhibit is also on the left of the stage. To-night is a turkey supper and to-morrow night an entertainment. The fair ought to have a large patronage and we doubt not that it will.

The choir of St. John's Church and other friends from Perry's factory, at Beverly, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Carbrey, on Holten street, and partook of a substantial supper. Music and a good time followed.

One of the first questions a lady asks when purchasing jewelry for herself or as a gift to her friends, is "where can I find goods that can be relied upon to be just what is represented?" This is indeed an important consideration, and we are assured by George A. Collins, whose main store is on Essex street, Salem, and whose branch store is at the old stand of Starr C. Hewitt, in Peabody, that our readers will find a satisfactory answer to this question at either of his stores. Special attention is given to this point. Mr. Collins guarantees every article to be just as represented. In the large show case in the front part of Mr. Collins' Salem store, is a choice display of silver ware, and in his show cases are watches of all kinds—Elgin and Waltham watches being a specialty—pins, charms, bracelets and every conceivable kind of jewelry. There is also shown an elaborate line of clocks, of the best makes and choicest designs. The arrangement of the goods in this store is very tasteful and our readers will be pleased with the goods. And we may also add that the branch store which Mr. Collins has in Peabody is very neatly arranged and filled with some very choice goods. At either store the proprietors will be pleased to show our readers a fine assortment of reliable goods.

A thermometer is to be placed outside the town house and a record of the weather kept for the New England Meteorological Society.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Miss Mary Sweeney who was reported lost by the police, last week, turned up again at her home on Wednesday night. She was not far from home.

Last Friday George Calvert was arraigned in the police court, charged with stealing an overcoat from his brother, and another from James Sweeney, a fellow boarder, from a boarding house in this town. He was held in the sum of $300 for his appearance at a higher court.

Last Friday evening as Mr. P. F. Hefferan, of Danversport, and formerly of this town, was driving a horse on Washington street, Salem, the animal became frightened by steam from the tunnel, and started to run away. Mr. Hefferan was thrown to the ground and was trampled upon by the frightened animal, badly injuring him. Mr. H. was taken to the hospital and his wounds attended to.

Mr. William McGurn paid the usual fine Monday morning for being drunk.

A boy named Arthur Call, living on Boston street, while playing about a hand car on the Proctor freight R. R., fell beneath the wheels and the car ran over both legs. No bones were broken fortunately.

A Newfoundland dog belonging to William Marrs, on Willow street, bit a girl named Sullivan, in both hips, last Monday. Officer Goodwin despatched the canine.

For some time, one of our manufactuers has been missing small sums of money which he kept for change about the office. A few days ago he filled the jar where he kept the money, with vitrol. A few days after he found that some one had been there, as there was evidences to show that fingers had been dipped into the fluid and wiped on the wall. He is now looking for a party with sore fingers.

James McCarthy and Martin Touhy were drunk last Friday, and came up smiling before Judge Merrill, Saturday morning and were fined $1 and costs each.

Two boys named French and Galeucia while skating on Brown's pond last Sunday, had a narrow escape from drowning by falling through the ice. Fortunately they were near the shore.

The tramps are so numerous now days, it don't take long for them to clean up the station house to pay for their lodgings, but even that number look as if they would like to strike.

Last Monday, a driver for Batchelder & Co., was delivering coal at Geo. C. Peirce's house on Aborn street, when he was struck in the head by the winds blowing over the bulkhead door.

Mr. J. E. Osborne, who with his wife, keeps the boarding house on the square, attempted suicide early yesterday morning, by cutting his throat with the carving knife. His wife caught him in time to prevent the rash act, and the wound was dressed by Dr. Pike, and Mr. Osborne was removed to the Danvers Asylum. He has been insane for over a year, and for a long time refused to eat, and had to be fed like a child. But of late he had seemed better, and it was thought that the disease was gradually wearing off. He is nearly 70 years of age.

Thos. Heeney, better known as "Buck" was sent this morning to the House of Correction for two months. Cause, too much of the ardent.

A new confidence dodge was worked in the Kingdom in this town yesterday afternoon. A young woman with a cheap mat called at a house and told a pitiful tale to the effect that her mother was sick and they had no money, she herself had sat up late into the night to complete the mat so that she could obtain money with which she could purchase medicine for her mother. No one would take her mat but each gave her a small sum to help her procure the medicine. One lady gave her 30 cents and she said she would go right off and get the medicine, but she only went to the next neighbor and told the same pitiful yarn. The police will look out for her if she repeats it.

A young man named Taylor was found on Lowell street last Friday who acted so strangely that people thought he was intoxicated. It was afterwards learned that he was under the influence of cocaine, a new drug which is said to be more fascinating than opium, but as some one has said "over its door is the legend of Dante's hell." He procured the drug in Boston.

The following officers were elected at Jordan Lodge F. & A.M. at their last meeting: W. M., Lawrence Purtell; L. W., O. Ferren; J. W., Joseph F. Wiggin; Treasurer, Calvin Peirce; Secretary, Chas. H. Goulding.

Officer Crowley was elected last evening one of the department delegates, from Post 90 G. A. R., Danvers, to the State G. A. R. Convention.

The Peabody Dramatic Club have engaged the services of Hal Newton Carlyle to instruct them in elocution.

Dole & Osgood of this town are building a handsome new delivery pung for William G. Webber & Co., of Salem.

SPARKS.

Monday night at 10.35 an alarm of fire was given by the blowing of the heavy chime whistle on Upton's Glue Works, in South Peabody, for a fire in the stable of the old Naumkeag house. The alarm was quickly taken up at the Central Station and in about one minute Hose 1 was on the way followed by Steamer 1 and the H. & L. Hose 5 got the first stream on the blazing structure, followed in a few seconds by Hose 1, Steamer 1 and Hose 2, and soon had the fire under control, preventing it from spreading into the long sheds on each end of the barn. The building was totally in flames when the alarm was given. The barn was owned by James E. Millea and was insured for $700, the insurance having been placed by the late James H. Thomas. James B. Newhall leased the estate and used the barn and sheds for storage purposes. He had five tons of meadow hay in the barn valued at about $85 with no insurance. John Linehan hired the barn of Mr. Newhall for the storage of his light sleighs, pungs, two mowing machines, two booby hacks and one six seat hack and other property valued about $1000 in all, upon which is an insurance of $400, placed by O. B. Chadwick & Co. in the Phoenix, of Hartford. The thermometer registered ten above zero at the time and the cold was intense, the wind sweeping across the open field from the north, turning the water to ice as fast as it fell, causing considerable suffering from cold hands and ears among the firemen. The apparatus was all back in quarters at twenty minutes past one o'clock in the morning, Hose 5 and the H. & L. being the last to return. A collation of crackers and cheese and hot coffee was furnished at the Central Station. One accident occurred by which Wm. F. T. Gunn, clerk of Hose 1, will be confined to his home for some time to come. He was taking a line of hose over a stone wall near the fire, when the wall fell striking his left leg and breaking one of the small bones of the ankle. He was quickly released and taken on the wagon of Hose 5 to his home, where Dr. Foster was called to attend him and at present he is doing well. He is a member of the Relief Association. The fire was of incendiary origin. When the alarm was first given everybody thought that Upton's Glue Works was in flames again, and the rush of spectators for the scene was large. The old Naumkeag house was burned on the night of Jan. 2d, 1883, nearly three years ago.

Last Wednesday evening the skating rink was packed with one of the largest audiences this season, the occasion being the skating and dancing party under the auspices of the Relief Association of the Peabody Fire Department. The time from 7.45 until 9.15 was taken up by general skating, over 100 being on the floor. At 9.15 the floor was cleared and the two polo teams picked from the fire department took their places as follows:—Hose 1, Captain, Fred B. Thomas; Charles Reed, rusher; U. A. Brophy, goal; William Brown, Louis McKean and J. W. Byron. Hook and Ladder, Captain, A. A. Carleton; goal, E. W. Pierce; rusher, J. Leighton; John Smith, A. L. Legro, Fred Carleton. The Hook and Ladder team wore red firemen's shirts, belts and dark pants. Hose 1 was uniformed with white shirts, belts and dark pants. George P. Nevers refereed the game in a very satisfactory manner. Reed of the Hose team took every rush. The first goal was captured by the Hose team, but the second, third and fourth were won by the Hooks. The game lasted over half an hour and created considerable amusement. Both Carleton and Brophy as goal tenders did good work, and in fact for teams that had never practised together over half an hour they did good work. At 10.15 the grand march in the dance was taken up with Vice President Charles G. Folsom leading and about 75 couples in the march. Dancing was kept up until 12 o'clock. Firemen were present from Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Danvers and Somerville, among the most prominent being Ex-Chief Engineer Turner of Haverhill. Over 600 tickets were sold and the Association will add about $65 to their fund. A second party will be held one week from to-night, Dec. 16, at the rink with skating, dancing and probably a polo game between a team from the Peabody department and the Beverly department. Tickets are now on sale by the members of the department at 25 cents each. Secure one and help the boys out.

William T. Gunn, who was injured at the fire of Monday night, is as comfortable as can be expected. The broken limb has been put in a plaster of Paris mould and will have to remain there for three weeks. It will probably be at least two months before he will be able to use the leg again. This is one of the "privileges" of firemen. A number of the firemen got slight bruises and scratches, and about everyone who was present is now suffering from colds contracted at that fire. The

MECHANIC HALL,
ONE NIGHT ONLY!
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1885.

Under the auspices of the 2d Corps of Cadets. First and only Representation in this city, by the D'OYLY CARTE OPERA COMPANY,

50—ARTISTS—50

Under the management of Mr. John Stetson, of Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan's latest work, the new Japanese Opera in two acts, entitled the

MIKADO,
Or the Town of Titipu.
MR. STETSON

would respectfully remind the musical public that this will be the only authorized and genuine production of the "Mikado" in this city, the Exclusive Right to the Original Orchestral Score and Libretto, together with the original models of the Scenes and the designs for the wardrobe, armor and properties from the Savoy Theatre, London, having been legally assigned to him by the Author and Composer through their Representative, Mr. R. D. O'Oyly Carte, for New York, Boston and the New England States.

The Opera will be presented with an Admirable Cast. Complete Chorus and Grand Orchestra. A Special Car is used for the transportation of the New and Magnificent Scenery, Costly Real Antique Japanese Costumes, Armor, etc., constituting in every detail an exact counterpart of the famous original productions at the Savoy Theatre, London, and the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York.

The sale of Seats will open at W. E. Luscomb's on Friday, Dec. 4.

Horse Cars to all adjoining towns at close of performance.

Now is the time to rid the system of humors and all Blood Impurities. Ferrated Hygienic Wine is a most effective remedy. tf

Wednesday Evening, Dec, 9 1885,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

An address to teachers, "Hints about Helps," will be given in the hall of the Center school, School street, Peabody, at 2.15 P. M., Wednesday, Dec. 16th. The speaker, Miss Alice M. Guernsey, of Wareham, Mass., is superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction for the Mass. Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and an experienced and successful teacher, as well as the author of a series of articles in the N. E. Journal of Education, and of another series in the American Teacher on the subject of temperance physiology and hygiene. She comes at the invitation of the Peabody W. C. T. Union, with the cordial co-operation of our School Committee, who have kindly lent the use of the hall for the occasion. Mr. J. Y. Bergen, Jr., principal of the High school, will preside at the meeting, and it is hoped that there may be a full attendance of teachers and others who are interested in the cause of temperance instruction, as it is expected that the address will be followed by a discussion of the subject. Teachers from Salem and other neighboring cities and towns are cordially invited to be present.

Have you noticed our beautiful steel plate engraving in Spaulding's window, of Longfellow in his library? It is as he used it in 1873 until his death. He is seated at the right of his table which is strewn with his writing materials. To the extreme left stands the carved book-case, containing all the poet's own works, in their original manuscript. Hanging on the wall is a portrait of Nathaniel Hawthorne, his class mate at Bowdoin. The Sage of Concord, Ralph Waldo Emerson, also adorns the wall. The chair was presented to him by the school children of Cambridge, and is made from the spreading Chestnut which stood before the old blacksmith shop, and the room itself has much historic interest in it; aside from being the workshop of our immortal poet, it was the room in which Gen. George Washington made his headquarters, directly after the battle of Bunker Hill, and in which he received his military visitors and staff officers, and from which he issued his orders. This is a great historic work and our liberal offer in another column should be accepted by hundreds.

The telephone lines in this vicinity are to be tested for their conductivity by the company's electrician, Mr. Farnham, who has a special measuring instrument. Defects that could not be found by other tests will be shown by this and all will be remedied. The measurement will determine the resistance offered to the electric current by the lines and by subscribers' bells. Two measuring instruments called the rheostat and the galvanometer are used; the first to fix on the standard amounts of resistance known as "ohms" and the second to show when the line resistance balances with the fixed amount of that in the rheostat.

The annual meeting of the West Peabody Farmers' club was held last Friday evening. The following officers were re-elected: Jas. F. Ingraham, Pres.; Wm. E. Sheen and Bowman Viles, Vice Pres.; J. H. J. Colcord, Sec.; Wm. E. Sheen, Treas.; Bowman Viles, Musical Director, a position he has ably filled since the formation of the club. Mr. Andrew Nichols Jr., of Danvers, delivered an interesting, instructive and able lecture on Geology. Mr. Israel Andrews of Danvers is expected to open the next meeting, on the Labor Question.

To any of our readers who may think of purchasing a pair of Gold Spectacles or Eyeglasses, either for a present, or for their own use, Ayer, the well known optician, at 130 Washington St., Boston, sells a superior article for $5.00, $6.00 or $7.00 per pair. Mention age and number worn, or send old pair to him with cash enclosed, and you will receive a guaranteed fit by return mail, subject to exchange it not perfectly satisfactory. *

Some weeks ago the School Committee of Salem visited the Wallis school in town and were much pleased with the showing made in reading and writing. We understand that they have sent to our school Board for samples of some of the work done in writing in this school—declaring that there is no school in Salem that can equal the Wallis in this respect—all of which is a deserved compliment to the efficiency of the teachers.

The shipments of leather from Peabody and Salem for the week ending December 5 were 7085 rolls, 987 sides, 240 bundles, 24 barrels, 103 bags, 18 bales of leather and 45 bundles of skins.

L. & G. H. Poor's factory has been painted and adorned with a new sign, painted by the artist painter C. C. Redmond of Salem, who painted the fine portrait of George Peabody on the PRESS sign.

SOUTH PEABODY.

Mr. Chas. Holden is having the wood cut off the Hussey lot on Lynnfield St., which will make the house of Mr. Albert Newhall very pleasant.

A large crowd of skaters enjoyed the first skating of the season, last Sunday on Sidney pond.

The house of Mr. Johnson on Lynn St., is nearly ready for occupancy.

The West Peabody chapel will be dedicated next Friday afternoon—services to commence at 1.30 o'clock, and the following is the order of exercises: Selection, Lovely Zion, Choir; Invocation, Rev. Edward C. Ewing; Reading of Scriptures, Rev. Chas. C. Carpenter; Prayer, Rev. Harry L. Brickett; Hymn, Oh where are Kings and Empires now; Historical Sketch, Arthur W. Felt; Statement of the Building Committee, Joel L. Southwick; Hymn, Arise, O King of grace, Arise; Sermon, Rev. Charles B. Rice.

Our sympathies are with the family of Mr. Daniel Conroy who mourns the death of an estimable wife and mother, the sad event occuring last Wednesday, after a brief illness, from pneumonia. Mrs. Conroy has lived on Harris street for many years, having come to this town 42 years ago and in all these years she has been a comfort and helpmeet to her husband, and a loving mother to her children. She was an intelligent and kind woman, who leaves scores of friends. She had four children and had made a home for them down to the last day of her life. Her children are William, Daniel, Dennis and Mary Ann. Her funeral took place from St. John's Church last Friday with solemn High Mass, and was largely attended.

Last Saturday at the Sportsmen's Club range, says the Wakefield Bulletin, Mr. George H. Clothey made 42 out of a possible 50 at 200 yards, with a military rifle, off hand. The shooting caused considerable talk in town and many doubted it, but it was verified, and now many are the marksmen who are green with envy. Mr. Clothey is a son of Mr. Thomas Clothey of this town.

Mr. E. W. Merrill, who has a shoe factory in the old Pinder & Winchester factory, has taken a partner in the firm, Mr. J. J. Matthews of Salem. We learn that the firm are looking for new quarters where they can do an increased business. They want a shop with steam power furnished, and we regret to learn that unless they can find it here they will have to move out of town.

On next Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock, vesper services will be held at St. John's Church, it being within the octave of the Feast of the Immaculate conception. During the service the different Sodalities connected with the church, will renew their vows as Sodalists, and a sermon applicable to the occasion will be preached by Rev. Father Powers, of Danvers. The choir will sing Millard's Vespers.

The young ladies of Peabody are invited to meet in the W. C. T. U. room on next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. Miss E. S. Toney of Boston, president of the Mass. W. C. T. U., will be present and tell how young women may help along the cause of temperance, and alleviate the woes caused by intemperance. The W. C. T. U. has created a department of work for young women that is doing great good in many localities.

The Water Board met Monday and approved the report of the engineer of the pumping station as follows:—Number of gallons pumped 17,020,410; average per day, 567,347. pounds of coal used for the month, 40,840; average per day, 1,360 pounds; gallons of water pumped per pound of coal, 412. Running time, 7 hours 9 minutes.

The recent storm made great changes at Salisbury Beach. The Peabody House, owned by Mr. George Merrill, still remains, although it has been moved back three times. The spot where it originally stood is now below low water mark at the present time, which was several feet above high water when built, with a well in front. This is also submerged.

Rev. Dr. James O. Murray, dean of the Princeton faculty, is reported to have tendered his resignation. Dr. Murray has been one of the most popular instructors the college ever had. He was formerly pastor of the brick Presbyterian church, Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, New York and at one time, pastor of the South Church in this town.

There are not enough names received to charter a conveyance to West Peabody Friday afternoon to the dedication of the new Church, as had been proposed. Persons can go by the 11 o'clock Lowell train.

A young farmer at West Peabody has caught twenty-eight skunks since last October. The skunk oil was sold for $1.00 a pint, and there was over three gallons of it.

The Annual Fair of the St. Paul's Episcopal parish, will be holden in the Baptist vestry next Wednesday afternoon and evening.

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

Purifier

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M]

Salvini is to close, with the present week, his brief season at the Boston Theatre. Never has the great Italian gained more decided triumphs in his art. Never has he better merited complete success. In the person of Miss Viola Allen the actor has a charming actress, who has well seconded his efforts during the week past. On Thursday night Salvini is to repeat the performance of Coriolanus, which was seen last week with so much interest. He is to portray the outlaw in La Morte Civile on Friday, and will finish his engagement at the matinee on Saturday, when the play will be Othello. Saturday evening the company headed by young Salvini play the Duke's Motto.

John T. Raymond begins his annual engagement at the Park Theatre this week. The balance of the week he will play his popular creation, Col. Mulberry Sellers. During the second week of his stay he will present his new play, In Chancery, written for him by Pinero, the author of The Magistrate.

A new play by Augustin Daly is always awaited with especial interest. He is one of the most successful of playwrights and adapters, and a brilliant record of stage successes gives promise that his latest offering will be a valuable accession indeed to the world beyond the footlights. Living for Show will be given its first production this week at the Boston Museum. Written for the Boston Museum, with particular reference to the display of the talents of Mr. Field's excellent stock company, this new comedy drama has a peculiar claim on the attention of this public. Mr. Daly has himself directed the rehearsal of the work.

One of the most successful of all temperance dramas is to be acted this week on the stage of the Bijou Theatre. Ten Nights in a Bar-room, the stage version of T. S. Arthur's tale, ranks with Uncle Tom's Cabin in its constant attraction for a large class of the public. For the week's run of Ten Nights in a Bar-room prices have been reduced to fifty cents for the best seats, with twenty-five cents for balcony. There are to be matinees on Thursday and Friday, as well as Wednesday and Saturday, besides the evening performances.

With the exception of Mrs. Vincent, the company of the Boston Museum will appear with Edwin Booth not only during his performances here but in New York, not coming "home again" till spring is at hand.

A grand event will be the long-awaited spectacular production of The Comedy of Errors, on Monday of next week at the Boston Theatre. Messrs. Robson and Crane are to be the central figures. The costumes have been designed by Captain Alfred Thompson, the celebrated English artist whose artistic work for Sardanapalus, the Irving production, and Manager J. M. Hill's great representation of Romeo and Juliet in New York has gained him such deserved fame. A series of gorgeous classical pictures may be expected, and among them the conception of Diana's statue at Ephesus, with the fete of the villa of Phryne, are sure to command admiration. Manager Joseph Brooks counts indeed on the most effective stage setting which the magnificent Comedy of Errors production has yet enjoyed when he comes next week to this city. The sale of seats opens Thursday morning.

The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and tortures of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla. (D)

Have you read the President's message?

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my cartarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Summers Stepney, Conn.

I thank God that you ever invented such a medicine for Catarrh. I have suffered for five years so I could not lie down for weeks at a time. Since I have been using Ely's Cream Balm I can rest.—Frank P. Burleigh, Farmington, N. H.

PROBATE NOTICE.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, SS. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs-at-law, Next of Kin, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of HARDY M. SHILLABER, late of Peabody, in said county, yeoman, deceased,

GREETING:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Eliza B. Shillaber, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her the executrix therein named, and that she may be exempt from giving a surety or sureties on her bond, for the reasons alleged in said petition. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Salem, in said county of Essex, on the third Monday of December, next, at nine o'clock, before noon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Eliza B. Shillaber is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the Peabody Press, printed at Peabody, the last publication to be two days at least before said Court.

Witness, George F. Choate, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

DENTAL NOTICE.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anaesthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anaesthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

INDIGESTION

To strengthen the stomach, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency which result from Indigestion, there is nothing so effective as Ayer's Pills. These Pills contain no calomel or other poisonous drug, act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, and restore health and strength to the entire system. T. P. Bonner, Chester, Pa., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past 30 years and am satisfied I should not have been alive to-day, if it had not been for them. They me of Dyspepsia when all other remedies failed, and their occasional use has kept me in a healthy condition ever since." L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y., writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills, for Liver troubles and Indigestion, a good many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action." Richard Norris, Lynn, Mass., writes: "After much suffering, I have been cured of Dyspepsia and Liver troubles

Cured

By Using

Ayer's Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken." John Burdett, Troy, Iowa, writes: "For nearly two years my life was rendered miserable by the horrors of Dyspepsia. Medical treatment afforded me only temporary relief, and I became reduced in flesh, and very much debilitated. A friend of mine, who had been similarly afflicted, advised me to try Ayer's Pills. I did so, and with the happiest results. My food soon ceased to distress me, my appetite returned, and I became as strong and well as ever."

Book Notices.

The Art Age is the only art journal that gives special attention to the best work of professional American artists. Besides other illustrations, it issues regularly an exquisite Forbes Photogravure, suitable for framing. Twenty-five cents a copy. Turnuer & Gilliss Brothers, publishers, 75 Fulton street, New York.

Lippincott's Magazine for December opens with a description of a Tobacco-Plantation in Virginia, written evidently with ample knowledge of all the details of the subject. "Cookham Dean" by Margaret Bertha Wright, is a very amusing sketch of artist life at a favorite resort on the Upper Thames. To many persons the most attactive article in the number will be the "The Letters and Reminiscences of Charles Reade," by K. Cornwallis, the letters, relating chiefly to the novelist's own works and his connection with various publishers, being lively and highly characteristic. "New York Libraries," by C. B. Todd, contains a mass of information that cannot fail to prove of use to those whom it concerns. We notice that commencing with the New Year, this popular Magazine will be reduced in price to $2.00 per annum, and other important changes will be inaugurated.

With the December issue the Magazine of American History closes its fourteenth volume. This publication has done much in recent years to make American history popular, by presenting it in a pleasing manner, and has now the largest circulation of any magazine of its character in the world. The number opens with A. W. Clason's brilliant exposition of the part taken by Massachusetts (1788) in the adoption of the Constitution of the United States. Thanksgiving Day, Past and Present, by Col. Norton, A Chapter of the Mexican War, from the pen of General E. Parker Scammon, the tutor of General Grant at West Point, and General ("Baldy") Smith's third paper on the Campaign of 1861-1862 in Kentucky, which brings ingeniously together the scattered facts. A fine portrait of General George B. McClellan is accompanied by a tribute to his memory from the editor. It is a strong and substantial, as well as a charming number. Subscription price, $5 a year in advance. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York City.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for December opens with a very timely article called "Another Bit of Turkey." It has no reference to Thanksgiving, but to the annexation of Roumelia by the Prince of Bulgaria. "The Story of Napoleon Bonaparte's Divorce from the Empress Josephine" is told by Noel Ruthven in a way to excite the reader's warmest sympathy with the amiable lady whom a husband's ambition compelled to descend from her throne. Ackroyd's scientific article on "Whirlpools and Whirlwinds" explains the origin of those deadly forces in nature which so frequently compel us to record their destructive ravages. The lighter elements in the magazine, the fine illustrations, the stories with the poetic and other miscellany, make the number from every point of view extremely attractive. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $3.00 a year, postpaid.

The Atlantic Monthly for 1886 promises to be of special interest. It will have serial stories by Charles Egbert Craddock whom Atlantic readers know so well by "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains:" Henry James, whose story, "The Princess Casamassima," will continue until August; and William H. Bishop. No more appetizing annoucement could be made than that James Russel Lowell will write, both in prose and poetry, for the Atlantic for the coming year. John Fiske, who has made a special study of the period from the close of the American Revolution to the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, will contribute six or more papers shedding much and welcome light on that period of our history. Mr. Hamerton, the eminent English writer, promises a series of papers comparing the English and French in their characters, customs, and opinions; and Mr. Aldrich, who has written some of the best of the short stories in American literature, will furnish some more for next year's Atlantic. RHEUMATISM usually settles in the back or limbs, and often so completely overpowers its victims that all business or labor has to be abandoned. Our readers should remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla is not recommended as a positive specific for rheumatism; its proprietors doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But many people who were most severely afflicted, state they have been positively cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The disease is often the result of impure blood—hence the power of this great medicine over it. Its success in many severe cases justifies us in recommending its use to all sufferers from rheumatism. 100 doses One Dollar.

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to comp with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims.

citizens should be willing to help the Association out in their benefit at the rink, as they are liable at any time to have quite a number of firemen laid up drawing on the fund. Since the incorporation oi the Relief Association there has been nearly an average of one fireman injured at each working fire.

A slight fire in a pile of barrels containing ashes was discovered last Saturday night, on Upton street, and was extinguished by fireman U. A. Brophy of Steamer 1 and Samuel Townes without an alarm. z

Meeting a Skylark in Autumn.

Once singer of the skies and mate of morning!
Are you the one I met
Out of the dew of daisies, without warning?
Do you forget?

You are the one. The world has not another.
Oh, melody and wings
Born of the blossoms! Time nor death can smother
A soul that sings.

Oh, how you voyaged the deeps of air, and lifted
The heart out of my breast!
Where is the joy you sang, the light you rifted,
And—all the rest?

Ah me! I know. The lonesome leaves are shredded
Into the frost. And yet
You are—oh! wrath of music gray and dreaded—
The one I met.

The buds were, after all, but things that wither;
The lambs, from Paradise,
That whitened all the hills, have gone back thither
Through sacrifice.

Ah, mourner of the meadows low and lonely!
The empty days are long.
I wonder if the morning stars sang only
A funeral song!

We have just received from the enterprising publishers, A. H. Andrews & Co., a most useful little volume, suggestively called "Look Within for Five Thousand Facts that Everybody Wants to Know." It contains 75 pages of condensed information on Mechanics, Statistics, History, Medicine, etc. It is embellished with a number of colored diagrams, and is by far the most valuable and complete Pocket Cyclopædia we have yet seen. It is offered for sale at the exceedingly low price of 25 cents, for which sum in stamps it will be sent postpaid by the publishers, A. H. Andrews & Co., Chicago.

Lost and Found.

BY ALICE CARY.

A roof so tight, and a heart so bright,
In the time of the rain and the frost;
And a nice soft bed for his weary head—
Ah! these are what he has lost!

Neighbors and friends, to make him amends
When his sky with clouds are crossed,
And his honor and trust of the good and just—
Ah! these are what he has lost!

A wife whose love shone rubies above,
When his heart was torn and tossed;
And children whose ways reflected his praise—
Ah! these are what he has lost!

A purse without gold, a heart that is cold,
And a heart that aches like a wound;
The signs of disgrace in his eyes and face—
Ah! these are what he has found!

A man that is wrecked by his own neglect
And a will evil habit has found!
A tongue slow to speak, and a hand that is weak—
Ah! these are what he has found!

Some ragged clothes, and a great red nose,
And the right to be called a sot;
A big brown jug, and a pewter pint mug,
Ah! these are all he has got!

Her Story.

Only a little thread of gold,
Running her whole life through,—
So plainly she could see it here,
Then lost awhile could trace it there,
As it came again in view.

Only a little rill of love
That watered her dusty way;
But the meagre draught, though sweet to sip,
And quaffed with an eager, thirsting lip,
Could not that thirst allay.

Only a bright and buoyant hope,
That could not be repressed;
But it lifted at once her weight of care,
It made of her desert a gay parterre,
And her secret was unguessed.

And none could know that hidden fount
That welled within her heart;
There are flowers too frail for blossoming,
There are dreams to which we fondly cling,
Of our very lives a part.

Her busy days at last were done,
And the weary feet had rest.
The thread of gold had all been spun,
The little rill had ceased to run,
And the hope died unconfessed.

Items of Interest.

It is a remarkable circumstance in connection with the recent taking of the census in British Burmah, that although the whole population is devoted to cock fighting, only one man was returned as a cock fighter.

Masses of deep-sea coral, many tons in weight, which were torn from their ocean bed by the volcanic explosion in Sunda Straits two years ago, may now be seen two or three miles inland, whither they were borne by the tidal wave.

A justice in Georgia recently undertook to marry two couples at once and married both women to one of the men before he was aware of the fact. He afterward got the matter straightened out to the satisfaction of the contracting parties.

A Providence woman gave birth to four children recently; the new comers lived but a few hours. The husband took advantage of the sensation it caused, and got an admission fee of ten cents from each of the 500 people who viewed the little ones' bodies.

The history of a Vermont mountain town is thus epitomized by a good observer: "The early settlers cleared up good farms, and the children got rich from them. The grandchildren ran them down, and loaded the town with debts. The next generation skipped away to the West."

A strip of Arabian paper dating from the ninth century, and containing a woodcut with ornaments and initials, has just been found among the papers of the Austrian Archduke Rainer. This relic shows that the art of woodcutting was probably of Arabian origin, or that it was, at all events, known to the Arabs in the ninth century.

Late measurements give the height of the great Mexican volcano, Popocatepell, as 17,809 feet above the sea. The crater, which is completely obscured within by sulphurous vapor, is about two and one-half miles in circuit and 1,000 feet deep. The entire centre of the top of the mountain seems to be solid sulphur, which is deposited at the rate of about a ton a day.

A colony of lepers is located at Tracadie, New Brunswick, in Gloucester County, on the shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. There is another small settlement of lepers in the British provinces which is almost entirely unknown. It is situated in the western part of Cape Breton, near Lake Ainslie, the members being natives of the Highlands of Scotland.

"The gold and scarlet of the sun" is rivaled in the cupolas of St. Peter's at Moscow. There are five of the cupolas, and no less than 900 pounds of gold were used in overlaying them. The doors of the temple cost $310,000, and upon the marble floors were expended $1,500,000. Ten thousand worshippers can be comfortable, if their souls let them, within this $12,500,000 temple.

A writer in the Eastern Medical Journal says that the medical idea of a teaspoonful is one fluid drachm. This is, in fact, about the measurement of that article as used by our grandmothers. But this and the dessert spoon are now made so much larger than formerly that they hold nearly two drachms, and people who measure medicine by them overdose themselves. The tablespoon remains as in old days.

One minute's imprisonment in jail was the punishment imposed on a man charged in a Clarendon (Ark.) court with having sold the products of land for which he had failed to pay rent. The trial occupied several days, and upon the verdict being pronounced the condemned walked across the court-room and placed himself in charge of the sheriff, who took him to the jail, where he served out one minute's time.

One hundred and five years ago Nicholas Thomas and Lucy Somes lived in Mt. Desert, Me., and wanted to be married. There was no minister within thirty miles and so they married themselves. On the town records, under date of 1780, is the contract which they drew up and signed—agreeing, in "the presence of God, the angels, and these witnesses, to love, to cherish and nourish," and to "love, honor, and obey him," as husband and wife, so long as God should continue their lives.

Five hundred years B. C., the Etruscan ladies fastened their coils and braids with spear-shaped pins, as beautiful as they were useful. Some of them were made of ivory and some of bronze and silver. They were ornamented in various ways, some with busts carved upon them, and some with full-length reclining figures. Venus rising out of the sea and stroking back her wet hair was a favorite design.

A custom of the days gone by still obtains in the District of Columbia courts. According to an old Maryland law, the foreman of each jury is presented with a pound of tobacco on rendering the verdict in each case. As this is far in excess of the demand for the weed, the cash equivalent of $1 is substituted. The tobacco fund amounts to a considerable sum during a term of court, and is usually devoted to the purchase of a cane for the foreman, bouquets for the judge, and minor comforts for the jurors.

Mr. Henry Moore, for a large number of years foreman and business-manager for Charles H. Tigh, has severed his connection with that establishment to accept a similar position at Smith's factory in Norwood. Last Saturday he was presented, by the employes of the establishment, with an elegant marble French clock. Mr. Moore has largely assisted in building up Mr. Tigh's business. He leaves town with the best wishes of his fellow townsmen.

Brianza Cigars—the best ten cent cigars in the world,—ten cents straight at George Stevens'. *

The Springfield papers announce that Pastor Simons of the Methodist church, in that city, delivered his well known lecture on "Cross Wives" in the Reform Club Course on last Friday evening. Nothing like sticking to "Cross Wives," eh?

Mr. James R. Wingate has the contract to build a new pottery for Mr. Moses Page on Central street. The building will be 30x50 feet and three stories high. It will be built in the rear of his present pottery and that building will be used for storage.

A young man in this town while in a bar room "over the line," made a bet of a dollar that he could swallow twenty-four raw eggs in ten minutes. He did the job in 8 minutes and 13 seconds, and spent the dollar in setting up the beer for the boys.

A Western blizzard is coming. The weather of late has been a trifle unsatisfactory owing to the uncertainty of the weather reports. Officer Goodwin who hoists the storm signals has decided to take the matter into his own hands and a cold wave will be started at once.

There are a number of cheap newspaper stories going around to the effect that Proctor's factory and other large factories would soon be closed up on account of the Knights of Labor's asking for an increase of pay for their men. Those who write them must think the public are easily amused.

To any of our readers who may think of purchasing a pair of Gold Spectacles or Eyeglasses, either for a present, or for their own use, Ayer, the well known optician, at 130 Washington St., Boston, sells a superior article for $5.00, $6.00 or $7.00 per pair. Mention age and number worn, or send old pair to him with cash enclosed, and you will receive a guaranteed fit by return mail, subject to exchange if not perfectly satisfactory. *

The attractive advertisement of Mr. George H. Jacobs, the clothier, on the first page, is to the point, and announces a special sale which those of our readers who want anything of the kind are invited to inspect. A glance at the neatly trimmed window of Mr. Jacobs on Main street will show you that he has many pretty and useful goods for the holidays, including silk handkerchiefs, scarfs, jewelry, etc.

At a meeting of the Unity Club, Monday evening, Miss M. O. Barrett read an able paper on the resolution: "That it is expedient for the State of Massachusetts to place woman on an equality with man in regard to suffrage."

The firm of Houghton, Coolidge & Co. have recently purchased 100,000 sides of wax, kip and split leather, amounting to $250,000, from Peabody and Salem dealers, in anticipation of a rise on account of the advance expected by the increased price of labor. It will be shipped to their factory at Ashland, Mass.

The employes at C. H. Tigh found the shop locked against them last Monday morning, and after waiting a while concluded it was a "lock out" and left. Mr. Tigh said that he did not expect the men to leave but intended to talk with them. The fireman had received orders not to start his fires Monday, from a son of the proprietor. We learn that the men returned to-day working on the new price list.

The Matsuri, or Japanese fete, given in Plummer Hall by the Salem Schubert Club, opened very successfully last evening. It will continue this evening and to-morrow. There is a Japanese restaurant, a bazar, a tea house and an illuminated garden and a flower mart in charge of Yum Yum, Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo. Last evening selections from the Mikado were given.

Officers of junior class of Peabody High School have been elected as follows: President, Warren D. King; Vice Pres., Arthur L. Pettey; Sec., Fred W. Bushby; Treas., George F. K. Cole, Chaplain, Wm. F. Sumner, Quartermaster, S. G. Southwick, Officer of the day, John C. McDonald, Officer of the Guard. Delegates to Department Convention, Wm. W. Reed and Geo. B. Miller; Alternates, J. S. Tuttle and S. C. Bancroft. The installation takes place Monday. Jan. 11, 1886.

MUSICAL NOTES.

Miss Emma Rice of this town, sang at a concert in Smith College, Northampton, last evening. Miss Rice has a fine contralto voice which has been much improved by study abroad.

The Musicale last Thursday evening at the home of the Misses Perkins on Mt. Vernon street, was somewhat disturbed by the indisposition of most of those who were to perform. Miss Cheney, of Charlestown, gave several well chosen selections, and some humorous selections by H. Grahame Wheeler created great amusement.

A choir under the direction of Geo. A. Goldthwait furnished the music at the Anniversary of the W. C. T. U. in the Methodist church last Sunday evening.

The Salem Cadet Band is to go with the National Lancers on a trip South as far as Charleston, S. C. starting February 15.

Mapleson's Italian Opera Company will follow Robson and Crane at the Boston Theatre, and give grand opera at popular prices. It is rumored that Lillian Norton Gower has made a contract with Mr. Mapleson and will make her first appearance with the company in Boston.

Miss Lizzie Webb Cary sang in Worcester last week, with fine success, the press notices from the local sheets being unusually complimentary.

Another injunction has been issued in favor of John Stetson in a company desiring to play the "Mikado," with an orchestra. This ought to settle it, and probably will.

Miss Hattie J. Clapper, of New York, who sings the Messiah in Music Hall, Dec. 27, for the Handel and Haydn Society, will also sing in Baltimore, to-morrow for the Oratorio Society there.

Miss Gertrude Franklin is to be the soloist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Feb. 12 and 13.

D. B. Hagar, of Salem was on Saturday chosen President of the New England Public School Music Teachers' Association. Prof. C. R. Bill was also chosen one of the directors.

The oftener "The Mikado" is heard the more favorably it impresses the average auditor at the Hollis street Theatre in Boston. Sir Arthur Sullivan's music is very charming throughout; and Mr. Braham and his musicians make the orchestra one of the most enjoyable features of the representation. Yum Yum and Nanki-Pooh, Ko-Ko and Pook-Bah, Pitti Sing and the rest will continue to be heard in the reigning Japanese success until further notice; for there is no falling off or sign of diminution in popular favor for the opera.

The Alabama Students, a troupe of Colored Jubilee Singers who appeared in the Town Hall last year, will give a sacred Concert in the same place next Sunday evening. The entertainment will be, we understand, composed entirely of Jubilee songs and music entirely appropriate to a Sunday evening performance. They will not appear in costume, but will present a programme entirely unobjectionable in its character.

Millard's Vespers was performed at St. John's Church, last Sunday evening by the choir under the direction of Chas. H. Clark.

The opening concert under the auspices of the Salem Cadet Band, will be given to-morrow evening, in Mechanic Hall, Salem. The opera of the "Barber of Bath" by Offenbach, with Miss Anna S. Crain, Mr. Walter Bell (who was with Bennett & Moulton's Opera Co., four years) Mr. Gus Kammerlee and Geo. L. Cheeney. Preceding the opera, a concert programme will be offered by Miss Crain and others of the company. These concerts should be well patronized. They are for the benefit of the Cadet Band, and we hope to see many of our musical people there.

It will be seen that, by special desire, the Peake Sisters will again appear in the Universalist vestry, next Tuesday evening. A Peakes Orchestra has been engaged and they will also add to the entertainment. There will also be presented the Farce, "Hiring Help." The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Murray Club, and we doubt not but that the friends of the Peakes Sisters will muster in force and give them a rousing reception. It will only cost 20 cents to do this—children half price.

A Railroad Man's views.— Mr. Joseph Hickson, the agent in Toronto, Canada, of the New York, West Shore and Buffalo Railroad Company, is well-known throughout the Dominion. He writes that for several weeks his little girl was ill with bronchitis. He used different preparations and also had her treated by a physician, but without effect. Finally he tried Red Star Cough Cure, and before one bottle was finished she was perfectly well.

You can soon write it 1886!

S. B. Durfrey, mate of Steamer Arizona, had his foot badly jammed. Thomas' Electric Oil cured it. Nothing equal to it for a quick pain reliever.

Things that Never Die.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
  That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulse of a wordless prayer
  The dream of love and truth,
The longing after something lost,
  The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
  These things shall never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
  A brother in his need,
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
  That proves a friend indeed;
The plea for mercy, softly breathed,
  When justice threatens nigh;
The sorrowings of a contrite heart,
  These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
  Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love,
  Be firm and just and true;
So shall a light that cannot fade
  Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee,
  "These things can never die"

Mr. Frank Cousins, at his busy Bee Hive, is prepared to show an elegant assortment of Christmas goods, and instead of making separate and special counters for them they are distributed around among the different departments and on temporary shelves above the counters. The stock includes general fancy ornaments and bisque figures, pretty silk and linen handkerchiefs, cologne and fancy cut glass bottles, pocket books and bags, jewelry and easels. In the worsted department there is an endless variety of tidies and fancy embroidery to suit any taste. On one counter there is a fine display of Christmas cards and opposite is a counter filled with dolls and albums of all kinds, and adjoining are large numbers of fancy table scarfs and towels. A special feature during the holidays will be a book department, the prices on which are so low that we take the liberty to quote a few of them. Among the juvenile works is Young Jonathan, an illustrated book of 325 pages for 50 cents. The now famous gilt edge red line Poets 50 cents each. These books are sold at Houghton & Dutton's in Boston for 62 cents. Babyland bound for a whole year 29 cents, and Wide Awake 50 cents. Chatterbox, American edition, 45 cents; English 65 cents. Another wonderful bargain is Tennyson's Bijou edition finely illustrated for 34 cents. A superb edition of Dante's Inferno for $3.12. As special bargains Mr. Cousins is offering a Golden cover book of poems entitled "In the fields," for only 10 cents. The publishers price on the goods is 75 cents. Mr. Cousins always looks out for the little ones and will offer a pretty little book, such as Red Riding Hood and similar works, for 1 cent each. On the cover is a card that alone costs more than the book. "Lift up your hearts" and other devotional works are almost given away. Alegator bound poems for only 75 cents. In fact his books are suitable for young and old, with both light and solid reading from the pen of all the popular authors. Just see his beautiful cut glass bottles for only 25 cents and fancy cologne bottle for 5 cents. A large number of elegant Christmas cards in every conceivable design are offered, and among them a beautiful card of brocaded satin and fringed. The outside is ornamented with a picture representing familiar scenes, and when opened a calendar for 1886 is shown. Mr. Cousins has placed the price on these cards at 50 cents each, which is not one half the cost. He has five thousand sheets of embossed pictures for scrap albums at 1 cent a sheet. Photograph, autograph and scrap albums, fancy cups and saucers, Majolica plates, wire fruit baskets, and numerous other presents complete his stock in trade. A colored glass finger bowl with doylie for 25 cents each or $2.50 a dozen. A visit to the Bee Hive will convince you that the Christmas goods are complete and are sold at a low price.

The annual communication of the Masonic grand lodge of Massachusetts was held at Boston Wednesday. Grand Master Abraham H. Howland, Jr., of New Bedford made an address, and the reports of the grand officers were read, showing the order to be healthy and flourishing. These officers were elected: Grand master, Abraham H. Howland, Jr., of New Bedford; senior grand warden, William T. R. Marvin of Brookline; junior grand warden, George W. Storer of Arlington; grand treasurer, Samuel Wells of Boston; recording grand secretary, Sereno Dwight Nickerson of Boston; auditing committee, John Carr of Roxbury, Samuel P. Oliver of Boston, and Dana J. Flanders of Haverhill; directors for two years, Charles C. Dame of Newburyport, Percival L. Everett of Boston, Otis E. Weld of Boston and Francis Childs of Charlestown. The grand officers will be installed the 29th.

A man out west was offered a plate of macaroni, but declined it, declaring that they couldn't play off any b'iled pipestems on him.

SPARKS.

Business calling us to Beverly one evening last week we made a pleasant visit to the new engine house, situated in the rear of Cabot street, near the Town House, and facing the soldier's monument. The house is of brick, two stories in height, with a fancy roof, and in it is quartered the two steamers and the hook and ladder. There are entrances on each side of the building into hallways with flights of stairs leading to the floor above. This floor is divided into the company rooms, sleeping rooms and the Engineer's room. A narrow hallway runs from the stairs on one side to those on the other side, and on the right hand side of this corridor are the company rooms, the first being those of Steamer No. 1. Entering we found ourselves in a small smoking or loafing room, out of which opened by folding doors the large meeting room. This is fitted up in a rich manner and is without doubt one of the handsomest rooms in Essex County. The next suite was occupied by H. & L. No. 1, and is also handsomely fitted up, but the large room is in use all the time as there is a pool table in constant use by the members. Room number three is occupied by Steamer 2 and like the others is handsomely fitted up and furnished. This room contains a handsome piano. On the left of the corridor is two rooms each fitted with bunks for the drivers and engineers of the steamers. At the foot of the bunks the sliding pole leads down to the apparatus room below coming down just in front of the stalls. The entrance to the hay loft and the room of the Board of Engineers is also on this side of the corridor. Going below by the stairs or sliding pole we find ourselves in the apparatus room with the machines all in readiness for an alarm. The steamers stand at the two sides with the H. & L. truck in the centre. Each piece of apparatus stands in iron tracks sunk into the floor, an arrangement which is coming into general use in fire department houses. The stables are arranged at the back of the apparatus, the horses facing in, ready to take their places on each side of the pole. When the horses are harnessed, the swing harness is not in use as yet, the driver goes forward of the apparatus and pulls a catch which opens the stable doors letting the horses into the room. The main doors are fitted with powerful springs which throw them open rapidly. There are large doors at the back of the engine house by which a piece of apparatus can be driven straight through the stable into its position, with a chance to wash all mud and dirt from it before going into the house. A large hose tower capable of hanging several feet of hose rises from the rear of the building. A large brick trough in the cellar is used for washing hose, which can be brought into the cellar in a wagon and dropped at the trough. The building is modern in every particular and is far ahead of anything around this vicinity for a fire station, and when the swing harnesses and the fire alarm telegraph are in operation it will be perfect. One thing is very apparent, and that is that Beverly needs a new horse hook and ladder truck, the one they now have being run by hand and very much out of date. The truck is one of the first things needed at a fire and it is important that it should be run by horse power. Chief Goodhue was present at the station and kindly showed us around together with members of the H. & L., to whom we are indebted for many favors. The firemen of the three companies in the new house have every reason to be proud of their rooms and quarters, and with their present facilities will make pretty short work of the fire fiend.

O. B. Chadwick & Co. settled the loss on pungs, coaches, etc., belonging to John Linehan, stored in the Naumkeag barn, Monday, for $400. The loss on the furniture burned at the fire at Isaac M. Woodbury's, in Topsfield, Sunday afternoon, was adjusted at $450, on a policy for $1000 in the Pennsylvania Company.

Don't forget the skating and dancing party this evening, in the skating rink, under the auspices of the Relief Association. A polo game will be played between members of the Peabody and Beverly fire departments. The two teams are as follows: Peabody's—Capt. A. A. Carleton, goal; rushers, John Leighton and Charles Reed; cover point, F. N. Carleton; half back, A. L. Legro; centre, Harry Southwick; Beverly's, —Capt., Taylor, Larcom, Woodbury, Dodd, Poor and one man from Lower Hose. Game called at 9 o'clock sharp, and to be the greatest number of goals in thirty minutes. Horse cars will run to Beverly, Salem and Wyoma at the close of the dance.

The Chief Engineers of Beverly and Marblehead visited the Central Station Sunday with other firemen from these two towns. The horses were hitched up to show the workings of the swing harness. The visitors also went to South Peabody and examined the new hose wagon.

THE DRAM

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P M.]

A magnificent production of Shakespearean comedy is to be anticipated this week. The Comedy of Errors, with elaborate scenic effects and costumes of most artistic character, is to be brought out at the Boston Theatre. Robson and Crane, these ever-welcome actors, will appear as the two Dromios. Captain Alfred Thompson of well earned fame, designed the costumes and groupings, while Hoyt and Goatcher have given their best efforts to the scenes, among which the reception to the statue of Diana of Ephesus and the villa of Phryne, with its gorgeous accessories of pageant and procession are likely to command special admiration. The Comedy o. Errors, is to be offered under Manager Joseph Brooks' direction for a limited season.

The Magist rate, that great success in farcial comedy, is to be revived at the Museum this week for four performances, with the cast that has gained so much applause. On Thursday and Friday evenings, and at the matinee on Saturday, Love on Crutches, is to form the attraction. There is no need of dwelling on the excellence of the performance of this Daly play at the hands of the Museum company. Saturday night is set apart for the benefit of Miss Annie Clark, when she will enact the title character in Rose Michel.

A new play by Pinero—new that is, to Boston—is to be presented by Mr. John T. Raymond for the closing week of his engagement at the Park Theatre. In Chancery was accounted an artistic success for the comedian during his season last summer in New York. His portrayal of the English drummer, whose loss of memory makes him the puppet of fickle fortune through those acts of amusing complications, is capital in its way. With its study of character, the performance ranks among Mr. Raymond's best achievements. Clement Scott's one act piece, The Cape Mail, will open the programme.

David Belasco's powerful drama, La Belle Russe, is to be presented at the Bijou this week. Thrice produced with success at Wallack's in New York, the play will have the advantage of the services of Miss Sophie Eyre, the favorite actress, in the leading character. Harry Talbot, Miss Hill and a select company that won praise in Philadelphia last week fer their work, are to appear in La Belle Russe, which is to be given for a week under the author's own direction.

The sale of seats for the first ten days of Edwin Booth's engagement at the Museum will commence on Monday of next week, the 21st inst., and will be continued regularly in advance that length of time.

Leah, the Forsaken, new a dramatization, is to be produced early in January by Manager Hill at the New York Union Square, with Mather as the Jewish maiden. The drama is to run probably for a month, closing the artiste's metropolitan season.

The store of John P. Peabody in Salem never looked so attractive as at this Christmas season. Mr. Peabody has had his counters made a trifle wider all around the store, enabling the sales ladies to show their goods to better advantage, and making it easier also for the customers to select their goods. The Christmas goods in the store will be found in different departments and the novelties selected by Mr. Peabody are the choicest to be found in the market. In the front of the store we noticed some elegant cut glass bottles, and upon enquiry found them to be filled with Lanman's choicest perfume. These Mr. Peabody is selling at the price usually charged for the perfume alone, charging nothing for the elegant bottles. They certainly are a very ornate gift to a young lady friend. In silk handkerchiefs and men's mufflers there is an endless variety, and what more appropriate gift can a lady find for a gentleman? Mr. Peabody has over fifty varieties of these goods, and surely no one can fail to be pleased. On the left of the store are to be found some choice work boxes, toilet sets and brass goods—and they are indeed worthy of inspection. In the china ware department Mr. Peabody has some dainty cups and saucers, of French china, elegantly decorated and fit for a king to use. There is a choice and large line of vases, only samples of which can be displayed on the counter, but we noticed that tiers upon tiers of them were packed solidly on the upper shelves all around the store. Yet we anticipate that few of them will be left at Christmas time. There are fans of all kinds and dolls at all prices, French dolls, dolls that walk and do all that a doll can be expected to do. But the stronghold of Mr. Peabody is his silver ware department, which is always attractive but particularly so at this time. We never saw a more carefully arranged show case than is seen in this department. The eye sees almost at a glance the elegant line of goods, and there seems to be nothing that a customer could call for that is not here. Mr. Peabody keeps both solid silver and heavy plate goods—selected from Reed & Barton and all the first class manufacturers, particular attention being given to the choicest and newest designs. There are cake baskets, breakfast casters, a dozen or so different patterns of children's sets, ladles, fruit knives, butter dishes, salts and peppers,—in short the different articles are so numerous that our space would fail us to mention them. This department is not behind on jewelry either. In bracelets, chains, charms, lockets, gents' scarf pins and ladies' watches there is a well selected assortment, and the best of it all is that the prices are such as to astonish most customers who are in the habit of paying much higher prices. The young lady in charge of this department is willing to show the goods and is very cordial to all; so much so that it is a pleasure to be served in this department. This store has long been known as one of the best in Essex County to purchase holiday goods, and we feel sure that the selections of Mr. Peabody this year are not a whit behind those of other years. We advise our readers by all means to look at his stock of goods—and to look is to purchase.

The North American Review for December may be called an historical number, both from its topics and its contributors. It opens with an article by Colonel Fred Grant, entitled Halleck's Injustice to Grant. This article explains how Halleck so misrepresented General Grant after the capture of Fort Donelson that General McClellan authorized his arrest. It is an extraordinary revelation and is told almost exclusively in extracts from dispatches, many of which were suppressed. Senator Boutwell and Gen. Rosecrans contributed two articles—on Johnson's plot and on Grant's mistakes, which are too important to discuss in a paragraph. Mr. Rice, the editor, contributes the closing article on A Disfranchised People, which, he claims, the citizens of Delaware are. Extra editions of the November North American Review are still called for.

The December Harper's Magazine, the Christmas number, proves to be by no means the end of the Harper Christmasing, for Harper's Weekly and Harper's Young People both announce unusually fine Christmas issues, and the January Magazine will also include some Christmas material, particularly an account by Archibald Forbes, the war correspondent, of "Christmas-tide with the Germans before Paris," with illustrations by Sidney P. Hall; and a "plantation echo" of Christmas time, called "Unc' Edinburg's Drowndin," by the author of "Marse Chan," who is making a noteworthy reputation among the newer Southern writers.

We have received from H. H. Carter & Karrack, No. 3 Beacon street, Boston, Sunbeams from the Golden Land, and Christmas Pearls, by Frances Ridley Havergal. These books contain the choicest selections from this favorite authoress.. They are very artistically bound in Antique Covers, on which there is an excellent photograph of Miss Havergal, and a fac-simile of her autograph. These beautiful Souvenirs are put up in a handsome box in which they can be mailed without injury. Price of each 75 cents. If you cannot procure them of your local booksellers, send the money in stamps or postal note, and they will be mailed to you post-paid.

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my cartarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Summers Stepney, Conn.

I thank God that you ever invented such a medicine for Catarrh. I have suffered for five years so I could not lie down for weeks at a time. Since I have been using Ely's Cream Balm I can rest. —Frank P. Burleigh, Farmington, N. H.

Dry sand poured into the filled barrels of apples and potatoes, after storing in the cellar, has been found to be a decided improvement on other plans for keeping them, they remaining till late spring as crisp and apparently as fresh as when first gathered.

The combination, proportion, and process in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla, are peculiar to this medicine, and unknown to others.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla will make the blood pure, rich, warm, and vitalizing. Sold by all druggists.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

The Sunday Globe says: J. Shedd Needham, the fruit grower of West Peabody, has ground over 12,000 bushels of apples for cider this season, and has made 50,000 gallons of cider. He has a stone vault outside his mill in which he has 7500 gallons of vinegar stock made from the refuse apples. He runs the cider by means of hose to his storage and vinegar house, 200 feet, where the barrels are placed in tiers. From here, after fermentation, it is filtered through paper and bottled for use. He uses a hot-air engine for power to grind the fruit, and also to pump the cider from the tanks. The pomace is used as a top dressing for his apple orchards. It kills all the grass, but the trees thrive on it. He manufactures cider for the adjacent farmers.

P. J. Lyons, the artist barber hair dresser and inventor of Lyons' Hair Tonic for removing dandruff, has elevated a new barber's pole in front of his parlors on the square.

Palpitation of the heart, nervousness, tremblings, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made specially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

For throat and lung difficulties, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, when seasonably taken, is a certain specific.

OWING TO a misunderstanding on the part of some of our subscribers with reference to the portrait of Longfellow in his Library, we desire to state again, the terms under which we shall give the engraving.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS by paying for the PRESS in advance, will receive a copy.

OLD SUBSCRIBERS, who are in arrears for their subscribtions, by paying up, and a year in advance besides, will receive a copy.

Subscribers who have been in the habit of paying for the PRESS in advance, can obtain a copy of the engraving by paying $2.50 for the PRESS and Engraving.

As we stated at the outset, the offer is made to increase our subscription list, and the principal object is to induce those who are not subscribers to the PRESS to become so. The engraving is not a cheap affair, but is worth alone more than the price of the PRESS. As, however, some of our old subscribers have expressed a wish for the engraving, we have arranged that they may obtain it on the terms as above.

During the past week we have added a large number of new subscribers. For all these, we are duly thankful. Our offer remains open ONLY UNTIL JAN. 1. 1886, and the engraving cannot be obtained except on the terms specified by us in the above proposition.

West Peabody Church.

Last Friday afternoon the new chapel which has been erected by the people of West Peabody, was formally dedicated in the presence of a goodly number of residents of that vicinity and their friends. The exercises began at 1.30 with a selection by the choir, followed by Invocation by Rev. Harry L. Brickett, and reading of Scriptures by Rev. C. C. Carpenter, formerly the pastor at South Peabody and West Peabody. Prayer was offered by Rev. Edward C. Ewing, the choir and congregation sang a hymn, after which the following historical sketch was read by Arthur W. Felt, and prepared by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Colwell.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

In this Dedicatory Service the people of this community worship, for the first time, in a church edifice of their own. During the past years, wherein stated services have been held, the people have worshipped on the Lord's day, first, in the old hall at Brookdale—which was burned several years ago,—afterwards, and up to the last Lord's day, in the new school house hall. The prayer meetings, during this same period, have been held, mostly, from house to house.

For years it had been the wish of christian people here that they might have a church home, but a wish that seemed destined never to be realized in their day. Several causes, however, have operated to stir up the hearts of the earnest and devoted ones to "rise up and build" this "House of the Lord."

First, The school house hall was too large an auditorium for a congregation averaging in number about sixty, and rarely exceeding a hundred. The bigness of the place, which is capable of seating four hundred persons, could not but exert the usual depressing effect upon the social feelings, those emotions which are no mean auxiliaries to the spirit of earnest worship.

Second, In its exposed position, and with its numerous windows admitting freely the cold air, it was frequently impossible to heat the hall to a comfortable degree, in the winter season.

Thirdly, It was found necessary to hold the social meetings from house to house; but in this parish, which is one of "magnificent distances," the people of one district or section were frequently debarred the privilege of attending the meetings held in another section. It sometimes happened that but few knew when and where the next meeting would be held. However helpful the neighborhood meeting may be as a special agency, the history of the prayer meeting in this community, has been an illustration of the fact that without a central and stated place for the social meeting, the best success cannot be attained.

Fourthly, The hall did not furnish, in its ample but dreary space, an attractive, fitting, and cheerful home for the Sabbath School.

Fifthly, The school house hall was—nothing but a hall! It was an "unconsecrated and inconvenient place." The same desire which leads a worshipping congregation elsewhere to provide themselves with a church home, prompted this church and congregation to take up the work which has had so satisfactory a culmination. The reverential regard which is had for the House of the Lord, and which is ever a help to the spirit of devotion, can never invest the mere hall with a sacred interest. No matter if religious services are held therein, the associations of any hall are not always calculated to awaken, or to strengthen, the religious emotions. "Holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, forever."

Lastly, It was not a matter of certainty as to how long the school house hall could be used for religious services. Heretofore, it had been so used through the courtesy of the school committee; but it was evident that contingencies might arise wherein the committee would deem it expedient to discontinue the privilege. The granting of the privilege from year to year might depend altogether upon the personnel of the committee.

These are the main considerations which impressed upon us the necessity of possessing a church edifice, if we would promote the highest interests of the church in this community. The desire for a church home was especially strengthened, by the organization of the church in September, 1883. Encouragement was then given us by the promises of substantial aid from present and former residents. These promises were especially cheering, given as they were at the very time when some members of the organizing council argued and voted against the expediency of forming a church here. To a few of us, who had long had this project of building in view, the organization of a church was deemed one of the essential steps in the attainment of the desired object; and we were not a little pleased that the judgment of those who knew best the needs of this people prevailed in the council, so that the church was duly formed. Several months after this event the matter of building was talked over in private; and about the middle of the following spring a meeting was called to consider the subject, and to see what was thought best to be done.

The following extracts from the church Records show the inception, and the progress or our work in its early stages:

"April 17, 1884. Agreeably to a notice given from the pulpit last Sabbath, a goodly number met at the house of Dea. Felt, to see whether it was thought expedient to make efforts towards securing a chapel. Considerable discussion showed a very general desire that such efforts be made, but, in order to bring the matter more thoroughly before the people, and see what could be expected from them, a committee, consisting of Dea. Felt and Bro. Cross was appointed, to canvass the place, and report two weeks from to-night, at a meeting to be held in the school house. The same brethren were appointed on a committee with Bro. Joel L. Southwick to see about securing a lot on which to locate said chapel if erected, with instructions to report at the same meeting."

"May 1st. Meeting this evening in school house hall according to adjournment. Committees appointed two weeks ago reported what they had been able to do to further the object. After considerable discussion, it was deemed the part of wisdom to make still further effort to bring about the success of the object aimed at, the building of a chapel. Miss Ruth Mugford was added to the committee to canvass for subscriptions. Adjourned to meet one week from to-night, the weather permitting, at the house of Mr. Mugford."

"May 9. At the adjourned meeting held this evening at the house of Mr. Mugford, encouraging reports of the efforts making to secure funds for a new chapel, were given. It was decided to go on with the efforts so well begun."

The encouragement thus referred to was the satisfactory showing of the subscription list, the sum of over $550 having been pledged up to that date. Shortly after this, Mr. Joseph Henderson, of Salem, a former resident, gave to the church the fine and centrally located lot upon which the chapel stands. It was a Providential gift. The matter of a lot had already begun to be perplexing, both in respect to location and to cost; but this generous donation of a lot of land, one hundred feet wide and two hundred feet deep, met both difficulties, and put us under lasting gratitude to Mr. Henderson. Another matter of special interest to us was the action of the Essex South Conference of Congregational churches at its spring session, held at Wenham about this time. It had been hoped that the neighboring churches would assist this little church in its efforts to secure that which alone it could not, nor was this hope doomed to be disappointed. At this Conference, Rev. James L. Hill, of Lynn, recommended the churches to aid liberally in our enterprise. His earnest words, warmly seconded by Rev. W. G. Sperry, of Manchester, N. H., then a resident of this town, were cordially received by the Conference which voted, "That, a message be sent to Bro. Colwell, inviting him to address a circular letter to the churches of the Conference when the plans are settled upon, describing the work and soliciting contributions."

In accordance with this vote a circular letter was dispatched to every church in the Conference, bearing the date of Oct. 1st, 1884. Thirteen of the thirty-three churches thus addressed have responded as follows:—

Beverly, Dane St. Church,	$38.70

Middleton,		11.30
Peabody, South Church,		140.00
Salem, Tabernacle Church,		35.55
Total gift from churches,		$581.25

The church at Marblehead has recently promised to aid us, its pastor being absent when the circular letter was sent.

All these gifts from churches, together with those from individuals and the Congregational Union grant, enable us to dedicate this chapel without debt. But few pledges remain unredeemed.

At a meeting of the church held at the house of Joel L. Southwick on the evening of July 17, 1884, Bros. Joel L. Southwick, Arthur W. Felt and Daniel A. Sheen were appointed Trustees to hold the deed of the land until such time as a religious society should be incorporated. At this same meeting the pastor, Rev. J. W. Colwell, together with Joel L. Southwick and Arthur W. Felt were chosen as a building committee, and were requested to procure a plan for a chapel, and submit the same to the church for action thereon. At the next regular meeting, Bro. L. A. Cross was added to this committee. The results of this committee's efforts will be given in their Report.

On the evening of October 26, of the present year, the church was incorporated as a religious society, according to the provisions of the Statutes of this Commonwealth, by Amos Merrill, Justice; the corporate name being, "The West Congregational Society in Peabody." The deed of the land held by the former trustees of the church has been duly made over to the society. The last service in the school house hall was held last Sabbath morning.

It only remains for us as a church to express our profound appreciation of all the kind words which have been spoken in our behalf, and which have cheered us on our way; and of all the kind efforts which have helped to put us in possession of this beautiful chapel. With fervent Thanksgiving to our Father in Heaven, who has smiled upon our efforts and given success to our plans, we humbly trust that this chapel may long stand as the centre of christian activity in this community; and it is our ardent prayer that many, as the years shall come and go, may find within these walls Christ Jesus their Saviour and Lord; that here they may be instructed in righteousness, strengthened in Godly living, and cheered on their way to Heaven.

The statement of the building committee was then read, and the building formally handed over to the church and society.

STATEMENT OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

To the members of the West Congregational Church and Society in Peabody, Massachusetts:—

DEAR BRETHREN:—Your committee appointed July 17 and enlarged Aug. 1st, 1884, to procure a plan for a chapel, and to make all necessary contracts and oversee all work whereby your wishes might be carried out, would respectfully submit the following report of their work:

In accordance with the vote of the church, a plan for a chapel was presented for its consideration August 1st, designed by Mr. H. Wesley Williams of South Peabody. This plan contemplated a building twelve feet longer than the present one, and this extra length was to have been utilized as a ladies' parlor, or infant class room, kitchen and vestibule. The entrance was to have been on the south side, and the pulpit platform at the east end of the chapel where the entrance now is. This plan was accepted and the committee were instructed to obtain estimates upon the cost of the same. Three parties submitted estimates of cost, but the subscriptions to the building fund did not warrant the committee in letting out the contract to the lowest bidder. In their perplexity, the committee took the plan with specifications for building and finishing, to Mr. R. McCabe, whose figures respecting the cost of same had proved to be the lowest; and, after suggesting several important changes, put the plan again in his hands, requesting him to figure upon the cost once more, to make whatever alterations he might deem advisable, and to do for us the best that he reasonably could.

The result was essentially a new plan—that upon which the present building was remodeled. Mr. McCabe agreed to build and finish the chapel above the cellar, according to the plan submitted, for the sum of $1100. The church accepted his plan, and as soon as the amount of subscriptions covered the proposed cost, he was awarded the contract. Ground was broken in the latter part of the summer and the work has gone satisfactorily forward to completion.

The dimensions of the building are 40x26 ft., with a porch 8x10 ft., and a pulpit recess 4x12 ft. The side walls are 12 ft. high, and the roof has a pitch of 16 inches to the foot, and is 17 1-2 ft. from eaves to ridge pole. From grade to top of bell-cot, it is 44 ft. The building is strongly framed with sufficiently heavy timber, and rests upon locust posts, except in the rear portion over the cellar, where the underpinning is of brick. These posts were donated by Dea. Felt of this church; and all the bricks for cellar and chimney by Mr. Samuel Trask of the South Church. All the material used in the construction of the building is of good quality. The floor is of maple, and the inside finish of white-wood, cherry stained and polished. The windows are provided with two large lights each, of plain glass. Upon either side of the platform there is a closet. The chapel is capable of seating two hundred people, but for the present, sittings have been provided for only one hundred and fifty.

The general style of the building is Gothic. Its exterior finish is simple and chaste. The front gable and of the main edifice, together with the porch-gable, are covered with fancy shingle work. The boards were covered with sheathing paper before putting on the outside finish. A neatly twined finial adorns the front end of the main building and the porch, and a tasteful bell-cot crowns the whole. The cellar, at the rear portion of the building is 12x26 ft. It contains a No. 60 Magee Furnace, put in by the L. A. May Co., of Lynn. The settees and choir chairs are of maple, cherry stained. The settees are folding, and can be easily put aside when the room is needed. They were furnished, together with the chairs, by the Harwood Manufacturing Co., of Boston. The lamp brackets are of polished brass, and together with the lamps, were furnished by Bushby & Co., of this town. The organ, clock and library case were the property of the society and were brought from the school house hall where they had done good service for years. The communion table was the gift of Mr. Cross of this church. The communion service was the gift of Mr. George A. Flint, a former resident at the time the church was organized. All other furnishings, the platform furniture, carpet, rug and window shades, are from the establishment of Mr. Chas. H. Goulding, of this town. The pulpit, pulpit chair and door mat are the gifts of the Sabbath School. Your committee wish to express here their hearty satisfaction with the work of the contractor, Mr. R. McCabe. At a very moderate expense he has furnished us with a well built, substantial, and attractive chapel. The details of finish were left to his own good taste and judgment, and in his exercise of these gifts, we have not been disappointed.

We desire, also, to put upon record our appreciation of the courtesy and kindness shown us by Mr. H. Wesley Williams, in giving us at the onset of our work so many helpful suggestions, furnishing us with a plan and with specifications, the main features of which have been incorporated into this present building. We wish also to express our thanks to Mr. Trask for his kind gift already mentioned; and two members at least of this committee would make grateful mention of the other two whose gifts of underpinning posts and communion table have been alluded to. We would especially give utterance to our sense of profound gratitude to God who has so smiled upon our efforts, that, when the remaining pledges have been cashed, the whole expense incurred in building and furnishing this chapel will have been fully met. We now give over this chapel into the especial care and keeping of the West Congregational Church and society in Peabody, trusting that it may stand for years, and that it may be to all who shall come up to worship within its courts, "none other but the house of God, and the gate of heaven."

Signed,

Lord he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people and the sheep of his pasture, etc." The preacher said that this was a great occasion—the completion of a house of God which is consecrated today. It has a special interest from being the first one ever dedicated in this vicinity. It is not an old but a new edifice. It stands for enlargement and progress. It is also of particular interest; from the peculiar organization of this church. There is nothing like it in the Congregational fellowship near by. It is not a mission church, nor an outpost, nor one accidentally joined with another church. But it is an organic branch of a church, with its own separate and individual life. If the experiment succeeds it may be followed profitably by other churches. There are 534 Congregational churches in Massachusetts; of these 197 have not over 75 families, and 247, more than one-half of the number, have not over 100. Outside of Massachusetts the proportion of small churches is larger. 200 churches in this state might profitably be united with each other, and not be too large. The minister has more heart than with a small church; and there is more life with the people. There are some difficulties, and such an arrangement has not been in popular favor. The churches desired to have a whole minister or none at all. But 50 families do not need a minister by themselves; if that was so, some churches need five or six ministers. We wanted to change our ideas of the church, and the grievance would disappear. Instead of two struggling churches with a weak minister, they would have a large church, embracing several regions, and the church would rejoice in being strong. It is an experiment which is being made here. Some obstacles may be found, but patience and forbearance is needed.

In neighboring Lynnfield they are trying an experiment on a different plan, which is equally new. There two churches have agreed to engage one pastor for both; and not only to engage one pastor, but engaged to engage the same man; the parishes are to stand as one. Here in South and West Peabody, although the unity is on one pastor, yet they act as two branches. In Lynnfield they are two parishes acting as one; here it is nominally one parish with two separate organizations. There are two experiments going on side by side. Each may have special advantages.

The preacher said there were other reasons for satisfaction with the work here accomplished and in an eloquent manner received the work which the Church of Christ represented on this earth. If doubts or troubles or trials come, here under the instruction of the Word, they would disappear. The preacher trusted that the people would here enjoy the fullness of God. They would be here in gladness and sorrow; and would strengthen each other. Hither would come the children, the strong, the aged, the weak. In all conditions they were the children of God. And when they cease to worship here, the preacher hoped that He would still be to this people the God of peace.

At the close of Rev. Mr. Rice's sermon the formal dedication of the house to God was made by the church and Congregation, all rising, after which the following dedicatory hymn was sung:

O THOU whose own vast temple stands,
  Built over earth and sea,
Accept the walls that human hands
  Have raised to worship thee!

Lord, from thine inmost glory send,
  Within these courts to bide,
The peace that dwelleth without end
  Serenely by thy side!

May erring minds that worship here
  Be taught the better way;
And they who mourn, and they who fear,
  Be strengthened as they pray.

May faith grow firm, and love grow warm,
  And pure devotion, rise,
While round these hallowed walls the storm
  Of earth-born passion dies.

The exercises closed with benediction by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Colwell.

Did you get taken in by the fellow hat sold soap about town last week? His way of doing business was to call t the house and say that he had a fine oap, which to introduce he would sell orty pounds for a dollar, just double he regular amount usually sold for hat sum. He found many purchasers nd they are all growing wiser till the ext peddler comes around. The soap was in sealed boxes and after getting is money he would open them and sk for a carving knife to cut it up with. The soap was poured into the oxes when made and was so green hat it could not be used, and will equire several weeks drying. In the meantime the forty pounds will be radually drying up and the good ousewife will find that she would have een better satisfied to have bought her oap of her storeman.

The lecture of Prof. W. C. Richards t the Institute last Thursday evening, was very instructive and entertaining, eing one of the best in the course. A rge audience was present.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The Wakefield Citizen in speaking of Mr. Jabez F. Wardwell, brother of Henry Wardwell, Esq., of this town, and whose death we recorded last week, says: Mr. Wardwell was born in Ipswich, May 28, 1833, and was the son of Moses and Amy Farley Wardwell. He married in 1862, at Salem, Miss Sarah Ellen Fuller, who survives him. Mr. Wardwell had been a broker during all his business life, and for many years was connected with the reputable firm of Spencer, Vila & Co., of Boston, as a partner. In more recent years he has been confidential clerk for Mr. A. W. Spencer, broker, at 31 State street, Boston. Mr. Wardwell came to this town in 1866, purchasing for his home a handsome residence on the southerly shores of Crystal Lake. During these years he has led a quiet, unostentatious life among this people, gaining attached friends among those who knew him best. He was an honest and honorable gentleman, who had won high respect among his business associates, and was a lover of good books, spending much of his leisure in reading. Mr. Wardwell had no children. He left one brother and one sister—Henry Wardwell, Esq., and Miss Amy Wardwell both of Peabody. Funeral services were held at the residence of Mrs. Wardwell, last Monday, and were conducted by Prof. Charles Leonard of Tufts College.

The President of the Board of Trustees of the Institute, Francis H. Appleton, having been authorized by members of Mr. Peabody's family who reside in Philadelphia, has had certain work done at the Peabody lot in Harmony Grove Cemetery, where the remains of our benefactor lie buried. The result is that the grass has been put in good order, the stone work has been put back from where it was moved by frost, and all the eight tablets, which were spoiled by the action of the sulphur setting, have been replaced by new ones, which are now set in the latest approved manner. The thanks of our community are due to the gentlemen in Philadelphia who have recognized the needs in this case, and have placed that, which naturally reflects upon our community, in such a condition that it must now reflect only to our credit.

The tenth anniversary of the Peabody W. C. T. U. was publicly observed at the Methodist Church last Sunday. Owing to the storm there was not a large attendance. In front of the pulpit desk was a banner with the words "W. C. T. U., For God and Home and Native Land." Miss Mary J. Floyd presided and Rev. Mr. Smith offered prayer. Miss Hattie Saunders, secretary of the society, read the records of the past decade and Mrs. Osborne, the treasurer, supplemented by Mrs. M. O. Stevens, showed the financial condition of the society to be in a flourishing condition. Mrs. Dr. Steele afterwards delivered a very interesting address urging upon her lady hearers the necessity of sustaining and working with the W. C. T. U. The meeting broke up about 8.30 o clock. We hope next week to present the reports in full and they will be of interest to the public.

The teachers at the Centre school realize what a prize they have in the janitor, Mr. Wm. S. Mayhew. Not content with inventing slate erasers for the children, and placing rubber strips under the edge of the cane seat chairs to prevent their breaking off the strands, he has recently perfected a novel arrangement for ventilating the rooms which does away with the necessity of opening the windows and exposing the pupils to colds, etc. It consists of a three inch tin pipe running from the window to the steam radiator in such a way that a current of fresh air is constantly coming in, and is heated by the radiator, as it mixes with the air of the room. The ventilators in the wall being open, the foul air passes off through them. A piece of board is fitted closely at the window to prevent the air from entering the room where it is open and the window can also be used to shut off the air, coming in through the pipe.

Last evening the Brooksbie Club gave a very pleasant entertainment consisting of singing by a quartette, composed of the following well known singers: Mr. Warren Wilson, Mr. A P. Chute, Miss M. H. Poole, Miss E E. Jacobs, Miss Sopha Wheeler and Miss Sarah Smith, finely rendered piano duets. The entertainment was followed by a very interesting illustrated lecture by Rev. Mr. Crawford of Topsfield, upon the Turkish Empire, where he has been a missionary for a number of years. He spoke on the political, scientific, educational and religious relations of the Empire.

The store of F. D. Tarlton, on Main street, must not be forgotten by our readers. He has made preparations for the holiday trade and calls special attention to a line of silk handkerchiefs which cannot be excelled anywhere. In addition to this he has a line of other goods suitable for holidays, and which will be sold at the very lowest prices consistent with a living profit.

The town of Winthrop in a largely attended town meeting, has voted favorably on the granting of a location to the Enos Elevated Electric Railroad Company to extend their tracks to that town. There is no question but what the gentlemen who now control the invention will shortly build the road and successfully operate it.

All our readers who are in need of Christmas delicacies for the table will find at the store of D. B. Gardner & Co., Washington street, Salem, a choice assortment. This firm have also the finest teas put up in five and ten pound boxes, and a large assortment of imported baskets. In the line of trade to which they are devoted, they take the lead in this vicinity, a fact which our readers will do well to note.

PETITION AND ORDER.

To the Honorable the Selectmen of the Town of Peabody:

Respectfully petitions the Salem and Danvers Street Railway Company, that your honorable board may authorize the said company to extend the location of its tracks within the town in the following manner:—

1st, From the present location of its track on Central street, on and through Tremont, Northend and Holly streets, to the track of the Salem and Danvers Street Railway Company, in Salem.

2d. From the present location at the Square on and through Foster street, connecting with the track of the Lynn and Boston Railway Company on Washington street, running over said company's track to a point where Lynnfield street commences, thence on and through Lynnfield street to the boundary line between the said town of Peabody and Lynnfield.

By its President,
B. W. RUSSELL.

At a meeting of the Selectmen of Peabody December 5th, 1885, it was ORDERED, That a hearing be had on the foregoing petition, in the Selectmen's Room, at the Town House, on Thursday, December 24th, 1885, at 2 o'clock P. M., at which time and place all persons and corporations interested in said petition may be heard; and that notice of said hearing be given, by publishing an attested copy of the petition and order in the Peabody Press, fourteen days at least before the time appointed for said hearing.

A true copy of petition and order,

The Household.

EVERY ONE may not know that white wax is excellent for greasing tins upon which small cakes are to be baked. The tin must be warm enough to melt the wax.

AVOCADO PEARS, commonly called "alligator," are delicious for breakfast or lunch. Quarter them, and remove the pulp with a silver knife; spread it on slices of bread, and season with salt and pepper to taste.

RAILROAD CAKE.—One cup sugar, one tablespoonful of butter beaten to a cream, three eggs beaten to a froth, one cup flour, three tablespoonfuls sweet milk, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, half teaspoonful soda, half teaspoonful salt.

A REFRESHING DRINK IN FEVERS.—Put a little sage, two sprigs of balm, and a little sorrel into a stone jar, having first washed and dried them. Peel thin a small lemon, slice it, and put a small piece of the peel in; then pour in three pints of boiling water. Sweeten, and cover it close.

HOW TO WASH BLACK CALICOES.—Put the calicoes in a boiler, with enough cold water to cover them well, and let them come to a boil. Then take out into clean water, and soap and rub any part of the white (if there is any) which still looks soiled, after which rinse, wring as dry as possible, and dry quickly.

MILK SAUCE.—Rub one tablespoonful of butter into a large cup of sugar, add two beaten eggs and work all to a froth. Wet one-half a teaspoonful of cornstarch and stir into the mixture; then stir in five tablespoonfuls of boiling milk, beating well all the time. Set the dish in a pan of boiling water and simmer five minutes. Flavor to taste.

THESE CAKES are recommended by a correspondent: Half a pound of butter, half a pound of sifted sugar, three entire eggs and three yolks, one tablespoonful of orange flower water and half a pound of sifted flour. Rub the butter to a cream with the sugar; and the eggs and the orange flour water, afterward the flour. Bake little cakes of the same on a well-buttered pan.

TRY THIS PUDDING: Two eggs and their weight in butter, sugar and flour. Have the butter soft, and mix it with the sugar. Beat the whites and yolks of the eggs separately, and mix with the butter and sugar; add the grated peel of half a lemon, and then stir in the sifted flour. Pour into a buttered pan, filling it a little more than half full, and bake in a moderate oven.

IRON STAINS.—These may be removed with juice of lemon, or of sorrel leaves; but if these fail, moisten the stain spots with water and rub on a little powdered oxalic acid. Wash the acid off thoroughly soon after it is put on, or it will eat the cloth. Also, wash it from your hands, and keep it away from children, for it is poisonous in the mouth. Ink stains may be taken out in this way. Acids had better be used only on white goods.

MR. P. T. BARNUM's recipe for preparing pigs' feet is admirable: Wrap each foot in a cotton bandage, wound about it two or three times, and cord it with twine. When all the feet are ready plunge them into boiling water, and boil them for four hours. Let them remain in the bandages until they are needed to fry, boil or pickle. The skin will hold together while cooking, and when eaten they will be tender and delicate as possible.

THE FOLLOWING is the simplest and best way of cleaning light kid gloves, except the lavender color, which cannot be thus treated: Put the gloves on the hands, then wet an old and very soft silk handkerchief with milk, and rub on it a piece of white soap. Apply this to the soiled portions till the spots disappear, then wet the entire glove, and pull and stretch it until dry. With proper care the drying will be effected without wrinkles.

FRIED CAULIFLOWER must be served hot; clean and wash the cauliflower well, parboil it in salt in water and cut in small pieces. Make a batter of three tablespoonfuls of flour with two yolks of eggs and cold water or milk enough to make a thin paste, adding half a teaspoonful of olive oil and a little salt, mixing well. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and mix with the rest. Dip the pieces of cauliflower in the batter and fry in hot fat. Take them out of the pan with a skimmer, turn them in a warm colander and sprinkle salt over them, serving hot.

TOO OFTEN the bones of roast beef, poultry or game are thrown away as worthless when they would make an appetizing soup. Break the bones in pieces and put them in the soup kettle with sufficient water salted to taste for the amount of soup required. When the water boils, remove the scum and add for every quart of water two bay leaves, four cloves, four peppercorns and one onion. Let all boil gently for three hours and then strain the soup through a fine sieve and set it on the fire. Mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with one egg and milk enough to make a thick paste, pour it slowly into the soup, stirring constantly until it is cooked, adding a little chopped parsley. The strained bone soup may be also used for preparing any sort of soup.

PROBATE NOTICE.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, SS. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs-at-law, Next of Kin, and all other Persons interested in the Estate of HARDY M. SHILLABER, late of Peabody, in said county, yeoman, deceased,

GREETING:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Eliza B. Shillaber, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her the executrix therein named, and that she may be exempt from giving a surety or sureties on her bond, for the reasons alleged in said petition. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Salem, in said county of Essex, on the third Monday of December, next, at nine o'clock, before noon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Eliza B. Shillaber is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the Peabody Press, printed at Peabody, the last publication to be two days at least before said Court.

Witness, George F. Choate, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters, that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia, as well as from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is, my wife and I began to improve at once, and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. It relieved my kidney troubles as well. We both wish you, the makers of it, Godspeed.

DENTAL NOTICE.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anæsthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anaesthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

For Instant Use

As a reliable remedy, in cases of Croup, Whooping Cough, or sudden Colds, and for the prompt relief and cure of throat and lung diseases, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. E. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy for home use. I have tested its curative power, in my family, many times during the past thirty years, and have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most serious affections of the throat and lungs, whether in children or adults." John H. Stoddard, Petersburg, Va., writes: "I have never found a medicine equal to

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral

for the prompt relief of throat and lung diseases peculiar to children. I consider it an absolute cure for all such affections, and am never without it in the house." Mrs. L. E. Herman, 187 Mercer st., Jersey City, writes: "I have always found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral useful in my family." B. T. Johnson, Mt. Savage, Md., writes: "For the speedy cure of sudden Colds, and for the relief of children afflicted with Croup, I have never found anything equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is the most potent of all the remedies I have ever used." W. H. Stickler, Terre Haute, Ind., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured my wife of a severe lung affection, supposed to be Quick Consumption. We now regard the Pectoral as a household necessity." E. M. Breckenridge, Brainerd, Minn., writes: "I am subject to Bronchitis, and, wherever I go, am always sure to have a bottle of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

with me. It is without a rival for the cure of bronchial affections."

GENERAL FORREST AND THE DUDE.

General N. B. Forrest, the famous Confederate cavalry leader, visited New York shortly after the close of the war. One day, while riding down in a Fifth avenue stage, a dude of the most pronounced type entered and took his seat in the corner opposite the general. While searching his pockets for something the youth withdrew a large envelope from which a number of papers slipped and were scattered on the floor. He picked up those within reach, and turning to Forrest, who looked like "a member from the rural districts," said in the drawling, consequential and supercilious tone peculiar to his class, "I say, can you reach those papers?" The general grasped the situation in a moment, and extending his arm until the cuff and shirt sleeve separated, exhibiting a broad expanse of wrist, replied with well-assumed country patois, "Wall, I jis' kin, stranger, an' that's about all." Then he drew himself up to a sitting posture again and looked innocent, while the occupants of the stage roared, and the embarrassed dude proceeded to help himself, and as quickly as possible leave the unsympathetic company.

An old gentleman, who, to judge from his shaking sides, heartily enjoyed the scene, now changed his seat for one next to the general, and remarked to him, "Stranger, excuse me for the question, but where are you from?" "Arkansaw," was the rejoinder. "Well," said the old man, "I've always heard that an Arkansian is a —— of a fellow, and now I believe it. Shake hands, stranger!" He was doubly delighted a few moments later when, on arriving at the New York Hotel, Forrest introduced himself propria persona, and invited his new-found friend to become his guest at dinner.

STORY OF "AULD ROBIN GRAY."

This exquisite ballad was written by Lady Anne Lindsay, daughter of the fifth Earl of Balcarres. She was born on Nov. 27, 1750, and at the early age of twenty-one produced the ballad which Sir Walter Scott says "is worth all the dialogues which Corydon and Phyllis have had together, from the days of Theocritus downward." In 1793 Lady A. Lindsay married Mr. Andrew Barnard, son of the Bishop of Limerick, with whom she went out to the Cape, on his appointment as colonial secretary under Lord Macartney. Mr. Barnard dying at the Cape, his widow returned to London where she enjoyed the friendship of Burke, Windham and others until her death, which occured in the year 1825. It was not until she was in her seventy-third year that Lady Barnard made known the secret of the authorship of this ballad. An amusing story is told in connection with its production. On Lord Balcarre's estate was a shepherd of the name of Robin Gray and for some act of his Lady Anne resolved to immortalize his memory. Upon her little sister entering her room one day, Lady Anne said: "I have been writing a ballad, my dear, and I am oppressing my heroine with many misfortunes. I have already sent her Jamie to sea, broken her father's arm, made her mother fall sick, and given her auld Robin Gray for a lover, but I wish to load her with a fifth sorrow in the last four lines. Help me to one, I pray." "Steal the cow, sister Anne," said her sister. Accordingly we are told that the cow was "lifted."

TRICKS ON THE TRACKS.

One who is accustomed to railway traveling can scarcely realize how much he is dependent for safety upon the engineer. Added to the responsibility of their station, engineers are also in constant danger of accidents caused by the tricks of jealous rivals.

This rivalry, it is said, sometimes prompts to the doing of utterly mean tricks. One engineer, after his very first trip, was laid off because he had "cut out" all the bearings of his engine. He was reinstated, however, after he proved that some rival had filled his oiling can with emery. Another new engineer was suspended for burning out the flues of his boiler. Through grief at the loss of his position he died, and then a conscience-stricken rival confessed that he had put oil in the tank, so that it foamed and showed water at the top gauge, when in reality there was scarcely a quart of water in the boiler.

TREES OF ICELAND.

Many of you have heard of the one tree in Iceland; a dwarfed thing that the people wrap in clothes each winter to protect it from the severity of frosts. I had often been told and had read of this wonder, and naturally was anxious to see it; but to-day, in Reykjavik, I came upon three as large and handsome mountain ash or roan trees as I remember ever of seeing. Standing about twenty-five feet in height, they spread their branches over a large area, and are to all appearances healthy, flourishing trees, of which the people take no more care than we in our warmer climates do of ours. Here, too, I saw several people preparing to put white awnings over their doors and windows, or building cloth-covered bowers in their very small gardens, in which to spend the long summer evenings when it is not evening, but broad daylight.

A HIT! A HIT!

Friend Jones, he is a prudent man,
And gets of bargains all he can.
"A penny saved is so much earned,"
Is what in early youth he learned;
So, when we have a mark-down, he
Comes to the sale with family.

And here you see the good old man,
With wife and children in the van,
So eager is he not to lose
His chance from out the best to choose,
He in the front rank doth appear,
While wife and babes bring up the rear.

For self he buys our Wescott's calf,
Dongola for his betterhalf;
For boys he buys our "True as Steel,"
And girls our famous goat spring-heel;
While babes shall have the best French kid
That ever little children did.

For Jones, you see, he is too knowing
To buy the worthless trash that's going;
The stuff that tricky dealers palm
Upon their trade without a qualm.
They are not smart enough by half
To catch him with their worthless chaff.

At night, when Jones and wife get home,
Their neighbors and their friends all come
And, gathered round the cheerful fire,
The styles and bargains all admire,
And each one says he will not fail
To buy at Osborne's bargain sale.

REMEMBER!

1st. We buy all our goods direct from the manufacturers in immense quantities to supply our wholesale trade, pay no middlemen's profits, as do the other dealers, and are not obliged to resort to Auction Goods or Convict Labor to enable us to meet and beat all competition.

2d. That with four stores,—two Wholesale and two Retail, we pay rent only on one, three of the four being on our own premises. This is one of the reasons why the other dealers who pay some of the highest rents in the city have no earthly show to comp with us.

3d. That while certain dealers unblushingly claim to have the Largest and Best Selected Stock of Boots and Shoes in the city to select from, we have enough goods, fresh from the manufacturers, landed every week in the year at our wholesale stores to fill any one of their stores with more goods than they ever had in them at any one time, and any man of ordinary intelligence, after examining all the retail stores in Lynn, would not be imposed on a moment by their preposterous claims

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

A horse attached to a fish-wagon belonging to a man named Martin, ran away on Caller street, last Saturday morning, and the load of salt mackerel and frozen smelts was scattered over the street. The animal was stopped on Midway street.

The man who was reported in this column as having been struck in the face by the pole from a Danvers Car while he was on the rear platform of a Naumkeag Car on Thanksgiving day, was named Sanborn and he is employed in a box factory in Beverly. His jaw was broken and he has not since been able to eat solid food of any kind.

Mr. D. S. Richards was driving along Washington street last Thursday afternoon at a lively rate when he collided with a furniture wagon belonging in Lynn. The wheel of the buggy was taken completely off and Mr. Richardson thrown out, but with the exception of a few bruises was not much injured.

Mrs. John Willard of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, moved to this town last June as her husband who had been here about a year, was employed in one of our morocco factories. Previous to coming here, she had $78 stolen from her, it being the property of some church society of which she was treasurer. Some two or three weeks ago she received a letter from Nova Scotia with thirty dollars in it, and saying that the person who took the money now returned so much of it and that the rest would be returned as soon as it could be earned. She was glad to receive her money, even if it still remains a mystery who took it.

From a description given in the papers, the stranger who stole the overcoat and money from a boarder at Mrs. Osborne's boarding house, has been operating in Taunton, where he robbed a drawer of money and departed with a boarder's overcoat.

The young man who did the "hemorrhage act," and was arrested in Waltham, got six months in the house of correction.

A report that a child had been killed by the cars Monday morning, proved on investigation that a girl named Dougherty had been struck by a passing train as she stood between the tracks and knocked down and slightly injured.

Mr. W. H. Madison was fined $3 and costs, by Judge Merrill, Monday. Patrick McGrath for assaulting his wife, $10 and costs. John Regan for assault, paid costs.

A heifer belonging to James P. King that has been running wild in the woods for several weeks was captured near the Upton place, last Wednesday.

Last Saturday, John Rourke, an employe of R. F. Dodge, was lifting a heavy bag of oysters from the cars to a wagon when the horse started and the man was thrown to the ground and badly bruised about the face.

A small boy named Carroll while playing about the square last week, fell and run a piece of stick into his hand, which badly poisoned it and he has since been unable to use it.

The case of David T. Winter vs. The New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad for damages, is expected to be called this week.

A sneak thief stole an overcoat from a dummy in front of Geo. H. Jacobs' store recently.

A wheel gave out on one of J. Arthur Trask's teams loaded with planks on Boston street last Friday.

A young man named Daniel Ward residing in Reading, and a son of Alfred Ward, formerly of this town, had both legs cut off just above the ankle, while in the act of getting off a train at the Reading depot Thursday evening. He died at about 5 o'clock Friday morning. Young Ward had attended the rink in Wakefield during the evening and lost his life while making a reckless attempt to get off the train while in motion. Ward was well known in Reading where he was respected as a young man of enterprise and honesty. He was born in this town in 1868 and his remains brought here for burial last Monday.

The friends of Dr. Henry A. Reynolds of reform club fame, will regret to learn that his little son Henry, four years old, at his home in Reynolds, Dak., accidentally run a needle into one of his eyes a few days ago, destroying the sight.

John McAuliffe was drunk and fined $3 and costs in the Police Court, Tuesday.

Last Monday forenoon, the horse attached to Edson & Co's. delivery team ran away on Caller street, and at the corner of Walnut, topped over the team and broke a shaft and mixed things generally.

Last Saturday an old lady named Mary Joll living on Holten street, tripped over the carpet with a lighted lamp in her hand and was thrown to the floor and somewhat bruised. Fortunately the lamp went out.

Mrs. Matthew Mason while returning from the baker's cart in front of her house on Lowell street, fell and broke one of her fingers and received other injuries. She was unconscious for an hour or more.

In the Superior Judicial Court yesterday, the case of Lizzie G. Carlton libellant, vs. Frank W. Carlton, an uncontested suit for divorce, was dismissed with leave to bring another libel for different cause.

Where Hours go Merrily.

Manager Thomas has decided until further notice to admit ladies accompanied by gentlemen, to the rink on Monday evenings free. This liberal offer will be appreciated.

Essex Assembly K. of L. will hold their first assembly at town hall Jan. 8, 1886.

St Pauls Episcopal church will hold its annual fair this afternoon and evening.

The benefit dance at town hall last Friday night was well attended, and the friends of James Eagan netted him a handsome sum.

At the Skating Rink Saturday afternoon there will be a bon-bon party for children, and each child will be presented with a bon-bon. In the evening Master McLaughlin, the human serpent, will give one of his wonderful exhibitions. His weight is about 150 lbs., yet he is pronounced by physicians practically boneless. The exhibition will take place at nine o'clock.

Last Saturday the Central street polo club defeated the Laners three goals to one at polo.

A fine audience was present at the rink last Saturday. In the afternoon M'lle Fatina raced with three boys, and was defeated by one lap, and Bright Star, the Pawnee Indian gave an exhibition of fancy skating which was much enjoyed. In the evening a very exciting race between "Bright Star" and Finn, of Salem, took place and the latter was successful.

George Peabody Lodge A. O. U. W. celebrated its sixth anniversary last Wednesday night at Masonic hall. The hall was filled by friends of the order, and distinguished guests were present. Grand Master Workman Burt addressed the company, reviewing the excellent work being done by the order. This was followed by singing by the Odd Fellows Quartette, and readings by Miss Legrange of Salem. By special request "Poes Raven" was given and much enjoyed. The whistling soloist was unable to keep his engagement.

The Universalist fair which closed last Thursday evening was one of the most successful ever held by the society. It was liberally patronized by the public, and the different booths and supper on Wednesday night came in for their share. Thnrsday evening the famous Peake sisters from "Bosting" gave an entertainment which mnst be seen to be appreciated, and as it will be repeated you want to take along your "sisters and your cousins (country) and your aunts" to see it. The fair netted some $460.91 and of that amount $70 was made on the paper.

By the overturning of a lamp in the stitching room of C. C. Farwell & Co's. shop at Danvers, last Wednesday, a blaze was started which was quickly quenched by a few buckets of water.

The whistle on George J. Winchester's tannery got loose Sunday night, about 6 o'clock, nearly causing an alarm. Low steam was the cause.

At the meeting of the Board of Engineers, held last Wednesday evening, a number of bills were approved and a committee consisting of Chief Tibbetts and Engineer Southwick were appointed to see about new chairs for Steamer 2. Chief Tibbetts was authorized to sell the old hydrants, recently taken out. Engineer Buxton resigned as a member of the committee to procure a pung for Hose 5, and Tibbetts was appointed to his place. The following men were appointed to fill vacancies: Joseph H. Poor to Steamer 1, in place of John A. Hart, resigned; Noel Denot to Steamer 2, in place of George A. Voorhees, resigned; Herbert I. Foan to Hose 4, in place of John H. Morland, Jr., resigned.

A special meeting of the Directors of the Relief Association will be held Thursday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, at the engine house.

William T. Gunn, who was injured at the Naumkeag fire, is getting along nicely. z

The W. C. T. U. have sent the following to the Governor:

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Peabody, Mass., hereby extend to Governor Robinson an expression of their gratitude, that he so graciously regarded the two young men from their town, who, sixteen years ago, under the influence of intoxicating drink, committed a deed which doomed them to life-long imprisonment, which sentence he has mercifully and kindly interposed to mitigate and terminate, by extending to them the great boon of pardon, on the 26th of November last.

We are the more grateful, since we hold the State and Nation largely responsible for the crime, by permitting the sale of intoxicants to the young men, thus making them victims of unrighteous laws.

We devoutly pray that their future lives may bring no dishonor upon the dear old commonwealth of Massachusetts, or regret to him whose clemency has given them freedom.

MISS MARY J. FLOYD,
President of the W. C. T. U.
MISS HATTIE M. SAUNDERS,
Secretary.
MRS. J. N. SHIPMAN,
Sup't of Prison Works.

Wilcox's grocery store, on the corner of Walnut and Wallis streets, is doing a nice business. Low cash prices do the business every time.

SOUTH PEABODY.

Next Sunday Rev. J. W. Colwell will preach a Christmas sermon to the children at both South and West Peabody.

A young Peoples Christian Endeavor Society has been formed with both the South Peabody and West Peabody Societies. In the former Mr. W. E. Reed was elected President and Miss Lena Shaw Secretary. Meetings will be held Monday evenings. At West Peabody Miss Ruth Mugford was elected President and Miss Louise Danforth Secretary. Their meetings will probably be held Sunday evenings.

Last Sunday a mink found its way into the hennery of A. K. Raddin and killed seven of his hens, each hen being bitten through the back of the neck.

Holiday Attractions in bewildering Assortment.

Novelties from London, Paris, Vienna, China and Japan. Staple Goods from everywhere. Glad to be relieved at this busy time from writing the descriptive features of our Holiday announcement we present herewith what has been seen through reportorial lenses the past few days.

WILLIAM. G. WEBBER & CO.

The Holiday season finds this attractive and immense Essex Street establishment ready for its many friends and patrons. The stock of Goods on exhibition embraces everything rare and beautiful in Bisque, Bronze Goods, leather goods, Fans, Artistic and decorative glass and porcelain, bric-a-brac bronzes, Fancy and Dry Goods not to speak of Holiday Books and Dolls of every description and at all prices.

The steady progress of Messrs. Wm. G. Webber & Co., in the past three months is almost unprecedented in the history of Salem's retail business. The salesroom has been extended by adding first the basement and now the spacious third floor, and the stock added to and improved from season to season until there is no store on Essex street that affords more advantages to shoppers. Whether one is looking for a fancy article or substantial goods for a holiday present, it can be found here and whoever purchases at this store will have the satisfaction of knowing that everything is of this seasons manufacture and importation, bought and sold at the lowest prices ever known. The firm have engaged extra clerks, extra salesmen and saleswomen and extra wagon service for their special Holiday trade.

The Bon Marche of Essex St.

The window displays at Wm. G. Webber & Co's., Essex and Washington Sts., are attracting deserved attention, for the articles on exhibition through the extensive plate glass front, are not only beautiful to look upon, but the arrangement as regard grouping and coloring is artistic in the extreme. The contents of these great windows, however, is but a reflex of the mammoth display inside—sort of introduction to an enormous stock of staple and fancy goods, embracing all the standard lines of European and American manufactures.

The near approach of Christmas is indicated in every department by a gala-like appearance difficult to describe, but pleasant to look at, while holiday shoppers are to be found in every part of the house from the basement to the first, second and third floors, some departments uncomfortably crowded with them.

The genuine Christmas rendezvous is on the third floor where a new department has recently been opened devoted to bric-a-brac. Plush albums, and an elegant assortment of glove and handkerchief boxes, etc. A visit to the Bon marche of Essex St., cannot fail to prove both interesting and profitable to visitors and citizens alike.

Notwithstanding the additional room given them by their new drying loft, Poor & Littlefield are obliged to hire more space for their increasing business, and have taken part of the factory of Dean & Blake, and put in tubs as well as using the drying loft.

It is reported that Frank Barker, superintendent of the Salem Alms House, will resign that position to enter the service of the firm of J. V. & J. Hanson, grain merchants with mills at Danversport, on Jan. 1, in place of Geo. G. Russell, resigned.

The Ipswich Chronicle says of a former resident: Dr. Frank H. Stockwell had the good fortune to secure a fine specimen of a mourning dove, recently. This specie is quite rare hereabouts and will make a valuable addition to the doctor's already fine collection.

A new temperance drink. A storekeeper in town last week had a large pail of clam water which he asked his "best customers" to partake of as they entered. Some accepted and some refused. The only thing to make this perfect, said one of the participants, is to serve it hot.

A fine engraving of the Enos elevated railroad has been hung in the post office. Those of our readers who are familiar with the crude invention that was first put up in the rear of the PRESS office will be surprised to see what rapid strides, toward perfecting the invention, have been made.

The Heald Comedy Company are to appear at Town Hall, Christmas night in "Nan the Good for Nothing" and "Withered Leaves." This company have given excellent satisfaction where ever they have appeared and promise to give a clean and laughable entertainment. *

Quite a number of silver weddings lately. It seems as if a good many people were married twenty-five years ago. One couple thinking it to be excellent "form" instead of spending their money on a wedding reception took a wedding journey, going over the same route they did twenty-five years ago.

The W. C. T. U. assisted by the young ladies of the Congregational, Baptist, and Methodist churches, will visit the Alms House this evening and provide a Christmas tree for the inmates. Mrs. Shipman, the wife of the Baptist pastor, is local superintendent of this branch of the W. C. T. U. work.

A new combination smoking and baggage car, No. 40, about 66 feet long, has been added to the Boston & Maine. This makes four of them, they being Nos. 24, 26, 39 and 40. They are fitted with high back tilting seats of cane, and are very fine. A fifth will soon be put on the road, now in process of construction.

Bert Thrasher, of Ewing, but formerly of this town, has constructed a steam engine with the following improvement: The steam after leaving the cylinder instead of passing off as "exhaust" is, by means of pipe returned to the boiler and used again, thereby saving a great deal of labor in making steam under the new plan of making engines.

Lent begins later in 1886 than in any year between 1858 and 1899. Ash Wednesday, the first of Lent, comes on March 10th, and Easter on April 25th. This will make the gay season much longer than usual. Anno Domino 1886 in the chronology of the Hebrews is the year 5647, which begins September 30th, and the Mohammedan year, 1304, begins on same day.

Pemberton Bros. have purchased a putting out machine of the Farrar & Treft invention.

The 31st Institute of the Essex Agricultural Society will be held at town hall, Georgetown, Tuesday Dec. 29. In the forenoon the subject for discussion will be "The Production and Marketing of Milk" to be opened by James P. King Esq of this town. Subject for the afternoon, "Some Lessons and Suggestions from the farm experiences of 1885," opened by J. H. Gregory Esq., of Marblehead.

Here is a prediction from "Joe," the weather guesser, which will be of interest to the ice men: "This will be a hard winter for ice. There will be lots of it, of course, and lots of cold weather, too, for that matter, but the ice will be lumpy and too thick. Right after Christmas we're going to have one of the coldest snaps you ever saw for about three weeks. After that the cold won't amount to much."

The lecture of Miss Guernsey at the Centre school hall last Wednesday afternoon was not so well attended as might have been desired, about 30 being present. Perhaps there is an excuse, when it is said that most of our lady teachers are just now spending most of their leisure time in making fancy work for Christmas. The lecture was quite instructive and was followed by a discussion of the subject. by other interested people present.

Mr. John G. Whittier writes as follows to the Danvers Mirror in regard to the beautiful picture of Longfellow in his library which we are offering to new subscribers: "In answer to your inquiry in regard to Hollyer's Engraving of "Longfellow in his Study," I would say that, without pretending to be an authority in Art matters, I think the picture accurate and finely executed, recalling the Poet and his pleasant surroundings to all who have seen him in the Library of the Cragie House."

Frank E. Farnham, Esq., has been authorized to collect subscriptions for the special object of putting a lecturer in the field to advance the interest of the Lovering pension bill through the G. A. R. posts as voted by the Massachusetts service pension association at its last meeting. The principal ground to be gone over is New York, which is considered the vital point on which the success of the movement depends and the news from that quarter is very encouraging.

WOMEN'S C. T. UNION.

The tenth anniversary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which was publicly observed by a meeting at the Methodist church, Sunday, Dec. 13th, calls for more than passing notice and the reports read there are of interest, as showing the excellent work done by these Christian ladies of our town. Miss Mary J. Floyd, President of the Union, gracefully presided, and the Secretary, Miss Hattie Saunders, read the following report:

REPORT OF SECRETARY.

It has become my privilege to follow after the faithful toilers of this ten years' gleaning the fruit of their labors, binding into sheaves, and offering it as a thank offering to the Lord.

Oh! that I could paint for you the picture that has been presented to my view as I have gleaned these records; of the joys and sorrows, the patient toiling through summer's heat and winter's cold, and the majestic faith of the women of this organization, whose tenth birthday we are gathered to celebrate.

On the 10th of Dec., 1875, forty-five women met in the vestry of the South Church. After being addressed by Mrs. Mary Ward of Salem, who was then State organizer, the Women's Christian Temperance Union was organized with fourteen members. Miss Mary J. Floyd was elected President, Mrs. M. O. Stevens, Secretary, and Miss Martha Hutchinson, Treasurer.

As we now stand looking over these years we feel to say that God has helped us wonderfully. We have had our Marah where the water was indeed bitter. We have been tossed upon a stormy sea, where it would seem we must be overwhelmed. We have come to a Red Sea, where the mountains have surrounded us on either side—the sea before and the enemy behind. But at Marah the waters have been sweetened. And over the stormy sea has come to our hearts a "peace be still." And never have we come to a Red Sea but God's rod has been stretched forth, and, at the command to go forward, the waves have rolled back, and we have gone through on dry ground.

On Dec. 13th, 1875, Dr. Henry Reynolds came to the town under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., bringing with him the red ribbon pledge, and inspiring motto, "Dare to do right." Then began to flow that tide of temperance with which you are all so familiar. A Reform Club was organized, public meetings held, everybody was interested, and in those first few months nearly 1,000 names were put upon the pledge. As this tide rose higher and higher, sweeping up through our streets into our hearts and homes, it seemed as if the final victory was near, and the Demon,Strong Drink, was to be utterly annihilated, but as it was with the tide that flowed in upon our coast in the recent storm, in some cases it took all that was loose and unstable back with it and it was lost, in other cases it carried pebbles and rocks far above high water mark and there leaving them as a testimony of its power. So it was with this tide of temperance as it receded, it took the unstable back with it and much was lost. This organization, this band of praying women, was carried so far above the ebb and flow that they remain steadfast, unmovable We are sorry so much was lost, but thank God that some have been saved.

The first years of our existence was not one of battle for public opinion but in the temperance cause, and much was accomplished while the tide was running in. But as it ebbed and the town settled into its old indifference, it then began to be a struggle, and those who had taken up this work began to realize how much they had undertaken. And as we stand to-day looking back at these milestones we can estimate what has been the results.

During all these ten years, this band of women have met together every Friday afternoon (with but few exceptions) to pray for the cause of temperance. The largest number at any regular meeting was 267. The smallest, 1; who when no other, came, alone put up her petition to God, and who shall say that this meeting was not recorded in Heaven? Of this we are sure, she had audience with a King.

Public meetings were held semi-monthly in old Town Hall, for several months, at which the pledge was always circulated, and many signed. How many of these kept this pledge we have no means of telling, but some we know have. We thank God for them. A gospel temperance meeting was held each Sunday evening in Reform Club reading room and other places, from Nov. 5th, 1876 to July 18th, 1878. Many public meetings have been held in the churches. Miss Willard has addressed two of these meetings, and many other prominent speakers have spoken from time to time. Eight times have these ladies set apart a special day for fasting and prayer in which they have poured out their hearts before God and found much consolation and help.

Open air meetings have been held of which the records say, "A perfect success," "rousing meetings," etc. As the weather became cool the meetings ere continued in the churches. During the first year a flourishing Band of Promise was organized in charge of a committee from the Union with Miss Sabina Waite as Superintendent. This afterwards passed into other hands, and out from under control of the W. C. T. U. Jan. 7th, 1883, Gospel temperance meetings were again taken up, conducted by Miss Floyd and others, which resulted in the organization of our present Band of Hope, which is a flourishing society of children of over 100 members, with Miss Floyd as Superintendent and Henry M. Melcher, President.

Many petitions have been circulated in town by the Union. The first to the Centennial Commissioners at Philadelphia, asking that no liquor be sold on the Centennial Fair Grounds. Nearly every year we have petitioned the Legislature. The largest was a petition for a Constitutional Amendment; we have petitioned several times for a Prohibitory Law, also Woman's Suffrage. A petition was sent to the State Supt. of Sunday School work, signed by the Superintendents and teachers, asking that a quarterly temperance lesson be introduced into the next seven years course. The last petition, and the one, perhaps, having the most satisfactory results, was for a law for Scientific Temperance Instruction in the Public Schools. A special petition was sent in signed by all the physicians of the town, in behalf of this law. You all know that this law was given us last spring. It now seems to devolve on the Unions to see that the law is enforced.

Every year while a license law was in force in town the W. C. T. U. sent petitions to our Selectmen, asking them not to grant licenses and to close the saloons on voting day. We are so glad that this is now unnecessary; that there is no license or saloon in our town. During the first year the greater part of our work was in connection with the Reform Club, a room being furnished for their use as a reading room by the ladies. On the 22d of February, 1876, a dinner and reception was given to the Reform Club by the ladies of the Union. On Feb. 4th, 1876, in the vestry of this church, the Reform Club presented the Union with an elegant Bible; it was placed in the care of Miss Floyd till a permanent place of meeting was had and is now kept at headquarters. Much was done in visiting the homes of reformed men and relieving the needy, and in this line I feel that much more has been done than is recorded, and only the Recording Angel can estimate the results of this work. Thousands of pages of literature have been distributed, in many ways.

In 1880 an appeal was prepared and sent to every voter imploring him to vote for no-license. Into one Sunday School, the Baptist, the quarterly temperance leaflet has been introduced.

January 7th, 1882, the room we now occupy was obtained to serve as headquarters. Jan. 14th it was dedicated and thrown open to the young men of our town for a reading room with such small patronage as to cause it to be closed. For four elections we have served refreshments to the voters of the town, the Selectmen kindly granting us the kitchen and dining room of the Town Hall for this purpose, for which they have our sincere thanks.

Last March a woman's ballot box was introduced in which the ladies could cast their ballots for, or against license, and thus express their sentiments. 270 did thus express themselves, every one saying No. Three of these were over eighty years of age. Through this last year beginning with January, the Union have conducted services at the Alms House the first Sunday of each alternate month; these have been seasons of blessing to those engaged in them at least. Our thanks are due to Mr. Samuel Trask for conveyance. What shall I say of the faithful workers who have been bearing the burdens of this organization these years. The following officers have served: President, Miss Mary J. Floyd, first four and last two years, Miss Sarah E. Perkins, two years, Mrs. M. O. Stevens two years. Mrs. Mary O. Stevens filled the office of Secretary the first four years. Mrs. M. M. Cutler was her successor and served three years. Mary E. Roberts was chosen and filled the office a little over one year. All have done faithful service, and after the resignation of Mrs. Roberts your present Secretary accepted the office and has tried to be faithful, though conscious of many failures. The Treasurers have been Miss Mattie Hutchinson, Miss L. M. Swett, Mrs. Geo. E. Lewis, and Mrs. E. S. Osborne, the last of whom has efficiently served 7 years.

What can I say concerning these officers? They have come before you, served you faithfully, borne their share of the battle, and they hold precious places in your hearts. As you have worked to-gether in this fight for "God and Home and Native Land," each new experience has bound you closer and closer together; as another has said, each hours service has been a revelation from God. There are many, some of whom have passed from this life, some moved from town, to whom we feel we are greatly indebted. To the Pastors for the free use of their churches in the first years of our organization and their ready co-operation in our work. Revs. Mr. Wait, Hanson, Smith, Simons, Whitney and Wood, gave us much help in our meetings. Mrs. Waite is held in pleasant memory by the Union as is also Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. S. P. Smith and others who have stood in the heat of the battle. Need I say that Dr. and Mrs. Steele are dear to our hearts. Never will it be forgotten how in the dark days of this organization, even when Miss Floyd, that tireless worker, had lost heart and said we had better disband, when Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Cutler and a few others rose above the darkness and said "we will never give up," how our dear Mrs. Steele came to us, even when she thought it impossible to come, came with the remedy that has been applied to discouraged and troubled hearts all down the ages—a message from the Word of God. It was the story of Gideon and his army, you know the tale, but it came that day like a new story. New courage was gained. A day of prayer was called on January 9th, 1883, and all day these women waited before God, and again Mrs. Steele came with that same message. The writer was present at that meeting and listened to the story; it was to her a stirring revelation, and as she listened to the prayers that followed, such earnest prayers, she stood before the bar of her own conscience condemned, and to that bible reading given that afternoon by Mrs Steele she owes her conversion to the temperance cause and her love for the W. C. T. U. That afternoon Dr. Steele and Miss Floyd went forth from that meeting and into the saloons, and there plead and prayed with the men that kept them and those they found there. Who shall say these visits had no results?

To Mr. C. A. Haskell we are deeply indebted for his ready help and great generosity. Our thanks are given to all who have advanced in any way the interests of the W. C. T U. To all who have helped in the entertainments and meetings. To the Editor of the Peabody Press who for four years gave a column in his paper to be filled by the ladies; this was done two years by Miss Floyd, the same by Mrs. Stevens.

There have been six of our members called into the beyond. Mrs. Maria L. Perry was the first called from the organization; Mrs. B. C. Perkins followed her; Mrs. Sarah Donnell in 1880; Mrs. Luther Fernald in 1881; in Feb., 1885, the death of Mrs. Sarah Bancroft was announced to the Union; in March of the same year Mrs. James Buxton died. These hearts were interested in our work and are now silent, but their memories are still with us.

And now as we look back over these years and see at the beginning of the movement 267 and 250 present at the meetings, and now find only the faithful few, some may say, and have said, "what good do you do?" "what does it amount to?" Yet we are stronger to-day with the few than then with the many. We have learned how many sided and deep rooted is this evil, learned that our help is not in man but in God. Then it was thought that the chief work was in reclaiming the victims of this evil, and now we know that while that is important it is not all. The work is one of education and seed sowing. We have not done wonderful things yet we have been sowing seed that has, is now, and will continue to bring forth fruit even unto eternity.

Ten years ago it was authoritatively stated that there were 240 places in this town where intoxicants could be got. Some of these were the so called gilded saloons, which were made tempting and fascinating by all that wealth could devise. Now there is none of this, and we see no such places of temptation open to entice the young men to their death. We feel grateful to any voter who said by his ballot there shall be no liquor legally sold in this town. And we are not unmindful of the great and grand work the Law and Order League have done in enforcing this law, and feel it is God's answer to the prayers that have been going up these ten years. We can, in the words of another say, God has always kept his appointments.

In closing I would thank the officers at headquarters for help and encouragement, and words fail me to express my thanks to the officers and members of our local Union for their kindness and patience with me. You have given better than I deserved. I fully appreciate how poorly this gleaning and binding has been done, but it is not because of neglect but my utter inability to do justice to it. As we look back over the past years and forward into the future, let us thank God and take courage.

The report of the Secretary was followed by the reading of the report of the Treasurer, Mrs. Osborne.

	Total W. C. T. U. receipts,		$1561.15
	Balance in treasury,		30.92
	Expended during ten years		$1530.23

Of these receipts more than one-half have come from the members of the W. C. T. U. in assessments and collections. Of the remainder, $25 was donated by Henry H. Faxon, Esq., of Quincy; $20 was the profit of a lecture by Miss F. E. Willard; $21 was a collection taken in the Universalist Church on an occasion when Rev. Dr. Richard Eddy delivered a temperance address; a number of other collections of smaller amounts, many individual donations, and the large amount raised through Miss Perkins' exertions for the furnishing of our headquarters. This has been expended in rent, coal and gas, the fees paid and sums contributed to the State and National W. C. T. U., temperance literature, printing, postage, and other incidental expenses.

Separate from this there has been received and expended about $800 more. On the occasion of Dr. Reynolds' first visit to Peabody he organized a Reform Club with forty members, in return for which Miss Floyd was able to put in his hands a thank offering of $40. For the furnishing of the Reform Club room there was raised $175. The W. C. T. U. contributed $25, with which a portrait of Dr. Reynolds was presented to the Reform Club. A gold watch and chain costing $121 and a purse of money were raised for Rev. S. P. Smith. An elegant dressing case and a gold pen were presented to Dr. Reynolds Other sums of money were given to Dr. Reynolds and other temperance workers. For the Prohibition flag and its attendant expenses $67 were raised.

From the beginning of the work our treasury has never been emptied. Our towns people have generously supported us, and in this respect we have ever had occasion to be proud of Peabody. At the first we were aided to be very lavish in many ways. Probably no town was more liberal to Dr. Reynolds. Seed has been sown with generous hand we can sincerely affirm. Our membership has fluctuated, being 182 the first year and 70 during the past one. We feel grateful to all who have contributed ever so little to the progress of our work. The scanning of our accounts will show that our money has been carefully and prudently expended.

ELIZABETH S. OSBORNE, Treas.

The visitors to Salem are delighted with the Christmas goods at the store of Almy, Bigelow & Washburn in Salem. The elegant frontage gives room for a beautiful window display, which is not lost sight of by the firm. And the display inside is equally attractive. The clerks are courteous and obliging—most of them well known to the public of this vicinty, and with whom it is a pleasure to trade.

The prices made by this firm in holiday goods are very low. There is a choice stock of Japanese Goods, about one half regular prices, also a great variety of Bric a Brac, imported by A, B. & W., that are sold much less than when it pays two or three profits. The Albums are about one half price. The Book Sale is also a centre of attraction. The stock is all from the famous publishers, Belford, Clark & Co., of Montreal, New York and Chicago, who introduced the policy of publishing and selling popular books at a small profit They are the only house who do business in this popular way and they supply the books for the great New York and other city Dry Goods Stores. A. B. & W. are their representatives in Salem, but will not maintain their book sale after the Holidays, so that all in want of books will do well to supply themselves now.

In all the departments of this mammoth store are goods suitable for the holidays, and their Art departments is of course one of the busiest in the store at this season. Here materials of every description are sold, and designs furnished by a lady competent to give instruction in every department of art work. On the new circular glass counter is a tempting display of ladies' goods. There is shown a large stock of handkerchiefs, hoisery, underwear, gents' furnishings and other things which our space will not allow us to mention. All we can say is visit the store. and you will not be disappointed.

Having used Ely's Cream Balm for about a year, I can say it is just the thing for catarrh. Miss Mattie A. Baker, East Templeton, Mass.

The Star of Bethlehem.

BY W. G. DIX.

The star that rose in Judah's sky,
Of all the starry gems the gem,
Has never set. Now bright on high
It gleams, the Star of Bethlehem.

That star of hope now conquers fear,
Of all the starry gems the gem;
It lightens woes, it brightens tears,
Consoling Star of Bethlehem.

The contrite soul it glows within,
Of all the starry gems the gem;
It blinds the blinding glare of sin,
Bright, holy Star of Bethlehem.

Its Heavenly glory fills the night,
Of all the starry gems the gem;
From death to life, from dark to light,
Bright, guiding Star of Bethlehem.

O'er slumbering souls its radiance breaks,
Of all the starry gems the gem;
To life for God the soul it wakes,
Bright, morning Star of Bethlehem.

That star, while God's great ages go,
Of all the starry gems the gem,
Outshines the Sun's meridian glow,
Bright, noon-day Star of Bethlehem.

No star but that can light and cheer,
Of all the starry gems the gem,
When shades of death are dark and near,
Bright, evening Star of Bethlehem.

No star but one shone through the gloom,
Of all the starry gems the gem,
Which shrouded Calvary and the tomb,
Bright, guardian Star of Bethlehem.

That star, when dies yon dazzling sun,
Of all the starry gems the gem,
Shall glow, while blissful ages run,
Eternal Star of Bethlehem.

The windows of Wm. G. Webber & Co.'s establishment are embellished with wonderfully attractive holiday designs, which were made within their own stores, but which we will not attempt to describe, yet we will say that it is worth a walk of many miles to see them. The papers give glowing accounts of the Christmas embellishment of store windows in some of the larger cities, but the people of Salem and vicinity need not visit Boston or New York, when they can find such a display right here at home. And not one whit behind the window display is the attractive line of goods inside. The third story is a veritable bazar; and everybody goes away pleased and happy. To describe the goods which Miss Nowland has in her Art department would be impossible. They must be seen to be appreciated. Suitable gifts for the holiday season are to be found in all parts of the store.

The Salem, Peabody, Beverly, Danvers and Marblehead Directory for 1886 will be issued early in the coming year. The canvass is already well advanced, and the Peabody department will be full and complete, being under the direction of Mr. Sterling, who is well known to the residents of the town. He reports good success in patronage for the work already. It will be published by Sampson, Murdock & Co., from whose office the Salem Directory has been issued for years. The book will contain about 1000 pages, and will be sold at $1.00. A Directory for Peabody alone will also be published for those who do not wish the large work.

All cases of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, &c., will find relief by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents.

"Get out your brand new cutter, and get your girl's consent, hitch up the dobbin or some other critter, and let the animal went."

That distressing disease, the piles, is speedily relieved and cured by Ayer's Pills.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,

Editors and Publishers.

WE HEAR that attempts are again being made by the Bell Telephone Co. to secure the control of the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs. This was done last year. A stronger feeling exists to-day in favor of a bill restricting the rates to be charged by the companies, and the Bell Co. feel, therefore, all the more need of a Committee who will smother, if possible, any such bill. The prospective president of the Senate, we regret to say, is a friend of this monopoly, and it is more than likely that the telephone lobbyists will succeed in obtaining control of the Committee. But it is certain that a more determined effort will be put forth this year, against the monopoly, and in this connection we are pleased that Hon. Chas. S. Lilley, of Lowell, who was the attorney, last year, of the opposition to the Telephone Co., is this year a member of the Legislature. That he can be counted on to favor a bill restricting the telephone rates goes without saying, and there will be others of his mind there also. There is no reason why a large number of the people should not enjoy the advantages of the telephone. They would do so when the privilege is brought within their means. But they cannot afford to contribute to the enormous earnings of the Bell Telephone Co. and they ought not to. And Legislative action is the only relief for the difficulty. Loss of telephones, loss of patronage, does not disturb the Company. Even with the reduced income, the earnings of the Telephone Co. are large. The Legislature will be asked to pass such a bill as was reported last year, and this year we think they will not fail.

The fish commissioners of the state, E. H. Brackett of Winchester, F. W. Putnam of Cambridge and E. H. Lathrop of Springfield, have given notice to the public that 250,000 young trout, 150,000 land-locked salmon and carp for all applicants will be delivered free at the state hatching house, Winchester. All applications for trout and salmon should be made before April 1, and for carp, which can be sent in cans by express before September 1. This gives an excellent opportunity for owners of ponds and trout-brooks to re-stock them with good fish at little cost.

During the past week we have noticed a number of Peabody ladies at the store of W. C. Robinson, 42 Market street, Lynn. And the reason is obvious. They have one of the most elegant stores for fancy goods, art materials, paintings, engravings and bric a brac in Essex county. No one can fail to be pleased with their assortment of goods, which is full and complete and at prices within the reach of all.

With the first of next month the PRESS will enter upon its twenty-seventh year as a disseminator of local news. Help us make that year a pleasant one for all by sending in the local happenings in your neighborhood.

The Robinson engraving company of Boston has issued some exquisite calendars for 1886, samples of which have been received by us. If any of our business men would like to issue a calender, we should be pleased to show samples.

Christmas at the Churches.

Next Sunday, being the nearest to Christmas, will be observed in most of the Churches by special services and special music, the programme of some of which, both here and in Salem, we are enabled to present.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

We learn from the New Haven Register that Rev. Dr. William M. Barbour, Chittenden professor of divinity and pastor of Yale college, sustained a very painful and serious accident last Friday evening. Shortly after nine o'clock he left his residence at 231 York street, and walked up towards Chapel in search of two of his children who had not as yet returned home and over whom he was worried. The sidewalk had been made slippery and dangerous by the slight snow fall of the morning, and when the eminent divine had reached a point about midway between Liberty and Center streets he slipped and fell, breaking the ankle bone of the left leg about in the middle. He lay on the ground calling for help and groaning in intense agony before he attracted the attention of three gentlemen who happened along ten minutes after the accident happened. Then they picked him up and carried him to his home. Fred. M. Barbour, his son, upon learning of the serious nature of his father's injuries, summoned Dr. Francis Bacon, who set the fracture. Dr. Barbour spent an almost sleepless night and suffered much pain. To-day he was very restless during the morning, but at noontime was sleeping pleasantly. His recovery is considered only a matter of time.

A horse was found wandering on Fulton street Monday, and a man living near took it in charge, and as he was taking the animal to the police another party named Millard, of Salem, claimed the animal, and said that he had started a man named Cody in the junk business, and besides furnishing the team, had given the mam $5 for making change. He was probably on a drunk.

An employee of King Upton's glue works was struck in the head recently by a belt which broke while he was at work at the machine to which it was attached. He was knocked senseless.

Mr. Joseph McCarthy stopped a run away team on Foster street last Wednesday evening. The wagon was loaded with barrels. It was put up at Simonds' stable and afterwards claimed by a Danvers man. The horse had run from Lynn.

As a lady was coming out of the rink last Wednesday night, she was struck in the back by a missle thrown by some one in the crowd and severely injured. The police were notified.

Edward Marr, William Murphy, John Short and John Murray were before the Salem police court to-day for assault upon James Lewis. The assault took place near the corner of Aborn and Boston streets last Saturday night.

A woman named Donovan had an epileptic fit on Central street, near Tremont, last Friday. She was cared for by a companion and soon came out of it.

There is an effort being made in some places to petition the legislature to enact a law in regard to the sale to minors of tobacco and cigarettes. New Hampshire and New Jersey have such laws and it is having a good effect on the physical and moral growth of the young men. If a member of our school committee would investigate the extent to which tobacco is used by the pupils in the public schools the figures would be a surprise to many parents.

Willie Jones was playing with a sled on Walnut street, near the shop of T. J. Relihan, last Monday, when he was knocked down by a rapidly driven horse attached to a sleigh, but miraculously escaped serious injury, although considerably frightened. The owner of the sleigh ascertained the extent of the boy's injuries before pursuing his journey.

While a boy named Ryan was playing polo on Endicott street, Friday, he slipped on a piece of ice and disjointed his leg at the knee.

Quite a fracas occured on Mill street Sunday afternoon, and one man was badly pounded.

On one of the late cars from Salem, the other evening, were two young girls so drunk that they attracted the attention of all the other passengers by their attempt to appear sober. It was a sad sight.

Mr. C. A. Mason, living on Fayette street, Lynn, was driving along Washington street last Monday, when the forward wheels of his wagon slid out allowing the box to fall to the ground. Mr. Mason fell heavily to the ground, and it is feared sustained the fracture of a rib. The horse did not run away.

If you receive a circular from New York stating that "an organ will be sent you to introduce to your neighborhood, but you must send four dollars to pay frieght," don't you do it. It is a new swindle, and is only a ten cent mouth organ.

Mr. David T. Winter has retained the services of E. T. Burley, Esq., of Lawrence, and Geo. B. Ives, of Salem, in his case against the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad. H. P. Moulton, Esq., for the road.

Daniel Falvey of Peabody, is in jail awaiting trial charged with attempting to commit rape in Salem, Nov. 6th.

Some malicious person last Monday night, sawed off the handle of the pump at the house of Lawrence Cuddire on Tremont street.

When any person feels that in these columns they have been misrepresented they are open for a reply.

It is expected the case of the Dunney girl against J. B. Thomas for $3000 damages will be called at the present term of the court. This is a case where a girl stepped on a piece of ice where Mr. Thomas' men had been hoisting it into his ice chest at the slaughter house last spring. Eugene T. McCarthy, Esq., for the girl and H. P. Moulton, Esq., for Mr. Thomas.

Word was received Monday that Mr. H. N. McCully of this town had met with a severe accident at his orange grove at Orange Park, Florida, on the 15th of this month. He was building a trellis for tomato plants and was using a hatchet when it slipped and entered one foot just below the ankle, cutting a severe gash. Mr. McCully hobbled to his nearest neighbor, and as he was not at home it was an hour before his boot could be removed, and he had lost a large quantity of blood. He has not been able to use his foot since.

Last Monday night as the treasurer of one of our secret societies was leaving the lodge room he rolled up a five and a one dollar bill together and put them in his pocket, and when he reached home they were missing. John's wife should make him a Christmas present of a pocket book and insist on his using it.

Mr. George Batchelder of Lynn came over to visit Mr. W. H. Fellows of this town, last Thursday, and was taken suddenly ill with heart trouble and has since been very sick, the attending physician calling twice a day. It will probably be a month before he can be removed to his home. He is a member of Bay State Lodge I. O. O. F., and will receive the fraternal care of Holten Lodge of this town.

Mr. D. B. Barker, one of Danvers' well known shoe manufacturers, committed suicide last evening by shooting himself through the back of the head and died instantly. Dr. Whiting was called but could do nothing for the man.

Last Monday afternoon a horse belonging to Albert Marr, and attached to a sleigh, started from Caller street and was caught near the square without damage to the sleigh.

Patrick Walsh, who lives on North-end street, fell on the ice on Tremont street last Sunday and broke two ribs.

SPARKS.

The hose pungs have been loaded for use during the sleighing.

At a meeting of Hose 1, held last Wednesday evening, Allen B. Osborne was elected an honorary member of the company and will run as substitute for William T. Gunn during the time he is laid up.

The Board of Directors of the Relief Association held a special meeting last Thursday evening, and drew orders for the benefit of William T. Gunn, the injured fireman. At the request of the members of the committee on rink entertainments four members were added from the companies outside the brick house as follows: Hose 2, Geo. O. Pierce, Hose 3, Chas. H. Hooper, Hose 4, Charles J. Halpin, Hose 5, Walter Curtis. Probably another party will be held at the rink some time in February. The last one netted about $50.

A. Lummus is making repairs in the engine house stables.

Men from Rhode Island are at work at Proctor's putting up the automatic fire extinguisher.

O. B. Chadwick & Co., the enterprising insurance agents in Allen's block, have issued some handsome calendars for 1886 and have sent a liberal supply to the Central Station. Z.

The sixth lecture in the free course last Thursday evening by W. I. Marshall was very interesting. The subject was "Utah." The speaker confined his remarks mostly to the Mormon question, giving a history of its founders and its condition at the present time. He showed from their own works that polygamy was not essentially a part of the Mormon church, at that many did not believe or practice it. He thought that if existing laws are enforced it will be only a few years before polygamy is swept from the country, as already the leaders of the church are hiding from the law The lecturer presented a number of fine views of the country and the buildings in Salt Lake City.

Jupiter is morning star. On the 25th at 5 o'clock in the morning, he is in quadrature with the sun, being 90° west of him. His southern declination will prevent his being seen under the best aspect.

We have been asked perhaps a hundred times during the past year, why the Peabody Library committee do not publish the list of new books as in former years.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

The enterprising Amesbury News has arranged to bulletin the weather reports twice a day. They are shown in the morning two hours before the arrival of the Boston morning papers and four hours before the arrival of the evening papers. The News is a credit to the pushing little town in which it is published.

The Cape Ann Breeze was so elate over the election of Mayor Parsons of Gloucester that it displayed a rooster large enough to fill a barn yard. But then it was an ordinary looking bird that seemed a little overgrown.

The Wakefield Citizen & Banner has recently passed its tenth anniversary and is a good readable paper, far ahead of the average country weekly.

The Marblehead Messenger stands on a chair this week and tells the people of that town that they do not appreciate the Messenger as they ought. It says: "The Messenger is the first and only paper, it is fair to say, that ever earned a right to live in Marblehead, and it has done a great deal of conscientious honest work for the upbuilding of this community." The people in Marblehead are making a mistake, as the Messenger is one of the cleanest and ablest papers in Essex County. Give them a boom for the credit of old Marblehead.

Rev. L. L. Wood, formerly of this town but now of Helena, Montana, is publishing a monthly religious paper called the "Helena Baptist" and in connection with it is a job printing office. The paper, we are pleased to learn, is meeting with great success and has recently been enlarged to double its former size. It has a number of subscribers among his friends in this town.

A new edition of Child Lore with sixty-four new pages and exquisite new cover is now ready.

D. Lothrop and Co's Annuals for Young People scarcely need an introduction. They are brought out this year with covers that are works of Art, being perfect reproductions of exquisite water color paintings preserving their original pebbled appearance.

Wide Awake T. is handsomer than its predecessors, its frontispiece alone worth the price of the volume.

Our Little Men and Women for 1885 is more bright and winsome than ever.

The Pansy for 1885 is a storehouse of good things, including serials by Pansy and Margaret Sidney.

Chautauqua Young Folks for 1885. is, at once, instructive, practical and fascinating.

Babyland always dainty and refined is more beautiful this year than ever,

These Annuals contain the choicest and most costly illustrations.

Choice New Books for Young Folks Libraries are Wonder Stories of Science, Boy Life in the United States Navy, In No-Man's Land, A Wonder Story for Children, by Elbridge S. Brooks, Boys' Heroes, by E. E. Hale, Great Composers, by Hezekiah Butterworth.

Among the Choice Books for Girls are the Yensie Walton Books. Marie Oliver's and Julia A. Eastman's Books, Margaret Sidney's What the Seven Did and Pansy's Christie's Christmas.

The boys are delighted with the Rocky Fork Library, Plucky Boys' Library, Our Club Library and the Peace Island Series.

Boys and girls as well as the older folks never tire of Beautifully illustrated Histories of Miss Yonge. Other Series are The Child Life Series, 25 vols., Fern Glen Series, 26 vols., and The Young Folks', 30 vols.

Four volumes of the New Series Winter Evening Tales, now ready, are the best books in every particular for 75 cts. we have yet seen.

Books of unusual merit have been added to the V. I. F. Series. The To-Day Library, The Reading Union Library, Lothrop's Historical Library, Spare Minute Series, and the Pansy Books, all of which should be specially noticed.

For fuller information send for Dr. Lothrop and Company's Catalogue It contains a list of a Thousand Choice Books for Home and Town Libraries and of the most desirable Holiday Books.

Dr. Lothrop & Co. also publish five illustrated magazines for the family adapted to different ages. All booksellers receive subscriptions for them.

The single rail iron fence in the rear of the town house is utilized by the "kids" as a horizontal bar and all kinds of athletic sports are engaged in daily.

Mr. Warren Bushby is building an addition to his residence at No. 7 Tudor street, Lynn, and making other improvements about the place.

Secure your tickets in advance for Heald Comedy Co.'s entertainment at Town Hall, Christmas night. The tickets are on sale at Spaulding's drug store.

The piece of real estate belonging to David Lynch and advertised for taxes was purchased in behalf of the town and state by Collector Preston, last Saturday.

Remember that tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a hearing on the proposed extension of the Salem & Danvers horse railroad through several streets in this town.

Mr. Charles Elligott has taken a partner in his grocery business in Hartnett's Block on Foster street, a Mr. Gould of Topsfield, and they have put on a delivery wagon.

We learn that Mr. Henry Hill is comfortably located at San Francisco, Cal., and is working in an insurance office. He writes his friends that the weather is warm and climate delightful.

Mr. Edward Sherry, and old and respected resident, died of pneumonia at his residence on Harris street, last Saturday, at the age 47 years and 6 months. Four sons survive him.

The shipments of leather from Peabody and Salem for the week ending Dec. 19 were 6142 rolls, 755 sides, 119 bundles, 34 barrels, 78 bales, 19 bags of leather, and 17 bundles of skins.

George Seamans, formerly of the Monte Cristo Co., will support Miss Nellie Dixon in Charles Wyndham's comedy drama, "Withered Leaves," at Town Hall, Christmas night. *

Miss Nellie Dixon, who takes the part of "Nan the Good for Nothing" at Town Hall, Christmas night is a soubrette of good ability and has received very flattering newspaper notices where she has appeared. *

Nearly every mail brings a lot of coupons of tickets sold to other Posts for the fair of Union Post 50 G. A. R. Let our own people take hold and give them a helping hand. The object is a worthy one as it is to swell the charity funds of the post.

At a meeting of the School Committee yesterday afternoon, it was voted to extend the Christmas vacation until Monday, January 4th. It was also decided to put time dials in each of the primary schools, to assist the younger scholars in learning to read time.

There was a very large attendance at the Peabody Institute lecture last evening to hear Will Carleton on the "Golden Horse." The lecture included many selections from the poems of the author, which were exceedingly interesting, and well appreciated by the audience. The next lecture comes Dec. 31st, and is to be given by Harry W. French.

George Peabody Lodge, No. 18, A. O. U. W., held their regular meeting Monday evening, and elected officers as follows: M. W., George H. Low; Foreman, A. F. Rowell; Recorder, W. L. Strout; Financier, Royal Wilson; Receiver, John L. Pettey; Guide, Z. W. Reed; Inside Watch, H. G. Upton; Outside Watch, Daniel A. Goodrich; Trustee for three years, Dr. Charles G. Weston.

At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the citizens of Winthrop last night, it was voted by a very large majority to accord to the Enos Elevated Railway Co. a route over the town, and a committee was appointed to act in concert with the Selectmen in securing a charter in the coming Legislature. $41,000 was subscribed by the citizens to stock of the road, and the town is undoubtedly to have the inauguration of the new system of transit, which capitalists and experts say is the system which is to solve the great problem which has so long and to such a degree disturbed great centres of population, especially the city of Boston. The enterprise has reached such a point now, that it is almost certain that our townsman John A. Enos will take rank among the great inventors of this inventive age, by reason of the revolution which his invention will create in public travel.

Where Hours Go Merrily.

The fair of the Episcopal society at the Baptist vestry last Wednesday evening was well attended, and like all such occasions was enjoyed by the large number present. Mr. G. N. Winslow the reader favored the audience with several pleasing selections, and a turkey supper was served. The usual fancy articles were offered for sale. The society netted about $200.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carleton on Endicott street, passed the 30th anniversary of their marriage last Wednesday and the occasion was recognized by many of their friends.

Last Thursday, being the 51st birthday of Mr. William Blaney, he entertained a party of his male friends at the "Copelands" at Cliftondale where a fine dinner was served. Mr. Blaney was presented with a gold watch and chain.

The butchers and bakers played polo at the rink last Thursday evening, which was very exciting—to the players and resulted in the butchers being defeated by 14 goals to 4. They are now looking for more worlds to conquer.

The manager of the Peabody roller skating rink has arranged a very attractive programme for Christmas day by the engagement of the black face artists Gus Johnson and Stephena Jones in their unexcelled burlesque of "Fun in a Skating Rink." If you want to enjoy a good laugh and settle your Christmas dinner go to the rink. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Wednesday evening, Dec. 30, at the rink, the intrepid and marvelous wonder of the amusement world, Archie Daly, the India rubber man, will appear in his great contortion acts. This artist has a reputation for performing some very wonderful feats. On the same evening the great Daly champion will introduce his high kicking act which so delighted the patrons of Adam Forepaugh's circus last summer, and to which Daly was attached. Remember you have an opportunity to skate as well as see the attraction, at the usual low prices of admission.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 2, "Bright Star," the Pawnee Indian boy, will race five miles for a purse of $25, with John Finn of Salem, by whom he was defeated in the race two weeks ago.

The "Afflicted Family," as brought out at the Unitarian Chapel last Thursday night, was well received and will probably be repeated shortly by request of many who were unable to attend.

Mr. Wm. H. Hildreth, formerly of this town, assisted the Grand Army Post of Rutland, Vt., in producing the war drama entitled the "Battle of Gettysburg," which ran during last week at the opera house in that city.

The Edgewood Club of the Baptist Church are arranging for a musical and literary entertainment at the Baptist vestry for next Wednesday evening to which an admission will be charged.

At the rink last Saturday night Edward McLaughlin, the young contortionist, gave a fine exhibition of his powers in that direction, and received liberal applause.

LABOR INTERESTS.

The federation of labor unions of the United States and Canada, at its session in Washington, D. C., considered the resolution giving the legislative committee of the federation authority to manage all strikes and lock-outs in co-operation with local organizations, to levy assessments upon the different organizations not to exceed two cents a week per member, estimating the benefit to be paid members on a strike at $3.00 per week. It was finally decided to extend the time for voting on this measure to March 4 next, to allow all organizations an opportunity to express their sentiments in regard to it, and it will be considered by local unions.

The employes at Wiley & Poor's currier's shop on Foster street, to the number of twenty or more, were ordered out by the K. of L. agent last Thursday forenoon. Capt. Wiley when asked about the matter this morning said it was his intention to act only justly by all. We trust the matter will soon be satisfactorily settled.

Several men were discharged at Proctor's shop last week. We learn that important changes will be made about the factory between now and spring.

The Georgetown Advocate in speaking of the strike at Chas. Harrington & Co.'s says: A boycott on Mr. Harrington's leather would affect the heavy work interest of this town as a large quantity is used.

A conference of the morocco manufacturers committee and the arbitration committee of D. A., No. 33, K. of L., was held at Baldwin's Hotel, Thursday afternoon, lasting from 4 until 8 P. M.

The Naumkeag Street Railroad have increased the pay of their men to $2 a day, and will pay for extra trips and allow the men one Sunday off during the month.

In every instance the price-list agreed upon by the morocco men and the K. of L. does not increase the pay of the employe. A young man in one of our factories was receiving $25 a week, and the new list cuts him down to $15.

THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

SWEARS

SIX THOUSAND, SIX HUNDRED AND NINETY-SIX (6696) represents the exact number of cases of Rubber Goods received by us so far for this season's trade in our Wholesale and Retail Departments, as sworn to by the Freight Agent of the Boston and Maine R. R. Co., over whose line our goods are delivered. And this immense quantity—more than all the retail boot and shoe stores in Lynn, combined, could use in five years' time—is but a fraction of what we shall need to meet the demands of our Wholesale and Retail trade this present season.

Sworn Statement of the Boston & Maine R. R. Co.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, ESSEX, ss.

I, F. A. Barnard, Boston & Maine R. R. Co.'s Freight Agent, on oath do depose and say that I have delivered over this road six thousand six hundred and ninety-six cases of rubber goods to Wellman Osborne on this season's trade.

F. A. BARNARD, Freight Agent B. & M. R. R. Co.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this fourteenth day of December, A. D. 1885.

THOMAS B. KNIGHT, Justice of the Peace.

IS IT POSSIBLE

That the other dealers, obliged to buy from the jobbers and pay the jobbers' profits, and weighed down by high rents, can compete with the only dealer in Lynn who buys everything direct from the manufacturers, has but one rent to pay—three of his four stores being on his own premises—and who is the only Lynn dealer using rubbers in quantities large enough to enable him to deal directly with the rubber companies and avail himself of the large discounts they offer to jobbers?

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE!

Remember that where others make bare assertions, unsupported by any testimony or anything worthy to be called the shadow of a fact, we give the sworn statement of the Boston & Maine R. R. Co., and can produce, if necessary, all of our way bills to silence the doubts of the most incredulous.

WE CHALLENGE

Any other Lynn dealer, be he retailer or self-styled wholesaler, on forfeit of $1000, to produce absolute proof that he has at present received one-fifth as many rubber goods as we have, the proceeds to be given to the LYNN CITY HOSPITAL. Here is a glorious opportunity to benefit the most deserving institution in the city. We make the offer in good faith, and give the talkers a chance to show the courage of their conviction by accepting the challenge, or

FOREVER AFTER HOLD THEIR PEACE.

REMEMBER

That in the past we have had undisputed possession of the field, and when we say that no other dealer can offer the inducements we do, we do not speak idle words, but are backed up by a record in the past unequalled by any, and a stock in the present inexhaustible in quantity and variety, and of the best makes in the country. We are splendidly equipped to beat our record of former triumphs

When the First Snow Flies,

No matter what price others offer, we, as a matter of course,

ALWAYS BEAT THEM.

WE ARE SELLING

Best Makes.	Our Prices.	Others' Prices
Men's Dull Finish Boots,	$2.25	$2.85
Men's Pure Gum Boots,	2.75	3 50
Boys' Dull Finish Boots,	1.75	2.25
Men's Buckle Arctics,	1.20	1.60
Women's Buckle Arctics,	.85	1.15
Men's S. A. Alaskas, Fleece Lined,	.85	1.10
Men's S. A. Alaskas, Wool Lined,	.75	.95
Women's Croquet Alaskas, Fleeced Lined,	.65	.75
Men's Imitation Sandals,	.45	.60
Women's Imitation Sandals,	.30	.40
Misses' Imitation Sandals,	.25	.35

The above prices are absolutely as low as the other dealers can buy the same for from the jobbers and we are giving the people the benefit of wholesale prices.

Now for those who wish for cheaper rubbers and serviceable ones, we have in jobs and drives of perfect and slightly blemished goods, the following:

CRUSHERS OF HIGH PRICES!

Men's Prime Rubber Boots, perfect,	$1.65	Men's Imitation Sandals, perfect,	33c
Boys' Prime Rubber Boots, "	1.45	Women's Imitation Sandals, "	21c
Youths' Prime Rubber Boots, "	1.10	Men's Buckle Arctics, "	85c
Misses' Prime Rubber Boots, "	.85

It must be borne in mind that these slightly imperfect rubbers are not to be confounded with the Tar rubbers with which the market is flooded, and which are made expressly as cheap rubbers out of old rubber ground up, and barely held together with a liberal mixture of cold tar. These rubbers are made by the best companies in the country, out of good stock, and for service, but in the process of manufacture have been subject to some slight blemish which does not affect their wear in the least. They are as much better than the afore-mentioned Tar rubbers as a fine beaver overcoat, with a slight imperfection hardly noticeable, is better than a shoddy coat made up of ground-up material.

NOJEW RACKETS HERE.

When we advertise prices, we abide by them, and do not have to say to every customer, "Out of your size, "Have some next week," etc. We do not do business that way. We have just what we advertise, and in abundance, and customers do not leave our stores dissatisfied, nor feel obliged to buy a higher priced article if they do not wish it.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE, late Com. of Patents.

BOSTON, Oct. 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: you procured for me, in 1870, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, re-issues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

USE

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

It is a medicinal preparation, and, at the same time, an elegant and cleanly toilet article. Its action upon the scalp is healthful. It nourishes the glands which support the hair, and causes thin, dry hair to become thick, soft, and vigorous. It restores the color of youth to locks which have become faded with age or disease; and relieves and cures itching, caused by humors of the scalp. Dr. George Gray, Nashua, N. H., writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the wonderful effects produced by Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, as observed by me in very many cases. IT WILL CERTAINLY RESTORE THE HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It cleanses the head of dandruff, and leaves the hair soft, glossy, and beautiful." F. T. Sandhein, 1010 Spruce st., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "After unavailingly trying a number of preparations to prevent my hair from falling out, and, realizing that I was fast becoming bald, I tried, as a last resort, Hall's Hair Renewer. I have used only four bottles of the Renewer, and am perfectly satisfied that it is the best preparation in the market for checking the falling out of hair, invigorating the hair roots, and promoting a new growth."

THE DRAMA,

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P. M]

Success that is well deserved, has been the fortune of "The Comedy of Errors," so magnificently produced at the Boston Theatre. Every scene and every grouping is a study; and it is a pleasure to see such a succession of beautiful stage pictures. Both Robson and Crane gain many plaudits for their droll work as the two Dromios; and, in general, the performance commands commendation. Only a few more opportunities remain for the enjoyment of the Shakesperian production.

For the first time in two seasons, "Little Emily" is announced for production at the Boston Museum. No more appropriate attraction, certainly, could be offered for holiday time. The cast of the play will present many of the best liked members of Mr. Field's company. Mr. Charles Barron benefits Saturday night, in "Wild Oats" and "A Regular Fix."

With his successful romantic drama, "Nordeck", the popular Frank Mayo makes his bow at the Park this week. Fine scenery and mechanical effects will be employed in the presentation. Mr. Mayo will, of course, assume the role of Waldemar, while Miss Kathyrn Kidder is to be the Wanda, and Miss Emma Wilmot the Princess Zuliski. "Nordeck" is to be given during the present holiday week only.

Once more musical comedy at the Bijou. Mr. A. S. Phillips, a comedian, who has many friends and admirers, is to offer his own piece, "U and I," supported by the Hub Comedy Company. Miss Jennie Dunn, with Mr. Arthur Dunn, are to appear, with Mr. William Cameron as the "Dude." Dan Williams as the "Policeman," Maude Dixon as the "Actress" and Allie and Venie Phillips in the statue scenes that are a feature of the programme. The star is to contribute imitations in generous supply, and there will be no lack of music in the entertainment.

The long-awaited engagement of Edwin Booth, opens a week hence at the Boston Museum. He is to make his re-entrance in the famous drama, "Brutus; or the Fall of Tarquin." which will have on Monday night of next week, its first production in several years. "Brutus" is to be acted throughout the week, nightly and on Saturday afternoon. "Hamlet" is announced for the first half of Mr. Booth's second week. The sale of seats—always ten days in advance—is open at the box office.

Sol Smith, Russell will appear at the Park Jan. 18, in his new play, "Felix McKussick." He will be followed, Jan. 25, by Effie Ellsler in her new play, which has achieved great success in New York. "For A Woman"; Feb. 1, by Miss Kate Claxton.

The dramatic critic of the Boston Home Journal is "spleeny" regarding Margaret Mather. It goes out of the way to vent its spite. Last week it indulged in a bit of sarcasm, regarding a souvenir portrait of Miss Mather, which was as unjust as it was uncalled for. This week it has the following:

In spite of the great effort made by J. M. Hill, Margaret Mather has not become a New York favorite. In five weeks Miss Mather takes to the road, though Mr. Hill did desire to fill the entire season at the Union Square with his star.

Curiously enough, however, in the same column we find this, which is of itself the best reply to the above. It must have got in by mistake.

The run of Margaret Mather in "Romeo and Juliet" at the Union Square Theatre, New York, is the longest run of that play on record.

Any newspaper man who knows J. M. Hill, ought to know that he would not run Romeo and Juliet to losing business. And a run of 75 nights in one theatre is a sufficient guarantee that Miss Mather "is a favorite in New York." People might go to see the scenery and appointments the first week, but that won't last 75 nights, The Boston Home Journal has a right to its opinion, in its evident dislike of Miss Mather, only in this case, with the verdict of the New York public against it, its opinion is not worth anything.

AN ARCHITECT'S OPINION.—Mr. Edward Sidel was the chief assistant to the architect for the Exposition Buildings at New Orleans. He writes that he used St. Jacobs Oil with the best effects in a severe case of rheumatism, and recommends it to all similarly afflicted as the quickest and most certain remedy.

"One day and then another goes
And those who are alive
Will shortly look upon the close
Of 1885"

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command or his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists. (E)

BOSTON WEEKLY JOURNAL,

A new volume, January 1, 1886.

One dollar per annum, including postage. A weekly newspaper of thirty-six long columns, filled with news and information and adapted to the wants of New England readers. For fifty years The Weekly Journal has been the popular New England weekly. It has won its way by its inherent merits, never having adopted other inducements to subscribers than those which it presents weekly in its well-filled columns. The features of the past will be continued.

The Boston Journal is a Republican newspaper but it gives the news of all the political phases o the times and sees that its readers are kept well posted upon

PETITION AND ORDER.

To the Honorable the Selectmen of the Town of Peabody:

Respectfully petitions the Salem and Danvers Street Railway Company, that your honorable board may authorize the said company to extend the location of its tracks within the town in the following manner.—

1st, From the present location of its track on Central street, on and through Tremont. Northend and Holly streets, to the track of the Salem and Danvers Street Railway Company, in Salem.

2d, From the present location at the Square on and through Foster street, connecting with the track of the Lynn and Boston Railway Company on Washington street, running over said company's track to a point where Lynnfield street commences, thence on and through Lynnfield street to the boundary line between the said town of Peabody and Lynnfield.

By its President,
B. W. RUSSELL.

At a meeting of the Selectmen of Peabody December 5th. 1885, it was ORDERED, That a hearing be had on the foregoing petition, in the Selectmen's Room, at the Town House, on Thursday, December 24th, 1885, at 2 o'clock P. M., at which time and place all persons and corporations interested in said petition may be heard; and that notice of said hearing be given, by publishing an attested copy of the petition and order in the Peabody Press, fourteen days at least before the time appointed for said hearing.

A true copy of petition and order,
Attest:
N. H POOR, Town Clerk.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anæsthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anæsthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

Be Warned

in time. Kidney diseases may be prevented by purifying, renewing, and invigorating the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When, through debility, the action of the kidneys is perverted, these organs rob the blood of its needed constituent, albumen, which is passed off in the urine, while worn out matter, which they should carry off from the blood, is allowed to remain. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the kidneys are restored to proper action, and Albuminuria, or

Bright's Disease

is prevented. Ayer's Sarsaparilla also prevents inflammation of the kidneys, and other disorders of these organs. Mrs. Jas. W. Weld, Forest Hill st., Jamaica Plain, Mass., writes: "I have had a complication of diseases, but my greatest trouble has been with my kidneys. Four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla made me feel like a new person; as well and strong as ever." W. M. McDonald, 46 Summer st., Boston, Mass., had been troubled for years with Kidney Complaint. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, he not only the disease from assuming a fatal form, but was restored to perfect health. John McLellan, cor. Bridge and Third sts., Lowell, Mass., writes: "For several years I suffered from Dyspepsia and Kidney Complaint, the latter being so severe at times that I could scarcely attend to my work. My appetite was poor, and I was much emaciated; but by using my appetite and digestion improved, and my health has been perfectly restored."

Prevented

Book Notices.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for January, 1886, has articles and illustrations by hosts of persons eminent in literature and art, and covers a wide range of subjects. It is essentially the Popular one of our monthlies, suiting the tastes of the many. Christian Reid, the favorite American novelist, contributes a story, A Match-making Scheme; Brander Matthews, the standard dramatic authority, writes of the Kembles; Etta W. Pierce, too well known to need praise, begins a very attractive serial entitled Daughters of Cain, laying the scenes in cultured Boston and the cattle ranges of the West. W. E. McCann, Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton and I. V. Crawford supply stories and sketches. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslies, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York City, at 25 cents a number, or $3.00 a year, postpaid,

"ELIA" AND CHARLES LAMB.—A unique genius, that of Charles Lamb. Just like nothing that ever appeared before them, or has since appeared, are the quaint and delightful "Essays of Elia," a new edition of which has recently been issued by Alden, The Literary Revolution, published of New York. Turn to any of your cyclopedias and they will tell you that Charles Lamb was one of the most charming essayist that the English language has ever known, and also that his Essays of Elia are the choicest of his works. They are not merely the first work of their class, but, like Pilgrim's Progress and Robinson Crusoe, they constitute a class by themselves. The volume is certainly one of the most delightful of the books described in Mr. Alden's 148 page illustrated catalogue, which he offers to send for 4 cents, or the 16 page catalogue which is sent free. Address, John B. Alden, Publisher, New York City.

The January number of the Magazine of American History will contain three notable articles in the Civil War Series of which The Operations Before Fort Donelson, by the distinguished military critic, General "Baldy" Smith, will furnish abundant food for fresh thought. General Smith is a conscientious historian, and he gives a clear and more truthful view of that much misunderstood affair than was ever before presented to the public by any writer in any publication.

We have received the January issue of Ballou's Magazine, with its many new improvements. It appears in new type and a new form for the new year, making it one of the handsomest publications in the country, especially for the price. It opens with a charming serial story, by Miss Camilla William, entitled, The Gilberts; or a Double Mistake, intensely interesting, but not sensational. Also, a choice variety of complete stories by the best authors which are entertaining, instructive and amusing. As the best way to test its merits, send 15 cents to the publisher, and receive the January issue as sample; then you can remit $1.35 for the balance of the year, if you wish to continue. Subscription price $1.50 per year, post paid. For sale by newsdealers, price, 15 cents. Address G. W. Studley, Publisher, 23 Hawley street, Boston, Mass.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for January, beginning the Nineteenth Volume, is a brilliant holiday number, abounding in text and pictures appropriate to the season. It opens with an instructive essay on Christmas Carols. Dr. Talmage's sermon is on Christmas in America, and there are several Christmas and New Year's stories and poems, all finely illustrated. Perhaps the article that will attract most attention is Prehistoric America, by the Rev. Geo. T. Rider, with twenty-two illustrations. The regular serials, Love's Harvest, and Dilettante Days, go on, and the Editorial Departments are full and complete. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York city, at 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, post paid.

Messrs. Curtis, Davis & Co., makers of the Welcome Soap, have issued a panel picture showing two beautiful young ladies, and appropriate surrounding scenery. Beautiful in this case means a beautiful physical development—strikingly in contrast with the dudish and vulgar style adopted by some of our manufacturers. In this Welcome Soap picture is represented honesty, purity, intelligence, refinement, and those characteristics which are pronounced by the pure and virtuous as beautiful. These pictures are being adorned with costumes representing different seasons, occupations, and customs of dress and nationality, which with the variety of colors and materials of dress, make a most excellent picture, entirely different from anything we have ever seen, and Messrs. Curtis, Davis & Co. can, in this case, consistently claim to be the inventors of this new and novel mode of picture finishing, that stands out more prominent than any oil painting possibly can. The copyright for these has been applied for. Any lady can secure the Plain Picture, and dress it to suit her own taste by mailing 25 Welcome Soap wrappers to Curtis, Davis & Co., Boston, Mass.—New England Grocer.

CALL AT THIS OFFICE FOR FINE JOB PRINTING. Specimens given

MUSICAL NOTES.

We announced last week, but too late for insertion in this column, that a song recital would be given in the Peabody Institute early in January, by Fanny Kellogg, Mary How and D. M. Babcock, with Leon Keach as pianist. To our musical readers it is needless to say that this is no ordinary event. It will be a treat, which has not been enjoyed in this vicinity, to hear Mr. Babcock in a concert programme. He sung several times last year for the Salem Oratorio Society, but we do not recall that, even in Salem, he has ever been heard in concert. Miss How is the contralto of Edward Everett Hale's church, in Boston, where the music is directed by B. J. Lang, and she, too, although appearing in Salem last year in Oratorio, has not been heard in concert here. Fanny Kellogg has been heard here, but not recently. She was the soprano soloist at the last Oratorio concert in Salem. Altogether, it is a trio of musicians who can not be engaged except at large expense. It is hoped that the musical people and all who love a good concert, will encourage the management by sufficient patronage to make it a success. The tickets, including reserved seats will be fifty cents, and the sale will be duly announced.

Last Thursday evening the opening entertainment was given in the Salem Cadet Band Course, in Mechanic Hall, Salem. The sale of tickets for the course has been good—so that, although the weather outside was anything but favorable, there was a goodly number of people present. The concert was by the Boston Comic Opera Co. in a programme of an hour's length of miscellaneous character, and the opera of the Barber of Bath, occupying a little less than an hour's time. The company consists of Miss Anna S. Crain, soprano, Mr. Walter Bell, tenor, Mr. Chas. C. Roby, baritone, and Geo. L. Cheeney, comedian. With the exception of Mr. Cheeney the artists mentioned appeared in the concert programme, with the addition of selections by an orchestra of five pieces, with a piano, in which was included Mr. Chas. E. Lindall, cornetist, who was last year one of the Boston Ideal Lyceum Co., and a violinist, each of whom gave solos. The best thing in the concert programme was a song by Mr. Roby, "The skipper of St. Ives," which is really a finished performance. The opera which followed introduced Mr. Geo. L. Cheeney in the comic role of an apothecary, who on arriving at the house of his lady love, whom he had never seen, for marriage, finds a barber who had been sent by him to dress the hair of his lady installed in the affections of his expected bride, and mistaken for the anticipated groom. Beyond the droll situations into which such a state of affairs leads, there is little of interest in it. The music is in no sense "catchy" and we think most of the audience were glad when it was done. A word of commendation, is, however, due the musical director and his orchestra. The performance showed direction and care in rehearsal. That it was not particularly pleasing was not altogether the fault of the performers. The introduction of a Miss Huse, elocutionist, who recited in costume "Snifkins on Roller Skates," between the concert programme and the Opera, was in no sense an addition to the entertainment.

The appearance of the stage of Mechanic Hall, last Thursday evening, at the Cadet Concert, was a disgrace to the hall management. The scene which was set for the concert was one of the old ones that has done duty for ages, and from the door in the centre, on either side, towards the bottom, were streaks which had every appearance of being tobacco juice, in full sight of the audience. We should think the owners of the hall would have more respect for themselves than to compel a Salem audience to submit to such things.

Prof. C. R. Bill, teacher of music in our public schools, has been elected chairman of the board of directors of the association of N. E. public school music teachers. Prof. Hagar, of Salem, is president of the association.

The Alabama Students, colored musical jubilee singers, gave a concert in the Town Hall, last Sunday evening. The company is not the same as last year, and the jubilee business was hardly done with the spirit which is shown by some of the organizations. Yet the audience appeared to be very well pleased, and in many of their selections they were recalled again and again. A small audience was present.

The programmes of Christmas music in the churches in this vicinity will be found, this week, in another column. All our choirs have made preparations for special observances.

Miss Emma Rice, of this town, sung last Tuesday evening in the Edwards' church in Northampton, at a concert. The following in reference to it we find in the Hampshire County Journal: "Miss Rice, the contralto soloist, sung with expression, and with her clear, full voice, can be assured of a successful musical career. She was warmly encored at the close of each solo."

The closing concert in Mr. Edward K. Hood's course in Lynn, was given last Thursday night. The press speak in high terms of it, and Mr. Hood himself, who read several selections, was enthusiastically received. It is evident that Hood is popular with his Lynn patrons, and deservedly so. He is popular elsewhere as well. His courses in Lynn are now an established success.

The music at Forefathers' day celebration, last Monday night, in Salem, was given by Misses Dalton and Howard and Mr. Macgregor, of the Unitarian choir of this town, and Mr. Martin, basso, who used to sing in the South church choir.

No rehearsal of the Salem Oratorio Society to-morrow night, Christmas eve. The next one will be Dec. 31.

Grace church in Salem, will have no special Christmas music, or Christmas service, this year.

A concert company has been formed consisting of Miss Mary C. Barrelle and Miss Lillian B. Clark, both of Lynn, Mr. Isaac Littlefield of Taunton, and H. Grahame Wheeler, of this town, reader. The company is called the Crittendon Concert Co. and is prepared to make engagements.

Steadily going on its way to a third month of prosperity, "The Mikado" continues to attract largely from Boston's lovers of opera at the Hollis street Theatre in Boston. Mr. John Howson's friends should bear in mind the fact that on account of a long-standing engagement to appear with the American opera company, his amusing performance of Ko Ko can be seen only for a limited number of representations. On account of a matinee Christmas afternoon, there will be none this week on Wednesday as usual.

At a testimonial given in Cambridge last week, Mr. Lewis A. Fisher, the well known baritone of Salem, sung with merited commendation. Mme Selika, the colored prima donna, also appeared.

Mrs. Flora E. Barry is soon to replace Miss Rosa Cooke as Katiska at the Hollis Street Theatre, and Miss Cooke will take a much needed rest.

We are to have no German opera this season, as the management was unable to secure the Boston Theatre for the holiday season, the only time that they could come.

J. Thomas Baldwin has been engaged to go abroad and secure a band of thirty pieces, to give concerts in the New England Institute building, as a summer garden, for the Metropolitan railroad. Mr. Baldwin was very desirous to engage Boston musicians, but the Metropolitan railroad insisted upon foreign musicians.

Barry Bullard, tenor, made a decided hit at the opening of the course of entertainments given by the Salem Band in Mechanics' Hall.—Boston Sunday Globe.

May be so. But no one by that name was on the programme as appearing in the concert mentioned.

The promise for complete success of the Mapleson opera, opening at the Boston a fortnight hence, is excellent. Minnie Hauk, Alma Fobstrom, Lablache, Giannini, Ravelli, Del Puente, Cherubini, De Anna, and other favorites are to be heard to advantage. "Carmen" is to be the first attraction with Hauk in her famous role. Then will come "Fra Diavolo." "Manon" (first time here), "Maritana" (first time in Italian), and "La Traviata." The charming Cavalazzi is to lead the ballet. Tickets for the performances will range from $2 for the best seats to 50 cents for the gallery—popular prices assuredly.

The Christmas number of the Keynote comes to us replete with good things. The seasonable full page illustrations include "Cupid's Christmas Concert," "Christmas in the Forest," "Christmas Dream," "Winter in Florida," and a handsome double page, entitled "Christmas in the Monastery." Among the numerous articles and poems, many of which are illustrated, we find "Little Daisy," by Florence Marryat; "My Robin's Ghost," by Jessie Millward; "A Christmas Concert," by Frederic Archer; "A Christmas Carol," by Albert Ellery Berg; "A Concert Experience," by Isidora Martinez; "The Organ Builder's Ghost," by G. A. Audsley; "The Story of a Prima Donna," by Louis C. Elson, and "At a Concert," by Henry Clay Lukens. Southern tourists will be interested in an illustrated descriptive department of winter resorts.

SOUTH PEABODY.

The So. Peabody patrons of the Lynn & Boston road would like to know if the company propose to freeze its passengers this winter by running only one car with a stove in it. What is the matter with putting stoves into the new cars that run on this end of the route?

Mr. Edward Taylor has built an addition to his barn on County street.

Rev. J. W. Colwell delivered a very excellent sermon to the children last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Fred Wiggin was elected superintendent of the sabbath school last Sunday, with Clarence Goodrich as assistant.

Mr. Clarence Goodrich has put a provision team on the road.

Mr. Wm. Trask on Lynn street is very sick with gastric fever.

Christmas trees will be held at the church vestry to-morrow evening, when the usual exercises of a Christmas gathering will be given.

The mumps are very prevalent in this part of the town, several of the children being out of school with them.

The Holiday season finds this attractive and immense Essex Street establishment ready for its many friends and patrons. The stock of Goods on exhibition embraces everything rare and beautiful in Bisque, Bronze Goods, leather goods, Fans, Artistic and decorative glass and porcelain, bric-a-brac bronzes, Fancy and Dry Goods not to speak of Holiday Books and Dolls of every description and at all prices.

The steady progress of Messrs. Wm. G. Webber & Co., in the past three months is almost unprecedented in the history of Salem's retail business. The salesroom has been extended by adding first the basement and now the spacious third floor, and the stock added to and improved from season to season until there is no store on Essex street that affords more advantages to shoppers. Whether one is looking for a fancy article or substantial goods for a holiday present, it can be found here and whoever purchases at this store will have the satisfaction of knowing that everything is of this seasons manufacture and importation, bought and sold at the lowest prices ever known. The firm have engaged extra clerks, extra salesmen and saleswomen and extra wagon service for their special Holiday trade.

The Bon Marche of Essex St.

The window displays at Wm. G. Webber & Co's., Essex and Washington Sts., are attracting deserved attention, for the articles on exhibition through the extensive plate glass front, are not only beautiful to look upon, but the arrangement as regard grouping and coloring is artistic in the extreme. The contents of these great windows, however, is but a reflex of the mammoth display inside—sort of introduction to an enormous stock of staple and fancy goods, embracing all the standard lines of European and American manufactures.

The near approach of Christmas is indicated in every department by a gala-like appearance difficult to describe, but pleasant to look at, while holiday shoppers are to be found in every part of the house from the basement to the first, second and third floors, some departments uncomfortably crowded with them.

The genuine Christmas rendezvous is on the third floor where a new department has recently been opened devoted to bric-a-brac. Plush albums, and an elegant assortment of glove and handkerchief boxes, etc. A visit to the Bon marche of Essex St., cannot fail to prove both interesting and profitable to visitors and citizens alike.

Mr. Eben P. Trask is the juror from this town in the Goodwin murder trial now being tried in Salem. The prisoner is defended by Gen. B. F. Butler and Col. Sweeney of Lawrence, and the defence is insanity.

Thomas E. Proctor pays taxes in Boston on $207,000, real estate, and $300,000 in personal estate, amounting to $6491.60. H. Poor & Sons on $149,000, real estate, and $65,000 personal estate, amounting to $2739.20.

The W. C. T. U. extend hearty thanks to all who aided in the labor and expense of the Christmas Tree and entertainment at the Alms House last week. It was a great success and gave much pleasure.

A Main street store keeper had quite a wrangle with an elderly lady recently, because he gave her a silver dollar in making change. She wanted all bills and thought she had been insulted by the store keeper.

A marriage occurs every few days in our vicinity, and these happy couples can be made doubly so by securing their outfit at D. B. H. Powers & Co's at Marblehead, where every hundred dollars will go farther than in Boston.

This is a good time of the year to remember the poor, so let charity abound. Scatter the crumbs of happiness, and when the day of reckoning comes, the deeds of kindness will be placed to the credit side of those who remember such.

It makes a difference with those who know about the color of the sealing wax one uses. Wedding invitations are sealed with white, letters of condolence with drab or violet, dinner cards with chocolate, and mourning notes of course with black. Red for ordinary business.

Holten Lodge I. O. O. F. elected officers last evening as follows: N. G., George B. Miller, V. G., John B. Saunders; Rec. Sec'y., Eben I. Kimball; Per. Sec'y., George H. Manning; Treas., George F. Sanger. The elected and appointed officers will be installed next Tuesday evening.

Howley & Brennan will have a new advertisement next week, and will offer astonishingly low prices on custom work.

A well known business man of this town had occasion to stop at a certain public house in Salem on Christmas day and walking in quite unexpectedly found a lot of sporting men having a cock fight. This is a famous house where many of our people have enjoyed a fish dinner.

We have received callendars from a large number of our friends and return thanks to O. B. Chadwick & Co., our local insurance agents, Wild & Stevens of Boston, the leading roller manufacturers in this country, Bufford & Son of Boston, the lithographers, and Whitton & Knight, the well known ticket printers of Boston.

Mr. W. M. Ward received premiums as follows on his fowls recently exhibited at Stoneham: First premium each on Light Brahma fowls, chicks and breeding pen; special premium each on best pair Light Brahmas, best light Brahma cock, cockerell, hen, pullet, breeding pen, and heaviest fowl in the show—ten prizes in all. There were eighty-one Light Brahmas.

Maurice Shea, who a short time ago figured in the police court as the assailant of Thomas Shea with a piece of iron pipe, died at his home on Hancock street, last Thursday morning, at the age of about 40 years. His death was caused by a severe cold contracted by falling into a lime pit at the Osborne tannery about a fortnight ago. He leaves a widow and eight children.

The Ober Car Ventilator Company have a neatly furnished room in the Chandler Building on Devonshire St., Boston and Mr. Charles E. Teague is giving his personal attention to furnishing information and selling the stock of the company, and is there every day. The model of the invention that has been on exhibition at his store in this town will be removed to the office in Boston.

We are indebted to Mr. Daniel Woodbury and several of the firemen at the Central station, for their prompt action in investigating what appeared to be a fire in the PRESS office last night. They discovered a black smoke pouring from the building and checked it without giving an alarm. It came from the boiler, the fireman having closed his dampers too tight and in banking his fire a little waste ink was mixed with the coal.

The annual meeting of the Washington Lodge Equitable Aid Union was held Wednesday evening, and the following officers for the ensuing year chosen: Pres., Richard E. Smith; Vice Pres., Dr. H. K. Foster; Acct. George B. Miller; Treasurer, George E. Lewis; Aux., John M. Bradford; Chaplain, George White; Secretary, F. D. Hoag; Warden, N. M. Quint; Watchman, John Ruth; Sent., George Pierce; Conductor, Daniel F. Buxton; Med. Ex., Dr. H. K. Foster.

The following notice has been served on some of our store keepers.

OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE BOARD.
K. OF L., D. A. 77.

On and after January 1, 1886, all clothing, hats and caps, boots and shoes and gents furnishing goods stores in Salem, Peabody, Beverly and Marblehead shall close their places of business three evenings in each week at 6 p. m., viz., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and at 9 p. m. on Monday and Friday evenings. On Saturday evenings and all evenings preceding holidays, and the entire week preceding Christmas, the hour or time of closing is to be regulated by the management of the stores; also the closing of the stores on all legal holidays.

Per order of Executive Board.
LOUIS C. T. SCHLIEBER, Secretary,

Our Selectmen have it is hoped found a way which will materially improve the acoustic properties of the new town hall or opera house. Wires have been stretched from right to left above the top of the opening of the stage. They are about 2 1-2 feet apart. Several people who attended the show on Christmas night found they could hear more distinctly than ever before. We are glad to note this improvement and trust that our beautiful hall will be used more by our people in the future than at present.

Poet's Corner.

"That Glorious Song of Old."

BY REV. E. H. SEARS.

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, good will to men
From Heaven's all-gracious King"—
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled,
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lowly plains
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

But with the woes of sin and strife,
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And man, at war with man, hears not
The love song which they bring;—
Oh, hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way
With painful steps and slow,
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing;
Oh, rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! the days are hastening on
By prophet bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes round the age of gold;
When Peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world give back the song
Which now the angels sing.

Beyond.

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will sit by a bed with a marvellous face,
And clasp a hand,
Growing cold as it feels for the spirit-land—
Darling, which one?

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will stand by the other's coffin bier,
And look and weep,
While those marble lips strange silence keep—
Darling, which one?

One of us, dear—
But one—
By an open grave will drop a tear,
And homeward go,
The anguish of an unshared grief to know—
Darling, which one?

One of us, darling, it must be:
It may be you will slip from me;
Or perhaps my life may just be done,
Which one?

A Lucky Letter.

Tea is ready, girls, said Saba Thorn.

Tea!

It was no luxurious meal of buttered toast, fragrant Oolong, honey and preserves; no comfortable repast of cold fowl, tongue, potted meats, and biscuit hot from the oven.

When Saba Thorn called it "tea" she merely used a conventionalism. It was only a small scanty meal of baker's bread, with a pot of cheap butter, a little smoked beef, which had been brought from the corner grocer's in a brown paper cover, and some milk and water, blue and tasteless; for Saba and her two cousins found it necessary to economize very strictly indeed.

Saba worked for an upholsterer. All day long she stitched pillow ticks and tufted mattresses in a dark little room where there was a prevailing smell of rancid geese feathers.

Her cousin Helen stood behind the counter of a milliner's shop on the Bowery; and little Kate—the youngest of the three—was "packer" in a fancy store, and could do up more neat paper parcels in a given time than you would believe possible.

They were all three pallid and colorless, like plants that had grown in a cellar. They all three had a certain languor of manner, and spoke in low, suppressed voices.

They lived together in this one room with a little alcove running out of it, because it was the cheapest mode of existence, and because their scant earnings, clubbed together, could be laid out to better advantage than if expended singly. Moreover, to these poor, homeless girls there was a home feeling in being together.

I don't feel hungry, said Helen, with a grimace.

I am so tired of bread and butter! sighed little Kate. Oh, if I could only have some of the stewed grapes that mother used to make.

Oh, that reminds me, said Saba, taking a letter from the mantel. I've heard from old Mrs. Pinkney. She wants us to buy a fashionable bonnet for her—garnet velvet with a long plume—if we can get it for a dollar and a half; and to look out for a bargain in a crimson merino for Louisa Jane's winter frock. She wants the very best quality, and she can't go higher than thirty-seven cents a yard. And she wishes to know if we are acquainted with anybody in the business who will dye over her pea-green silk at half price.

Helen shrugged her shoulders.

She must think we have plenty of time to execute her commissions, said she.

Merino at thirty-seven cents a yard! cried little Kate. And a hat of velvet for a dollar and a half! Does the woman expect impossibilities?

But that isn't all, said Saba. Uncle John is very poor. She thinks his relations ought to look after him.

Uncle John! said Kate.

Poor! echoed Helen.

What has become of all his money? said little Kate, intently knitting her brows.

I'm sure I don't know, said Saba. Mrs. Pinkney doesn't go into particulars. All the rest of the letter is about the sewing society, and the chicken cholera which has carried off so many of her fowls.

He must have been persuaded into investing in some of those dreadful mining stocks! said little Kate.

But, girls, said Saba, what are we to do?

Precisely what he has done to us, said Helen—Let him alone.

No, no, Helen, pleaded little Kate. Don't talk so. Remember, he is the only uncle we have got. He was our mother's brother.

And what has he ever done for us? retorted Helen, bitterly.

That doesn't signify, reasoned Saba. He is old and feeble. He needs our care. That is enough.

Saba is right, urged little Kate. Uncle John mustn't be left to die alone.

But what can we do? said Helen; we can't bring him here.

No, said Saba. It would break his heart to take him away from the pine forest. We must go to him.

And all starve together? said Helen. I don't see that that would be much of an improvement on the present state of things.

Listen! said Saba, lifting an authoritative forefinger. From a trifling seniority in years, and a somewhat greater experience in the world of work, Saba had become an oracle in the trio. I can do the housework for Uncle John.

Yes, said Helen.

Of course, said little Kate. And if he hasn't been obliged to sell the cow, we can perhaps have real creamy milk, and now and then a little cottage cheese. Oh, wouldn't that be splendid?

Helen could make bonnets for the farmers' wives, suggested Saba. The women out there know what a pretty bonnet is as well as any one, only they can't get it.

Bravo! cried Helen, clapping her hands ,I do think I have rather a genius for the business.

And little Katie could go out sewing by the day among the neighbors, added Saba, or help around in soap-making and preserving time. There are a good many who would pay 50 cents a day and board for good intelligent help. And that is a deal more than she earns here.

Little Kate looked rather sober.

I have my doubts about that plan working, said she. But I couldn't stay here, away from you. If you all go, so will I.

Then, went on Saba, I've laid up six dollars towards a winter cloak. Uncle John wants it more than I do. I'll keep it for him.

There is my ten dollars in the savings bank, added Helen. I did want a pair of thick boots and a winter shawl. But if Uncle John is really in need—

I havn't saved any money, said little Kate, sorrowfully. How could I, with my wages of two dollars a week? But I will do all I can to help.

You are dear, generous girls, both of you, said Saba. It may be a little hard just at first, but it is clearly our duty to go to Uncle John. And I will write and tell him this very night.

Do, said Helen. I'll borrow Miss Clitch's ink bottle, and there are a pen and two sheets of paper in the washstand drawer. I can buy a postage stamp at the druggist's on the corner.

Wouldn't a postal card be cheaper? said little Kate.

But Saba shook her head.

Would you put Uncle John's poverty on a postal card, for all the world to read? said she.

And little Kate answered, somewhat abashed, I didn't think of that. I only thought of economizing a cent. I wonder if the time will ever come when we don't have to think of saving.

And little Kate put on her bonnet and tripped around to the druggist's where one particular clerk put himself out to wait on her.

She has a face like a daisy, said the druggist's clerk. If I ever marry, I should like a wife like her. No she's not much of a customer of ours, but I have seen her at church meetings, and I walk with her sometimes of an evening. She lives in Timm's tenement house with her sister and cousin, and works in Gracey's store. But she always makes one think of a wild flower.

Uncle John Jaycox was sitting by the fireside when his neice's letter came. The fire of birch logs blazed gloriously up the chimney. A pair of fat home run candles glittered on the table. In all the room there was no evidence of grinding poverty.

Yes, said Uncle John, to a tall young man who sat opposite, I guess I'll have you here to run the farm for me, Israel Penfield. It's getting too much for me to manage alone. But as for some woman to keep the house for me, now that Anastasia Grixson has been fool enough to marry old Simpson—Eh? what? a letter? I'm very much obleeged to you, Mrs. Pinkney! Stop and take a warm while I read it, and I'll get you a basket of gilliflower apples to carry home afterward. They are just spiling to be eaten, them gilliflowers.

But as he perused his letter, a curious expression stole over his rugged features.

Sakes alive, said he stamping one foot on the floor, what in creation does it all mean. I guess we'll have enough housekeepers, Israel. Here's my three neices from New York a-comin' to live with me, because Mrs. Pinkney here has writ 'em that I have lost my property. And they are going to take care of me. Well, I swan!

I didn't write no sich, whined Mrs. Pinkney, with an alarmed air. I only said you was dreadful poor in health. I meant the lumbago and rheumatiz. I didn't say nothin' about money.

Well, no matter what you said, remarked Uncle John, crumpling up the letter in his hand and staring at the fire. The gals think I'm poor and they're comin' here to support me, and make a home for me in my old age—bless their hearts! I don't know why they should do it, he added, with a conscience stricken face. I never did nothin' for them. And Kate and Helen are my sister Jane's darters, and Saba is Hepsey's only child. And they're workin' for a livin' and I've got more than I know what to do with. It's a shame now, ain't it, that things is so unevenly divided.

Just exactly what I've always said, quietly remarked Israel Penfield.

Uncle John Jaycox looked at him, a queer twinkle in his opaque blue eyes.

I declare, said he, them gals have taught me a lesson; I don't need to be took care of in my old age; but I swan to goodness; it would be kind o' pleasant to have three gals around lookin' arter' the old man. I've a mind to try it.

I would if I were you, said Israel Penfield.

So when Saba, Helen and little Kate arrived, Uncle John received them with a welcome.

Neices, said he, I ain't poor nor I ain't likely to be; but I am glad to see you. I'm glad to know there's any one in the world that cares enough for the old man to come and look after him, without expectation of being paid for it. It sort o' shores up my confidence in human natur'. Come in! Come in! There's plenty of room in the old farmhouse for you all. Come in and welcome.

The three girls looked at each other.

Ought we to stay? they asked each other.

Yes, whispered little Kate. There are two red cows in the field. I saw them.

And the air smells so sweet, said pale Helen.

And Uncle John spoke as if he was really glad to see us, said Saba. Oh, yes, let us stay

Nor did any of the contracting parties ever regret the misunderstanding which had brought them so curiously together.

Little Kate went back to the city in a year or two to marry the druggist's clerk, who was now setting up in a small way for himself, and had come down to the country after the daisy faced girl who had once attracted his admiration.

Helen is engaged to Israel Penfield, and they are to have a regular old-fashioned marriage when the dresses are made.

And Saba—quiet Saba—is to stay with Uncle John, to read the paper to him and cheer up the long lonely evenings.

For I couldn't get along without the girl no how! says Uncle John jovially.

MUSICAL NOTES.

It is not often that a concert is given in this town, or any town, for that matter, where the artists are so well known to musical people, that press notices are superfluous. This is certainly the case with Fanny Kellogg, Mary How and D. B. Babcock, who are to give a song recital Monday evening, Jan. 11th, in the Peabody Institute. Musical people need not be told that they all are in the front rank—that the concert MUST be the finest ever held here. How can it be otherwise? Since the comparatively unsatisfactory performance of M. W. Whitney, at the "Messiah" in Boston last Sunday evening, on account of the long years of use to which his voice has been subject, it can safely be asserted that Mr. Babcock is the leading basso of this country. Sufficient enquiry with regard to the tickets has already been made to assure us that the audience will be one of the largest and comprise the leading musical people of this town and vicinity. Tickets will be on sale at Spaulding's, Tuesday morning, Jan. 5th, at 9 o'clock, at 50 and 35 cents.

The musical portion of the services at the different churches in town, last Sunday, showed care and preparation. Especially worthy of mention was the tenor solo, "Comfort ye" from the Messiah, as sung by Mr. E. S. Macgregor at the Unitarian church. It was decidedly the best thing we have heard Mr. Macgregor do. The solo is very exacting in its requirements in the upper register and Mr. Macgregor met these difficulties with perfect ease, and in a way that electrified the congregation. At the Universalist church, Miss Alice H. Nelson assisted the regular choir in the performance of "Echoes from Palestine."

Miss Emma Rice, of this town, sang last Sunday in Roxbury. She will sing next Sunday in Barton Square church, Salem. Miss Hayden, of Boston, closed her connection with that choir last Sunday.

It is expected that the Salem Oratorio Society will be ready to give "St. Paul" the latter part of January. Some delay has been experienced on account of the large number of new members to whom "St. Paul" was not familiar. It is also many years since it has been given, and the older members have not been any too familiar with it.

From the press notices of the Boston papers, we judge that the Sunday evening performance, of the "Messiah," by the Handel and Haydn Society in Music Hall, was not a success as far as the soloists were concerned. And this was particularly the case with reference to the sopranos. Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen, of whom much was expected, was lacking in warmth of feeling, and how the society could ever have engaged Miss Sarah C. Fisher, when there are in Boston so many younger and fresher voices, is more than we ever could understand.

Miss Nettie C. Coburn, the promising young cornet player of this city was the successful candidate for the splendid cornet put up at the recent G. A. R. fair at the Pythian rink.—Chelsea Tel. & Pioneer.

Miss Coburn will be remembered as appearing in the Institute with the Oxford Male Quartette.

Next week at the Boston Theatre our readers will have an opportunity of hearing Her Majesty's Opera Co. under the renowned Mapleson, at the low price, compared with previous charges, of $2 for the best seats, and from that downwards. This is a move in the right direction and we hope it will be appreciated. It has been said that the fashion of Boston will not attend at these low prices, as it is the high prices, not their love for opera, which has previously brought them to the theatre. This may be to a certain extent true, but there are many students in the N. E. Conservatory and elsewhere, who ought, as an aid to their studies, to attend the opera many times, but who have previously been unable to do so. At present prices most of them can afford to attend once or more, at all events. There are others who can go who never have heard an opera in full by such artists. The opening performance will be Monday evening, Jan. 4th, when "Carmen" will be given with Mme. Minnie Hauk in her celebrated role. It is Mme. Hauk's first appearance in three years in Boston. Tuesday, Auber's opera, "Fra Diavolo," will be given, with M'lle Alma Fohstrom, Mapleson's new prima donna, as Zerlina. Wednesday the opera of Manon will be given for the first time in Boston, with Signor Giannini, Mmes. Lablache and Hauk. Thursday, Maritana (for the first time in Boston in Italian) with M'lle Fohstrom as Maritana. Friday, Verdi's La Traviata with Mrs. Lillian Norton Gower as Violetta. Saturday matinee, Carmen will be repeated. This is a brilliant series of performances, and seats for the first week are now on sale.

The board of government of the Worcester County Musical Association has decided upon the following for the principal works to be given at the annual festival, September 21, 22, 23 and 24, 1886: "Arminius," by Max Brusch; "Redemption," by Gounod; "Toggenburg," by Rhineberger; "The Naiad," by Rubenstein; "Choral Fantaisie," by Beethoven; "Judas Maccabæus," by Handel.

Whatever attractions may rule on other stages, the management of the Hollis Street Theatre can always count with confidence on generous patronage. "The Mikado" is, in fact, such a brilliant and elaborate lyric production that it would be very much to Boston's discredit if it were not liberally supported. In no point does the representation here suffer by comparison with that in New York or elsewhere, and the performance seems to be accepted at its full value. "The Mikado," now on its way to its third month, is announced until further notice. Several changes have been made in the cast this week. Miss Louise Montague appearing as Yum Yum, and Mr. Arthur Wilkinson the former Mikado, appearing as Ko Ko.

It was announced at the meeting of the Unity Club last Monday evening, that the purchase of a new organ by the Unitarian Society was one of the probabilities of the coming year. The Unity Club, for many years, have made efforts towards securing a fund for the purpose, hoping, of course, that in due time their efforts would be supplemented by the Society. The contributions of the club for that purpose will be $1000—and it is probable that a special meeting of the Society will be called early in the year, to take steps towards procuring a new organ.

Mr. Isaac Littlefield, of the Crittendon Concert Co., is in town.

The elegant Christmas number of the Young Ladies Journal has been received from the International News Company of New York. It is a double number with several supplements, including a large life sized chromo, neatly executed. The January number of the Journal has also come to hand and begins the new year with a boom. It contains more illustrations than any other magazine published and has a number of pages of fancy work The magazine contains a large number of stories, written by English authors and are very interesting from the first chapter to the close. We heartily recommend this publication to our readers as combining the most for the money ever offered for sale at Mrs. Gilson's.

Inventors seeking patents, to secure which with facility requires such long experience and thorough conversance with the laws and technicalities relating to American and foreign patents, find in Mr. R. H. Eddy, of No. 76 State Street, Boston, an expert second to none. For a long series of years, we have with pleasure commended him to all seeking patents in any part of the world, as a leading and most successful solicitor in this line. Though our patent laws are more liberal than those of any other country, there is much to be considered before taking out a patent; the value of the invention; conflicting claims as to its patentability; the proper manner in which to present the application to the commissioner; desirability of securing foreign patents, etc. Mr. Eddy's knowledge and judgment in these matters have been proven in a long and honorable practice; and he is in every respect eminently qualified to furnish the best of advice, being perfectly familiar with the workings of the government office, acquainted with patents already granted, and posted on all points regarding patents.

Horse Railroad Hearings.

A hearing was given by the Selectmen, Thursday afternoon, on the petition of the Danvers Horse Railroad, to lay their tracks on Tremont and Northend streets, also on Foster and Lynnfield streets, in accordance with the petition published in the PRESS. In regard to the Tremont street extension Mr. Russell said the track there, he thought, would accommodate the public. The distance to his other track was about three-quarters of a mile. The company would build it in the early Spring, and on the right hand side of the road. The route through Northend street would accommodate the public better than through Holly, and would be better for the company—the road was more level and not so many grades. Some little discussion here ensued between Wm. H. Little and Mr. Cook, the Superintendent, as to the side of the road best to lay the track, and there being nothing further to be said the hearing with regard to this portion of the petition was closed.

In regard to the Foster street extension, Mr. Russell said that he simply desired the road to make a connection with Lynnfield. They had selected this location on account of an easy grade. There would be no objection on the part of Mr. Breed. Their purpose was to lay the track on the left hand side of Lynnfield street, and it would be done early next year. Mr. Russell stated that the company had a bond for the lease of Lynnfield Hotel, and their idea was to improve the property, lay out the grounds around it and the pond—some eleven acres—and make a picnic ground of it, and otherwise attractive for summer visitors.

John Osborn said he had interviewed the property holders on Foster street, and they were not opposed to the track there if it could be laid on certain conditions, which were incorporated in a petition which had been sent to the Board of Selectmen that morning. He thought the time was coming when Foster street would be needed for business purposes. He thought they should have freight car tracks. On condition that the horse railroad would build a track which could be used in this way, he would favor the track. There was some opposition among the property holders to the track being laid there at all, partly on account of the obstruction and by others on account of the superfluity. Thought the track could go up Washington street just as well. There had been a feeling for some years that there ought to be steam car tracks up Foster street. A petition had not been presented because the time had not appeared ripe for it. But he did not think it would be long before such a petition would be presented. Personally he was in favor of the road if it could be put down with spurs so as to connect with the different tanneries. He would be in favor of the extension to Lynnfield but thought it could be done by using the Lynn & Boston Horse R. R. Co.'s rails up Washington street.

Mr. H. A. Besse said a great deal of money had been laid out on Foster street, and thought the track would injure the street, and be a larger expense to the town to keep the street in good condition.

Mr. Southwick here read the remonstrance which had been handed in. It was as follows:

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF SELECTMEN:

The undersigned, citizens of Peabody and manufacturers doing business on Foster street, respectfully request that, in acting upon the petition of the Salem & Danvers Street R. R. Company for leave to extend their location through Foster street, your Board will consider the fact that before long it may be necessary to provide for the running of freight cars through that street, and that in whatever is done by your Board this probable future use of the street may be provided for and protected.

(Signed,) F. Osborn Jr., & Co., J. B. Thomas, George H. Little, Wm. H. Little, Nelson & Merrill, George Pierce, W. & H. B. Wilson, Richard Smith & Son, J. H. Poor, B. & A. N. Jacobs, H. C. Torr, Wiley & Poor, Lowd & Buxton, Merritt Cook, N. R. Gill, L. B. Southwick, George Clerk.

Mr. Osborn explained that all the petitioners were unanimous that steam cars had got to come on the street. There was no opposition beyond the expected use of the street for this steam track. Mr. W. H. Little agreed with Mr. Osborn that unless it could be used as a freight track the property holders on Foster street would oppose it. Thought it would be feasible to have steam cars run over the track of the horse railroad.

Mr. Russell said he was not particular about Foster street. Perhaps it would be better for both parties to run up over the Lynn & Boston rails. He had thought since the petition was put in that there might be some opposition and he was not surprised that there was. The cars might be obstructed also, on Foster street, and on the whole he thought the Washington street preferable. He would withdraw that part of the petitition regarding Foster street. The hearing was then closed.

Last Monday afternoon, at 3 P. M., a hearing was given on the petition of the Naumkeag Street R. R. to extend their track through Endicott street to Central to connect with the rails of the Danvers Horse R. R. The petition was read. Mr. Odell was not present, and Mr. Ferguson had nothing to say. On being asked whether he would run all the trips through that street, or whether, if the location was granted, he had any idea when the road would be built, he could give no definite answer.

Mr. Russell of the Danvers road, being called upon, said he had no objection to the road being laid, if the Naumkeag R. R., meant business and would run continuous trips to accommodate the public. But if they only wanted the location to lay a T rail and run a few trips through Endicott, and wanted the connection simply to bother them by running on Central street, he should object. He did not claim any more rights than any other road, but the Naumkeag had been in the centre of this town for 20 years and never had accommodated the public, and never tried to. The Danvers road would run trips up Central street as often as they were needed. That was the intention at the outset. If it were necessary to accommodate the travel to run 15 or 10 minute trips up Central street, it would be done. Mr. W. H. Little wanted a bond to be required of the road if the location was granted, that they shall put the town to no expense in laying the rails, by leaving the road in poor condition.

There was absolutely nothing said in favor of the road. Whether it was because the management had changed their mind regarding it, or whether they got "frightened" we can't say. At all events it was the tamest hearing held in town for a long while.

Among the papers on our exchange list, none is found more interesting and useful than the Boston Daily Advertiser. It maintains its leading position among Boston journals, without any deterioration. It aims to be a News paper, and as such it always furnishes the fullest and most reliable information. Its various departments are managed with skill and ability and its columns of miscellaneous reading hardly ever fail to be attractive. The price of the Advertiser daily, is $12, and the weekly can be had by mail at the low price of $1.

A dastardly attempt to assassinate L. Lum Smith, editor of the well-known "Agent's Herald," at Philadelphia, was made on Monday evening last. Mr. Smith was sitting at his desk when the report of a pistol was heard and a ball whizzed over his head and struck a mirror on the opposite side of the room. It was a very narrow escape.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

PEABODY SQUARE.

JOHN P. FERNALD ALBERT VITTUM,
Editors and Publishers.

WITH THE different lines of horse railroad tracks in Peabody, already laid and in contemplation, it would seem that our town was pretty well accommodated. This is true. Competition between the different roads has given to this town facilities possessed by few in the State. It has given us lower fares, quicker transit and better accommodations. Where a few years ago Peabody had but one horse car track to the Square, and that from Salem, with a cash fare of ten cents; now she has two other tracks, the Lynn and Boston accommodating the Washington street people and connecting So. Peabody, the Danvers accommodating the Central street people and connecting Danvers, besides the old road extended to Endicott street accommodating the Lowell street people and the cash fare to Salem down to five cents. All this has been done within a few years—so few, and so quietly has it been accomplished, that we hardly realize the great change.

But this is not all. The people of Tremont street and vicinity are to have a line of cars going directly to Salem by Northend street and thence through North Salem. It is much nearer to Salem; it will relieve the travel via Main street and save the residents in all that neighborhood a long walk to the Square. Then we are to be connected with Lynnfield, and that portion of South Peabody lying on that street. This will be the greatest boon to the town of Lynnfield which could ever happen. It will open up a pleasant territory, and make a summer resort the finest in the county. It will not be necessary to remind the boys in blue who spent considerable time there in camp, that it is by no means a disagreeable place, in the vicinity of the hotel and lake. The improvement of the property there will enhance its value as a resort, and the value of the property in that vicinity. If the Danvers road do with the property what they have in mind, it will rival the Willows as a place for picnics and parties and attract as many visitors. It will draw people from all directions; and it would not be surprising to see Lynnfield hotel and property in a short time connected with Lynn. It will be a new resort, and if the same liberality attends the fitting and management of the place as has characterized the road from the beginning, other resorts will need to look sharply after their laurels.

We take it for granted that these latter roads, or extensions will be built. The Selectmen have not yet decided on the locations, but the decisions must be favorable in both these cases. There can be no objection. A mistake will certainly be made if they are not allowed to lay the rails. The accommodations given to the people here have given Peabody a central location which may be made of advantage, with a liberal spirit among her citizens. Such a spirit ought to be exercised. We hope it will be.

THERE ARE rumors that the K. of L. have waited on Bushby & Co., and asked them to have a young man named Goodwin, who is employed in their store, use his influence to prevent his father, one Israel Goodwin, from working for Wiley & Poor. We are not prepared to believe such a rumor, and we think if innocent persons are to suffer for what they are not responsible for in any way, the mission of the K. of L. will speedily come to an end. We have yet to learn that the report has been confirmed.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES.

At the Universalist Church last Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Sprague preached from Luke 2:7; "Because there was no room for them in the inn." The preacher referred to the circumstances of enrollment which called Joseph to register his name at Bethlehem, to be taxed. He had come from his home in Galilee on civil business, and the inn was full. If Joseph had possessed money he might have got a room. There seemed some inhumanity in being forced into a stable. But as many had gone to be enrolled there was no place for Joseph and Mary—all the rooms were engaged. They were crowded out in the hour of their greatest need. In these so-called degenerate days how many rooms would have been given up in such a necessity? They were days of hard heartedness compared with those of to-day. In a stable the "Light of the World" was born. In Bethlehem, in a manger, the true Cæsar came. But there was no recognition of him. He was born outside the homes of Bethlehem as he died outside the walls of Jerusalem. Truly "he was despised and rejected of men."

This spirit of Bethlehem is the spirit of the world which forgets God and has no recognition of Christ. Many hearts are like the caravansary of old—there is room for everything but Christ. Yet Christ is there greatest need. They are like the man starving to death with his stomach distended with food not of the right kind to be digested. The inn was bursting with guests. It were better for it if some had given way and the King of Glory had been born there. So it would be better for men to lay aside their strifes and anxieties and make room for the Prince of Peace.

There are several reasons why Jesus cannot find room in the hearts of men. They are pre-occupied, some are full to the fill with strivings after personal gratification. Spiritual joys are shut out. They turn away angels and entertain evil spirits. They attend to the body's demands, but they cannot take a guest who requires spiritual care. They do not have the spare time. They do not open their souls to noble purposes and right thoughts—they are unwilling to take the responsibility of a new lodger. They will entertain their old patrons—hold on to their old habits, and turn away profitable guests. They are too busy. It is surprising how much trouble men will put themselves to, to avoid Christian self denial, when the denial in shirking the duty is much harder than in the performance of it. The spirit of self-accommodation has barred out the appeals to the nobler faculties of our nature, and killed the roots of large possibilities. There should not be so many personal schemes and pet hobbies. One thing well done is better than many slurred over. Our minds should keep open house for everything that is good and pure and true.

One difficulty in the way is just here. There are many who have large capabilities but have not their windows open towards Jerusalem. They are keeping out the light. The seed falls into stony ground. They are hard of heart and do not care to hear. Their mind is elsewhere—full of worldly struggles. They do not affirm or deny—they stand apart and know nothing of Christianity. If good comes to men, it can take care of itself without them. They will not receive the Christ-child. There is no room for him. They have others less satisfactory to receive and serve. True their earth work is to be done. But fidelity to the body does not exclude hospitality to the soul. Christianity includes both.

There are some who are regardless of the appeals of conscience who say that it does not pay to entertain the Saviour. They imagine that they must give up all pleasure and that life must be made a constant round self-denial. This is a mistake. Religion used to be gloomy, especially of the old theology. But the best religious thought and usage of to-day do not deny innocent pleasure, but welcome everything good. Religion does not pay! Did you ever know a man to take Jesus into his heart and not have it enlarged and blessed? It does pay. Christ does not take lodgings as a gratuity. He does not receive a cup of cold water, given in his name, without leaving a reward more than hundred fold and constantly increasing in value.

Another thing excluding the Master is the crowding ambition too large for this world. Men are excessively busy. The calls are so manifold. There are not enough hours, apparently, to do what they desire. They would find enough to do if they had ten times as many eyes and hands. The world is too slow. There are so many facilities for taking their time and attention, that they are carried away from home and the church and away from religious life. They think they are born to be amused instead of disciplined. There is much crowding out of the best life by business. The American is subject to the dollar mania. It becomes to him the one thing, and often the pursuit of it shuts out everything else. There are too many hurried schemes and too much anxiety. It deprives home of faithful ones, and the church of much of her power. You know oftentimes how business presses on your mind till you are so nervous, you are not able to rise on Sundays in time for christian worship. Things you love are thus crowded out. There is no room for Christ, but room for mammon and pleasure.

Finally the Christian principles are shut out by formalities and traditions which are blinding to the clear light. The old creeds are very like manacles on the Evangelical churches to-day. Their house is full of relics and fossils. How then can they make room for Christ in his simplicity? To seek him in apostolic purity is like seeking him in a stable. Yet we must all go there to seek the true Christ. We must go back to the manger and the life among the common people. It is there that the revelation for manhood began—there the slave was set free, there it was revealed that "there is no Jew nor Gentile, no bond nor free, no male nor female for years all one in Christ."

There can be no hospitable reception of Christ till self is harnessed, the affections are stirred, ambitions are checked and traditions emptied of their chaff. Let us not be wholly taken up with personal notions. It is a poorly organized household that has not one spare chamber. Let us keep one room in our hearts ready to entertain Him who in the embrace of his great love has ample room for us all.

In the Unitarian Church, Sunday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Hudson preached from Matthew 22:42; "What think ye of Christ?" The preacher said there were two Christianites and tow Christs in the world to-day. One Christ is the person whom history records in the New Testament—the Christ who spoke the sermon on the Mount and the parables, whom the human heart recognizes as the inspiration of all sacred ideas. This is the human Christ, speaking in human language, and whose birth is recognized in the Christmas festival.

The other Christ is one of the creeds and theology. This one was created by the theologians, and defined according to their ideas of fitness—undergoing various changes as their views of philosophy changed. The theological Christ men have quarrelled about—the other has benefitted humanity. Yet the ecclesiastical Christ was necessary. Much of the claims and purposes of Christianity are speculative. The great evil about the speculation regarding Christ is the claim to infallibility. Its most evil influence in religion was that it made it speculative and sectarian—entirely opposite to the spirit of Jesus.

So there are two Christianites,—one whose object is God alone, a religion of love and worship and duty and hope. The other is a religion the object of which is Jesus Christ himself. According to this His example depends upon his authority—is secondary to his mysterious office of Mediator.

It is not difficult to explain how the theological Christ was developed—by the uncritical reverence of the first christian for Christ and afterwards by love of dominion in the leaders. The disciples of Jesus in his own time recognized, as we do, something very high in the endowment and spirit of Christ. Peter, those in the temple, even the Roman officers gave witness; "This is the Son of God." This expression meant heavenly excellence. It is vague. They called all Christians sons of God. Afterwards they tried to explain it. The most ancient attempt to explain the dominion of Jesus in the New Testament is the vision of John the baptist, found in all four of the gospels, where he saw the spirit of God descending upon the Christ. The divine in Jesus was accounted for by this spirit. He was not believed, by this theory, to be divine until after the baptism.

There are two other views in the New Testament, afterward held side by side in the creeds. Matthew and Luke have one of these—Mark and John know nothing of it. It is expressed simply, "the Father of Jesus is not human but divine." The idea of miraculous birth is not found either in Mark or John. This shows how independently the first disciples were thinking of him.

The third theory is that of John. It had its origin before his day. It was the philosophy of the Platonists of Alexandria and of Judea. They held that all "general ideas are real beings." This method of personification was applied by the Hebrews to the attributes of God. These attributes were regarded as distinct personalities. The highest of them all was the "divine reason" or "Word" of St. John, regarded as co-eternal with God. This view of St. John also finds expression in some of Paul's Epistles, and is simply an attempt to explain Christ in the philosophy of that day. It is of value only to those who accept this theory of philosophy.

In the New Testaments no attempts are made to harmonize these theories. The object was to exalt the divinity of Jesus. He must be lifted above all pagan deities. He was then carried higher and higher until he was made equal with God, and this in spite of his negation of the application to him even of the word "good." The theologians carried this process on till they said: "God was born in Bethlehem." The council of Ephesus continued it till they declared Mary to be the Mother of God.

Can such a doctrine enlighten the soul? Is there anything less effective? The absorption of Jesus in the Godhead was the loss of him to the world. Human weakness soon fled to Saints and other mediators, and after the creed of Nicea to Mary, who remains to the Catholic world to-day, the only real mediator. And in 1870, by the Ecumenical council, Mary was carried out of the limits of common humanity by the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception.

The preacher thought Jesus foresaw how his glory would be abused, and gave warning of this when he said: "Not every one that sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of Heaven." It is a hard thing to do our Christian duty, but very easy to call Christ one with the Father.

Real religion is easily explained. It is the doctrine of love between man and man, and God's forgiveness towards every repentant sinner, freely, not needing to be paid for by any vicarious atonement. The parable of the lost sheep stands forever as a refutation of all ecclesiastical atonement.

Christ called himself most often the Son of man. This means simply "the man" as a symbol. It embraced all mankind, the Jew and Gentile, the bond and free. He consorted with publicans and sinners. He permitted others to teach in his name, saying: "He that is not against us is on our side." His goodness was not the result of an effeminate nature or weakness in character. He was a manly man. Nor did he lack powers of wrathfulness. Witness the driving of the money changers from the temple, and his maledictions upon hypocrites.

What is it to have faith in Christ? It is not to have certain opinions about him. There is no record of that. When Jesus said, "Thy faith hath saved thee," nothing of this sort was meant.

The preacher said he must leave untouched another phrase of Christ's work. He would gladly speak of the arrest of the decay of civilization in the early church, how Christianity has marked a road of progress, and of Christ's universal work in rescuing the despairing, but he must content himself with one point, whether he believed in the divinity of Jesus or not. This could not be answered by yes or no, because divinity is used in different senses. In the sense that he was like God, he would certainly answer yes. In the sense in which the old theologians used it he should answer in the negative. The preacher did not interpret divineness as equality with God. God is God—not three but one. He held strongly to monotheism. All good men in this sense were divine. Jesus was superior to all the apostles. He was so superior to the morality of the time, so closely allied to God, that he was as perfectly divine as it is possible to become on earth.

No religion is good unless rooted in human nature. There can be no faith in God without faith in man. This is hard in the presence of the weak and depraved, yet when faith in man is gone, farewell to faith in God. The more evil there is in man the higher must be the helpfulness of a life like Christ's. Life has been shown to be divine in Christ. He is the pledge of final triumph over moral obstructions. Let us love him and reverence him, copy his precepts, grow into his likeness, die like him in faith, that his prayer to the Father may be answered in us. "That they may all be one. Even as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us.

At the Methodist church there was congregational singing led by Mr. George Goldthwaite, and Rev. Mr. Smith preached an appropriate sermon from Micah 5: 2. "But thou, Bethlehem, Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler of Israel, whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." Who can view the sea washed clefts of St. Helena and not be animated by the spirit of Napoleon, or who can stand on Bunker Hill and Plymouth Rock and not feel the pleasant associations and spirit of the mighty dead hover about them. So is Jerusalem immortal. 'Twas there David had his home, there that God put his name and was seen; there the Great Emanuel wept and died and arose again from the dead and so it was with the little village of Bethlehem where stood the caravansary where Christ saw the world. Not only the coming of Christ but the date of his going forth was foretold, "whose going forth have been from old from everlasting." The prophets take back prior to all time as the date and spoke of the time when Christ was to go forth. What was meant by go forth? simply the accomplishment of some purpose. What was the real end to accomplish? A God of overflowing love, so revealed himself and his plans to strengthen the attachment toward himself, and the establishment of a grand kingdom all parts of it to centre in himself. Christ was to appear as agent to accomplish the mighty designs. This was the plan of God and the end was seen in the beginning as he sees through all down to the end of time. He saw that man would fall and drag more after him, but he says, "I will find a ransom and will lift it from ruin back to God." All was arranged before so that the atonement could be made. You ask, "If he saw that some would be ruined why did he create the earth?" I don't know why but we do know that if he saw that a larger number would be saved than lost, love would say build it. If only one soul was saved it would more than compensate for all else. See the large lot in infancy that are taken to him; see the myriads from the church in the ages that have passed who have gone to him, and yet the churches are replenished. I am glad that I can be saved though others may be lost. The gospel is free for every man. "For God so loved the world he gave his only begotten son." If my brother refuses to accept is that a reason why I should not have the privilege? God saw this and provided for it in his only begotten son. When all was ready then he came, that babe in human form; there is our Saviour pointed to by the prophets of all ages there he is laying in a manger with the beasts of the field. He took not the form of an angel but the form of the human, who have fallen, and he came to lift up humanity to the throne of God. He has lived, died and become crowned your mediator and mine. 1885 is nearly gone, have we accepted this Christ, have we made any return for the services he has done for us? "God so loved the world." Yet there is the ladder reached out to everyone. A few more sands are left in the glass—then all is passed. Some have had sorrows and bereavements, have they brought you into sweeter relations to him? Another year at this hour I shall not be here and perhaps some of you will not be here, let us make a sure preparation for the coming year and be prepared. God grant it.

The services at St. John's Church were on Christmas day (Friday.) Rev. Fr. Vincent Borgiali celebrated the mass at 6 A. M., at which time singing was by the children—the solo in the "Adeste" being sung by Miss Maggie McDonald. At 10 A. M. solemn high mass was sung, Fr. Magabore being celebrant, Fr. P. Masterson, deacon and Fr. Borgiali, sub-deacon. Fr. P. Masterson preached the sermon. The music, as published last week, was finely rendered by the choir, under the direction of Chas. A. Clark. Vespers were sung at 3 P. M. During the day crowds of people visited the church to do homage to the Infant Jesus. The crib was made under St. Joseph's altar and was handsomely decorated with evergreen and plants.

An entertainment was given Thursday night at the South Church by members of the Sunday School, and included the rendering of "St. Nicholas," a Christmas Cantata, by W. Howard Doane. The cantata is written in two parts, the first presenting very prettily, with appropriate music and fitting costumes, the coming of Autumn, Jack Frost, Queen Winter and her attendants, the Storm King, and other characters suited to the Christmas time.

The second part represents a Sunday School Christmas entertainment, which includes singing, recitations and dialogues, as in progress. As the exercise progresses "Long Ago" comes upon the scene, and is soon followed by Santa Claus who makes known his coming by throwing snow balls into the crowd of children who are gathered to greet him. Santa Claus did not come with his conventional pack of dolls and jumping-jacks, but his aged shoulders were borne down by the weight of barrels and barrels of candy of which some three hundred were distributed at the close of the musical part of the programme. On the whole the entertainment was pleasing. The music was very pretty and well rendered, considering the very short time given to its preparation, and the whole was made attractive by the varied costumes of the principal characters. The affair was managed by Miss Louise Osborne and was not, we are requested to say, presented by the Brooksbie Club, but by the Sabbath School, as we announced last week.

At the Methodist Church there was the usual Christmas tree and good time and each of the Sunday school teachers were remembered by their pupils. The organist, Mrs. Isaac Knowlton, was presented with an elegant French clock.

In the Universalist vestry, Friday evening, there was an entertainment provided by the Murray Club for the Sabbath School, consisting of lantern pictures and the serving of ice cream and cake.

In the Unitarian vestry, Thursday evening, there was a tree with gifts for the Sabbath School. The Young Workers remembered with a small token several of the aged and infirm members of the Society who were unable to be present—gifts which we doubt not, found hearty appreciation. On Sunday evening a Sabbath School concert was held which consisted of the usual exercises. Chas. A. Weare read a paper on the life and character of Jesus, and the usual reports were presented. The school is in a prosperous condition, numbering about 100 members.

Wednesday Evening, Dec, 30 1885,

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The Congregational Baptist, and Methodist churches of this place, will unite in holding religious services, beginning next Sunday evening, Jan. 3rd 1886. The meetings for the week are as follows. Preaching by Rev. W. F. Davis on Sunday and Monday evenings, at Congregational church, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at Baptist church, Thursday and Friday evenings at Methodist church. Seats will be free and every body invited. All those who are willing to help in the singing at these meetings are requested to meet Professor Morse in the Methodist vestry next Saturday evening at 7 30 o'clock to rehearse. It is not necessary that all be able to read music. Any one who can sing the Moody and Sankey hymns are cordially invited to come to the rehearsal Saturday evening. Don't wait for a personal invitation. It is sincerely hoped that a large number will be present from each church. Services at the Baptist church next Sunday afternoon will be especially for the childen. Evangelist Wm. F. Davis will preach at 2.15 p. m. The children of the Sunday School it is hoped, will occupy the front seats with their teachers. This service is more especially for those who are too young to attend the evening service.

Rev. Annie H. Shaw, who is to speak before the Peabody Woman Suffrage Club on next Monday evening, is probably the only woman ordained to the ministry in the M. E. Church. Feeling a call to preach the gospel of Christianity she was thoroughly educated at the Boston University. A church on Cape Cod called her to its pastorate. After preaching for two years she was ordained by a small majority and continued in charge of the church for five years longer. A rule of the church limits the pastor's term of service and she was thus discharged. For the last year she has been in the employ of the Mass. Suffrage Association as lecturer. In the meantime she is completing previously commenced study for a diploma as an M. D. She was one of the original temperance crusaders of the west and now proposes to enter the gospel temperance work as an Evangelist from the "divinity school" of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. H. W. Smith, bishop, which believes that the world needs woomanhood in the pulpit. Miss Shaw is an interesting speaker, and the woman suffragists of Peabody give a cordial invitation to the public to attend the meeting.

Mr. Cornelius Mahoney, an old and respected resident of this town, died at his home on Harris street last Thursday after a long sickness. He was a native of Ireland and one of the first Irishmen to settle in this town, where he has accumulated a good property and was a peaceable and church going citizen. His business has of late been managed by his son, Mr. Patrick Mahoney. The funeral took place from St. John's Church and was largely attended by the many friends of the deceased, a solemn high mass of requiem being said over the remains. He had reached the ripe old age of 80 years.

Nathaniel G. Walker, a native of this town and a member of the well known firm of Walker Brothers, died at his home in Boston on Sunday after a protracted illness. He was particularly identified with the interests of the Danvers Bleachery of this town and made almost weekly visits here. He was also identified with mill interests in other places. His funeral took place yesterday and was attended by Superintendent Fallon and the overseers of the different departments at the Bleachery, and the Bleachery was shut down for the day.

This issue of the PRESS closes the twenty-sixth year of its existence as a local newspaper, and it can count among its subscribers many who have received it weekly all these years, besides hundreds who have known it for a lesser time. Next week we begin war on the local happenings of the new year; what it has in store for you or us we know not. We have had many kind favors shown us all along the line of the dying year, and shall endeavor to merit a continuance, and wishing you all a HAPPY NEW YEAR the PRESS greets you with its last budget of news for 1885.

At a meeting of Emerald Court, No. 53, M. C. O. F., held Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected: Chief Ranger, William J. McCarthy; Vice Chief Ranger, James Sherry; Rec. Sec., Edward O'Rourke; Treas., Thomas O'Keefe; Senior Commander, Peter Mallon; Junior Commander, John J. Bartlett; Inside Sentry, Martin Flanagan; Outside Sentry, Dennis McAuliffe; Trustees, Dennis Quill, Michael Sherry, Patrick Butler; Delegate to convention, Thomas F. Lyons; alternate, John J. Bartlett; Court Physician, Dr. John Shanahan; Chaplain, Rev. Patrick Masterson.

Where Hours Go Merrily.

The gathering at the Christmas Tree at the Alms House last Wednesday evening, was a very enjoyable occasion. The thought originated with the W. C. T. U. workers, who conducted services there Sunday Dec. 6. It was entered into heartily, by all to whom the plan was mentioned. Gladly were dolls dressed, aprons prepared, and handkerchiefs purchased, so that each one of the 50 inmates might receive a present. The little ones were made happy. There was singing and speeches, playing of the violin by Henry Melcher, and of the drum by Master Sammy Dodge, together with recitations by Mr. G. N. Winslow, which were greatly enjoyed by all. The warm grasp of the hand, with the moist eye, accompanied with expressions of gratitude for the evening's pleasure, more than repaid for every effort that had been put forth, and caused each to realize practically, that giving happiness and joy to others, brings the truest Christmas joy into one's own heart.

In honor of the fifty-first birthday of Dennis Delay, quite a number of his countrymen and relatives called on him last Monday evening at his residence near Washington street, and enjoyed themselves in the good old fashioned way. During the evening Mr. Delay was presented with a rocking chair.

Some sixteen of our young people are forming a progressive whist club, and they will meet at the homes of different ones twice a week.

The children of the choir of St. John's church presented the organist, Mr. Chas. A. Clark with a handsome dressing case last Friday.

Mr. John F. Morland, the "Sparks" reporter of the PRESS and the correspondent of the Lynn Item, was presented by the young ladies of this office last Wednesday evening, with a costly (?) model of a steam fire engine drawn by a pair of well trained horses. The outfit was gorgeous in the extreme, being painted in various colors. Mr. Morland shed tears of joy over the beautiful tin tea pot with horses attached, but could not frame words to express his pleasure, but if the presses had not been started and all hands put to work at once, it is feared he would have taken each young lady seperately and thanked her. He will keep the toy for his grandchilden.

The Heald Comedy Company was the attraction at town hall on Christmas night, and was greeted by a small audience. It had been represented that the company had been playing to a successful business throughout the West, but as some one remarked, it must have been the "West End." Some of the people were very good, while others had the appearance of amateurs who had come out into the country for a rehearsal. They were also unfortunate in their plays "Withered Leaves" and "Nan the Good for Nothing." There is nothing humorous or sparkling about either cf them.

The skating rink was liberally patronized Christmas at each session. The attraction was not as taking as some that have appeared, but people were not much disappointed and all the more seemed to enjoy the skating.

Mr. George A. Lawrence took the first prize in the second class at the shoot of the Salem rifle association last Friday.

The employes of the Standard Thermometer Works presented their foreman, Mr. Thomas W. Shepard, with a fine rattan easy chair last Thursday evening.

Mr. John Dempsey, who was ticket seller at the rink last winter, has signed to play polo with the New Haven, Conn., team.

Remember the social assembly of Essex Assembly of the K. of L. at town hall January 8th.

The young men of assembly No. 2947 K. of L. will hold a series of assemblies at Ashland hall during the winter. The first was held last evening and was well attended.

The genial proprietor of the Peabody bakery on Lowell street, Mr. Charles F. Hathaway, was waited upon by his employes last Thursday evening and presented with two handsome pictures. Mr. H. heartily thanked the boys, and wished them all a merry Christmas.

Remember the Edgewood Club entertainment at the Baptist vestry this evening.

You will witness the best attraction of the season if you attend the rink this evening. Archie Daley is a human serpent when seen at the rink.

Saturday night there will be an exciting race between the Indian Boy, and Finn, of Salem, for $25.

Mrs. John Bresnahan, formerly of this town, was found dead in her bed last evening at Lynn.

Quite a number of members of Jordan Lodge visited Boston last evening to attend the Feast of St. John.

The Unity Club expect to repeat the drama of the "Afflicted Family" next Wednesday evening.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

William Howard, conductor on the Danvers street railway, was bitten in the hand by a dog at Salem a few days ago.

One of our physicians report that a short time ago Cornelius Murphy, wife and child ate quite freely of pork sausages and were afterwards observed to exhibit evidences of insanity. At first it was thought to be a case of trichinosis, but on further examination the physician decided it was strychnine poisoning, and applying proper remedies relief was almost immediately obtained.

A little son of Michael McCarthy was badly cut while skating near the Lowell railroad track, by falling against a barbed wire fence.

Mrs. Joshua Holmes, who recently fell on the ice on Boston street, Salem, will probably ask that city for damages. She broke one of her legs.

A boy named John Casey, while cutting a Christmas tree, last Wednesday, cut a deep gash in his foot by the slipping of the hatchet. A companion who was with him assisted him home.

A well dressed stranger called on one of our store keepers one night last week and asked him to cash a check for him to the amount of ten dollars. The store keeper went to another room to get the money from his safe when the stranger, probably thinking he was going to call the police, skipped out and has not since been seen.

The police visited last Thursday the place of John Putnam on Lynn street, Elligott & Gould and Austin's on Foster street, and Michael Doyle's but were successful only at Austin's, where a small quantity of hard stuff was found.

Last Saturday Jerry McCarthy represented the only Christmas drunk at the police station and he was fined $5 and costs.

Daniel Cronan, an inmate of the Alms House, fell on Main street, last Friday night, and cracked one of the small bones in his ankle.

The police would like information concerning a man living on Aborn street who has been missing since last Wednesday. They furnish the following description of him: He is 51 years of age, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches in height, light complexion, wore a full beard, and when last seen was dressed in gray coat and pants, dark cardigan jacket trimmed with blue, light overalls and black soft hat. He answers to the name of George T. Russell.

Last Monday forenoon a boy named John Russell jumped from a horse car on Main street, in front of the butcher wagon of Upton and Magoun, and was knocked down the wheel passing over his right shoulder, breaking the collar bone in two places, and causing several other wounds about his head and eyes. He is doing as well as can be expected.

Mr. William B. Blair of this town fell on the ice in Salem, last Friday and dislocated his shoulder.

The police captured 57 bottles of lager beer from Elizabeth McCarthy last Sunday night.

In the police court Monday morning Mary Gallagher, charged with illegal sale of liquor, was discharged, and the case of Benj. Graves was continued.

We regret to learn of the decease of Jonathan E. Osborne, which occurred this morning at the Danvers Insane Asylum. Mr. Osborne had been failing in health for many years, and his death was not unexpected. Mr. Osborne was a carpenter by trade, and a number of years ago engaged in the "stiffening" business on Spring street, in the shop owned at that time by Mr. Stephen Fernald, where for a number of years he did quite a business, until he was obliged by reason of failing health to give it up. Mr. Osborne was at one time Chief Engineer of our Fire Department, and was Fire Ward for many years. He has also served the town as road surveyor. Mr. Osborne's age was 68 years, 14 days. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Lowell street, Friday at 2.30 P. M.

A hog belonging to John P. Rust, weighing 615 lbs., was recently killed by Robert G. Buxton. It was sold to N. W. Edson & Co.

Workmen are again opening the ground in Poole's Hollow, between the railroad track. This time to repair a serious leak in the gas pipe.

The election of a colonel for the 8th Regiment, to take the place of Col. Ayer, resigned, will take place next Tuesday afternoon at the Salem Mechanics Light Infantry room.

Commencing January first, the fees upon foreign money orders will be largely reduced by the post office department; for orders not exceeding $10 the fee is to be changed from 15 to 10 cents; on orders from $10 to $20, the present fee of 30 cents is reduced to 20; from $20 to $30, the reduction is from 45 to 30 cents; from $30 to $40 from 60 to 40 cents, and from $40 to $50 from 75 to 50 cents. The people who send foreign money orders will appreciate this reduction of nearly thirty-three per cent.

THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

SWEARS

SIX THOUSAND, SIX HUNDRED AND NINETY-SIX (6696) represents the exact number of cases of Rubber Goods received by us so far for this season's trade in our Wholesale and Retail Departments, as sworn to by the Freight Agent of the Boston and Maine R. R. Co., over whose line our goods are delivered. And this immense quantity—more than all the retail boot and shoe stores in Lynn, combined, could use in five years' time—is but a fraction of what we shall need to meet the demands of our Wholesale and Retail trade this present season.

Sworn Statement of the Boston & Maine R. R. Co.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, ESSEX, ss.

I, F. A. Barnard, Boston & Maine R. R. Co.'s Freight Agent, on oath do depose and say that I have delivered over this road six thousand six hundred and ninety-six cases of rubber goods to Wellman Osborne on this season's trade.

F. A. BARNARD, Freight Agent B. & M. R. R. Co.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this fourteenth day of December, A. D. 1885.

THOMAS B. KNIGHT, Justice of the Peace.

IS IT POSSIBLE

That the other dealers, obliged to buy from the jobbers and pay the jobbers' profits, and weighed down by high rents, can compete with the only dealer in Lynn who buys everything direct from the manufacturers, has but one rent to pay—three of his four stores being on his own premises—and who is the only Lynn dealer using rubbers in quantities large enough to enable him to deal directly with the rubber companies and avail himself of the large discounts they offer to jobbers?

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE!

Remember that where others make bare assertions, unsupported by any testimony or anything worthy to be called the shadow of a fact, we give the sworn statement of the Boston & Maine R. R. Co., and can produce, if necessary, all of our way bills to silence the doubts of the most incredulous.

WE CHALLENGE

Any other Lynn dealer, be he retailer or self-styled wholesaler, on forfeit of $1000, to produce absolute proof that he has at present received one-fifth as many rubber goods as we have, the proceeds to be given to the LYNN CITY HOSPITAL. Here is a glorious opportunity to benefit the most deserving institution in the city. We make the offer in good faith, and give the talkers a chance to show the courage of their conviction by accepting the challenge, or

FOREVER AFTER HOLD THEIR PEACE.

REMEMBER

That in the past we have had undisputed possession of the field, and when we say that no other dealer can offer the inducements we do, we do not speak idle words, but are backed up by a record in the past unequalled by any, and a stock in the present inexhaustible in quantity and variety, and of the best makes in the country. We are splendidly equipped to beat our record of former triumphs.

When the First Snow Flies,

No matter what price others offer, we, as a matter of course,

ALWAYS BEAT THEM.

WE ARE SELLING

Misses' Imitation Sandals,	.25	.35

The above prices are absolutely as low as the other dealers can buy the same for from the jobbers and we are giving the people the benefit of wholesale prices.

Now for those who wish for cheaper rubbers and serviceable ones, we have in jobs and drives of perfect and slightly blemished goods, the following:

CRUSHERS OF HIGH PRICES!

Men's Prime Rubber Boots, perfect,	$1.65	Men's Imitation Sandals, perfect,	33c
Boys' Prime Rubber Boots, "	1.45	Women's Imitation Sandals, "	21c
Youths' Prime Rubber Boots, "	1.10	Men's Buckle Arctics, "	85c
Misses' Prime Rubber Boots, "	.85

It must be borne in mind that these slightly imperfect rubbers are not to be confounded with the Tar rubbers with which the market is flooded, and which are made expressly as cheap rubbers out of old rubber ground up, and barely held together with a liberal mixture of cold tar. These rubbers are made by the best companies in the country, out of good stock, and for service, but in the process of manufacture have been subject to some slight blemish which does not affect their wear in the least. They are as much better than the afore-mentioned Tar rubbers as a fine beaver overcoat, with a slight imperfection hardly noticeable, is better than a shoddy coat made up of ground-up material.

NOJEW RACKETS HERE.

When we advertise prices, we abide by them, and do not have to say to every customer, "Out of your size, "Have some next week," etc. We do not do business that way. We have just what we advertise, and in abundance, and customers do not leave our stores dissatisfied, nor feel obliged to buy a higher priced article if they do not wish it.

boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. It is my opinion that this medicine is the best blood of the day." C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H., writes: "For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and unable to obtain relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles, am greatly benefited, and believe it to be the best of blood purifiers." R. Harris, Creel City, Ramsey Co., Dakota, writes: "I have been an intense sufferer, with Dyspepsia, for the past three years. Six months ago I began to use

Purifier

THE DRAMA.

[Horse cars from Salem connect every night (except Monday) with train leaving Boston at 11.15 P. M]

Madame Janauschek is unquestionably the greatest living tragic actress, and her engagement at the Park this week will attract to that theatre the lovers of the highest art in acting. At the matinee on Saturday, the famous tragic drama of "Mary Stuart" will be given, and Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, Janauschek will present her noted dual personations of Lady Dedlock and Hortense in the dramatization of Dickens' Bleak House which she created. In either Mary Stuart or her dual roles in Bleak House she has no rival on the stage.

The magnificent Shakesperean comedy production at the Boston Theatre can be enjoyed by lovers of the drama for this week only. Then Messrs. Robson and Crane will take the Dromios elsewhere. There should be, and will be doubtless, a series of large audiences at these closing performances of this elegant Shakespeare revival season.

Edwin Booth, coming to the Boston Museum this week, begins his only engagement this season, which will last five weeks. The star is once more to have the advantage of acting with a trained corps of players like Manager Field's stock company. This is undoubtedly the only organization of actors that can boast a repertory ranging, as has aptly been said, from "Hamlet" to "Nunky," and that is familiar with all schools of the worthy drama. Mr. Booth is to make his re-entrance in the title role of John Howard Payne's tragedy, "Brutus, or the fall of Tarquin." This drama is to form the attraction throughout the week, except at the matinee on Wednesday, when "Little Em'ly" will be repeated by the company. Miss Annie Clark appears in "Brutus" as Tullia, Miss Thompson as Lavinia and Mr. Mason as Titus.

Barlow, Wilson & Rankin's famous Ethiopian organization will inaugurate at the Bijou Theatre a new regime. The pretty theatre now comes under the control of the firm of Miles & Barton, who have so successfully directed the fortunes of the Bijou Opera House in New York. They will manage the theatre here for five years; and recalling the favor which Boston has always shown to "burnt cork" artists they provide as their opening attraction this celebrated and successful musical troupe. Popular prices are to rule, and every week something novel will be offered to attention. "The Mickado" a burlesque on the reigning lyric attraction is to be a feature of the opening week's programme. From 7 to 8 every night there is to be a concert in the theatre foyer by the great band connected with the organization, a "new departure" that certainly will not lack appreciation.

Lester and Allen's minstrels, with John L. Sullivan and Muldoon, follow the opera at the Boston Theatre.

Something more than a dozen years ago, Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for coughs, colds and pulmonary complaints. It had formerly been the prescription of an eminent physician, and was used only in his private practice. Since its introduction, it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now there is scarcely a town in New England where its beneficent effect has not been proved. Indeed, it is a proverbial remark that Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar is, undoubtedly the best cough remedy, and at the same time the most simple and palatable. Its action is different from the great number of cough medicines in use, inasmuch as it cures a cough by assisting expectoration, and aiding the lungs and throat to throw off phlem and mucus. It almost instantly soothes the inflamed parts, and enables the respiratory organs to resist the influences and encroachments of this changeable and severe climate. It is put up in three sizes, the trial size being only 25 cents per bottle, which places it within the reach of everyone—Boston Courier, Feb 8, 1885.

STARTLING EXPERIENCE.—Next to scarlet fever, there is no disease among children more dreaded by parents than whooping cough. It is liable to come at all seasons of the year; it exhausts the strength of the little ones, and physicians are often unable to check it. Mr. F. W. Harbaugh, of the Telegram, Baltimore, Maryland, had six of his children, aged from six to thirteen years, prostrated with this malady at one and the same time. A complete cure was, however, effected by Red Star Cough Cure; and Mr. Harbaugh writes that the cough, which generally lasts nine weeks, left in four weeks, and he is confident it would have disappeared sooner if he had been aware of the existence of such an invaluable remedy.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE.

A POPULAR MONTHLY OF GENERAL LITERATURE.

With the issue for January, 1886, important changes will be made in the literary character and typographical appearance of Lippincott's Magazine, which, while more than maintaining the former standards of excellence, will, it is expected materially increase its popularity and widen its sphere of usefulness. The distinctive features of Lippincott's for the coming year will be as follows

It will be a live periodical, interesting itself in all the current topics of the day, literary, artistic, political, and social, and enlisting in their discussion the ablest pens in England and America. A fair hearing will be accorded to all sides of a controversy, though the magazine will strictly preserve its own neutrality.

It will be especially strong in fiction. A new novel, entitled "Hope" by W. E. Norris, author of "Matrimony," "No New Thing," etc., who is perhaps the cleverest of the rising authors of England, will run through the year, accompanied by a brilliant serial, dealing with the literary and dramatic life of New York City, from the pen of a writer who prefers to keep his name a secret, but whose every touch reveals an intimate acquaintance with the scenes which he describes.

It will be rich in short stories, poems and sketches.

By special arrangement it will be the authorized medium through which the latest utterances of the most eminent transatlantic writers will reach the American public simultaneously with their appearance abroad.

It will number among its American contributors such writers as Gail Hamilton, Julian Hawthorne, Harriet Prescott Spofford, John Bach McMaster, "J. S. of Dale," J. Brander Matthews, etc.

It will be the cheapest first-class magazine issued in America. Recognizing the needs of the time for good literature at moderate prices, the publishers have decided to lower the subscription price, commencing with the new volume, to a sum that will place Lippincott's Magazine within the reach of all.

For sale by all Newsdealers, 25 cents per copy. $2 per annum.

A specimen copy sent free on application.

DENTAL NOTICE.

To the thousands who are suffering from the ill effects of badly decayed teeth, we would beg leave to inform them that with Our Method of Administering the New Vegetable Vapor all teeth can be removed without pain. Since we first began using the Vapor, we have used over 15,000 Gallons, administering it to thousands who have come from all parts of Essex County to have their teeth removed, and in no case has there been any ill effects from its use. We have given it to the most delicate and sensitive woman as well as the hardy man; to the child of 5 years, or the adult of 75. We have given the Vapor to hundreds of the most nervous people, who have for years dreaded having their decayed teeth removed. And we can say that one and all have gone away with the happy thought that their teeth were removed without pain. We can refer to hundreds of our patients who have taken Gas, Ether or Chloroform who declare that the Vapor has no equal as an anæsthetic. We charge No Extra for administering this Anæsthetic. Our prices remain the same as with gas. FINE GOLD FILLING A SPECIALTY.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

Book Notices.

The New Year's number of the Magazine of American History is as interesting to the society or business man as it is to the teacher and student. Its contents are fresh, varied and informing. The leading article on "Paul Revere," by Mr. Goss, is one of the best pen portraits of the heroic "Messenger of the Revolution" ever presented to the reading public. "A Tribute to Thomas A. Hendricks" by Hon. James W. Gerard, is accompanied by a fine portrait of our late lamented Vice President. Then follows General W. F. Smith's "Operations before Fort Donelson," which is the clearest chapter of military history that has yet appeared in connection with this subject. "The transfer of the Army of the Potomac from Burnside to Hooker," by Major William Howard Mills, is also a paper of striking interest to all Americans, The minor Departments, Original Documents, Notes, Queries, Replies, Societies, and Book Notices are, if possible, more highly entertaining than usual. Price, $5.00 a year in advance. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York City.

The January number of the Atlantic opens with an unusually interesting table of contents. It begins with the first two chapters of Charles Egbert Craddock's new serial, "In the Clouds." This is followed by a paper on "The Free Negroes of North Carolina" (who were free during the slave regime), by Mr. David Dodge, who writes most entertainingly of this little known class. The editor of the Atlantic, Mr. Aldrich has a very bright, short story called "Two Bites at a Cherry," which only Mr. Aldrich, could have written. "The Political Consequences in England of Cornwallis' Surrender" forms the subject of a thoughtful article by Mr. John Fiske. Highly interesting installments of "The Princess Casamassima," by Henry James, and Mrs. Oliphant's "A Country Gentleman," are also given in this issue, while the Contributors' Club has four short discussions which are full of the stimulating thought and pleasant fancy that distinguish this department. The number closes with the usual resume of books of the month. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

We have received from the Pope Manufacturing Co., of Boston, a very artistic calendar with each day of the year on a separate slip. As a work of convenient art it is worthy of a place in office, library or parlor.

Gen. Beauregard will give a history of the Shiloh Campaign in the January number of the North American Review. He claims that Gen. Algernon Sydney Johnson acted only as a corps commander at Shiloh. Gen. Beauregard emphatically asserts (contrary to the common belief) that he was the sole commander on both days, and, without naming them controverts the reports of Grant and Sherman as to the nation's forces being taken by surprise.

We have received from Carroll D. Wright, Esq., Chief of the Bureau of statistics of labor in Massachusetts, a Manual of Distributive Co-operation, as practiced in Great Britain. This book was prepared in accordance with instructions from the last Legislature, and is in every way an interesting document. A copy will be sent to any citizen of this Commonwealth by addressing the office of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor, Boston.

The New York Sun calls attention to the curious fact that Mark Twain's article, in the December Century, entitled, "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed," is, by an odd coincidence, a contemporaneous supplement to chapter 18 in the first volume, just printed, of General Grant's memoirs. It appears that the only time that General Grant was really cured was when he had to meet the little army in which his future publisher was a private. At Palmyra, Grant, then a colonel, was ordered to move against Col. Thomas Harris, who was said to be encamped at the little town of Florida, some twenty-five miles away. In his memoirs General Grant tells how his heart kept getting higher and higher as he approached the enemy, until he felt it in his throat, but when he reached a point where he expected to see them and found they had fled, his heart resumed its place. Mark Twain was one of the "enemy," and that he and his fellow-soldiers were equally frightened appears in his frank confession in the December Century. The difference between the two soldiers was that Mark Twain was thrown into such trepidation that he then and there abandoned forever the profession of arms, whereas General Grant made on that occasion the discovery that the enemy were as much afraid of him as he had been of them. "This," says General Grant, "was a view of the question I had never taken before, but it was one I never forgot afterward. From that event to the close of the war, I never experienced trepidation upon confronting an enemy, though I always felt more or less anxiety."

We are in receipt, from the International News Co. of New York, of the current number of the Season, the most reliable and elegant Fashion Magazine in the world. The magazine should be in the hands of every dressmaker and every lady in the land who is in the habit of suggesting or preparing plans for her outfit. The colored plates alone are worth more than the price of the magazine. International News Co., New York City.

SPARKS.

At 3.10 o'clock Christmas morning, Proctor's whistle blew for an alarm of fire caused by the burning of a barn on the Maloon estate, on Tremont street, Salem. When the fire was first seen by the watchman at Proctor's it looked as though it was on Mt. Vernon street, and consequently gave the alarm. This was taken up by the town and fire bells and in a few minutes the apparatus was all down to the Salem line, and as the fire could not be reached from the Peabody hydrants, no line was laid. The barn was owned by Edward Maloon and occupied by Patrick Tracey and E. A. Stocker. Two tons of English hay, wagons and wagon fixtures were destroyed. The loss was about $1500. The fire was of incendiary origin. As people were returning from the above fire at about 4 o'clock, it was discovered that the fire bug had been at work in Peabody, the barn of John Motley, on English street having been set on fire on the inside, burning up on a door, a place about four feet high. There was a horse, wagons, hay, etc., in the barn and had it not been seen when it was, would have got under good headway.

Monday afternoon at 2.25 the whistle on Webster & Co's. tannery sounded an alarm for a fire on the roof of the house of John Sullivan, on Harris street. The apparatus was soon on the way, but the fire had been extinguished before their arrival. This fire began around the chimney and worked its way between the partitions to the roof where it burned a place about ten inches across. It is said that the fire broke out in the forenoon but was, it was thought, wholly extinguished. Had the fire got any headway it would have been a serious one as it was in a thickly settled part of the town and the wind was quite high at the time. A delay of about 5 minutes was caused the H. & L., and Steamer 1, by the horses not being in the stable. The H. & L. horses had been out for exercise and one of them had run a nail in its foot causing lameness, and at the time of the alarm was in J. H. Smith's blacksmith shop with one shoe off, but the shoe was put on and the truck started out in just 5 minutes from the time the alarm struck. The horses of Steamer 1 were up on Central street being exercised and had to be driven to the house and their harnesses stripped. Driver Price, of Hose 1, was in Lyon's barber shop getting his hair cut, and the way the loose hair flew around that shop was a caution.

Arthur P. Bodge, driver of Hose 3, was thrown from his horse Christmas morning, while riding from his stable to the hose house, by the stumbling of the horse, and received a black eye, a bad cut on one knee and several other minor bruises.

The news of the great fire in Georgetown together with the loss of life, was received in town early Saturday morning. The fire, as is now well known, destroyed the large Tenney block, Masonic block, the Equitable building and the residence of George J. Tenney, burning out thirteen business firms and causing a loss of from $75,000 to $100,000. Assistance was rendered the Georgetown department by the Haverhill and Newburyport departments. While attempting to put a line of hose into the second story of the Adams block, an explosion, said to be of gunpowder and kerosene, occured, which threw the brick walls out, burning and killing outright Joseph Illsley and George H. Chase of the Georgetown department and seriously injuring many others. The list of killed and wounded so far as known is as follows: Killed: Joseph J. Illsley, aged 22, single: George A. Chase, married, 24, leaves wife and child. Injured: Clarence M. Clark, 21, single; left leg amputated below the knee. Wm. Noyes, Newburyport, ruptered; E. Aug. Veaton, married, left arm broken and other injuries. Arthur Tucker, Haverhill, broken leg. Charles Williams, Haverhill, injury to head. Fred Goldsmith, Haverhill, injury about the chest. Several people escaped with severe bruises, and many received light ones.

Two members of the fire department went skating on Spring pond Sunday, and as the ice was not strong enough to hold the "bold fire laddies" they took an involuntary bath.

A man's apron, in a Lowell street morocco factory got on fire by too close a contact with the furnace, last Monday afternoon. The man had the apron on at the time, and consequently got a wetting when the boys put a bucket of water on him. No alarm given.

Arthur P. Bodge of Hose 3, is the happy father of a little fireman born last Thursday. Congratulations are in order.

This loss of life and limb to firemen is what is liable to happen in every town where a fire department is maintained or where any large buildings are erected, as they are put up at the present day. Nearly every large manufactory contains some oils or other substance which will cause just such explosions when fire reaches them, and in this town in particular, is this the case, so that when a firemen turns out in answer to an alarm of fire, he does not know whether he will return alive and well, or not, the chances being against rather than otherwise. In the winter the firemen have in addition to the regular dangers of rapid driving of apparatus, falling bricks and walls, the ice and snow together with frostbitten fingers, ears and feet, bad colds caused by getting wet, and numerous other troubles and dangers that the average citizen knows nothing of from experience, and all for a mere pittance, and the excitement of the life. To meet these dangers and expenses of injuries and sickness, the fireman organize relief Associations which help the sick or wounded firemen to some extent, but how about the families of those men who are killed in the discharge of their duty as firemen? The Association could not afford to do more than pay funeral expenses, and this is where the town or State, rather the State, should render aid, and grant some kind of relief in the shape of a pension. We hope the time is not distant when some such law is passed in the Massachusetts Legislature. Z

SOUTH PEABODY.

It may be of interest to our readers to know that Enfield, Conn., a town of about 7000 inhabitants, has recently dedicated a Soldiers' Monument, as some will remember that Samuel Brown of this town enlisted from there as Captain of Co. D., 16th Conn. Vol. This Regiment reached its destination on the evening before the battle of Antietam, and the next day were put in the forefront where Captain Brown and many others lost their lives.

The arrangement of the dedicatory exercises was made by Samuel Brown Post, No. 56, Thompsonville, and from the full account in the Thompsonville Press we cull the following items of interest. The monument is of good proportions, the base and pedestal being of granite, surmounted with a bronze statue representing a sentinel "rest at ease." Surmounting the monument is a circular curbing of heavy masonry work with granite capping, and altogether it is a very attractive and grand affair, testifying to the good taste and judgment of the committee having its choice in charge. Upon either side of the shaft is an eagle stamped in bronze. The tablet at the front bears the inscription:

IN MEMORY
Of the men of Enfield
Who on land and sea
Perilled their lives
For union and liberty.
1861—1865
ERECTED
By the town of Enfield, A. D. 1885.

Engraved upon the side tablets are the names of 11 who were killed in battle, 14 more who died of wounds, and the long list of 38 who died in prison.

* * * * * *

For years it has been in the hearts and minds of many of the citizens of Enfield to honor the soldiers who went from their town and laid down their lives to save the country's flag, and with that end in view, Samuel Brown Post began soon after its organization, to lay by small amounts, saved from the Memorial day appropriations and from other sources, hoping to be able to reach the amount necessary for a monument, but found that funeral expenses and other calls for funds, made it apparent that the object could not be attained in that manner, during the lives of any surviving soldiers. Last spring the question of the town erecting a monument was agitated and a warning for a special town meeting issued. The meeting was called for Saturday, June 6th, and was well attended. The following resolution (with others) was adopted:

That a monument be erected to the memory of the soldiers and seamen belonging to that town who died in the military or naval service of the United States, in the war of the late rebellion of 1861 to 1865, and that the sum of $3750 be and hereby is appropriated for the erection of said monument.

* * * * * *

To Samuel Brown Post are due many thanks for the persistency exhibited in attending to the many details, from the laying of the first brick in the foundation to the completion of the exercises. The perfecting of the "Roll of Honor" which also came under the jurisdiction of the Post, was no small task, and every possible effort to secure accuracy, seems to have been made. Fortunately for the Post, during this emergency it has been under the direction of an efficient Commander, who has lent his zeal and spent much time to have everything right.

From the address on "Enfield in the War," we take these words:

After the failure of the Peninsular Campaign, a call was issued for 300,000 more men for three years. Enfield was called upon for 54. The town offered a bounty of $100 to any resident who should enlist between July 15 and Aug. 15, and though the town had a surplus of fifty on the former call, 47 were soon enrolled, and all but two went into the 16th Reg. most of them into Co. D., Samuel Brown, Captain.

* * * * * *

Over four hundred men were furnished by this town under various calls. It is a history of which none need be ashamed.

The Sabbath before Christmas, the 20th inst., the pastor preached a Christmas sermon at South and West Peabody to the children. Text—Gen. 3:15. The topic was "God's Great Promise to the World," and the discourse treated of this promise and its fulfillment. The text contains the first promise of forgiveness to sinful men—the first promise of hope—the first promise of a Christmas. The promise has been partially fulfilled. Christ, "the seed of the promise," was born a Saviour. He has bruised the head of the serpent, he has conquered sin and death. He has established his kingdom and the promise will find its perfect fulfilment when that kingdom is fully come.

Christmas festivals were held at both South and West Peabody. At South Peabody the vestry was prettily trimmed with evergreen. A fine large tree was loaded with fruit. A plentiful supply of the same lay about upon the platform and beneath the tree. A veritable Santa Claus made his way up to the platform burdened with his pack delightful to the eyes of the children. After the distribution of the gifts in this pack and on the tree, the Supt., Mr. W. T. Wiggin, was requested to call the School to order, as the sexton, Dea. Wm. Tudbury, was to be presented with gifts from the School. He was quite taken back upon ringing his bell to find himself first the recipient of gifts, viz:—Smith's Bible Dictionary and Rev. W. M. Taylor D. D.'s Life of David, King of Israel, and Paul the Missionary. Dea. Tudbury was then called up to the platform and he went back with a pair of rubber boots, a warm winter cap and pair of mittens. Both of these faithful brethren were too overcome at the time to respond. All the members of the School had a share in contributing for these gifts.

Several classes remembered their teachers in a very pleasant manner. Mrs. Annie E. Reed had from her class of misses a beautiful Glass Water Set. Mrs. Annie P. Newhall's class of young ladies gave her a very fine Cabinet Photograph Album, and Mrs. Colwell's class of young men presented her with "Flowers from Here and There," a book of selected poems illustrated. The exercises of the evening consisted of readings, recitations and singing. The visitation of the mumps among the children interfered somewhat with the original programme of the evening. A very pleasant time, however, was spent.

At West Peabody there were the usual Christmas exercises, singing and recitations. There was a well filled tree, and the Chapel was very tastefully trimmed with evergreen.

The estate of Mr. Joseph Moody on Lynn street, is offered for sale.

Hose 5 had one of the largest crowds of the season at their dance on Christmas night.

Mr. H. N. Batchelder, the ice man, cut ice on Spring pond for the first time this season, yesterday. The ice is about seven inches thick.

Mr. Charles H. Basford has resumed his old position as conductor on the Lynn road.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the New York & New England railroad was held on Tuesday of last week and was largely attended. There was on the occasion a rare interchange of compliments between the two principal officials; the merit of them consisted in the fact that both were eminently true. When President Hart said to the stockholders, "The difference in the condition of your affairs is due to your receiver, backed up by an able finance committee," he told the truth. When Receiver Clark returned the compliment by saying, "I know of no man who has such a hard hold when he gets a grip as President Hart," the truth was equally apparent.

I find that to serve as book keeper, store keeper, bottle washer and general errand boy for a large concern, and at the same time keep my ears open for street gossip, is quite a task. And this must account for my absence occasionally. That I am missed just a little is evident from the bray that calls for me in some quarters.

As near as I can learn the business men on Foster street were rather disdisappointed by the President of the Danvers street railroad withdrawing his petition to extend their tracks up Foster street. While they appeared to be opposed to it, they wanted him to lay a track suitable for freight cars, that spur tracks might be built from it to their factories, and in that case no opposition would come from them. But evidently Mr. Russell saw a "cat in the meal" and took the wisest course. Now the proper thing for them to do is petition for a track for themselves and get it, as there would probably be no opposition.

It is a bad practice to learn a child to put all his faith in anything then all of a sudden tell him it is not so and there is nothing in it. This is illustrated by the following, which perhaps some of your readers may think a little profane, but as it actually occurred I give it in hopes the lesson will not be lost. A fond father who had brought up his child to believe in and anticipate the annual visit of Santa Claus at Christmas time, took the little three-year old on his knee this year and told him there was no such thing as Santa Claus, and it was only in fun that he had deceived him. The little fellow was much grieved and talked about it more or less during the day. At night his mother was telling him that Christmas day commemorated the birth of Jesus Christ, when the little one looked up and said "Mamma, how do I know but what you are deceiving me about Christ just as you did about Santa Claus."

It is expected our local author and poet (?) will shortly write a very exciting romance entitled, "The Printer and the Servant Girl; or Ghostly scenes in a boarding house."

NORTH PEABODY.

Congratulations are in order at W. L. Pike's. It is a girl.

Mr. McDonald, at the Danvers line on Sylvan street, is erecting a building 15x24 with 12 feet posts, to be used as a waiting room for the horse cars. Also as a store.

Mr. George H. Winchester is building a hen house at his residence on Andover street.

Mr. A. S. Blake is building a fence at his residence on Andover street.

The Rand brothers have a horse for sale.

Mr. J. B. Stevens is making numerous improvements at his place recently purchased at the junction of Cross and Andover streets, by removing trees, etc.

Last Thursday night the hoodlums ran wild near the residence of Mr. Francis Peabody in Danvers, at the junction of Sylvan and Collins street, by throwing the globe on lamp into the old reservoir, at the junction of the above named streets, also the cover to the same and badly demolishing one of the hydrants on Collins street, knocking down walls, carrying off gates, tearing down fences, breaking glass, etc. As yet no arrests have been made but should be.

Old Joe received numerous presents Christmas, among which there was a black china doll, presented by the workmen at his extensive factory in the pit.

Various mistaken rumors being afloat as to the circumstances connected with Rev. Dr. Barbour's recent fall on the ice, it will dobtless give satisfaction to his numerous friends to learn the facts as gathered from a letter from Mrs. Barbour to a friend in this town. One of their sons being about to start for the West the day after Christmas, leave of absence had been asked for his younger brothers, (at school in Exeter, N. H.) one day before vacation. It was somewhat uncertain whether the request would be granted, and the earlier train had disappointed their hopes. Dr. Barbour had gone out hoping to meet them on the arrival of the late train from Boston, and at a short distance from his home slipped and fractured his leg. It seemed scarcely five minutes before a ring at the door summoned help to bring him into the house. The surgeon, who was near at hand, was preparing to set the broken limb when the boys rushed in; but their exuberant joy was suddenly dampened as they found their father prostrate and helpless. It is a clean fracture, and we trust that in due time he will be able to resume his valuable labors.
